BOOK IV.

Of the Government of LONDON, Ecclesiastical, Civil and Military.

CHAP. I.

The Ecclesiastical Government of LONDON.

HAVING now gone through the Description of the City of LONDON, as well in its Original Foundation, as in its Increase of Buildings and Ornaments, something remains to be said of its Policy and Government.

First, To begin with the Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction; the Christian Faith is said to have been first preached in this Island by Joseph of Arimathea, and his Brethren, Disciples of Christ, in the Time of Arviragus, then Governor of Britain, under the Roman Emperor. After which Time, Lucius, King of the Britons, sent his Ambassadors, Elvanus and Meduvinus, two Men learned in the Scriptures, with Letters to Eleutherius, Bishop of Rome, desiring him to send some devout and learned Men, by whose Instruction, he and his People might be taught the Faith and Religion of Christ. Eleutherius baptized those Messengers, making Elvanus a Bishop, and Meduvinus a Teacher, and sent two other famous Clerks, Faganus and Deruvianus, over into Britain with them, by whose Diligence Lucius and his People were instructed in the Christian Religion, and baptized; the Temples of their Idols were converted into Cathedral Churches, and Bishops were placed, where Flames had been before. At LONDON, York, and Carleon upon Uske, were placed Archbishops. The Epistle, said to be sent by Eleutherius to King Lucius, for establishing the Faith, may be found in Stow's Annals: In some other Authors it has been curtailed and corrupted, and then fathered upon venerable Bede, who says nothing more than what follows:

" IN the Year 156, Marcus Aurelius Verus,
 " the 14th Emperor after Augustus, governed the " Empire with his Brother Aurelius Commodus ;
 " in whose Time Eleutherius, a holy Man,
 " being Pope of the Church of Rome, Lucius,
 " King of the Britons, wrote unto him, desir" ing that by his Commandment, he might be " made a Christian ; which his Request was " granted him, whereby the Britons receiving
 " then the Faith, kept it sound and undefiled in " Rest and Peace, until Dioclesian the Emperor's " Time.

THERE yet remains in the Parish-Church of St. Peter in Cornhill, a Table, wherein is written, that Lucius founded the said Church to be an Archbishop's See, and Metropolitan and Chief Church of his Kingdom, and that it so endured the Space of 400 Years, until the Coming of Augustine the Monk, and others from Rome, in the Reign of the Saxons. See the Copy of what is wrote on this Table, Vol. I. Book II. Chap. VII.

THE Archbishops Names are set down by Joceline of Furnes, in his Book of British Bishops, and no where else, Stow saith, that he could find.

1. Thean, according to that Author, was the first Archbishop of LONDON, in the Time of Lucius, who built the said Church of St. Peter, in a Place called Cornhill, in LONDON, by the Aid of Ciran, Chief Butler to King Lucius.

2. Elvanus was the second, and he built a Library to the same Church adjoining, and converted many of the Druids (learned Men in the Pagan Law) to the Christian Faith.

3. Cadar was the third ; then followed

4. Obinus.

5. Conan.

6. Paludius.

7. Stephen.

8. Iltute.

9. Dedwin, (or Theodwin.)

10. Thefred.

11. Hillary.

12. Restitutus.

13. Guidelium, (or Guiteline)

14. Fastidius,

15. Vodimus, slain by the Saxons.

16. Theanus, the 16th and last ; for he fled with the Britons into Wales, about the Year of Christ 587.

THE Saxons, being Pagans, having chased the Britons with the Christian Preachers into the Mountains of Wales and Cornwall, and having divided this Kingdom of the Britons amongst themselves ; at length, viz. in the Year 596, Pope Gregory, moved of a godly Institution (saith Bede) in the 147th Year, after the Arrival of the Angles (or Saxons) in Britain, sent Augustine, Melitus, Justus and John, with other Monks, to preach the Gospel to the said Nation of the Angles in Britain.

THESE landed in the Isle of Thanet, and were first received by Ethelbert, King of Kent, whom they converted to the Faith of Christ, with divers other of his People, in the 34th Year of his Reign. Which Ethelbert gave to Augustine, the City of Canterbury.

THE Metropolitan See being established at Canterbury, these that follow were successively Bishops of LONDON, to this present Time :

THIS Augustine, in the Year of Christ 604, consecrated Melitus and Justus, Bishops, appointing Melitus to preach to the East Saxons, whose chief City was LONDON : And their King Sebert, Nephew to Ethelbert, by the Preaching of Melitus, received the Word of Life.

1. And then Ethelbert, King of Kent, built in the City of LONDON, St. Paul's Church, wherein Melitus began to be Bishop, in the Year 619, and sat five Years. Ethelbert, by his Charter, gave Lands to this Church of St. Paul ; so did other Kings after him.

King Sebert, through the good Life, and like Preaching of Melitus, having received Baptism, to shew himself a Christian, built a Church to the Honour of God and St. Peter, on the West Side of LONDON, which Church is called Westminster : But the Successors of Sebert, being Pagans, expelled Melitus out of their Kingdoms.

2. Justus the Second, Bishop for a Time, and then Melitus again ; after whose Decease the Seat was void for a Time. At length Sigebert (Son to Sigebert, Brother to Sebert) ruled in Essex : He became a Christian, and took to him a holy Man, named Cedde, or Chadde, who won many by Preaching and good Life, to the Christian Religion.

3. Cedde (or Chadde) was (by Finan) consecrated Bishop of the East Saxons, and he ordered Priests and Deacons in all Parts of Essex, but especially at Ithancaster and Tilbury.

THIS City of Ithancaster (saith Ralph Coggeshall) stood on the Bank of the River Pante, that runs by Maldum, in the Hundred of Danefsey ; but now that City is drowned in Pante, so that nothing remains but the Ruins of the City in the River. Tilbury (both the West and East) stands on the Thames Side, nigh over-against Gravesend.

4. Wina, expelled from the Church of Winchester by Cenewalche, the King, was adopted to be the fourth Bishop of LONDON, in the Reign of Wolferus, King of Mercia, and sat nine Years. A. D. 666.

5. Erkenwald, born in the Castle, or Town, of Stallingborough in Lindsey, first Abbot of Crotesey, was, by Theodore, Archbishop of Canterbury, appointed to be Bishop of the East Saxons, in the City of LONDON. This Erkenwald, in the Year of Christ 677, before he was made Bishop, had built two Monasteries, one for himself, (being a Monk) at Crotesey, in the Isle of Crote in Surrey, by the River Thames, and another by his Sister Edilburga, being a Nun, in a certain Place called Berching in Essex : He deceased at Berching, in the Year 697, and was buried in St. Paul's Church ; and was from thence translated into the new Church of St. Paul, on the 18 Kalends of December, in the Year 1148. 680.

6. Waldhere, or Walthere, was Bishop of LONDON : Sebba, King of the East Saxons, came to this Waldhere, Bishop of LONDON, and at his Hands received the Habit of a Monk : For at that Time there were Monks at St. Paul's Church, as writes Radulphus Diceto, and others. To this Bishop he brought a great Sum of Money, to be bestowed and given to the Poor, reserving nothing to himself ; but rather desired to remain poor in Goods, as in Spirit, for the Kingdom of Heaven ; when he had reigned 30 Years, he deceased at St. Paul's, and there buried, and lies now in a Coffin of Stone, on the North Side of the Isle next the Choir. 697.

7. Ingwaldus, Bishop of LONDON, was at the Consecration of Tatwine, Archbishop of Canterbury, and he confirmed the Foundation of Crowland, in the Year 716, (says Ingulfus) and deceased in the Year 744, as says Hoveden. 716.

8. Engulfe, called also Egwoife, or Egnaldus, Bishop of LONDON. 746.

9. Wichet, or Wigerus, Bishop of LONDON. 754.

10. Eade.

761. 10. Eaderightus, or Edbrithe, Bishop of LONDON.
768. 11. Eadgain, or Eadgarus, Bishop of LONDON.
773. 12. Kenewalth, Bishop of LONDON.
784. 13. Eadbaldus, Bishop of LONDON.
795. 14. Heatbright, or Hutbright, Hethobert, Bishop of LONDON, deceased 802, says Hoveden.
813. 15. Osmundus, or Oswin, Bishop of LONDON; he was Witness to a Charter made to Cowland, in the Year 833, says Engulfus.
835. 16. Ethelnothe, Bishop of LONDON.
838. 17. Elbertus, or Celbertus, Bishop of LONDON.
841. 18. Caulfe, Renulfe, or Ceorulfe, Bishop of LONDON.
850. 19. Switbulfus, Bishop of LONDON; he likewise was a Witness to a Charter of Cowland, 851.
860. 20. Edstanus, Bishop of LONDON, Witness to a Charter of Cowland, 860.
870. 21. Ulfus Wulfus, or Wulfus, Bishop of LONDON.
878. 22. Ethelwardus, Bishop of LONDON.
886. 23. Elstanus, Bishop of LONDON, died in the Year 900, says Affer; and all these, says the Author of Flores Historiarum, were buried in the old Church of St. Paul, but there remains now no Memory of them.
900. 24. Theodoricus, Bishop of LONDON. This Man confirmed King Edred's Charter made to Winchester in the Year 947, whereby it seems, that he was Bishop of LONDON of a later Time than he is here placed.
922. 25. Welstanus, or Wulstanus, Bishop of LONDON.
941. 26. Brithelme, Bishop of LONDON.

960. 28. Ealstanus, Bishop of LONDON, the Twenty-eighth in Number.
981. 29. Edgar, Bishop of LONDON; he confirmed the Grants made to Winchester and to Cowland, 966; and again to Cowland, 970; the Charter of Etheldred, concerning Ulfrunhampton, 996.
1004. 30. Elphinus, Bishop of LONDON.
1010. 31. Alwinus, Bishop of LONDON.
1012. 32. Alfhune, Bishop of LONDON; he was sent into Normandy in the Year 1013, says Affer.
1044. 33. Robert, seven Years a Monk of Gemerisus in Normandy, afterward translated from LONDON to Canterbury.
1050. 34. Specgafius elected, but rejected by the King.
1051. 35. William, a Norman, Chaplain to Edward the Confessor, was made Bishop of LONDON in 1051, sat seven Years, and deceased 1070. He obtained of William the Conqueror the Charter of Liberties for the City of LONDON, as was expressed in his Epitaph in St. Paul's Church, LONDON.
1070. 36. Hugh de Orwell, or Oriwall, Bishop of LONDON; he died of a Leprosy, when he had sat fifteen Years.
1085. 37. Mauricius, Bishop of LONDON, in whose Time (to wit, in the Year 1086) the Church of St. Paul was burnt, with the most Part of this City; and therefore he laid the Foundation of a new large Church, and having sat 22 Years, he deceased 1107, says Matthew Paris.
1108. 38. Richard Beames, or Beamor, (called by some Richard Bearvis) Bishop of LONDON, did wonderfully increase the Work of this Church begun, purchasing the Streets and Lanes adjoining with his own Money. And he founded the Monastery of St. Osyth in Essex. He sat Bishop nineteen Years, and deceased 1127.

39. Gilbertus Universalis, a Canon of Lyons, elected by Henry I. he deceased 1141, when he had sat fourteen Years. 1127.

40. Robertus de Sigillo, a Monk of Reading, whom Maud the Empress made Bishop of LONDON, where he sat eleven Years. Jeffrey de Magnavile took him Prisoner at Fulham, and he deceased 1152. 1142.

41. Richard Beames, Archdeacon of Essex, Bishop of LONDON ten Years, who deceased 1162. 1152.

42. Gilbert Feliot, Bishop of Hereford, from whence translated to LONDON, sat three and twenty Years, and deceased 1186. 1163.

43. Richard Fitz Nele, the King's Treasurer, Archdeacon of Essex, elected Bishop of LONDON at Pipwell 1189. He sat nine Years, and deceased 1198. This Man also took great Pains about the building of St. Paul's Church, and raised many other Buildings in his Diocese. 1189.

44. William S. Mary Church, a Norman, (commonly called, William de Sancta Maria) Bishop of LONDON, who was one of the three Bishops, that, by the Pope's Commandment, executed his Interdiction or Curse upon the whole Realm of England. But he was forced (with the other Bishops) to fly the Realm in 1208; and his Castle at Stortford in Essex was, by Commandment of King John, overthrown, 1210. This William, in Company with the Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Bishop of Ely, went to Rome, and there complained against the King 1212, and returned so, as in the Year 1215, King John in the Church of St. Paul, at the Hands of this William, took upon him the Cross for the Holy Land. He resigned his Bishoprick, of his own Voluntary Act, in the Year 1221, says Cogshall. 1199.

45. Eustachius de Faulconbridge, Treasurer of the Exchequer, (says Paris) Chancellor of the Exchequer (says Textor and Cogshall) Bishop of LONDON, 1123. Whilst at Chelmsford he was giving Holy Orders, a great Tempest of Wind and Rain annoyed so many as came thither; whereof it was gathered, how highly God was displeased with such as came to receive Orders, to the end, they might live a more easy Life, of the Stipends appointed to the Churchmen, giving themselves to Banqueting, and so with unclean and filthy Bodies, but more unclean Souls, presume to minister unto God, the Author of Purity and Cleanness. Falcatus de Brent was delivered to his Custody in the Year 1224. This Eustachius deceased in the Year 1228, and was buried in St. Paul's Church, in the South Side, without or above the Choir. 1221.

46. Roger Niger, Archdeacon of Colchester, made Bishop of LONDON. In the Year 1230, (says Paris) upon the Feast-Day of the Conversion of St. Paul, when he was at Mass in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, a great Multitude of People being there present, suddenly the Weather grew so dark, that People could hardly see one another, and an horrible Thunder-clap lighted on the Church, which so shook it, that it was like to have fallen; and therewithal, out of a dark Cloud, proceeded such a Flash of Lightning, that all the Church seemed to be on Fire; whereupon such a Stench ensued, that all Men thought they should have died; Thousands of Men and Women ran out of the Church, and being astonished, fell upon the Ground, void of all Sense and Understanding. 1229.

NONE of all the Multitude tarried in the Church, save the Bishop and one Deacon, which stood still before the high Altar, waiting the Will of God; and when the Air was cleansed, the the Multitude returned into the Church; and the Bishop ended the Service.

THIS Roger Niger is commended to have been a Man of worthy Life, excellently well learned, a notable Preacher, pleasant in Talk, mild of Countenance, and liberal at his Table. He admonished the Usurers of his Time to leave such Enormities, as they tender'd the Salvation of their Souls, and to do Penance for that they had committed: But when he saw they laughed him to Scorn, and also threaten'd him, the Bishop generally excommunicated and accursed all such, and commanded strictly that such Usurers should depart farther from the City of LONDON, which hitherto had been ignorant of such Mischief and Wickedness, lest his Diocese should be infected therewithal. He fell sick, and died at his Manor of Bishops Hall, in the Lordship and Parish of Stebunheth, in the Year 1241, and was buried in St. Paul's Church, on the North Side of the Presbytery, in a fair Tomb coped with Grey Marble.

1241. 47. Fulco Basset, Dean of York, Bishop of LONDON by the Death of Gilbert Basset, possessed his Lands on the 21st Day of May, in the Year 1259, (as says John Textor) and was buried in St. Paul's Church.

1259. 48. Henry de Wingham, Chancellor of England, made Bishop of LONDON, deceased in the Year 1262, (says Textor) and was buried in St. Paul's Church, on the South Side, without or above the Choir, in a Marble Monument, close at the Head of Faulconbridge.

1262. 50. Henry Sandwich, Bishop of LONDON, deceased in the Year 1273, as the same Author affirms.

1273. 51. John de Chisbul, Dean of St. Paul's, Treasurer of the Exchequer, and Keeper of the Great Seal, was Bishop of LONDON, and deceased in the Year 1279, says Eversden.

1280. 52. Fulco Lovel, Archdeacon of Colchester, elected Bishop of LONDON, but refused the Place.

1280. 53. Richard de Gravesend, Archdeacon of Northampton, Bishop of LONDON: It appears by the Charter-Warrant granted to this Bishop, that (in his Time) there were two Woods in the Parish of Stebunheth, pertaining to the said Bishop. Some have fabled, that this Richard Gravesend, Bishop of LONDON, in the Year 1392, the 16th of Richard II. purchased the Charter of Liberties to this City; which Thing has no Possibility of Truth, for he deceased in the Year 1303, almost 90 Years before that Time.

1303. 54. Ralph de Boldock, Dean of St. Paul's, Bishop of LONDON, consecrated at Lyons by Peter, Bishop of Alba, in the Year 1307; he was a great Furtherer of the new Work of St. Paul's, viz. the East End, called our Lady Chapel, and the other adjoining. 1318. 57. Stephen Gravesend, Bishop of LONDON, sat 20 Years.

1338. 58. Richard Wentworth, or Bentworth, Bishop of LONDON, and Chancellor of England, deceased in the Year 1539.

1339. 59. Ralph Stratford, Bishop of LONDON; he purchased the Piece of Ground, called No Man's Land, beside Smithfield, and dedicated it to the Use of Burial, as before has appeared.

He was born at Stratford upon Avon, and therefore built a Chapel to St. Thomas there. He sat 14 Years, and deceased at Stebunheth.

60. Michael Norbroke (Northbroke), Bishop of LONDON, deceased in the Year 1361, says Merimouth, sat seven Years.

61. Simon Sudbury, Bishop of LONDON, sat 13 Years, translated to be Archbishop of Canterbury, in the Year 1375.

He sat Archbishop there 25 Years; and was translated to Canterbury; he was afterwards made Cardinal in the Year 1452. In the Bishop of LONDON's House at Fulham, he received the Cross, and the next Day the Pall, at the Hands of Thomas Kempe, Bishop of LONDON: He deceased in the Year 1454.

68. William Grey, Dean of York, consecrated Bishop of LONDON, who founded a College at Thele in Hertfordshire, for a Master and four Canons, and made it a Cell to Elſing Spittal in LONDON. It had, of old Time, been a College decayed, and therefore newly founded. He was translated to Lincoln 1431.

THESE Parish-Churches are honoured with the Names of several Saints prefixed to them; to whom, whether holy Men or Women, they were dedicated at their Founding: And so they stand in our Weekly Bills of Mortality. The first Bill wherein the Parishes had the Title SAINT put before each Saint's Name, was that which bore Date January the 15th, 1634, to the 22d of the same; according to the Observation of Richard Smith, a late diligent Antiquary, which continued continued for some Years, until afterwards in the Mayoralty of Alderman Pennington, the Saints were thrown out of Doors, and the Parishes unfainted. For in the Year 1642, the Title of Saint in the weekly Bills of Mortality in LONDON, was commanded by the Authority then prevailing, to be expunged for the future; the Blessed Virgin Mary, the Holy Apostles, (nay, and our Saviour himself, nor the Holy Trinity spared) whom no Christian dare deny to be holy Saints in Heaven, being for Company unhal- lowed and unfainted also. This divorcing of the Parishes from their Saints in the said Bills continued until the Year 1660; when at the Restoration of King Charles II. they were again restored, and so it hath continued hitherto.

OF the Value of the Livings in LONDON, the Gift Sermons, &c. we have given an Account at the End of every Parish.

AND thus at present it stands with the Churches and Parishes. But since our Business is also to represent the antient State of LONDON, it must be inquired, in what Condition Things stood with the Parish Priests and their Parishioners in former Times. And here we shall specify two Particulars that we meet with; viz. The Benefits accruing to the Incumbents of the Parish-Churches by Offerings, and what Things were chiefly inquired into, and presentable in the Parochial Visitations.

BECAUSE the Parish Curates in former Times made considerable Benefits by the Offerings of the Parishioners, which were to be made to God in their Churches upon certain Occasions and Days; and and were the Priests Dues, but great Contest happened about the Quantity and the Offering-Days: Roger, surnamed Niger [the Black] Bishop of LONDON, a wise and grave Man, (possessing the Episcopal Chair from 1229 to 1241) made a Constitution for this Purpose between the Priests and the Parishioners within the City and Suburbs; the Tenour whereof was, That, according to the yearly Rent that the Inhabitants paid for their Dwelling-Houses, so their Offerings should be; that is, after the Rate of a Farthing for a House rented at 10 s. a Year, and an Half-penny for a House rented at 20 s. a Year; and so proportionably. And these Offerings payable on all the Sundays, Holidays and double Feasts throughout the Year.

BUT this Bishop Roger's Constitution was not so exact, but that afterwards many Citizens contended with their Curates about these Offerings. For, because in the said Constitution he that inhabited an House of 40 s. Rent, was to pay a Penny on all the Offering-Days; and it was not mentioned in the Constitution, that according as the Rent advanced higher, so should the Payments due to the Priest; they refused to pay more than a Penny, were their Rents never so much above 40 s. This occasion'd Thomas Arundel, Archbishop of Canterbury, to confirm Bishop Roger's Constitution, and to add an Explanation of that Particular contended about, which was in the Year 1327, by way of Letter to the Mayor, Aldermen and Citizens; wherein he pronounced all liable to be cursed with the great Sentence that should disobey.

AND this was procured to be ratified and strengthened by Letters from Pope Innocent VII, Anno 1404.

AFTERWARDS a Pretence arose to defraud the Priests of some of these Offerings, by urging, that they were to be paid only on Sundays and the Feasts of the Apostles. Hence one Robert Wright, of the Parish of St. Edmund's Lombard-street, refused Payment of Offerings on the Days of St. Stephen, St. John, St. Innocents, the three Days in Easter and Whitsuntide, the Circumcision, the Epiphany, &c. This occasioned a great Process against Wright, and at length the Cause being removed to Rome, final Sentence was given against him. And this occasioned a severe Bull of Pope Nicholas V. Anno 1453, wherein he confirmed the Archbishop's Letters, and made farther Provision in favour of the Curates of LONDON for Time to come; and the other Offering-Days were established by the said Bull. And a Power was also given to all Ordinaries to make Inquisition about the due Payment of these Offerings, and to excommunicate such as were faulty therein.

THIS produced a solemn Arbitration made between the LONDON Priests and the Laity, for the ascertaining of these Offerings, and final Settlement of this Matter: And the Arbitrators were several learned Civilians, viz. Laurence Booth (afterwards Bishop of Hereford) William Radcliff, Lucas Laycock, &c. and they at last made this Composition following:

First, That every Person, Dweller, and Inhabitant in any Houses in London or Suburbys of the same, hired and occupied for the full Rent and Pension of x Shillings yerely, shal offer to God and to the Chyrche, in whose Paryshe such Place standeth, one Ferthing every Day in the Festis that follow; that is to say,

Item, Al Offryngs undone before this Day, or any other attempted contrary, beside, or ageynst this present Writting, by any Person or Persons, shall stonde quite, and not be remembered as unto any Suite or Strife; but al such Things before this Day done, shall clean be remett and forgiven on boothe Parties.

BE it in mynde, that this Bond and Arbitrement is made the xvii Day of Decembre, the Yere of the Incarnation of our Lord M. iiii. c. l. vii. by Maister Laurence Bothe, Maister William Radclyf, Maister Lucas Lancok, Maister John Aleyn, Maister John Lyleford, Gefrey Felding, William Taylor, Maister Robert Kent, Arbitrators, chosen upon the Premisse, as in the Tenor of the Compremisse thereupon openly made, it may appere.

THE Archbishop's Letter above-mentioned, another from Pope Innocent, the Proceß against Robert Wright, and a Bull from Pope Nicholas, concerning these Offerings, are all preserved in the old Book of the Customs of LONDON; but being very long, and in old English, we shall not trouble the Reader with them.

THE Bull which the Curates procured of the Pope for the ending of former Controversies about their Offerings, did not yet make an End; for tho' there was an Act of Common-Council in the 14th of Edward IV. acquiescing in the Order of this Bull; yet afterwards out of this Papal Decision sprung another Doubt about these Offerings, viz. That in Case any Citizen rented about 10 s. a Year, and under 20 s. as for Example, a Mark, or 15 s. the Curate would then require more than a Farthing; and so if the Rent was upward of 20 s. but not 30, they demanded a Half-penny, and somewhat more proportionably. This the Citizens would not comply with, and it caused a great Disturbance. They urged it was the Contents of the Bull, all Compositions laid apart; and that for mean Sums between ten and ten, there was no Mention made thereof in the Bull; only that he paid 6 s. 8 d. Rent, or any higher Sum under 10 s. used to pay his four Offering Days, and no more, according as every one that received the Communion was bound to do. And that he that sat at the Rent of a Mark, or any higher Sum under 20 s. paid but after the Rate of 10 s. and that for the odd Money he was not chargeable by the Bull. And for the deciding this Difference, and any other that might arise hereupon, the Composition before-mentioned was made.

BUT to see what Value by Means of the Offerings the Churches in LONDON brought in to the Parish Priests in those antient Times, we shall set down here, for an Instance, the Value of the Benefice of St. Magnus at London-bridge, advanced yearly to the Parson, according to a Reckoning made thereof December 1, 1494. The Rents in this Parish amounted to 434 l. 12 s. 8 d. the Offering to 75 l. 8 s. 8 d. Half-penny. The Rents and Offerings are set down distinctly against each Parishioner's Name in the old LONDON Book of Customs, after this Manner:

BESIDES, there were Offerings due from those that had Shops and no Houses, or in other Place than their Houses stood, and from such whose Rents amounted not to 10 s. yearly, who were bound to offer only four Times a Year.

So that to recollect and proceed in this Account and History of the LONDON Priests Subsistence, gained out of their respective Parishes.

THE Tithes due to the Clergy of LONDON, (as appears by the old Book, called The Customs of LONDON, and a Manuscript Treatise in the Hands of Samuel Brewer, Esq;) consisted not in Glebe and Lands, as they pertained to the Churches in the Country, but of Payments by antient Custom issuing out of the Houses of the Parishioners, according to the true Value of the Rents, which were called Oblations, because they were Offerings to God and the Church, each Parishioner offering a small Piece of Money, according to the House he lived in, on certain Holidays. Which Custom was used for many Ages, and Time out of Mind, and was afterwards confirmed and declared by Roger Niger, Bishop of LONDON, about the Year 1230, 15 H. III. or thereabouts. These Oblations amounted yearly to 3 s. 6 d. in the Pound. But by an Act of Parliament about 25 H. VIII. these Oblations, or Tithes, were altered, and settled at 2 s. 9 d. in the Pound, to the great Disadvantage of the LONDON Clergy; the Citizens also contending to pay after the old Rents, not according to the present Improvements.

THE aforesaid Roger Niger's Constitution was this, That all and every the Citizens and Inhabitants bitants of LONDON, should pay, or offer to God and the Church, and to the Rectors and Parsons of the same, upon every Sunday throughout the Year, and upon every solemn and double Feast, especially and by Name upon the Holy Apostles Days, whose Eves were fasted, for every 10 s. Rent or Pension, one Farthing; for every 20 s. one Half-penny; and for every 30 s. three Farthings; and for every 40 s. one Penny; and so ascending after the Rate aforesaid, as had been of long Time accustomed, and lawfully prescribed. This Constitution is recited by Thomas Arundal, Archbishop of Canterbury, remaining on Record, and in the Bulls of Innocent the VIIIth, and Nicholas IV, and in Linwood, the great Canonist and Dean of the Arches, who lived in the Time of Henry V, about the Year 1400.

THE Occasion of this Constitution was, to assist the Parish-Priests that received great Damage by the Encroachments of the Dominicans and Franciscan Friars, who being not long before come over, drew much People after them; who admiring them for their Strictness and seeming Sanctity of Life, thought all too little which they could confer upon them, and drawn in by the Doctrine of some of those Mendicants, that Tithes were mere Alms, and that People might withdraw them from their Parsons if they were unworthy: And as the People flocked to the Houses of these Friars, making them their Confessors, and neglecting both their own Churches and Parsons; so they gave those Offerings or Tithes to these new Preachers, which were due to their Parish Priests, that had the Cure of their Souls. Which Abuse they complaining of at a Synod; hereupon this Constitution was made, expressing what and how much every one ought to pay to his own Church.

BESIDES these Oblations the Parish-Priests of LONDON had Personal Tithes, which was the tenth Part of the clear Gains of Merchants, Traders and Artificers.

THEY had also Benefits from Chantries, which were certain Lands or Houses, or Sums of Money issuing thence, left by the wealthier Sort of deceased Persons, that their Souls, and the Souls of their Ancestors, might continually be prayed for in the Churches where they were buried; where some small Chapels were built with Altars for that Purpose: And there was scarce a Church in LONDON but had one of them, and some three or four. These were often beneficial to the Parson of the Church, who was sometimes solely endowed with the Lands given for that Purpose, and sometimes together with the Church-wardens. And there were some small Parishes in this City, where the Tithes were not above 80 l. per Annum; when as the Chantry-Lands belonging antiently thereto, (taken away by the Statute of 1 Edw. VI.) were then worth 500 or 600 l. per Annum.

THERE were likewise accruing antiently to the Parish-Priests, Offerings to the Image of our Lady, the four Offering-Days, the Money for Masses; which the Friends of the Deceased bought, to deliver their Souls out of Purgatory. And there were also voluntary Offerings of well disposed Persons: For People came not empty-handed to God.

THERE were also due to them, besides predial and personal, privy Tithes; that is, Dues upon Burials, Weddings, and Christenings, &c. What these Perquisites and Benefits were, may be understood by a Bill put up in the Star-Chamber by some Citizens 25 Hen. VIII, against their Priests: Which, for the better understanding of these Matters, and for Antiquity Sake, we shall here subjoin.

DUTIES antiently paid to the Parson, or Curate, for Weddings.

First, There is laid upon the Book, according to the Custom, 8 d.

Secondly, Two Tapers at Mass, 2 d.

Thirdly, A Taper at the latter End of the Mass, 1 d.

Fifthly, If any will be married before the High Mass, they pay 20 d. or 40 d. or 5 s. or else must tarry till all be done.

First, If the Party be buried under Stool, 1 s. or more; and every Priest in the Church 8 d. or more; else they do not sing him to his Burial.

Secondly, At every Month's Mind, Year's Mind, or Obit, the Curate hath 8 d. or 12 d.

Thirdly, All the Tapers and Wax brought into the Church with the Corps, if they be under a Pound.

Fourthly, All the Branches of White Wax, if any be brought in with the Corpse. Which Branches cost 6 s. 8 d. sometimes 10 s. sometimes 13 s. 4 d. And some pay more.

Fifthly, For Privy Tithes 20 d. 40 d. 5 s. 20 s. 40 s. or more.

Sixthly, To the High Altar as much for Personal Tithe.

Seventhly, If any be buried out of his own Parish, the Corpse must be first presented in his own Church; and Dirige and Mass kept as amply as in the Place where it is buried.

Secondly, For the Purification of Custom in the Taper, 1 d. with the Chrisome, and the whole Offering by all the Women at Mass, 2 d.

BEADROLL.

First, If any will have his Friends prayed for in the Beadroll, the Curate hath by Year 4 d. or 8 d. or more.

Housel at EASTER.

Of Mens Wives, Children, and Apprentices for their Communion at Easter, for every Head Two-pence.

TITHES of all the Servants Wages.

Secondly,

Secondly, Where a Saint's Image stands without the Choir, to which a Brotherhood belongs, the Wardens of the Brotherhood compound, some for 3 s. 4 d. 5 s. 6 s. and 8 d. or more per Annum, to have the Brotherhood kept in the Church.

LEASES.

For sealing a Lease of a House belonging to the Church, 20 s. 40 s. 3 l. 4 s. or more.

THESE Duties, although the Citizens complained of in the Star Chamber, yet the Lords Referees (as it seems) saw so little Reason to alter any of them, that though they altered the Tithe to 2 s. 9 d. in the Pound, yet they let them remain as they were.

THAT which we now call Glebe (which was another Benefit also to the Incumbent) was for the most Part at the first either Part of the Parsonage-House; which in latter Time the Parson was forced to divide and let out for his better Maintenance, and so to confine himself to a less Part; or else some Chambers built at first upon Part of the Church-yard, for the Priests that used to assist in Divine Service, or for other Uses; which in Process of Time, by repairing and enlarging, became convenient Houses: Some of which, in some few Parishes, yet remain to the Parsons; the most Part being either seized by the Crown, by Virtue of the Act of Chantries, 1 Edw. VI, or invaded by the Parishioners since the Reformation: Which in many Parishes have left for the Parson neither Glebe nor Dwelling-house, but have converted all into Parish-Lands.

THERE happen'd a Controversy some Time between the Citizens and the Parish-Priests concerning the Tithe or Oblations under 10 s. as a Noble; and for this they paid antiently in London, 14 d. This in Henry VIII's Time passed into a Contest; and one Robert Hearne of St. Mildred's Poultry was cited by John Smith, Rector of that Church, into the Arches, for Refusal of the Payment of this 14 d. in the Noble, before Dr. Ligham, L. L. D. Official of the Court of Canterbury; and Sentence was given against him 18 Hen. VIII. Anno 1527; and he was declared to have incurred the great Excommunication.

ABOUT this Time a Suit began between the Citizens and the Priests about Tithes, (wherein all the City concerned themselves) which lasted through divers Kings and Queens Reigns; which underwent divers Arbitrations, provoked many Petitions, caus'd some Acts of Parliament, and was never fully accorded till the Act of Parliament made under King Charles II, after the great Fire, for settling the Tithe of the consumed Churches. But, by the Advantages the Citizens got of the Priests by one means or other, the City Clergy (especially in the Times of the Reformation) became much impoverished; and the Livings came at last to so mean and poor a Value, that in one of their Petitions they complained, that it had been better for them if their Friends, instead of sending them to the Universities, had put them Apprentices to Taylors or Shoe-makers, or some such mechanical Trades; for then they might have been able to maintain themselves and their Families, which now they were not by their Livings.

THE Means some of the Citizens used to defraud the Ministers of their Tithes in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, was, that to abate Tithes formerly paid, or to prevent any Increase of them, they reserved what had been formerly paid as Rent, by other Names; as, yearly and quarterly Fines, Annuities, New-year's Gifts, Interest of Money for Improvement, or Household-Stuff. Some reserved it by several Bonds; some by double Leases, wherein was mentioned a small Rent, by which the Parson must have his Tithe; another, wherein was reserved the full Rent, after which they paid the Landlord: And when any Controversies should arise concerning Tithes, it was provided by a Law, that the Lord Mayor should judge and decide these Matters; who commonly favoured the Citizens against the Parsons.

THIS was long a Grievance; and at last was the Cause of a Bill put up in King James I's Parliament, Anno 1604. Upon opening the Matter, the whole House took Notice of it; and Sir Henry Billingsley, Knight and Alderman, and Mr. Richard Gore, Members of Parliament for the City, spake to the Bill: But it was cast out by one or two Voices; the Occasion of which was thought not fit to be mentioned. However, the said Billingsley plainly declared it; and he promised afterwards to get the Bill again put up by the Court of Aldermen at their own Charge: But the Parliament hastening to an End, nothing was done; and the Religious Intention of that good Man came to nothing.

To all this we shall add a Petition put up by the Ministers of LONDON to King James, Anno 1615, wherein their lamentable Condition, and the History of it may appear. They complained, that their Maintenance was taken away from them; and that they were brought to great Poverty by secret Frauds and Tricks, lately devised and put in Practice by some covetous Persons, to the Dishonour of God, and utter Ruin of the Church of God in this Honourable City, if not in Time suppressed. And, among many other Things, they shewed what the Benefices in LONDON were in Times past; which they found to have been the best in the Kingdom, by Reason of their Tithes, Oblations, Church Lands, Obits, Mortuaries, &c. therefore were so highly rated in the Exchequer, as they then were, viz. at 20, 30, 40, 50, 60, 100 Marks per Annum. For Tithes the Citizens paid the Tenth of their Personal Employments; which, if they still paid, one rich Man should pay more than some of their Benefices in the whole were now worth. For Oblations they paid a Farthing for every 10 s. Rent, Pension, or Payment, upon every Sunday, and certain other Holidays in the Year; which amounted to 3 s. and 6 d. in the Pound, being 9 d. in every Pound more than they at present had. That for discovery of Rent, Freeholders Houses were to be valued, and Offerings, or Oblations, paid accordingly; whereby no such Frauds could be put upon their Predecessors as were put upon them. That for Recovery of Oblations it was without Suit of Law, the Ordinary being to enquire of the Detention of them summarily without Citation, and to pronounce a Curse upon the Offenders. And lastly, That Men made Restitution in their last Wills and Testaments for Tenth and Oblations omitted, to free their Consciences in case they had made Default in the due Payment of them in their Life-time.

THAT this was the State of the Benefices in LONDON, until 27 H. VIII. about which Time all their antient Constitutions and Confirmations were disannulled; and a new Order and Decree made, pretending their Good, but indeed that it was the Beginning of their Bane. For that thereby they had only 2 s. and 9 d. appointed to be paid out of every Pound Rent of all Housing, but no Means to recover, or know any Man's Rent; so that the Ministers Maintenance was concealed, and a Thing invisible; and they were deprived also thereby, as some thought, of the Protection of their Bishops, who could not help help them, as they did their Predecessors; and were put under the Government of the Lord Mayor, being both Judge and Party in his own Cause for the most Part. That their Church Lands also, that did remain, were taken from them, inasmuch that many of them had no Parsonage-Houses, and became, for the most Part, Parish Lands, belonging to the Masters of the Parishes. That afterwards the Oath for Personal Tithes was taken away; by which Means the Citizens detained those Tithes from the Ministers, supposing no Man to be bound to pay Tithes of their Personal Employments, or God's Blessing on their Labours, but Shepherds and Husbandmen. And last of all, That their Offerings that were left them were embezzled and purloined by divers fraudulent and covetous Devices: By which Means aforesaid, and the like, the Benefices of LONDON, within the Walls, were the poorest in the Kingdom; and though the Ministers were equal to the best Commoners in the City in all Charges, as Subsidies, Arms, &c. (besides First-Fruits and Tenths,) yet their Incomes were ordinarily less than the meanest Tradesman, their Livings not exceeding 20, 25, 30, 40, and most of them 50 l. per Annum, and not many above 80 l. within the Walls.

AND, in short, the Clergy of LONDON, in the Year 1634, addressed again to King Charles I. setting forth to him, how the Benefices of LONDON, 100 Years since were very great, but that they were then very small and mean, many of them not worth 40 l. per Annum, the most not an 100 l. and then shewing the Causes thereof.

THIS Petition the King referred to the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Keeper, the Earl Marshal, the Bishop of LONDON, and others. Upon this six Citizens, such as were most faulty by double Leases, and other Frauds, were warned to appear before the Lords at the Council-Table, January the 9th. And the Lords did express themselves against the Practices of the City, as mere Frauds. Afterwards Committees met on each Side to treat of some Accommodation; three Aldermen being appointed for the City, and three Parsons nominated by the Bishop of LONDON for the Clergy, viz.

Sir Christopher Clithero,
Sir Edward Bromfield, } Aldermen.
Mr. Abdy,

Dr. Holdsworth,
Dr. Brough, } Parsons.
Dr. Walton,

SOME Time after, the King declared he would hear the Cause himself. This Business was in Hand and transacting for several Years, viz. to the Year 1638, and nothing brought to any Conclusion; and then the Troubles coming on, greater Things were to be look'd after.

IN the next Place, we shall shew what Oversight and Care was taken in these Times, viz. 2 or 300 Years ago, both as to the Behaviour of the Priests and the People; and for this Purpose we shall present a List of Articles of Enquiry in the Visitation made by the Ordinaries; and then give a Presentment made of divers Matters found in one Church by the Inquisitors upon the aforesaid Articles.

As to the preſent State of Religion in this City: For the ſincere and pure Worſhip of God, and the Profeſſion of the Reformed Religion, there is no City, or Place, in the World can compare with LONDON; and it muſt be ſaid to its Honour, that the Citizens have generally had a Concern for Matters of Religion; and this appeared in a very eminent Degree, not many Years ago, by their conſtituting ſo many Societies and Funds for promoting Chriſtianity and Virtue in themſelves and others; which noble Deſigns, Dr. Kennet, in his Sermon at the Funeral of the Duke of Devonſhire, deſervedly calls the Glory of our Age.

The Society for the Reformation of Manners.

THE firſt Society, which is called The Society for the Reformation of Manners, conſiſting of good and zealous Citizens, and many of them of no mean Wealth and Rank, was deſigned to controul Loofeneſs, and to prevent the Youth of the City from being ſpoilt by Harlots and looſe Women, and from ſpending their Time in Tavernes or Alehouſes, and diſtempering themſelves by Exceſs of Drink, and breaking the Sabbath. Theſe Perſons, either by their own Perſonal Pains, or by their Purſes, employing Conſtables and others, to watch ill Houſes, and take ſtrag- gling looſe Perſons, and bring them before the Magiſtrates, and inform againſt them, for the better putting the good Laws of the Land in Execution againſt all ſuch Evil-doers.

THIS Society began at firſt in the Year 1690, after this Manner: Five or ſix private Gentlemen, Members of the Church of England, met ſometimes, and conſulted together by adviſeable Methods to put the Penal Laws in Execution againſt certain notorious Sins, which were too publickly and openly practiſed in the Streets. Againſt which were many good Laws: But the Failure was, that for Want of Information, and the Diſcharge of the Duty of Conſtables, and ſuch like Officers, they were not executed: They entered therefore into a Fraternity for the remedying of this. This afterward ſhewn and offered to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and the Judges, a conſiderable Number of them approved thereof under their Hands: And moſt of the Biſhops occaſionally countenanced this Society by their extraordinary Circular Letters printed in 1699. And King William having this Affair laid before him by one of the Chief Miniſters of State, promiſed the Societies his Protection and Countenance. And the late excellent Queen Anne ſince, iſſuing her Proclamation againſt Vice and Profaneneſs, was pleaſed to ſignify her Approbation of this Work, as is ſhewn in an Account of this Society, and the Progreſs of it, printed Anno 1701; which Book met with the higheſt Approbation, as may appear by the following Letter and Certificates:

THIS Society hath done much Good, and put some considerable Stop to Vice, that was running on in a high and desperate Degree in the Nation. And, to the Honour of the City, other Nations have followed the City's Example, or highly approved of this Course. For the furthering this Good, a Book came forth, entitled, Essays upon the Execution of the Laws against Immorality and Profaneness, the Author John Disney, Esq;

THIS Society do appoint and encourage Constables and other discreet Persons, to go about Streets and Markets, and other publick Places, to take up Drunkards, Swearers and Curfers, and such like scandalous Persons, Men or Women: And on the Lord's-Day to inspect Victualling-Houses, to prevent Tippling, and for taking up Drovers or Carriers that travel on that Day; and such as carry Goods and Wares about the Streets to their Customers, or such as are found at unlawful Sports and Pastimes.

THIS Design was at first violently opposed by the Champions and Advocates for Debauchery: Yet, by the Favour of King William and Queen Mary; and Countenance of the Clergy of the greatest Figure in the Church, and particularly his Grace John, then Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, by his Circular Letters, and afterwards by Queen Anne's favouring thereof, and the Zeal of the Persons concerned in it, it hath prospered to a great Degree; many virtuous Persons likewise of the several Denominations of Protestants readily agreeing to join Hearts and Purse in the Prosecution thereof.

BEFORE this Society are Sermons preached yearly, by some of the eminent Preachers of the Town, and sometimes by Bishops, in Bow Church in Cheapside. In one of these Sermons; preached Anno 1701, by Dr. Kennet, afterwards Bishop of Peterborough, it was declared, That, at that Time, more than thirty Thousand Persons had been convicted, by these Means, for profane Cursing and Swearing; and near the same Number of lewd and disorderly Persons brought to a merciful Punishment, and thereby reclaimed from their Vices, or restrained from the publick Scandal of them: And that above an hundred thousand Books of Religion, and Dissuatives from the Vices of the Age, had been given away by Order of these Societies; and that the Inhabitants of this City could attest this Truth, that of late Years Lewdness and Profaneness hath visibly decreased.

THE Fame of this Society for the Reformation of Manners spread far and near, not only about the Parts of England, Scotland, and Ireland, but in Foreign Parts among all Protestants, in Holland, Germany; Switzerland, &c. so that the Zeal of these Reformers hath provoked many to do as they have done, for the putting some Check to the open-fac'd Impieties of the Age, so scandalous to Christianity. These Endeavours, for the Honour of the City of LONDON, where it began, have been applauded and recommended in a publick Manner (as fit to be imitated by other Christian States) by the Commissioners of several French Churches, who were appointed to take this Affair into their Consideration; and approved likewise by the Commissioners of the General Assembly in the Church of Scotland. And there were, some Years ago, thirteen of these Societies set up in Scotland.

THE Book of the Account of these Societies hath been translated into French and High Dutch, and Latin, for the propagating of the same Design in other Nations. And many Learned and Pious Persons, in divers Parts of Europe and America, are already successfully engaged in promoting this Work by Societies, after the Example begun here; as in New-England, Jamaica, &c. Letters came from Switzerland, An. 1700, That they were making some Progress in this Undertaking. From Schaffhausen, That they rejoiced to hear of this Zeal in England, and that they had Examples of the same Sort of Societies. From the Divinity Professor of Hall in Saxony, That it had a particular good Effect at Nuremburgh, where there was a Society of a great Number of Citizens that had begun to meet at each other's Houses, upon a Religious Account.

AT Neufschafel they bought up some Hundreds of Copies of the Account of the Societies; which were sent to all the Consistories of that State, in order to dispose them to a Reformation of Manners. At Zurick it was recommended to a Meeting of a Synod of Divines. And the Account of the Religious Societies was translated and printed there; and Orders were given from other Protestant Cantons for buying up some Numbers of them. One had put it into the German Language, and it was intended to be dedicated to the States; and Care was taken to make it known all over Germany.

IN the Country of the Grisons an Assembly of Divines met, where an Account of these Designs of Reformation was given, and would be laid before their Synod when they met. An Envoy of a great Prince to the Cantons signified from Bern, that they all blessed God for the Success of this Holy and Religious Society, and were themselves inclined to enter into a Correspondence, &c. A Proposal was made at Berlin for translating lating the Account of the Society into the Danish and Swedish Languages; and a Design was there laid, of setting up and carrying on of Societies in Denmark and Sweden. And the King of Denmark's Chaplain sent hither into England an Order, to send him over the Books relating to the Reformation, in order to the setting forward the same Design in that Kingdom.

As there is nothing can be so perfectly formed but that it may be abused, so there is no doubt but that some of the inferior Officers, employed by this worthy Society, have sometimes made an ill Use of their Power; but those have been likewise ill treated who have not gone beyond what their Duty obliged them to.

IN the Month of February, Anno 1717, a Cause was tried before the Lord Chief Justice King, between some Constables of the Society for the Reformation of Manners, and one Ingram of Fleetstreet, upon an Action of false Imprisonment. The former proved, that on May 24, 1716, at Night, as they had taken up some ill Persons in Fleetstreet, and were carrying them to Bridewell, the said Ingram, who was then Constable for the Night, not satisfied with the Legal Authority which they shewed him, upon Demand, for the Execution of their Office, brought out his Watch, stopt them, carried both them and the Persons they had taken, to the Compter, where they committed them Prisoners all Night. This being fully proved by several credible Witnesses, and the Evidence on the other Side being very contradictory and trifling, the Lord Chief Justice gave a very handsome Charge to the Jury; wherein he represented the ill Consequence that might attend the discouraging so laudable a Society, as that for the Reformation of Manners. And the said Ingram was thereupon cast in 20 l. Damages.

ONE John Dent, in St. Clement's Parish without Temple-Bar, was of this Society for the Reformation of Manners; a good Man, zealous for the Honour of God, and a great Hater of Sin and Wickedness; employing himself for 17 or 18 Years, in aiding and assisting at the apprehending and prosecuting of several Thousands of lewd and profligate Persons; and also of Sabbath-Breakers, profane Swearers, and Drunkards. In which Cause he was courageous, and feared no Encounter. He was the first that took into his Arms John Cooper a Constable, who about seven Years before was murdered in the Execution of his Office, in suppressing the publick Lewdness and Disorders at May Fair, though there were then above forty Soldiers with their Swords drawn about him. At last he himself, having endured many Abuses, Blows and Wounds, was barbarously murdered by three private Soldiers in March 1708, in the Execution of the Laws against Immorality and Profaneness. As the last honourable Respect to this Man dying in God's Cause, his Funeral was solemnized at St. Clement Danes Church the 24th of March 1708, with a Sermon preached by Thomas Bray, D. D. upon 1 Tim. vi. 12. Fight the good Fight of Faith, &c. He was accompanied to his Grave with about 30 Constables and Beadles, and between 20 and 30 of the Reverend Clergy, all going before his Corpse; and 12 Justices of the Peace holding up the Pall, and immediately following it, and a great Train of other Gentlemen of Quality, and among them some Aldermen of the City; and lastly, above a Thousand worthy Citizens and others conducting him to his Grave. It was a Sight, said the aforesaid Preacher, at which, he was persuaded, the Powers of Darkness did tremble.

The STAGE.

It may not be amiss in this Place to take Notice of the STAGE, which, under proper Regulations, might be made to serve the Cause of Virtue and Good Manners; but is, at present, a Nursery of Vice and Folly. The late Queen Anne, in her Reign, did lay some Restraint upon it, by forbidding Women to be admitted into the Theatres in Vizar Masques, which did oftentimes occasion great Disorders there; and, by commanding that no Plays or Interludes should be performed on the Wednesdays and Fridays in Lent; she likewise, for the Correction of the Stage, on the 14th of December 1704, set forth this Declaration:

“ WHEREAS We have thought fit, for the better Reforming the Abuses and Immoralities of the Stage, that a new Company of Comedians should be established for our Service under stricter Government and Regulations than have been formerly. We therefore, reposing special Trust and Confidence in our Trusty and Well-beloved John Vanbrugh and William Congreve, Esqs; for the due Execution and Performance of this Our Will and Pleasure, do Give and Grant unto the said John Vanbrugh and William Congreve, full Power and Authority to form, constitute and establish for Us, a Company of Comedians, with full and free Licence to act and represent in any convenient Place during our Pleasure, all Comedies, Tragedies, &c. and to settle such Rules and Orders for the good Government of the said Company, as the Chamberlain of our Household shall from Time to Time direct and approve. Given at our Court of St. James's the 14th Day of December, in the third Year of our Reign.

HIS late Majesty King George I. for the better Regulation of the Stage, granted Letters Patent to the late Sir Richard Steele, his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, for his own Life, and three Years after, in which are these Words:

“ ALL scandalous and mutinous Persons shall, from Time to Time, by him and them be ejected and disabled from Playing in the said Theatre. And for the better attaining our Royal Purposes in this Behalf, we have thought fit hereby to declare, that henceforth no Representations be admitted on the Stage by Virtue, or under Colour, of these our Letters Patents, whereby the Christian Religion in general, or the Church of England may, in any Manner, suffer Reproach, strictly inhibiting every Degree of Abuse, or Misrepresentation of sacred Characters, tending to expose Religion itself, and to bring it into Contempt; and that no such Character be otherwise introduced, or placed in other Light, than such as may enhance the just Esteem of those who truly answer the End of their sacred Function. We further enjoin the strictest Regard to such Representations as any Way concern Civil Policy, or the Constitution of our Government, that these may contribute to the Support of our sacred Authority, and the Preservation of Order and good Government. And it being our Royal Desire, that, for the future, our Theatre may be instrumental to the Promotion of Virtue, and instructive to human Life; we do hereby command and enjoin, that no new Play, or any old, or revived Play, be acted under the Authority hereby granted, containing any Passages, or Expressions offensive to Piety and good Manners, until the same be corrected and purged by the said Governor from all such offensive and scandalous Passages and Expressions. And these our Letters Patents, or the Inrollment thereof, shall be, in all Things, good and effectual in the Law, according to the true Intent and Meaning of the same, any Thing

COCKS.

THE said Sir Richard Steel was so far from taking that Care of the Stage, which seemed to be the Design of granting him this Patent, that he received an annual Allowance from the Players, who had the Management of it before, and gave himself very little Concern about it. It is very certain, that there never was more Need than at present of a Reformation on the Stage, whereon every Thing is allowed, not only that is offensive to Religion and good Manners, but even to common Sense, especially in what they call their Pantomime Entertainments, in which are a thousand Absurdities and Inconsistencies represented, too idle and unnatural to be expressed by Words, and therefore the Spectators are amused with them, in Affront to their Understandings, by Dumb Show, sometimes for two or three Hours together.

 promoting Christian Knowledge.*

FARTHER, for promoting of good Religion, as well as stopping the Course of Immorality and Profaneness, there was another Fraternity in LONDON, called The Society for promoting Christian Knowledge; and this both at Home and Abroad. For this Purpose other Persons of Honour and Quality united, who applied themselves to form Methods to find out Means of accomplishing so good an Undertaking; regulating themselves always by Ecclesiastical Constitutions, as the Society for Reformation do themselves by the Temporal Laws of England.

*The Society for propagating
 the Gospel in Foreign Parts*

ANOTHER Society there is in LONDON, which was set on Foot by a generous and most extensive Charity, to carry Religion all the World over; and it is called The Society for Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts. This Society obtained a Patent for making them a Corporation from King William, whose Letters Patents bore Date at Westminster the 16th of June, in the 13th Year of his Reign. The Cause whereof, as mentioned in the said Patent, was, that in many of the Plantations, Colonies and Factories beyond the Seas, belonging to England, the Provision of Ministers is very mean, and many others of them wholly destitute and unprovided of a Maintenance for Ministers, and the Publick Worship of God. And that for Want of Support and Maintenance of such, many of the King's Subjects wanted the Administration of God's Word and Sacraments, and seemed to be abandoned to Atheism and Infidelity. And also for Want of Learned and Orthodox Ministers, to instruct his said Subjects in the Principles of true Religion, divers Romish Priests and Jesuits were the more encouraged to pervert and draw them over to Popish Superstition and Idolatry.

THIS Society therefore was erected for a sufficient Maintenance to be provided for an Orthodox Clergy to live among them, and such other Provisions to be made, as might be necessary for the Propagation of the Gospel in those Parts.

THE Members incorporated by these Letters into this Society, under the Name of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, were the Archbishop of Canterbury, and 93 others, both of the Bishops, Clergy, Nobility, and Gentry, enabling them to purchase 2000 l. per Annum, Inheritance, and Goods, and Chattels of any Value.

UPON the third Friday in February, yearly, to meet at some convenient Place, and to chuse one President, one or more Vice-President, or Presidents; one or more Treasurer, or Treasurers; two or more Auditors; one Secretary, and such other Officers, Ministers, and Servants, as should be thought convenient for the Year ensuing.

THE first President to be Thomas Lord Archbishop of Canterbury; who, within 30 Days after the passing of this Charter, was to cause Summons to be issued to the several Members to meet, and proceed to the Election of one or more Vice-Presidents, Treasurers, two or more Auditors, a Secretary, and other Officers, to continue till the third Friday in February, which should be in the Year 1701.

THEY and their Successors on the third Friday in every Month yearly, or oftener, if Occasion require, to meet and transact the Business of the said Society: That at any such Meeting they may elect such Persons to be Members of the said Corporation as they, or the major Part, shall think beneficial to the charitable Designs thereof. The Place of their Meeting is in the Library belonging to the Free-School founded by Thomas Archbishop of Canterbury, in Castle-street near Leicester-fields.

No Act to be valid, unless the President or Vice-President, and seven others of the Members be present, and consenting thereunto.

SUCH as shall be present at the first or second Meeting of the said Society, or at any Meeting on the third Fridays in the Months of November, February, May, and August, yearly, for ever, may ordain and make Constitutions, Laws, Statutes, &c. and also to execute Leases for Years.

LAWFUL for them to depute such Persons, as they shall think fit, to take Subscriptions; and to gather and collect such Monies, as shall be by any Persons elected for the said Purposes.

THE said Society every Year to give an Account in Writing to the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, the Lord Chief Justice of the King's-Bench, or the Lord Chief Justice of the Common-Pleas, or any two of them, of the several Sums of Money by them received and laid out by Vertue of these Presents, &c. and of the Management and Disposition of the Revenues and Charities.

THE first President was the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury.

Treasurer, Mr. John Trimnel, Merchant.

Auditors, William Melmoth, Esq; living at Lincoln, and John Hedges, Merchant.

Secretary, John Chamberlayne, Esq; in Petty-France, Westminster.

THE Seal of this Society hath these Words round the Edge, Sigillum Societatis de promovendo Evangelio in Partibus Transmarinis. It is the Representation of a Ship under full Sail, making up towards a Foreign Land; the Natives all about near the Shoar, with their Hands stretched out, or lifted up, and some on their Knees. A Minister in a Gown, in the Fore-part of the Ship, looking towards them, with the Gospel open in his Right Hand. And a Label in the Middle of the Seal thus inscribed, Transiens adjuva nos: The Sun in the Firmament brightly shining out.

THIS Society hath made considerable Progress, having, besides Books and other Things, sent several Ministers of the Church of England in his Majesty's Dominions and Colonies in the West-

West-Indies, to be by Letters sent from thence to the Places where they are to reside. But there is great Need of many more, to instruct the English and such Indians as live under them, or near them, in the Principles of the Christian Religion, and to minister the Word and Sacraments, and to do other Spiritual Offices among them. And for this Purpose, in a general Meeting of the Society held Jan. 15, 1702, they did agree, that all the Bishops in the Realm, who were Members of this Society, should be earnestly desired to recommend it to their Archdeacons and their Officials, that Publick Notice might be given at their next Visitations, that such Clergymen as had a Mind to be employed in this Apostolical Work, and could bring sufficient Testimonials, according to a certain Form thereunto annexed, that they were duly qualified for it, might give in their Names to their respective Bishops, in whose Dioceses they lived, or to their Archdeacons, to be communicated by them to the Society, who would consult with the Bishop of LONDON, in order to the sending them to such Places as had most Need, and where they might do most Good. And the Society would take Care where there was not a sufficient Maintenance already settled, that they might not only have a competent Subsistence, but also sufficient Encouragement, due to those that devoted themselves to the Service of Almighty GOD, and our Saviour, in that Respect.

AND for the furthering of this extensive Christian good Work, were set forth, PROPOSALS for the Encouragement and Promoting of Religion and Learning in the Foreign Plantations; and to induce such of the Clergy of this Kingdom, as are Persons of Sobriety and Abilities, to accept of a Mission into those Parts.

WHEREAS the Propagation of the Christian Faith, and the Increase of Divine Knowledge, amongst all Sorts of Persons of his Majesty's Foreign Plantations, are the Wishes, Desires, and Prayers, of all pious and serious Christians, and such as are zealous of GOD's Glory, and the Salvation of Mens Souls: And whereas that blessed Work, next under GOD, does principally depend upon the Abilities of the Clergy in those Parts, the Exemplariness of their Lives, and their Industry in Teaching others: Whereas also, the Clergy that are already in the Plantations, as well as those who are to be sent thither, cannot (humanly speaking) be so capable of informing themselves, and of instructing others in the Design of Christianity, in the Nature of the Covenant of Grace, in the Meaning and Importance of the Articles of our most Holy Faith, and in the Nature and Extent of all Christian Duties, without the Assistance of some good Commentators upon the Holy Scriptures; and one at least, or more of those Authors, who have best treated upon each, and every of those Points: Whereas also, for the Supply of that Want, Men of Parts and addicted to Study, will hardly be induced to leave the Expectations they may have of better Encouragement and Improvement in their Native Country, to go to remote Parts and Climates less agreeable, without such Advantages, as will over-balance all Considerations inclining them to stay at Home; and especially, not without a competent Provision of such Books, as are necessary for their Studies in those Places where they are to serve; few of them that go over from hence being able to furnish themselves with so many Books as they shall need. And lastly, whereas Insufficiency and Scandal in the Clergy of those Places, in all Probability would be most successfully prevented, both in this and future Ages, should every Parochial Minister in the Plantations have a Library of well chosen Books, of all those Kinds before-mentioned, in which he might spend his Time to his own Satisfaction, and with Improvement and Profit, both to himself and others.

To promote therefore so Blessed and Noble an End, as the Propagation of Christian Knowledge in those Parts; and, as well to encourage those who are there already employed in the Ministry, as also to invite other able Ministers over, and to furnish both with proper Means for accomplishing so good a Work: It is humbly offered to all that are hearty Well-wishers to the Souls of Men, and the Honour of their Saviour, to consider, and, as they shall see Cause, to favour these Proposals following:

1. That the Lord Bishop of LONDON be pleased to make a Catalogue of what particular Books his Lordship will judge most immediately and necessarily useful, to make up a sufficient Library to a Parochial Minister in any Plantation, wherewith he may be sufficiently enabled both to inform himself, and to instruct others, in all the necessary and essential Parts of Christianity.

2. That so many of such Libraries be sent by the Lord Bishop of LONDON, by the Hands of such as his Lordship shall commission for that Purpose, to be appropriated and affixed, one to each Parish in the Foreign Plantations, particularly those of Maryland and Virginia, and farther as the Fund to be raised shall enable.

3. That every Parochial Library shall be affixed in a decent and large Room of the Parsonage-House of such Parish; there to remain to the sole Use of the Minister thereof for the Time being, unto all future Generations; and to be as unalienable as any other Rights and Dues of the Church, which are ascertained by Law.

4. That in order to the Preservation of every such Library to succeeding Ages without Loss, as far as can be humanly provided in any Thing of that Kind, there be made an exact Catalogue of the Books belonging to the Library of each Parish; and that every such Catalogue be fairly written in four Books of Vellum, provided for that Purpose; the first whereof to be left with the Lord Bishop of LONDON, for the Time being; a second with his Commissary, or some chief Clergyman in every of those Plantations where such Libraries are provided; and a third to remain in the respective Libraries themselves; and a fourth to be deposited in the Vestry of each of the said Parishes.

5. That the Commissary be obliged; at least once in three Years, personally to make a Parochial-Visitation: And then, besides the Charge of this Duty in other Respects, that it be incumbent also upon him, particularly to inspect the Parochial Libraries, and to see that none of the Books be imbezelled, or lost: And that the Church-Wardens of each Parish be also obliged, every Year, before the Visitation, to inform themselves in what Condition the said Books are, and to present accordingly at the Visitation.

6. That for further Security to preserve them from Loss and Imbezelment, and that they may be known where-ever they are found, in every Book, on the one Side of the Cover shall be lettered these Words, Sub Auspiciis Willielmi III. on the other Side the Name of the Parish to which these Books do belong, Ex Gra. E. Bibliotheca de Mary Town, E. Bibliotheca de James Town, &c.

7. That the Ministers of each Parish, their Heirs and Administrators, may be obliged, by Virtue Virtue of an Act of Assembly, provided and made for that Purpose, to make good what Books shall be imbezelled or lost by his Fault.

MEANS of obtaining such Parochial Libraries.

1. That Application be made to the Nobility, Clergy, and Gentry, for their Charitable Contributions to so pious a Work; and especially that the Merchants and Traders to the Foreign Plantations be earnestly called upon, as Persons principally concerned to encourage this Design. It being most reasonable to expect, that in Gratitude to God, and the Inhabitants of those Plantations, the more plentifully they have have reaped of their temporal Things, the more liberally they should sow to them in spiritual Things.

2. That Application be also made to such Learned Authors as are now living, that they would bestow some of their own Books, which shall be judged useful to the Purposes aforesaid.

3. That for the general Satisfaction of those who have advanced either in Books, or Money, to so pious a Design, a full Account shall be published what Books have been given, what Sums have been obtained, and how the same have been laid out to the Purposes aforesaid.

Lastly, In Gratitude to the Benefactors towards this pious Design, all those who shall contribute any Thing thereunto, shall have their Names and respective Sums, and the Authors shall have the Number of Books given by them, transmitted to Posterity, by being register'd in a Book kept for that Purpose in each of the Libraries. And moreover, the principal Benefactors, whether publick Societies, Companies, or private Persons, shall have their Names endorsed in golden Letters, upon so many Folio's and Quarto's as shall amount to the Sum given by them respectively, and the Words, Ex dono Authoris; shall be in like Manner endorsed upon all those Books given by the respective Authors.

We do look upon this Design, as what will very much tend to propagate Christian Knowledge in the Indies, being it will, in all Likelihood, invite some of the more studious and virtuous Persons out of the Universities, to undertake the Ministry in those Parts, and will be a Means of rendering them useful when they are there. And therefore as we shall contribute chearfully towards promoting of those Parochial Libraries, so we hope that many pious Persons will be found, who out of Love to Religion and Learning, will also contribute thereunto.

IN a Paper printed Anno 1704, by Order of the Society, an Account is given what this Society designs to do upon further Encouragement by annual Subscription, or present Benefaction of future Legacies.

AND what great Progress was made in Maryland in the Time of King William, will appear by this Paper following :

The PRESENT STATE of the Protestant Religion in Maryland.

IN the Year 1691, his Majesty having graciously thought fit to take the Government of Maryland into his own Hands, and the Province into his immediate Care; in May 1692, an Act of Assembly passed for the Establishment of the Protestant Religion there, and for dividing the Ten Counties thereof into twenty-five Parishes, each of which, one with another, are endowed with the yearly Income of nigh Twenty Thousand Pounds of Tobacco, to be raised perpetually by a yearly Assessment of Forty Pound per Pole, upon all the taxable Persons in the Country; the Profits of which Tobacco, till such Time as a sufficient Supply of Ministers shall be sent, (viz. All which will raise over and above what shall go for the Maintenance of six Divines sent thither already, with the present Governor, by the Lord Bishop of LONDON's Pious Care, there being but three before in the Country) are appointed for the Building of Churches in every Parish. But the Execution of that Act hath been in a Manner wholly neglected, till it pleased his Majesty to confer the Government on the most worthy and excellent Person, Francis Nicholson, Esq; who since his Arrival in Aug. 1694, with an indefatigable Industry and Zeal to promote his Majesty's Honour, the Interest of the Protestant Religion, and the Good of the whole Province, revived and reinforced the said Act, by another additional one, for the Increase and Maintenance of Religion, collected the Arrears, and built a fine Church at Annapolis in Arundal County, besides several which were begun before, with as many Parsonage-Houses. To the Building of each of which, as of all the rest, his Excellency gave 50 l. Sterling, and his Majesty's Secretary Ten Thousand Pounds of Tobacco to ten of the said Houses, viz. one in each County.

AND that a perpetual Succession of Protestant Divines of the Church of England may be provided for the Propagation of the true Christian Religion in the said Colony, his Excellency hath, by the Consent of the Council and Burgeses in Assembly, promoted a Law, vesting a Power in certain Trustees for erecting one Free-School in each County; one of which is already begun at Annapolis; towards the Building of which, his Excellency gave 50 l. Sterling, the Secretary 5000, the Council 15000, and the Burgeses 45000 Pounds of Tobacco; and it is to be endowed with 100 l. Sterling per Annum for the Maintenance of one Master, and two Ushers, to whom his Excellency allow'd 25 l. Sterling per Annum, during his Government, and the Secretary 2000 Pounds of Tobacco so long as he continued in his Office, for instructing the Youth of the said Province in Arithmetick, Navigation, and all useful Learning; but chiefly for the fitting such as are disposed to study Divinity, to be further educated at his Majesty's College Royal in Virginia; in order, upon their Return, to be ordained by the Lord Bishop of LONDON's Suffragan residing in the Province, both for that Purpose, and to supervise the Lives of the Clergy thereof; for whose Support also, at the Request and Recommendation of the Assembly, his Excellency settled a fair and competent Maintenance.

THE Person deputed by the Lord Bishop of LONDON, to be his Commissary in Maryland for the Propagation of our most Holy Religion amongst the Infidels, for the Inducement of sober and serious young Divines to go to the Foreign Plantations, and for the better qualifying them for so noble and Christian an Employment, busied himself in collecting of Parochial Libraries of choice and useful Books, for the perpetual Use of such of the Clergy who shall undertake that Voyage, and for all those who shall succeed them. And certainly a more suitable Encouragement to Men of good Parts and Inclinations, to go upon so blessed a Mission, could not be thought of: For as it is Books alone which will encourage the most Studious, Virtuous, and consequently the most useful Persons to go over, so it is an Encouragement that is in a Manner necessary to be provided in foreign Plantations; since few or none, at their first going over, are in a Condition to provide themselves therewith; and when they are there, Books are hardly to be met with by those who shall be able to buy them. And yet without a competent Provision of several useful and necessary Books, it is morally impossible that any should be enabled to instruct their People.

UPON the Death of King William, the Founder, Address being made by the Society to Queen Anne, she answer'd them, That she should be always ready to do her Part towards the promoting and encouraging so good a Work. And she shew'd her Favour to it by her Princely Magnificence, when the Affair was in private Hands. The Work hath since gone on with great Success. Correspondences begun, Deputations settling at Home; many Subscriptions made, several Benefactions brought in; and divers prudential Ways and Means taken for the Conversion of the Indians, and settling the State of Religion in the Queen's Foreign Dominions, by supplying with able and good Ministers, the Natives as well as the English; appointing Catechists and Schoolmasters for the Slaves, with other ignorant Persons; and sending over Libraries for the Use and Improvement of the Clergy, as well as practical Treatises for the Laity.

PLACES to be thus supplied with Ministers, and Schools and Libraries in the English Dominions on the Continent of North America, are from North-East and South-West, with the Indian Nations bordering upon them; the five Nations of the Iroquois, commonly called The praying Indians; New-England, or Massachusetts, with the neighbouring Colonies; New-York, wherein are five English Counties, and five Dutch; New-Jersey, East and West Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Carolina, North and South; the Yammon Sea Indians, Newfoundland, Rhode Island, belonging to New-York, Long Island belonging to New-England, Jamaica, Antigua, Montserrat. Besides Factories in Europe, Moscow, and Amsterdam.

THERE are earnest Addresses from divers Persons of the Continent and Islands adjacent, for a Suffragan, to visit the several Churches, ordain Ministers, confirm the younger Sort, and consecrate Places for Divine Worship. Accordingly the Society intended to have six Suffragans, and hoped to allow them 600 l. a Year.

George Keith, and John Talbot his Assistant, were, some Years ago, itinerant Missionaries, and had an honourable Allowance, suitable to their expensive Undertaking. Keith, after some Time, came back.

THE said Mr. Keith and Mr. Talbot went out on this Mission in April; Anno 1702, and returned back August; Anno 1704. They travelled on the Continent of North America, between Piscataway River in New-England, and Caratuc in North Carolina, a Space extending in Length about 800 Miles. Within which Bounds were 10 distinct Colonies and Governments, all under the Crown of England. They went twice over most of those Governments, and preached often in many of them, particularly in Pennsylvania, West and East Jersey, and New-York Provinces; where they continued longest, and found the greatest Occasion for their Service. His and his Fellow Talbot's Success was, that the People were generally well affected to the Doctrine that they preached, and joined with them decently in the Liturgy, and publick Prayers, and Administration of the Sacraments after the Usage of the Church of England. And where Ministers were wanting, as there were in many Places, the People earnestly desired them to present their Requests unto the honourable Society, to send Ministers unto them; which accordingly Mr. Keith, since his Return home, hath done. And the Society hath sent to such Places as seemed most to want it, considerable Numbers of Missionaries.

MANY that had been Strangers to the Way of the Church of England, after they observed it in the publick Prayers, and in reading the Lessons of the Holy Scriptures, and the Manner of the Administration of Baptism, and the Lord's-Supper, were greatly affected with it. Many of those who had the Name of Separate Quakers (that is, those that believed the Fundamentals of the Christian Faith, concerning the Way of Salvation by Faith in JESUS CHRIST, and believed that he came in the Flesh, and died for our Sins; which Mr. Keith had preached to them, when himself was a Quaker, about the Year 1692,) those they found had now joined with the Church of England Congregation at Philadelphia, before their Arrival. These received them with great Joy, and had great Satisfaction in hearing them Preach that which tended to their own Confirmation in the Christian Faith, and in Communion with the Church of England.

Mr. Evans, Minister of the Church of England Congregation at Philadelphia in Pennsylvania, told Keith he had baptized 500 Quakers, and their Children; and such as were Quakerly affected; besides considerable Numbers of Converts were baptized by Clayton, the former Minister, since their Coming into Pennsylvania, West and East Jersey and New-York Provinces, at least 200 Persons that were Quakers, and their Children and Servants were baptized. And many who had been baptized in their Infancy, and had professed Quakerism afterwards, were come off, and joined themselves to the Churches in these Countries, since their Travels and Preachings among them.

IN Pennsylvania, where formerly there was but one Church of England Congregation (viz. that at Philadelphia) they found five Churches supplied with Ministers. In the North Parts of America are 13 Ministers, all placed within these two Years last past; and generally supported and maintained by this Society. This briefly is enough to shew the blessed spreading Benefit of the said Society.

SOME Common-Prayer Books, with other Devotional and Practical Tracts, are very much needed by the People in those Places: All which Matters lay before the Society to take Care of.

THEY have an annual Fund now of 800 l. per Annum, with the Accession of 1700 l. occasionally subscribed. A Lady unknown hath lately sent them 1000 l.

THEY commonly allow the Ministers they send thither, 50 l. a Year, and 20 l. at their first going out, and 15 l. for Books. As they had two Missionaries before-mentioned, at very great Expence; so they are soliciting Maintenance of the Crown for four more: So many more at least being needful for the Conversion of the aforesaid praying Indians of Canada. The Place they take for the Object of their Christian Care, is, a Continent well peopled, under several Governments, 200 Miles in Length upon the Sea Coast. This is the large and noble Project of this Society.

AND these Christian Purposes and Labours are now found to be very successful for the Conversion of the Natives and Negroes, as well as the Subjects of England in those Parts: Accounts whereof are yearly published at the End of the Sermons preached at the Anniversary Meetings of this Society.

BUT that which is like to render this religious Design in After-Times more effectual, is the noble Gift of General Codrington, lately Governor of Barbadoes, who died April the 7th, An. Dom. 1710, and by his last Will bequeathed his two Plantations in the said Island; and also Part of the Island of Barbuda to this Society; and by his said Will, desiring that the Plantations should continue entire; and that 300 Negroes, at least, always kept thereon; and that a convenient Number of Professors and Scholars should be maintained there; who are to be obliged to study and practice Physick and Chirurgery, as well as Divinity. That by the apparent Usefulness of the former, (as the Will ran) they might endear themselves to the People, and have the better Opportunities of doing Good to Mens Souls while they are taking Care of their Bodies. This Gift is valued at 2000 l. per Ann. clear of all Charges.

THE Society have already resolved to instruct those Negroes in the Principles of the Christian Religion; and are now about building a College to this End at Barbadoes.

BESIDES the Meetings once a Month, or oftener, as there is Occasion, at the late Archbishop Tennison's Library at St. Martin's in the Fields, there are several Committees of the Society appointed to meet at the Chapter-House at St. Paul's.

THIS Society have yearly Meetings, and Anniversary Sermons in the Month of February, at St. Mary Le-Bow Church, whereof the first was February 20, 1701-2, Richard Willis, D. D. Dean of Lincoln, preaching before them, upon Phil. ii. 27. Striving together for the Faith of the Gospel. Gilbert, Lord Bishop of Sarum, preached to this Society, incorporated February 18, 1703-4, on a very suitable Text, Mal. i. 11. For from the rising of the Sun unto the going down thereof, my Name shall be great among the Gentiles. And in every Place Incense shall be offered to my Name, and a pure Offering, &c. The Sermon preached in this Anniversary Assembly, February 1712-13, was performed by John late Bishop of Ely. And that Year the Receipts of the Society were by Rent, annual Subscriptions, casual Benefactions, &c. 3595 l. 18 s. 5 d. Their Disbursements by Payments of yearly Salaries to Missionaries, Catechists, School-Masters, by Gratuities to Missionaries, by Monies expended in Books to them, and by accidental Expences 2070 l. 8 s. 3 d. yearly Income by yearly Rent, and annual Subscriptions of the Members, 783 l. 12 s. 6 d.

THE Sermon preached before this incorporated Society, February, Anno 1715, was preached by Dr. Tho. Sherlock, Dean of Chichester; and the next Year, February 1716, by Mr. Tho. Haley, Canon Residentiary of Chichester.

THE Sermon to the Society at their Anniversary Meetings, Feb. 21, 1717, was preached by the Right Reverend Philip, Bishop of Hereford. Wherein that worthy Prelate very seasonably moved for the Settlement of Bishops in those Foreign Plantations that had received the Gospel: "Without which, as he said, no Part of their Whole Design could be rightly conducted, viz. The establishing of proper Governors upon the Place, who, upon all Emergencies, might inspect the Ecclesiastical Affairs of that wide Province; and be ever at Hand to exercise such Spiritual Discipline as hath in all Ages been found necessary for the good Government of the Church of CHRIST."

AND here we must not forget to mention another laudable Society, entered into and set on Foot by divers well disposed Persons in and about LONDON, for the Relief and Maintenance of poor Profelytes who are Converts from the Popish Religion. The Rise and Occasion of this charitable Undertaking was, to prevent the Discouragement of such as were willing to come into the Bosom of the Protestant Church, but were like to starve if they should; especially Foreigners, not knowing how to subsist, being rejected by their Popish Friends and Relations; and coming into a Country where they neither understand the Language, nor have any Way of procuring to themselves a Living. There was an Account set forth in Print, in the Year 1718, of this Affair, and of the Establishment of Commissioners for the Relief of these poor Converts: Wherein it is said, "That the Want of a regular Method in Great Britain for relieving sincere Converts from the Church of Rome, had been too justly complained of ever since the Reformation, &c. But the happy Settlement of the Crown in the Protestant Line, exclusive of Papists for ever, hath left the Nation at more Liberty to take under its Care these Converts, in like Manner as hath been, so very laudably done in several other Protestant Churches. — And it seems to be a more seasonable Undertaking at this Time, now there being a more general Disposition among many Learned and other considerable Persons in Popish Countries, to embrace the Reformation: And that the Eyes of such throughout all Europe are turned upon this happy Church under its present Protestant Settlement, as their most desirable and safe Asylum."

It was an Observation, that some that had been convinced of the Romish Errors, were compelled for Want of Bread, to make their Peace with the Church of Rome, after they had publickly, and after a very solemn Manner, renounced her. So that among the many Checks the Reformation hath received of late Years, the Want of a Fund, to relieve such as for pure Conscience forsake the Romish Communion to embrace the Protestant Faith, is none of the least.

His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Right Reverend the Bishop of LONDON, have been very instrumental in this good Work by their Counsel and Advice: And, especially by their humble Application to his late Majesty King George, to assist these Objects of Charity, who have hitherto been unprovided for, till some other Means could be found; by charging the Fund of 15000 l. per Annum, granted out out of the Civil List for the Relief of the poor French Protestants, with the Sum of 400 l. per Annum: Which his Majesty was graciously pleased to grant, as a Foundation for a Fund towards the Relief of Converts of any Nation from the Church of Rome.

THEIR Lordships were pleased, in Conjunction with the two Lord Chief Justices, pursuant to his Majesty's Gracious Intentions, to authorize by a Commission bearing Date the 24th of April 1717, a certain Number of Persons, both of Clergy and Laity, to distribute the same to such as should appear to be truly worthy of it, and Objects of Charity within Rules prescribed in their Commission: And at the same Time did impower them to invite other Persons to their Assistance, as well as to receive the Benevolence of any private well-disposed Persons towards the same.

THERE are set down in the said printed Account, the Rules prescribed for the said Commissioners: And Orders, which the said Commissioners drew up for the necessary Officers, and other Regulations fit to be observed in executing their Commission: Other Orders, relating to the Committee, to the Treasurer, to the Secretary, and to the Profelytes.

IN the Beginning of this Commission, the Commissioners laboured under very great Difficulties: The Numbers of Petitioners amounting to above Fourscore the first Month; the extreme Difficulty to know each Person's true Character; and who were incapable of getting their own Livelihood; how to dispose of Ecclesiastical Profelytes, which abounded; and above all, to separate the Tares from the Wheat, the true Profelytes from the Cheats.

FROM the State of the Treasurer's Accounts at the Close of the Year, that is, from the 30th of April 1717, to the 30th of April 1718, it appears there hath been paid into his Hands,

THE Number of the Profelytes encreases so fast on the Commissioners Hands, that without some additional Supplies, it will be next to impossible to carry on this good Design. Which made the Commissioners apply lately to the Government; to have some Parts of the Estates forfeited (for having been applied to superstitious Uses) set apart for the Encouragement of the Protestant Religion as by Law established, and for the Support of Converts from Popery.

IN the next Place, because shewing Compassion and the Works of Humanity is so great a Point of Religion, and so many belong to the spiritual Consideration of this City, we shall proceed to shew what large Provision is made for the Poor and Needy, and the several Ways used for their Relief; besides the publick Hospitals and Work-houses mention'd in the first Book; the great Store of liberal Gifts, and many of them annual, that belong to the several Parishes, and are peculiar to the Poor thereof.

And first, to see what the Charity bestowed upon the Poor in the several Parishes was in former Times, and what it is at present. It was computed by one that lived above 100 Years ago (in the Beginning of the Reign of King James I.) to arise in the City and Suburbs to 5 or 6000 l. by the Year; that is, reckoning 120 Parishes, and one Parish with another to give in Money, Bread, Fewel, &c. 50 l. per Annum.

BUT as to the present State of the City's Charities, the Prisons and Compters have considerable Donations sent them quarterly from the Companies of LONDON, which were left by Benefactors, and intrusted to those Corporations.

MANY well disposed Citizens do frequently send the Prisoners Relief, unknown who they be; and discharge poor Debtors, by agreeing with their Creditors, and paying their Debts, and setting them free. And several Ministers in LONDON, especially such as belong to the great Parishes in the Suburbs, that abound with poor House-keepers, have considerable Sums sent them by good Christians, (often unknown) to distribute according to their Directions, and where they shall see most need.

LIKEWISE the Bread that is found not sizeable, and the Flesh brought to the Markets, that is not good, and so become forfeited, the Lord Mayor is accustomed to send to the Prisons and Compters for the Supply of the Prisoners there.

THERE is almost in every Parish a Quantity of Bread weekly, or oftener, given to the Poor of the said Parish, and Cloaths, and Coals for Firing, yearly bestowed, and oftentimes Money too, for their Relief and Subsistence. So that by these Charities given by the last Wills of Persons deceased, as also by many of the wealthier Sort that are alive; and by many Hospitals and Alms-houses, it is rarely or never heard of, that any die in this City meerly of Famine, or perish in the Streets for Want, as in many other Countries they do.

AND for the better Supply of the poor Tradesmen in the Dead of the Winter, when there is little Work stirring, and great Need of Firing as well as Food, it is customary for the King or Queen, by the Motion of the Bishop of LONDON, or Lord Mayor, to send their Letter to them, to take Order that a Collection be made through LONDON and the Suburbs, and Lines of Communication in all the Parishes, and that the Officers go from House to House to gather every Man's Charity. And the King or Queen themselves contribute also: And the Bishop accordingly sends his Letters to the respective Ministers, with the King's or Queen's, which Letters they read to the Congregation, whereby some Thousands of Pounds are seasonably collected in the Depth of Winter, and brought into the Chamber of LONDON, and divided again to every Parish according as they have Need.

To give an Instance of these Letters in the Year 1715, when Sir Charles Peers was Mayor.

To our Right Trusty and Well-beloved Sir Charles Peers, Knight, Lord Mayor of our City of LONDON.

GEORGE R.

RIGHT Trusty and Well-beloved, We greet you well. Being informed that the poorer Sort of our Subjects, in and about our City of LONDON, do suffer great Hardships at this Time, and being graciously disposed to do all that lies in Us for their Relief and Support: We have thought fit to signify Our Pleasure to the Right Reverend Father in God, John Lord Bishop of LONDON, that he take Care for Publication to be made in all the Parish-Churches within our said City and Liberties thereof, the Lord's Day next following the Date of these Presents; for the Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor of each Parish, to collect the Benevolence of charitable and well disposed People, at their respective Dwellings within each Parish, for and towards the Support and Relief of our said poor Subjects; and to cause the Money so collected to be paid immediately into the Chamber of LONDON, to be distributed to the several Parishes, as you and the said Lord Bishop shall think fit and direct. And to the End our Intention may be the more effectual, We have thought fit to recommend the same to you, that by your Encouragement and Endeavour, our good Subjects, inhabiting in our said City and Liberties, may be induced to more than ordinary Demonstrations of their Compassion and Liberality on this Occasion: And so We bid you farewell. Given at Our Court at St. James's the 21st Day of November 1715, in the Second Year of our Reign.

By his Majesty's Command,

TOWNSHEND.

THIS was accompanied with the King's Letter to the Bishop of LONDON.

To the Right Reverend Father in God, our Right Trusty and Well-beloved Counsellor, John Lord Bishop of LONDON.

GEORGE R.

RIGHT Reverend Father in God, Our Right Trusty and Well-beloved Counsellor, We greet you well. Being informed that the poorer Sort of our Subjects in and about our City of LONDON, do suffer great Hardships at this Time; and being graciously disposed to do all that lies in Us for their Relief and Support, We have thought fit heartily to recommend it to You, and do hereby expressly require you to take Care that Publication be made in all the Parish-Churches within our said City and Liberties thereof, the Lord's Day next following the Date of these Presents; that the Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor do, the Week following, collect the Benevolence of charitable and well-disposed People, at their respective Dwellings within each Parish, for and towards the Support and Relief of Our said poor Subjects; and that the Ministers in each Parish do effectually excite their Parishioners to a Charitable Contribution, and to cause the several Sums so collected to be paid immediately into the Chamber of LONDON, to be distributed to the several Parishes, as the Lord Mayor of our said City and you shall think fit and direct. And that Our own Example may not be wanting, Our further Pleasure is, That you call upon Our Commissioners of Our Treasury for such Sum of Money as We have directed and appointed to be paid to that End, and to dispose the same as aforesaid: And so we bid you heartily farewell. Given at Our Court at St. James's the 21st Day of November 1715, in the Second Year of Our Reign.

By his Majesty's Command,

TOWNSHEND.

IN Obedience whereunto, this was the Bishop's Letter to the City Clergy.

Reverend Brother,

HIS Majesty has been graciously pleased, as you will observe by the foregoing Letter, to anticipate the usual Time for dispensing the annual Royal Bounty to the poorer Sort of People in and about this great and populous City, to the End that they may be relieved at the dead Time of the Year, when their Necessities are most pressing, and they least able to help themselves: My Duty it is, as you see, to require of you, that his Majesty's Letter be read in your Church the first Lord's Day after the Date of it: And it is yours, to take the Occasion to move your Hearers in the most pressing Manner, not only to render Thanks to God for this Pious and Charitable Example, which his Majesty is pleased to give them, but also to imitate it, according to the Ability wherewith the Lord had blessed them: They can scarce need, at least it is not possible you can want Arguments to convince them of the Duty of being ready to give, and glad to distribute; of the great Danger of withholding their Charity, and even dispensing it grudgingly and of Necessity, and of the many Blessings promised in the Word of God to the liberal and cheerful Giver. Upon these Heads you will therefore take Care to enlarge, and be very earnest with your Hearers; as also in your Prayers to God for his Blessing, as well upon your Endeavours, as upon all those whose Charity shall be stirred up by them. I must also request of you to notify to those appointed to make these Collections, that they use all requisite Diligence, and that without Delay what they have gathered be paid in, to the End the Distribution be made so soon and seasonably, as to answer his Majesty's pious Intention, and the Needs of those that are to partake of his Charity.

JOHN LONDON.

HIS Letter also soon after to his Clergy within the Bills of Mortality, to send in their Collections, was as follows:

Reverend Brethren,

I Can't but hope you have already complied with his Majesty's Pleasure, lately signified to you, and earnestly recommended and pressed for making of speedy Collections for the Relief of the poorer Sort in and about this City: But it not yet appearing that the Dispatch required in transmitting those Collections into the Chamber of LONDON, in order to a speedy Distribution thereof, has been used; I think it my Duty to put you in mind, that (as you have been told) his Majesty's gracious Intention is, That as well his own Royal Bounty, as the Charity collected in your Parishes, should, without any Delay, be applied to the Relief of the Necessitous, in this rigorous Season of the Year, and Time of their great Need. And accordingly I can't but be very earnest with you to take all possible Care that the said Collections be paid in, on or before the fifteenth Day of the next following Month, and that that the same be done not only in Part, as in some Places has been practised, but in the Whole, according to the true Amount of the Collector's Lists; to the End that the Light of this pious Work be not diminished by defective Returns, to the Dishonour of God, and the Disparagement of the Charity of this great City.

To prevent this Abuse, I think it most advisable, that you, together with three or four of the principal Inhabitants of your Parish, to be chosen by a Vestry, or in other proper Manner, do call for the Lists of the said Collections, and observe the Amount thereof, and take Care, that the Whole be paid in to the Chamber of LONDON, without any Defalcation upon what Pretext whatsoever.

I must also add, that I very much wish and hope that you, my Brethren, together with the said three or four of the principal Inhabitants of your Parish, will, in the mean Time, be forming a List of the several poor House-keepers and others, in your respective Parishes, for whose present Relief this Charity is designed; to the End, that when the Sum to be allotted to your Parish shall be ordered and received, you and the said principal Inhabitants may be ready immediately to subdivide and distribute it to the Parties.

AND let it enter into your Hearts to believe, and be assured, that this your Labour of Love will be a gracious Acceptance with our good God, to whose Mercy and Protection I commit you, and am,

Reverend Brethren,

Somerset-House, Your Affectionate Brother,
Dec. 29, 1715.

JOH. LONDON.

THE King's annual Bounty towards the Relief of poor House-keepers in and about the Cities of LONDON and Westminster, is about 1000 l. which with 900 l. collected for the same Purpose in the City and Suburbs, Ann. 1717, was distributed in the Month of March.

FOR the better providing for the poorer Sort in respect of their Firing, in the Winter Season especially, this notable Care was taken by an Act of Common-Council, in the Year 1665, to this Tenour: That for a constant Store and Provision of Sea-coal, for Supply of the City, and especially for the Benefit of the Poor in Time of Dearth and Scarcity, (which hath often happened by reason of Wars and Troubles at Sea, or by the subtle Practices and Combinations of Retailers at Home, for their private Gain and Profit) it was Enacted, That besides the general Stock employed by this City for Provision of Coals for Benefit of the Poor, there shall be provided yearly hereafter at the best Hand, between Lady-Day and Michaelmas, by the several Companies of this City, the several Chaldrons hereafter mentioned, viz.

By the	Mercers,	488	Chaldron.
	Grocers,	675
	Drapers,	562
	Fishmongers,	465
	Goldsmiths,	525
	Skinners,	315
	Merchant Taylors,	750
	Haberdashers,	578
	Salters,	360
	Ironmongers,	255
	Vinters,	375
	Clothworkers,	412

And so particular Numbers of Chaldrons are appointed to every one of the rest of the Companies, ending with the Glaziers.

No 3. Vol. II.

AND the said Quantity of Sea-coal, to be stored or laid up in convenient Places by every the said Companies: And to be brought out, sold, and uttered at such other hard and dear Seasons of the Year, in such Manner, and at such Price, as the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen shall judge most requisite, and as by their Precept in Writing they shall direct; so as the Companies be not ordered to sell the same Coals to Loss.

THERE were Proposals made by some Charitable Citizens, and set forth in Print, Anno 1706, for establishing a Charitable Fund in the City by voluntary Gifts and Loans of Money, for these good and pious Purposes following, viz. To relieve necessitous Persons from the Oppressions and evil Practices of ill Men: To provide poor People within the Parishes of the Bills of Mortality, with Coal and other Necessaries at a cheap Rate in the Winter, and Times of War [or Dearth:] To maintain those that are not able to get their Livelihoods: To set other Poor to work, viz. In employing them to sweep and clean the Streets and other Places within the said Parishes; in clearing them from Beggars; in making convenient Walks; in repairing the Highways in the Avenues of the said City, &c. after the Manner of the Corporation of Guardians in the City of Bristol.

THE kind Entertainment of poor Strangers fled hither for Religion, deserves to be mentioned here. Anno 1708, many Protestants of the Palatinate on the Rhine, by reason of Persecution, conveyed themselves over hither, whom Queen Anne graciously provided with all Necessaries, and sent them over to our Plantations in the West-Indies. And by this Encouragement, between two or three thousand more of the same Country, Men, Women, and Children, Anno 1709, came over, and appeared miserable Objects, in and about LONDON, imploring her Majesty's Protection; and Orders were given for defraying their Charges; and the Rope-houses at Deptford, and other convenient Places, were prepared to receive some Hundreds of them that landed thereabouts. The rest were disposed of by the Care of some Charitable Persons in and about St. Katharine's and Aldgate, and Camberwel, and Lambeth; several large Barns were hired for them: And the late Prince's Chaplains, the Minister of the German Congregation in the Savoy, and others, voluntarily preached and read Prayers to them two or three times a Week, according to the Forms of the Church of England, at the Churches of Aldgate and St. Katharine's, and they were much relieved by private Charities, besides the Queen's.

THERE is yet another Sort of Charity in this City (maintained by the Society before-mentioned, viz. For promoting Christian Knowledge) very singular and extraordinary, the like whereof is hardly practised in any City of Christendom besides, and for which the Citizens concerned therein deserve to stand upon lasting Record; and that is, the erecting Schools in many Parishes of LONDON and Westminster, called Charity Schools, for the free Education of poor Boys and Girls, and also for their Maintenance in Apparel, and afterwards disposing of them Abroad in honest Callings.

THIS Favour of the Londoners towards poor Children began divers Yeats ago in North and South Wales. When about the Year 1670, the Poverty and Ignorance of those Parts raised a Compassion in the Hearts of many good Citizens, (which must be recorded to their Honour;) so that they and their Interest contributed such Sums of Money as maintained a great Number of poor Welsh Children at School, to read English, Write, and cast Accompts; And Schools for that Purpose were erected and settled in many many Places in those Countries. And this pious Practice so flourished, that in the Year 1674, or 1675, Certificate was made, that in 86 of the chief Towns and Parishes in Wales, 1162 poor Children were put to School, over and above 200 put to School the last Year by the Charity of others. And this Charity had already provoked divers Landlords and Inhabitants of several Towns and Parishes in Wales, to put 863 of the poorest Welsh Children to School upon their own Accounts; so that 2225, in all, were already put to School to learn, as before.

AND this Charity extended not only to the poor Children, but to the rest of the poor Welsh Inhabitants, to furnish them with Christian Knowledge. For, by this Charity, they had distributed freely among them a great Number of pious Books translated and printed in the Welsh Language. So that in the Year 1674, there had been bought and distributed in several Families 32 Welsh Bibles, and 479 Welsh New Testaments; which were all that could be bought up in London or Wales; besides 500 Whole Duties of Man, bought and disposed in like Manner: And 2500 Practices of Piety, with some Hundreds of other licensed Treatises, translated into Welsh, were then printing, and almost finished; which were to be freely given also to the poor People in those Parts. This became a Trust, and was committed to several eminent Ministers of LONDON, viz. Dr. Tillotson; afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Whichcote, Dr. Simon Ford, Dr. Bates, Dr. Outram, Dr. Patrick, afterwards Bishop of Ely, Dr. Stillingfleet, afterwards Bishop of Worcester, Dr. Fowler, afterwards Bishop of Gloucester, Mr. Durham, Dr. Meriton, Dr. Hezekiah Burton, Mr. Baxter, Mr. Matthew Poole, and Mr. Thomas Gouge, some Time Vicar of St. Sepulchre's, LONDON; which last also devoted himself and his Estate to this Service, and Labour of Love: Going himself several Years successively into Wales from Place to Place, enduring, in his old Age, all the Fatigues of Travelling in that mountainous Country, to oversee and manage this great publick Work. There were also in the same Trust some eminent Citizens of the Laity, as Thomas Firmin, Henry Norton, John Dubois, and some others: But this Charity, however it lessened in Wales, afterwards began nearer Home.

THE Beginning of this Sort of Charity in LONDON was thus: Divers Ministers, or other sober Parishioners, observed abundance of Children in their Parishes destitute, and neglected in their Education, either by Reason of the Poverty of some Parents, or the Carelessness, as well as Poverty of others. This made them bethink themselves of setting up Parish-Schools for the Use of these Children, to bring them up in the Knowledge and Practice of the Christian Religion, as professed and taught in the Church of England; and likewise for the teaching them to Work, and accustoming them to Employment, both to prevent an Habit of Idleness, and to enable them to live honestly, and provide Subsistence for themselves hereafter. Hereupon in some Places the Minister of the Parish himself made this good Motion to some of the discreetest of his Parishioners; and sometimes two or three Parishioners propounded it to the Ministers, and such others of the Neighbours, who were more likely to espouse so good a Deed, and to join with them. And when four or five had agreed thereon, they drew up the Design in a Roll of Parchment in a few Lines, shewing the great Need and special Usefulness of such a Course. And to this each subscribed their Names, and the Sums by them promised to exhibit yearly, during Pleasure, towards the Charge; and generally the Minister subscribed first; and then shewing the said Rolls to others, that pleased subscribed also.

WHEN this Design came to be more and more known, it met with very good Success. Information that some Subscribers have been able to set up a School in 7 or 8 Months Time. After Subscriptions were thus finished, they agreed upon settling certain Rules and Orders for the governing the said Schools, the better to effect the Ends of the Charity, for the Satisfaction of all concerned, and that no Offence might be taken. They concluded upon divers good Rules for the Matters that were to teach, and for the Scholars that were to learn. The Masters to take particular Care to instruct the Children in the Church Catechism twice a Week, to bring them to Church twice every Lord's Day, with their Bibles and Common-Prayer Books with them; to discourage and correct any Beginnings of Vice in them, particularly, Lying, Swearing, Cursing, and Profanation of the Lord's Day. The Children to wear always their Caps, Bands, Cloaths, and other Marks of Distinction; whereby the Trustees and Benefactors might know them, and see what their Behaviour is Abroad.

THE Subscribers meet at the School-House every first Wednesday after every Quarter-Day. They have a Treasurer and six Trustees, always chosen on the Wednesday in Easter Week; who, with the Minister, have the immediate Care and Government of the Schools. And they report the State and Condition of the Schools at their quarterly Meetings.

THE ordinary Charge of a School for 50 Boys cloathed, is computed to come to about 75 l. per Annum. For which a School-Room, Books and Firing are provided, a Master paid; and to each Boy is given yearly three Bands, one Cap, one Coat, one Pair of Stockings, and one Pair of Shoes. The ordinary Charge of a School for 50 Girls cloathed, comes to about 60 l. taking in the Rent of the School-Room, the Mistress's Salary, Books and Firing, and Cloaths bought for them.

THE Gentlemen concerned in promoting and upholding these Schools, have Anniversary Sermons the Thursday after Easter Week, preached by Divines of the most eminent Quality (at which all the Scholars are present) in order to the keeping up, and exciting to this good Work. The first whereof was preached by Richard Willis, D. D. at St. Andrew's Holbourn. The next Year, viz. 1705, on the Thursday in Whitson Week, this Anniversary Sermon was preached at St. Sepulchre's Church (where it is ever since preached.) The Preacher then was George Stanhope, D. D. Dean of Canterbury. As at the third Meeting was Dr. Kennet, Archdeacon of Huntingdon, when near 3000 Children were present. These Sermons are usually printed for the more common Benefit. And at the End of them is given, An Account of the Methods whereby the Charity-Schools in the Parts of Great Britain and Ireland, have been erected and managed; and of the Encouragements given to them. And likewise a particular Account of the Schools in LONDON and Westminster, and a List of those erected elsewhere; with an Appendix of divers other Things relating thereto.

THERE are at present, in and about LONDON, no less than 131 of these Schools, in which there are above 5000 Children: For the Places where, and the distinct Number of Children, Boys and Girls, in each. See Book I. Chap. XIII.

THERE are many Churches wherein Sermons are preached, and Collections made for these Schools;

It hath been the Custom of this Society to remit yearly to their Correspondents abroad in the Country, Accounts of the good Progress of these Schools, with particular Intelligence of their Affairs, and the Success of the laudable Endeavours of this and other Religious Societies : And withall, to convey to them divers little Books and Pamphlets, printed at their Charge, for the Use of young Persons and others, in order to the promoting Christian Knowledge and Godliness. Thus, in the Year 1715, this following was the Circular Letter sent to the said corresponding Members.

London-House, Dec. 3. 1715.

THE Account of Charity-Schools having increased to a large Volume, and the Variety of Methods used for promoting them in different Places, being in a Manner universally known, from the Distribution which has been made of these Accounts to all Parts of the Kingdom, for above ten Years past, it has been now thought proper to present the Well-wishers to this Design, with a View only of the Rules generally observed by the Trustees, the Masters, the Mistresses, and the Children, the Number of Schools, and the Number of Children taught in them ; distinguishing those that are cloathed, from those that are not.

BUT, in order to make this Method more compleat, it is requested, That you would not only inform the Society of the Number of Children generally taught at those Schools, where the Account is silent for Want of Information ; but also of the Number of Children that have been educated, and placed out of all the Schools within your Knowledge from the first erecting of them ; and that you would be pleased at the same Time to signify, as near as you can, when each School was set up.

To prevent too great an Increase of Mechanick Tradesmen issuing from these Schools, it has been wished by some, that a greater Number than are provided for, were encouraged to go to Husbandry, or to Services at Sea; but the Circumstances of Places being so very various, there is hardly any Rule can be adapted to all Places; except the recommending it to the Consideration of the Trustees of each School respectively, to regard, as much as they can, the Publick Interest, in the Disposition they make of their Charity Children.

THIS Consideration has induced several Persons in the Sea-faring Towns, to find Means to teach some of the Children the Art of Navigation; and the Experiments that have been made in LONDON have answered so well, that a certain charitable Gentleman agreed to endow a School on purpose for teaching the Art of Navigation to such Children as are of the brightest Parts, being selected out of the Charity-School of St. Dunstan's in the West, and five or six other adjacent Schools.

THERE cannot well be a surer Indication of the Divine Blessing on the Design of these Schools, than that most of them have been set up, and liberally maintained, whilst the Nation was engaged in a bloody and expensive War. And that, notwithstanding the unhappy Divisions that prevailed of late Years, it pleased God so to order it, that they very rarely affected the Charity-Schools. And when a flourishing School has been threaten'd with a Dissolution, from the intemperate Heats of those that should support it, Providence has wisely interposed, and made their Strife the Means of providing for a larger Number of Children, and supporting two Schools instead of one.

THE Protestant Missionaries in the East Indies, not many Years since, signified to the Society, that twenty-eight Persons were admitted by Baptism into their Communion the Year before; that the Schools consisted of about fourscore Children, which were as many, or rather more, than the uncertain Fund they had would afford to maintain; that their Congregation increased so fast, that they were in great Want of a larger Building to receive them, as well as of Houses to accommodate the Children under their Care, and to receive the PRINTING-PRESS, the Foundry for casting LETTERS, and the Artificers belonging to each; and that they hoped for Assistance therein from England.

THEY have finished the Translation of the New Testament in the Malabarick Language. They have likewise begun to translate the Old Testament into Malabarick; and have, partly by their own Labour, and partly from the Help of others, made themselves Masters of a Copy of almost all the Books of the Old Testament, except the Apocrypha, translated into Portuguese.

NOTWITHSTANDING this happy Progress, it has been thought necessary, for the Service of the Mission, that one of the Missionaries should come to Europe, to represent in Person what could not so well be done by Letter. And accordingly, Mr. Ziegenbalgh, being appointed for it, arrived at the Court of Denmark, where he was graciously received by the King, and had Assurances of his Majesty's Royal Favour and Protection.

How well the Court of Denmark are disposed to countenance this Mission, may be better known from the King's own Directions about the Management of it; and the Sentiments of a College, or Society, which his Majesty lately erected at Copenhagen, on Purpose to promote it; a Translation of which was sent to England some Years since.

THE Year 1716, the Circular Letters of the Society informed their Correspondents, that in the December before, Mr. Ziegenbalgh aforesaid, the principal Danish Missionary, who came that Year into Europe, about Matters relating to the Protestant Mission, (as was mention'd before) came to LONDON, and received the Congratulations of the Society: To whom he made a Speech in Malabarick, (such was his Proficiency in that Language), which he afterwards spoke in Latin, and was answered again by another Speech in Latin by Mr. Nichols, in the Name of the Society. Both which were soon after printed.

THE last Letters the Society received from those Parts did import, that such as were formerly most averse to encourage the Mission, were now become strenuous Promoters of it. And that a Paper-Mill was set up at Tranquebar, partly to employ the Children of the Heathen, and partly to answer the Ends of the Printing-Press sent thither by the Society.

As for other Parts of the East Indies, which are under the English, viz. Fort St. George, Bengal, and Bombay, the English Chaplains there exert themselves in their Stations to encourage this laudable Design. And, by the Favour of the English Government, a Charity-School is erected at Fort St. George for teaching, cloathing, and wholly maintaining thirty Children of the poor Inhabitants of that Garrison, upon such a Foundation as gave Hopes of a considerable Enlargement.

A Hint was before given of one Part of this Society's good Custom, not a little expensive, viz. of printing and dispersing great Numbers of small useful Tracts, for the furthering of Practical Religion. Such are the Anniversary Sermons, preached to the Societies; Lists of the Charity-Schools in Great Britain and Ireland; Accounts of these Schools distinctly: These are printed yearly. Not many Years ago were printed, among others, The Practice of true Devotion; An Exercise to be used in the Charity-Schools against Lying; An Exercise for these Schools; explaining the Nature of Confirmation; Orders to be observed by the Masters and Mistresses of these Schools; Prayers and Devotions to be used by the Children; The History of the Bible; An Earnest Exhortation to House-keepers, to set up the Worship of God in their Families; A Short Refutation of the principal Errors of the Church of Rome, &c.

THEY have also been at the Charge of Printing Books in other Languages, as in the Malabarick, for the Use of that People. And they afterwards printed the Bible and Common Prayer in Welsh, for the Benefit of the poor People and Children in Wales. The Proposals for doing which, were recommended by the Society in their Circular Letter 1714, and received such Encouragement, that an Impression of above 7000 Copies were printed at the King's Printing-House.

AND, together with the other Particulars of the good Progress of Religion in LONDON, it may deserve a Place here to mention what Reformation hath been of late made in singing of Psalms in our Churches: Which Protestants were ever exercised in, as one of the great Parts of their publick Devotions, to extol and praise our Great Maker by the joint Voices of the whole Congregation. This Part of Service had been wont to be performed very undecently, by the Unskillfulness of some of the Common People: So that in the Assemblies there should be nothing but Discord in Singing, and, instead of Harmony, Confusion; some singing in one Tune, and some in

The Danish East India Missionary came to the Society in London.

Reformation in singing of Psalms.

in another, and some quite out of Tune; to the great Offence of the devout Christian, and Dishonour of GOD: Insomuch that in some Churches, that Part of GOD's Service was thought convenient to be wholly laid aside, and no Psalms in Metre to be sung at all. Therefore to remedy this, Organs have been set up in most of the Churches, for directing those that sing, to keep Time and Tune: And Care hath been taken, that Masters skilled in Singing have been procured in most Parishes to teach the Youth gratis; and any others that were willing to learn, to sing tuneably the several Tunes appropriated to those Psalms, according to the Metre they are put into, and are printed and bound up at the End of our English Bibles. Whereby it is now come to pass that there is great Amendment generally in the Churches in that Respect, and much better Melody to the Glory of GOD.

Commissioners for Augmentation of poor Ministers Maintenance.

FARTHER, in Favour to the Clergy, whose proper Office it is to minister to, and assist the Peoples Devotions, in this City of LONDON, or Westminster, Commissioners for Augmentation of small Livings, sit from Time to Time for transacting this great Bounty of her late gracious Majesty Queen Anne, granting her first Fruits and Tenths for that good Use and Purpose. The Governors of this noble Charity were, by the said Queen's Letters Patents, made a Corporation, by the Name of The Governors of the Bounty of Queen Anne, for the Augmentation of the Maintenance of the poor Clergy. It bore Date the third of November, in the third Year of her Reign, and it was open'd the 14th of December, at the Prince's Lodgings. The Commissioners were many and among the rest, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of LONDON. The Lord Keeper was to issue out Writs of Enquiry, to find out the Value of the Livings in England and Wales, of 80 l. a Year, and under; their Distances from LONDON, and which of them were Market-Towns, and which not. These Letters to be laid before the Commissioners, as capable of Augmentation.

Dr. Compton, Bishop of LONDON, not long after, sent his Letters to the Rural Deans of his Diocese, to send him up the Names of such small Livings, and their true Values, within their several Deanaries, and to return them in to this Commission.

What Progress is since made in this Royal Charitable Purpose, may appear by these Papers, which were distributed to the Clergy by the late Bishop of LONDON's Order, at the Archdeacon's Visitation at Rumford, April 27, 1714. The like dispersed in the other Dioceses by the respective Bishops.

RULES and ORDERS for the Augmentation of the Maintenance of the poor Clergy, &c. ratified and confirmed by her Majesty, under the Great Seal of Great Britain, the 5th of March 1713-14.

1. That the Augmentations to be made by the said Corporation, shall be by the Way of Purchase, and not by the Way of Pension.

2. That the stated Sum to be allowed to each Cure which shall be augmented, be 200 l. to be invested in a Purchase at the Expence of the Corporation.

3. That the Governors shall begin with augmenting those Cures that do not exceed the Value of 10 l. per Annum, and shall augment no other till these have received our Bounty of 200 l. except in the Cases, and according to the Limitations hereafter named.

4. That in order to encourage Benefactions from others, and thereby the sooner to compleat the Good that was intended by our Bounty, the

VOL. II.

Governors may give the Sum of 200 l. to Cures not exceeding 35 l. per Annum, where any Persons will give the same, or greater Sum, or Value in Lands or Tithes.

5. That the Governors shall every Year, between Christmas and Easter, cause the Account of what Money they have to distribute that Year, to be audited; and when they know the Sum, publick Notice shall be given in the Gazette, or such other Way as shall be judged proper, that they have such a Sum to distribute in so many Shares; and that they will be ready to apply those Shares to such Cures as want the same, and are by the Rules of the Corporation qualified to receive them, where any Persons will add the like, or greater Sum to it, or the Value in Lands or Tithes, for any such particular Cure.

6. That if several Benefactors offer themselves, the Governors shall first comply with those that offer most.

7. Where the Sums offered by other Benefactors are equal, the Governors shall always prefer the poorer Living.

8. Where the Cures to be augmented are of equal Value, and the Benefactions offered by others are equal, there they shall be preferred that first offer.

9. Provided, nevertheless, that the Preference shall be so far given to Cures not exceeding 10 l. per Annum, that the Governors shall not apply above one Third Part of Money they have to distribute that Year, to Cures exceeding that Value.

10. Where the Governors have expected till Michaelmas, what Benefactors will offer themselves, then no more Proposals shall be received for that Year; but if any Money remains to be disposed of, in the first Place, two or more of the Cures in the Gift of the Crown, not exceeding 10 l. per Annum, shall be chosen by Lot, to be augmented preferably to all others: The precise Number of these to be settled by a General Court, when an exact List of them shall be brought in to the Governors.

11. As for what shall remain of the Money to be disposed of after that, a List shall be taken of all the Cures in the Church of England, not exceeding 10 l. per Annum; and so many of them to be chosen by Lot, as there shall remain Sums of 200 l. for their Augmentation.

12. When all the Cures, not exceeding 10 l. per Annum, shall be so augmented, the Governors shall then proceed to augment those of greater Value, according to such Rules as shall at any Time hereafter be proposed by them, and approved by us, our Successors, under our or their Great Seal.

13. That all Charitable Gifts, in real or personal Estates made to the Corporation, shall be strictly applied, according to the particular Direction of the Donor or Donors thereof, where the Donor shall give particular Directions for the Disposition thereof: And where the Gift shall be generally to the Corporation, without any such particular Direction, the same shall be applied, as the rest of the Fund, or Stock of the Corporation is to be applied.

14. That a Book shall be kept, wherein shall be entered all the Subscriptions, Contributions, Gifts, Devises, or Appointments, made or given, of any Monies, or of any real or personal Estate whatsoever, to the Charity mentioned in the Charter, and the Names of the Donors thereof, with the Particulars of the Matters so given; the same Book to be kept by the Secretary of the Corporation.

15. That a Memorial of the Benefactions and Augmentations made to each Cure, shall, at the Charge of the Corporation, be set up in Writing on a Stone, to be fixed in the Church of the Cure so to be increased, there to remain in perpetual Memory thereof.

16. When the Treasurer shall have received any Sum of Money for the Use of the Corporation, he shall, at the next General Court to be holden after such Receipt, lay an Account thereof before the Governors, who may order and direct the same to be placed out for the Improvement thereof, upon some Publick Fund, or other Security, till they have an Opportunity of laying it out in proper Purchases, for the Augmentation of Cures.

17. Collector, Edward Barker, Esq;
Secretary, Thomas Moore, Esq;

To all this we must add the pious Act of Parliament, in the Reign of Queen Anne, for Building 50 new Churches within the City and Suburbs; so necessary for the keeping up a Sense of God, and his publick Worship, among the People, too numerous to be received in the Churches and Chapels that were then built: For the more effectual finishing whereof Commissioners were appointed, whose Office is in the Old Palace-yard, and their Custom has been to publish, in the Gazette, that they are ready to receive Proposals from Carpenters, Joiners, and other Workmen, at their said Office, for the Building and Finishing such new Churches as they were going about.

THE Charge for the Building of these Churches is to be raised from a Duty laid upon Sea-coal, at so much for every Chaldron, according to a Statute made Anno 1711, 9 Reg. Ann. Ca. 22, whereby it was Enacted, That from the 14th of May, 1716, to the 29th of Sept. 1724, there shall be paid for all Coals brought into the River Thames, over and above all Imposition upon Coals, the Duties following; viz. from the 14th of March to the 29th of September, Coals and Culm sold by the Chaldron, containing 36 Bushels, 2 s. per Chaldron. The same; sold by the Ton. And after the 29th of September 1716, to the 28th of September 1724, 3 s. per Chaldron; and the like per Ton; which Duties shall be raised, and paid to the Crown.

THE Money arising by this Duty to be paid into the Exchequer, and appropriated for building 50 new Churches of Stone, with Towers and Steeples to each; and for purchasing Sites of Churches, and Church-Yards, and Burying-Places, in or near LONDON and Westminster, or the Suburbs; and for making such Chapels as are capable thereof, and already built, Parish Churches; and for applying the Sum of 4000 l. per Annum, out of the said Duties, towards the repairing of the Collegiate Church of St. Peter's Westminster, and the Chapels of the same; and 6000 l. towards the finishing of Greenwich Hospital, and the Chapel thereunto belonging, and to no other Use.

ONE of the 50 new Churches to be in the Parish of Greenwich.

CHAPELS already built, if fit, may be converted into Parishes.

THE Queen by Letters Patents may nominate Commissioners, who shall meet as often as there is Occasion, and inform themselves in what Parishes the New Churches are most necessary to be built, and of proper Places where to build them, and of the Church-Yards, and Burying-Places to be bought: And to limit the distinct Parishes, and to inform themselves of the Value of the Houses and Lands, as they shall think necessary to be purchased for Church-Yards and Ministers Houses; and shall before the 24th of December 1711, certify the Queen in Writing under their Hands and Seals, such Things as shall appear to them, and present a Duplicate of such Report to each House of Parliament.

AN hundred Chaldron of Coals every Year brought into the Port of LONDON for the Use of Chelsea Hospital, shall not be charged with this Duty.

THE next Year, viz. 1712, 10 Annæ Reg. another Act was made, in relation to the 50 new Churches, intitled, "An Act enlarging the Time given to the Commissioners appointed by her Majesty, pursuant to an Act for granting her Majesty several Duties on Coals, for building 50 new Churches, and other Purposes therein mentioned: And also for granting the said Commissioners further Powers for better effecting the same." By Vertue whereof, the Time limited by the Queen's Letters Patents mentioned the 9th of April, being expired, was enlarged; and the Commissioners, or any five of them, empowered to meet as often as they shall have Occasion, and perform every Thing in the former Act, and in this Act required, for building the said Churches, until they have completed the same.

THESE

Act for building 50 new Churches.

THESE Commissioners to purchase Lands, as they shall think proper, for the Churches, Burying Places, and Ministers Houses.

THE Commissioners may take up Money at 6 per Cent. upon the Credit of the several Duties on Coals, for the carrying on of the said Work: And the Money so lent shall not be taxed.

FIVE of the Commissioners may, by a Parchment Writing under their Hands and Seals, to be enrolled in the Chancery, ascertain the Bounds, and set to each new Church and Churchyard, and also the Districts to each Parish, that shall be appointed for every new Church. And after the Enrollment of such Writing, and Consecration of the Church, such Districts shall be taken to be a distinct Parish; except touching Church Rates, Relief of the Poor, and Rates for the Highways, as in the same after was provided. And the Inhabitants within the Districts shall be Parishioners thereof, and be subject to all Taxes, Rates for the Poor, cleansing of the Streets, and other Duties, as the Inhabitants of the Parish from whence such new Parish was taken, are chargeable.

A Rector to be in every new Church, and a perpetual Succession of Rectors in them. And where there is now a Morning Preacher in any Chapel, which shall be converted into a Parish-Church, and who shall have officiated there for one Month next before the Consecration thereof, such Preacher shall be the first Rector of the new Church, without Admission, Institution, or Induction. And in every other new Church, the Rector to be appointed by the Queen. And he and his Successors are hereby incorporated, and shall be called the Rector of such new Church, by the Name which shall be given to it in the Act of Consecration: And the Freehold of the new Church shall be in him, and his Successors.

AND he and they may purchase and take Lands, not exceeding the clear yearly Value of 200 l. for each Church.

FIVE or more of the Commissioners may enquire and inform themselves of the Right of Patronage, &c. of any Church, from which any Part shall be taken aforesaid; and treat with the Person who hath the Right, for the more effectual dividing of such Parish, and the Tithes, and other Dues thereunto belonging; and apportioning the same, to take Place and Effect after the next Avoidance, and for settling the Right of Patronage for ever in each new Church or Chapel, made Parochial: To which, so divided, it shall be annexed.

AND all such Agreement to be made for such Division (to be with the Assent of the Ordinary) and for settling the Right of Patronage by a Writing in Parchment under the Hands and Seals of five or more of the Commissioners, and of the Parties having a Right to such Patronage, and enrolled in Chancery, shall be from henceforth binding.

UNTIL such Settlement can be made of the Right of Patronage, the Crown shall present upon any Avoidance.

THE first and all succeeding Rectors of every new Church (except the present Preacher of a Chapel) shall be presented, instituted, collated and inducted, as other Rectors are.

SOME of these new Churches are, St. Mary Le Strand, Christ Church in Spittle-fields, St. Anne at Lime-house, St. Luke in Middlesex, St. George at Bloomsbury, St. George in Hanover-square, St. John Evangelist in Westminster, St. John in Southwark; and some old Churches, by Virtue of this Act, are pulled down and rebuilt: As St. Mary Woolnorth in Lombard-street, and St. Giles's in the Fields. Those of Greenwich and Deptford.

THERE is likewise another Charitable Society, erected in LONDON, for those of the Scottish Nation, reduced to Poverty and Need. The Well-disposed and Wealthier Sort of the Natives of North Britain, have, by their Diligence and voluntary Contributions, raised a considerable Estate of yearly Income for that good Purpose. It is called, The Scots Corporation at LONDON, founded by King Charles II. An. 1664. The Occasion was, a Person, a Native of Scotland, about the Year 1664, in a Fit of Sickness, and in Danger of Death, resolved to communicate Part of what he had gotten by his honest Pains and Industry, to the Poor of his Country, whom he found to be numerous, and many of them under great Streights. But his Charity having a farther Prospect, than for a present Supply to such indigent Persons, consulted with some proper Persons about laying a Method of a standing Stock for such Objects of Charity for future Time. The Effect of this was, that Letters Patent were gotten for a Corporation of Scots in LONDON; whereby they might have the Privileges of a permanent and authorized Society. This they obtained by the Interest of the Earl of Lauderdale, then Secretary of State for Scotland.

THE Patent took Place the 3d of September, 1665. This Patent recited a former Patent, dated the 30th of June, 17 Car. II, allowing an Hospital to be erected within Westminster, or the Liberties thereof, to be called, The Scots Hospital of King Charles II. to be governed by eight honest Men, Natives of Scotland, and Inhabitants of London and Westminster, or Liberties thereof. Out of which eight, one is yearly to be chosen the Thursday next after the Feast of St. Michael, by the major Part of the eight, for Master. Which Persons, and their Successors so elected, were declared a Corporation and Body Politick, empowered to purchase Lands and Moveables, &c.

THIS Patent, after Recital as above, of the first, granteth Leave to the Corporation, to erect an Hospital within the Cities of London and Westminster, or Liberties thereof; appoints eight honest Men, Natives of Scotland, and Inhabitants of London, Westminster, or Liberties thereof, for Governors of the said Hospital; with Power to elect Assistants, not to exceed thirty-three, all to be Scotchmen, or of Scots Extraction. Which Assistants are yearly, on the 30th of November, called St. Andrew's Day, or the next Day after, to present to the Governors two of the Governors Number, who have not been Masters, &c. out of the which two, the Governors or Major Part, to choose one for Master.

THE Lands, &c. and Profits thereof to be applied to the Support of Old, Honest, and Decayed Persons; and in instructing and employing poor Orphans, being all Scots, or come of Scots, but by no means of vagrant Beggars, or desolate Persons, &c.

ONE particular Instance of the Charity arising from this Corporation was, that during the Sickness Years, when their Beginnings were but small, there were 300 Scots, or of Scots Extraction, who died of the Plague in and about LONDON, buried at their Charge, with as much Decency as the publick Calamity would permit. And many of the Infected were maintained, and taken Care of, until they recovered, and, by God's Blessing, the Contagion ceased.

WANTING a Hall for their Meeting, at length, in the Year 1670, a pious Lady being told the good Use to be made of it, granted a Lease of the Ground to the Corporation for a Thousand Years, situate in Black-fryars.

AFTER many Collections made, and voluntary Gifts, they were enabled gradually to build, first, Four Dwelling-houses, which front the Street in Black-fryars that leads to the River; with an Inscription on the Frontispiece, declaring them to be for the Use of the Poor of their Country : And next, the Hall itself, and a House contiguous to it, with an Emblem of Charity cut in Stone upon the Side of the Hall facing Fleet-ditch. Which were finished in the Year 1672. And afterwards another House was built upon a Parcel of disputed Ground, with a Kitchen and two Rooms over it, for a Dwelling-house for the Beadle, finished in the Year 1676. The Charge of all amounting to about 4450 l. Sterling.

THERE is a large Table, hung up in the Hall, of the Names and particular Benevolences of all those that were Contributors.

IN the Year 1718, the said Society thought fit to publish in Print, the Original Design and present State of this Corporation. To which is added, A List of the Masters, Assistants, Treasurers, and all the Benefactors. Among the last is placed Gilbert, late Lord Bishop of Salisbury, a Native of Scotland, who gave 30 l. and 5 l. per Annum.

invested them in an Estate of 5 or 600 l. per Annum, with this Trust, to make a Lease of it to a Relation of his own Name, for 99 Years, if he should live so long; and upon his Decease, the like Lease to his Heir for 99 Years, if he should live so long; and so successively. By which politic Means this Estate is perpetual to the Family, and is put out of the Power of a Spendthrift to alienate it, or to cut off the Entail, and so beggar the Posterity. And of this some of the Heirs are so sensible, that when they have come to the Company for their Lease, they have thanked God, that put it into the Heart of their Ancestor so to tie the Estate; which otherwise, they acknowledged, such an extravagant Father, or Relation, that went before, had certainly destroyed.

Sir Hugh Middleton gave a Share in the New River Water to this Company, for the Benefit of the poor Members of it, which is so much now advanced, that the Dividend of one half Year, received Anno 1704, amounted to 134 l. which Dividends are customarily bestowed upon the said Poor, at 26 s. each.

CHAP. II.

Of the Temporal Government of LONDON.

FROM the Spiritual, we proceed next to the Temporal Government of our City; wherein many Things are to be shewn:

And first, such as are more General, and then more Special and Particular.

UNDER this first Part something is to be spoken of the Temporal Government by the Chief Governors. Then shall be given a continued Catalogue of the Chief annual Magistrates, Mayors, and Sheriffs, fetched from the earliest Memory, to the present Time; descending next to the Aldermen, and the rest of the City Officers. Then to the Customs to be observed by these Magistrates of the City upon Festival Days, and other solemn Times throughout the Year. Then shall be declared the several Corporations and Societies, which we commonly call The Companies of the City: Which subordinate Government contributes much to the peaceable, flourishing and good Order of the Whole. From these more general Matters, the Discourse shall proceed to the Laws, Usages, Custom, and divers other more particular Relations of Things remarkable appertaining to this City.

THIS Government of the City is by a Mayor, two Sheriffs, six and twenty Aldermen of as many Wards, into which the City is divided or parted out: Each having subordinate Officers under them. The Recorder also is a great Officer, and of great Use.

To those who are inquisitive into the antient Government of the City, it will be acceptable, to shew them, who and what these Magistrates were in former Times; their Election, their Power, their Business, with remarkable Events happening to them. These shall be set down, as we have found them in some authentick Writings, in the Records of the City, or the Tower, or the Exchequer. The more modern State of these chief Rulers will follow in due Place.

MAYOR.

AND first we begin with the Mayor, who is chief and principal Magistrate, and the King's immediate Locum Tenens, i. e. Lieutenant or Deputy in the City of LONDON; so constituted from and before the Time of William the Conqueror, yet going under various Denominations. That King called this his Lieutenant in the same City by the antient Name Portgrave, as appears by his Charter, the Tenour whereof is in the Book of Customs.

PORTGRAVE, or PORTGREVE.

A Saxon Word, as appears from the said Book of Customs, Port signifying a City: Grave in the same Saxon or Teutonic or Almain Tongues, Comes, a Count or Earl; founding, The Earl of the City. Whence the Honour due to a Count, as well in the King's Presence as elsewhere in LONDON, was due to this Chief Officer, while he was in his Office. And thence is the Reason of the Sword being carried before him. The Names of several of these Portgraves will be mention'd in due Place.

AFTERWARDS the People call'd him Portreve, but corruptly for Portgreve, for the Word Reve debases this great Officer, signifying no more in Saxon than Villicus, i. e. Bailiff.

Anno 1184, the chief Magistrate was call'd Portgrave; for, 31 Hen. II. there was a Patent granted to the Weavers, wherein the Portgrave or principal Magistrate was order'd to burn certain Cloth, weaved with English and Spanish Wool mixed.

THIS

THIS Officer was intituled, by Henry the Son of King William, Justitiarius in his Charter, wherein he granted the Citizens the County of Middlesex to Farm, granting them therein a Licence to choose Justitiarium de seipsis ad custodienda placita Coronæ suæ; i. e. A Justice of themselves, to keep the Pleas of his Crown. And hence this Officer is so stiled in the Book of Customs.

IN the Charter of King Henry, Son of King John, the Governor of LONDON began to be called MAYOR: For so it ran, Sciatis nos concessisse, &c. "Know ye that We have granted, and by Our present Charter have confirmed to Our Barons of Our City of LONDON, Quod eligant sibi Majorem; i. e. That they may choose to themselves a Mayor out of themselves each Year, who may be faithful to Us, discreet, and fit for the Government of the City.

Mayor and Chamberlain of the City formerly were the same. For Sir Gregory de Rokelee, Mayor, was called CHAMBERLAIN, as appears in the Book B. And when Henry le Gallyeys, Mayor, took a Journey towards Lincoln, about earnest Business of his own, and he put in his Place William de Bethonia and Geoffrey de Norton, they were call'd in the King's Letter Camerarii Civitat'; i. e. Chamberlains of the City. And it appears in the same Book, that the Mayor supplied the Office of Coroner under the Name of Chamberlain of the City.

THERE were once four Custodes, or Keepers of the City, chosen by the Aldermen and other Citizens, by Vertue of a Letter from King Edward, the 34th Year of his Reign, under his Privy-Seal, sent to them to choose four Custodes pro tempore, i. e. for the Time; wherein John le Blount, Mayor, should be a Soldier in the Company of Edward his eldest Son; and Richerus de Resham, John le Wengrave, Walter de Finchingfeld, Will. de Combmarten, Thomas Roman, and Nicholas de Fardon, were, by Vertue of that Letter, chosen Keepers of the City, in the Room of the Mayor, pro tempore. Here are four, and two over: It may be for the King to choose four of this Number.

Ann. 1280, [1286] 14. Edw. Son of Henry, Gregory de Rokelee, Mayor, the Sheriffs and Aldermen, and other the great Men of LONDON, were summoned to appear in the Feast of the Apostles, Peter and Paul, before John de Kirkeby, Treasurer, and other Justices of the Lord the King, in the Tower of LONDON, to make Inquisition. Then the said Gregory, the Mayor by Counsel, at Berking Church deposed himself, and laid down his Mayoralty, and delivered the Common Seal of the City to one Stephen Aswy, and other Aldermen: And so entered the Tower with the rest, not as Mayor, but as an Alderman, and Neighbour of the Citizens; alledging for the City, that by ancient Liberties they were not bound to go into the Tower of LONDON to make Inquisitions, nor to appear there, pro judicio, unless they were warned 40 Days before.

Mayor's Office, and the Liberties seized.

WHEREUPON the said John Kirkeby seized the Mayor's Office, and the Liberties of LONDON, into the King's Hands, because the City was without a Mayor. Whereupon the Citizens afterwards appearing before the King at Westminster, were arrested, to the Number of 80 Men, and the rest of the Citizens that were the Day before with the Mayor at Berking Church and the Tower, were imprisoned; but all were set at Liberty the fourth Day after, except Stephen Aswy. And the King gave them a Custos in Place of their Mayor, viz. Sir Radulph de Sandwich, Knt. and commanded him that he should keep and govern the Citizens according to their Customs and Liberties. This Custos remained in the Office of Custos till the next Day after the Purification of the Blessed Virgin, Anno 14. And John Breton, Custos, succeeded him to the Feast of St. Margaret, 15, Ann. And then again Ralph de Sandwich was made Custos, and continued many Years, viz. to the 22d inclusive; [yet not Custos every Year during that Space.]

UNDER which Custody Sheriffs were sometimes assigned to the City by the King's Treasurer and the Barons of the Exchequer; because the Liberties of the City were seized into the King's Hand. And sometimes they were chosen by the Citizens. Afterwards, 18 Edward, Son of Henry, in the Room of the said Ralph, succeeded again Sir John Breton, continuing to the 26th Year incomplete, [yet not Custos every Year during that Space.] Of this Man it is written, how he called together the Aldermen, and six of the better and discreeter of each Ward, declaring to them, how in the King's Absence he had been appointed Custos by Lord Edward, the King's Son, and by other Lords; by whom it was commanded him, by an Oath imposed upon him, that he should keep inviolate all the Liberties and ancient Customs, as the Citizens were of old accustomed to have and enjoy; and that he should be in all Things as Mayor, except the Name; and that he should bear the Name of Custos instead of the Name of Mayor.

Sheriffs appointed by the Treasurer and Barons.

WHENCE, it seems, that the Common Seal was heretofore in the Custody of the Mayor, ex officio, as his proper Office, until the Citizens obtained of the King, that the Common Seal of the City should remain in the Custody of two Aldermen, and two other Commoners, to be chosen by the Commoners of the City, &c. as in the Charter of the same King Edward, Son of King Henry, made to the Citizens, Anno 12, of his Reign.

IN the 26th Year of the same King, Wednesday in Easter Week, all the Aldermen and other honest Men, of the City were before the King at Westminster: And there the King, with his Council, granted them the Election of the Mayor; and they, the Friday next following, with 12 Men of each Ward, chose Henry de Galleys for Mayor, who Wednesday next, at the next Court, was presented to the King at Fulham, and was accepted. Thursday next following he was admitted, and sworn before the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer at Westminster. And the next Day, being Friday, he took his Journey towards Lincoln; for the dispatching of his urgent Affairs, and put in his Room William de Beton, and Galfrid de Norton, as appears in the Book B.

The Election of Mayors restored to the City.

THERE were then two Commissions from the King directed; one to Sir John Breton, to resign his Office of Custos, or Keeper; the other to the Citizens to choose a Mayor.

BUT this that follows is remarkable, because the said Appointment of a Custos, or Keeper, and Seizure of the Liberty of the City into the King's Hand, for the Transgression of one Person, seemed rather Voluntaria quam legitima, i. e. Proceeding from his Will than any Law, therefore lest this should happen to prejudice the City again, our Lord King Edward III. granted by his Charter, exemplified in the Book F. "That for any personal Transgression, or personal Judgment, of any Minister of the same City, the Liberty of this City should not be taken into the Hands of the King, or his Heirs, nor a Custos be deputed on that Occasion in the same City."

THE Office of the King's Escheator in LONDON was anciently distinct, but now comprized in the Mayor's Office, as appears by the Charters of King Edward III. to the City, Annis 1, and 1, 5. Now proceed we to

The Election of MAYORS, as also SHERIFFS.

OF antient Time there used to be a great Conflux of Citizens at Guildhall to these Elections; whence arose great Danger of Tumults and Disturbances; for the preventing whereof, the Mayor and Aldermen used to meet some Days before the Day for the Election of the Mayor, (as likewise of the Sheriffs) as they are wont now to meet and to confer together, how the Election should be managed peaceably without popular Tumult and Murmur. Hence out of every Ward they summoned some more discreet and sufficient Citizens to make up such a Number as to them seemed competent; who were cited by Name, to present at the Election of the Mayor, on St. Edward, King and Confessor's Day.

AND because many times on the Day of Election, People not summoned crowded into Guildhall, the Mayor and Aldermen sometimes, by the Authority of their Office, as appears in one of the Books, and sometimes of the King's Writ, caused to be proclaimed on St. Edward's Eve, through the City, that none should, under a great Penalty, come on the Morrow to Guildhall at the Time of Election, unless more especially cited.

AND sometimes against the Time of an Election of a Mayor, the King himself issued out his Letters for a Proclamation, Quod Electio fiat sine tumultu & strepitu populari; & quod nemo intersit, quis jus non habeat suffragii, i. e. That the Election be made without Tumult, and Noise of People; and that none be present who have not a Right of Voting. And such an Order was made 8 Edward II. both for the Election of Mayor and Sheriffs, that it should not be done modo congruo & consueto, sine populari strepitu & tumultu, i. e. in the agreeable and accustomed Manner, without popular Noise and Disturbance.

AND to shew what great Reason there was for this Order, and what seditious Meetings and Cabals of the ordinary Sort used to get together against the Time of Elections, and the Danger of Insurrections thereby, the following Letter of King Edward II. will suffice:

Edwardus Dei Gratia, &c. Edward, by the Grace of God, &c. To the Maior and Sheriffs of LONDON, Greeting. Whereas by Charters of our Progenitors, Kings of England, it was granted to our Citizens of our City aforesaid, that they should choose a Maior and Sheriffs from themselves, when they would; and present them (we not being at Westminster) to the Treasurer and Barons of our Exchequer; and there to be admitted according to Custom: And such Election by the Maior and Aldermen and more discreet Persons of the said City, especially summoned and warned for this Purpose, hath been accustomed in former Times; and now we have understood, that some of the Popular and Plebeian Sort, making a Conspiracy among themselves, causing Contentions, Differences, and innumerable Mischiefs, Day and Night in the said City, and making among them clandestine Conventicles in private Places; and being not called nor summoned, do thrust and mingle themselves, of their own Accord, into such Elections; and by Threatnings and Clamours hindering the due making of such Elections, endeavour to choose such as from Time to come may favour their Errors, that their Wickedness, by Defect of congruous Government, may pass unpunished, under Dissimulation, by such Persons so elected, to the Hurt of our Crown and Dignity, and the Subversion of the State of the aforesaid City, and the manifest Oppression of our Citizens, abiding in it.

We, willing to provide for the Quiet and Tranquillity of the People under us, as we are bound; and to meet with such Malice, Command, firmly enjoining you, that before the Time of the Election of the Maior and Sheriffs next to be chosen, ye cause it to be publicly proclaimed through the whole City, and firmly to be forbid, that none, unless he shall be to this especially called, or summoned, or is bound thereto, come thither at the Time, nor intrude himself in making the Election, nor hinder it any Way, under Pain of Imprisonment; from which he may not escape without our especial Command. And that the foresaid Election be made by the Aldermen, and other the more discreet and powerful Citizens of the said City, as in the same it hath been antiently accustomed to be done: Taking Notice, for the future, that if ye shall present any Elect otherwise than is mentioned before, to the Treasurer and Barons of our Exchequer aforesaid, we will, by no Means, admit them. Witness myself at Westminster, the fourth Day of July, in the eight Year of our Reign.

By Virtue of which Brief of the King, there was a Proclamation made to the same Purport, beginning thus in French: Pour ceo que nostre Seigneur le Roi ad entendre, que aucune gent du people de sa Citee, &c.

BRIEFLY therefore concerning the Original of the Elections of Mayors and Sheriffs, and the Practice thereof, from Time to Time, these Things may be here observed. At first they were made tumultuously by all the Citizens, without Restraint, which occasioned great Uproars and Disturbances; wherefore these Magistrates were chosen afterwards by so many of the discreetest and wealthiest Men out of each Ward, sometimes more, sometimes less; and this select Number was called the Commonalty. The Election by these peculiar Men lasted from Edward I. (and probably began before) unto Edward IV. And then, after some Time in his Reign, the Election was by the Liveries of the Companies; and so the Number of Electors increased. And of later Times, (viz. in the Times of the Usurpation) an Attempt was made, that all Freemen of the City in general should have a Power of electing. This may be seen more at large from the Collections of Dr. Brady, out of the City Books.

The first Commonalty in these Books mentioned, was made up of two Persons in every Ward, and these were chosen by the good Men of the respective Wards: The good Men, that is, (as the Word is in those Books varied and explained) the discreeter, wiser, and better Sort of the Ward. Afterwards the Number of this Commonalty amounted to more than two, viz. to four, to six, even to twelve, to be taken out of every Ward; out of some Wards more, out of some less, according to the Bigness of it; and this, as the Mayor in his Summons to the Ward directed and appointed the Number. But notwithstanding this stinted Number, more Citizens sometimes would crowd in, to give their Votes at the Elections; which, as it once occasioned a Letter from King Edward II. to forbid it, as was shewn before, so King Henry VI. in the 22d of his Reign, sent to the City to the same Intent; purporting, that though, according to Custom, the Mayors used "to be chosen by the Aldermen, and certain more discreet Persons of the said City, especially summoned and warned for that Purpose; yet some that had not, nor ought to have any Interest in such Elections, "came,

*The Original

“ came, and with their Noise and Clamour disturbed them, with Intention to choose such who might afterwards favour their evil Doings and Errors: He therefore, willing to provide for the Quiet and Peace of his Subjects, and to apply a suitable Remedy on this Behalf, did command, and firmly enjoin, the Mayor and Sheriffs to make Proclamation through all the City and Liberty, before the Time of the Election of the Mayor, strictly forbidding, that none be present at such Election, or any Way, or under any Colour, thrust himself into it, but such as by Right, according to the Custom of the City, ought to be there: And that such Election be made by the Aldermen and other of the discreet and able Citizens, especially warned and summoned, according to the Custom aforesaid: Letting them know for certain, that if any, some other Way elected, were presented to him, or his Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, they would by no Means admit him; and that they should arrest and commit to Prison, all those who should act contrary to the said Proclamation and Prohibition.

IN the 29th of Edward I. John Blund was chosen Mayor by the Common-Council of Elye Russel, then Mayor, and the Aldermen there named; and the Sheriffs, with the Assent of 12 honest Men of each Ward. In the 31st of the same King, as also in the 32d and 33d John Lincoln and John Blund, the 3d and 4th time chosen by 12 good and lawful Men summoned of every Ward.

IN that 31st Year Will. de Coumb-Martin and John de Burford were elected Sheriffs by the Mayor and Aldermen, in the Presence of 12 of each Ward, summoned to choose and take their Sheriffs.

IN the 6th of Edw. II. William Wellesford and another were chosen Sheriffs, by the Mayor, Aldermen, and 12 summoned out of every Ward. Wellesford died, and Adam Ludkin was chosen by six and more of each Ward.

IN the 7th of Edw. II. Nicholas Farendon was chosen Mayor, by the Mayor, Aldermen, Sheriffs, and by the Commonalty assembled: And so the Sheriffs the same Year are said to be chosen.

THERE was afterwards a Variation, as to the Number of 12 to be called out of each Ward; for so many out of the 25 Wards having been found, perhaps, to tend too much towards the begetting of Heats and Animosities in the Elections; therefore, 20 Edward III. it was agreed, that from thence-forward there should come the Mayor, Aldermen, and also out of every Ward of the City, twelve, eight, or six, according as the Ward shall be great or small, and they of the Richest and Wisest of each Ward, to intermeddle and choose a Mayor and Sheriffs for the Year ensuing.

IN the 15th of Edward IV. the Masters, Wardens, and Liveries of the several Companies were taken in, to assist at the Elections of the foresaid Magistrates; and after that Time the Election of the Mayor and Sheriffs, &c. was made by the Mayor, Aldermen, Common-Council and Liveries, according to the Act of Common-Council then made.

IN the Year 1650, there was a great Controversy about the Right of Electing; whether it rested in the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, Common-Council, Masters, Wardens and Liveries of the several Companies, or in the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and the Freemen in general, by their Representatives to be chosen in each Ward. The Contest was managed before the Lord Mayor, Court of Aldermen, and Common-Council, by Hales and Maynard, of Counsel for the Live-ries; and Major John Wildman, and one Price, Agents and Speakers for the Freemen. How this was carried in the new Commonwealth that was then set up in this Nation, when many other antient Laws and Customs were violated, is not remember'd; but when the antient Kingly Government was restored, the old Custom of Election prevailed; as it still does, and the Liveries are the Electors.

BUT now, to return to the antient Practice, as it is in the Books and Records of the Chamber.

IT appears also, that on Monday next before the Feast of the Translation of St. Edward, 24 Edw. II. a certain Bill was sent to every Alderman by the Mayor, enjoining them under the Fealty they owed to the King, to be present the said Festival Day at Guildhall for the Election of a Mayor; and that they should cause four of the better Sort of Men of their Ward to be summoned for the same Cause; and that he should then have their Names endorsed on the same Bill.

IT is to be noted, that of antient Times the Mayor was chosen at the Feast of the Apostles Simon and Jude. As it was in the Election of Thomas Romayn for Mayor, in the third Year of Edward the Son of King Edward, who was chosen by the Aldermen and 12 of each Ward, summoned for this End. And on the Morrow was presented to the Barons of the Exchequer at Westminster, and accepted:

AND the Cause wherefore the Election was changed to another Day, was because of the increasing of Expences, and other Causes.

THE Aldermen on the Feast of the Apostles Simon and Jude ought to meet at Guildhall, for the Election of a Mayor. But once they absented themselves, fearing to admit the Office of the Mayoralty at the Instance of William de Ilford, then Common Serjeant for the Commonalty of the said City, Richard Lacer being Mayor. But from henceforth it was ordered, that every Year, on the Translation of St. Edward the King, the Mayor and Aldermen, who were pro tempore, should meet at Guildhall, LONDON; and also of each Ward 12, eight or six, according as the Ward was great or small, of the Richer and Wiser of each Ward: And that none came unless summoned, nor intruded themselves in such Election of Mayor and Sheriffs.

CONTROVERSY often arose in the Election of the Mayor; between the Aldermen and Commoners; in that the Commoners thought that both the Nomination and Election belonged to them only; and therefore, after they had agreed in the West Part of Guildhall, (viz. in the Place where the Sheriffs were wont to hold their Courts) they would present one Person only of the City to the Mayor and Aldermen, setting on the East End of Guildhall, (viz. in the Hustings) for their elected Mayor for the Year ensuing. But the Aldermen opposed, saying, that they were also Citizens, and of the Commonalty of the City; nor was it just, that on the Account of the Prerogative that pertained to their Offices, they should be deprived from having a Voice in the Choice of the King's chief Vicegerent in the City. Hereupon it became a Custom by the Common Consent, as well of the Aldermen as of the Commoners, that the Commoners summoned for the Election, after the Cause of their summoning was declared to them by the Recorder, on the Behalf of the Mayor and Aldermen, they passed to the other End of the Hall, as was said before; and there nominated two Aldermen, whereof both had been Sheriffs, and were fit for the Office of Mayor. Which being done, they returned, and by one that was their common Mouth they presented to the Mayor and Aldermen the Names of two, and praying them to admit either of them, them, whom they would, to the Office of Mayor for the Year ensuing.

THEN the Mayor and Aldermen going up into the upper Chamber, chose by Plurality of Voices in Scrutiny (the Common Clerk noting by the Supervise of the Recorder) one of them, and coming down again to the People in Guildhall, declared by their Recorder, who was elected Mayor for the next Year.

Concerning the Custom of some Mayors continuing several Years in the Mayoralty.

IN former Times, when a Mayor had well governed, the Commonalty willingly continued him Mayor, as appears in Henry Fitz Alwyn the first Mayor, who continued five and twenty Years in his Office; and the next Mayor, Sir Roger Fitz Alan, continued three Years; Andrew le Bukerel seven Years; Thomas Fitz Thomas four; Gregory de Rokefly seven, viz. from the third Year of the aforesaid Edward, Son of King Henry, inclusive, to the End of the ninth Year of the Reign of the said King inclusive, viz. the first as well as the last being computed. John le Blount continued Mayor six Years.

BUT note, that antiently the Mayors spent little or nothing more in the Time of their Mayoralty than in another Time, being contented with one, or at most two Serjeants at Arms with them in their Family. Yea, because then they gave not Liveries the same Day wherein they were chosen, they went on Foot, either by Land or by Water, in a Boat to Westminster, or the Tower; and there they were burthened with their Charge, and accepted. But great Costs and Expences increasing about the said Office of the Mayoralty, the Citizens obtained from King Edward, Son of King Edward, in the twelfth Year of his Reign, towards the End thereof, a Charter, that the Mayor should not remain above one Year together in his Office, as appears in the Book of Customs, and the same Charter exemplified in the Book E.

SOME believe this Article was obtained on this Account, because before, some Mayors had Commissions from the King to remain in their Office as long as the King pleased: Which the People took heavily, as Nicholas Farendon had. Such a Commission also had Hamon de Chickewelle. When therefore he that was Mayor one Year could not be Mayor the Year following, unless, perhaps, he were very instantly required thereto, and with his own good Will; so that he could not be compelled to undergo the Burthen two continued Years by the Liberty of the City, both Aldermen and Commons were wont in peaceable Elections to chuse some other to be Mayor.

AND no Mayor, by the Liberty, can be compelled to hold his Office. But if any had obtained so much Favour with the Citizens, as to commend him, for his good Government, and instantly to pray him, by their common Speaker, to take upon him the Burthen of the Mayoralty for the following Year, and he finally refused so to do; then the Commoners presented to the Aldermen the Names of two other Aldermen, the present Mayor not being nominated at all. Of which two, they accepted one for Mayor, whom they would, as was said before.

The CEREMONY of going out of the Chamber into the Hall, when the new Mayor was declared.

WHO being so accepted, in the going out of the Chamber, the Mayor going down into the Hall, was wont to go before, leading by the Hand with him the Mayor for the Year ensuing. And the Mayor and Aldermen sitting in their Places, the Recorder declared to the People the Name of the Mayor Elect for the Year then next following; signifying also to the People, that they should prepare to ride with their Mayor towards Westminster on the Morrow of the Festival of St. Simon and Jude next, for the Honour of the chief City: Which being done, the Mayor and Aldermen rose, and departed out of the Hall, the People following.

If the Elect were not present, the Mayor and Aldermen, with the Sheriffs, were wont to go to his House, to warn him there presently, to provide himself with Requisites for the Office of the Mayoralty, and to be present at Guildhall on the Feast of Simon and Jude next following, to take his Oath, as antiently was wont to be done: And then every one went home.

The Manner of the new MAYOR's taking his Oath, and the carrying of the Sword.

ON the Feast of Simon and Jude, about Ten o'Clock by the Bell, the Mayor and all the Aldermen, in their Violet Gowns, and many Commoners assembled, and Peace and Audience being proclaimed by a Common Cryer, viz. a Serjeant at Arms, the Recorder sitting on the Right Hand of the Mayor, recited to the People the antient Custom of the City, viz. That that Day the Mayor for the ensuing Year should take his Oath; and he used to recommend to him such Things as wherein the former Mayor had well deserved: And if the Mayor would say any thing, he was heard. Which being done, the Mayor went out of his Seat, and the Mayor that was to be ascended the same, the Mayor that had been setting next him on his Left Hand. And then the Common Serjeant at Arms, holding a Book to him with the Kalender and the Effigies of the Crucifix on the Outside, the Common Clerk read to him, holding his Hand upon the Book, the same Oath that he was to make on the Morrow in the King's Exchequer: Which Oath is set down in the Book D. Which being promised, and the Book kissed, the old Mayor deliver'd him the Seal of the Statute of the Merchants Strangers (from whence the Mayor received considerable Benefit) together with the Seal of the Mayoralty, in two Purfes: And the new Mayor was heard, (if he was minded to speak any thing) praying for Assistance to be given him from his Brethren the Aldermen, the Sheriffs, and all honest Men for his Time, in his Government of the City, &c. Which being done, they rose and went out, the People following, unto the House of the said Mayor to be. And from thence the Sword went before the past Mayor unto his House, and neither of the two Mayors were wont to appear in Publick any more that Day. Yet Necessity urging, the past Mayor was bound that Day to exercise his Office outwardly and in Publick; because he is not fully discharged from his Office, until the following Mayor be accepted in his Place by the King, or the Barons of the Exchequer, or the Constable of the Tower.

Of the swearing of the MAYOR at the Exchequer.

ON the Morrow of the Feast of St. Simon and Jude, so it were not a Sunday, (for then it was put off to Monday next) as well the new Mayor as the old, and the Aldermen also, were wont to meet together on Horseback in a Place without Guildhall, about Nine o'Clock, in one Suit of Garments, with the Sheriff, and as many as were of the Mayor's Livery, and many of the Mysteries or Companies in their Suits, the Sword being carried up before the new Mayor. From thence they rode thro' Cheapside, and so without Newgate, turning into Fleet-street, and so to Westminster.

Westminster. Whither being come, the Mayor, Aldermen and Sheriffs, alight from their Horses, and the Mace-bearers and the Sword-bearer going before them, they went up into the Exchequer, where were the Chancellor of the Treasury, Keeper of the King's Privy Seal, with the Barons of the Exchequer. And the Mayor, Aldermen and Sheriffs standing at the Bar, the Recorder declared, how the City of LONDON, according to their antient Customs and Liberties, had chosen N. Mayor for the Year following; praying the Barons, on Behalf of the City, to accept him so Elect, personally then before them. And it being answer'd by the chief Baron, or one in his Place, according as he pleased, the Book was brought to the Mayor; upon which he laying his Hand, was burdened with the same Oath which he took at Guildhall, which being done, the Chief Baron, on the Part of the King and the Lords, was wont to charge the Mayor especially to keep Peace and Quietness in the City: And then, that he should have a Respect to those that sold all Sorts of Victuals. That, according to his Power, the People might not be burthened by reason of Dearth.

AFTER that, the Mayor was wont to offer himself there to his Account for the Office of Escheator; and was sworn to render a good and faithful Account of the said Office, and appointed there one whom he pleased for his Attorney ad computand', i. e. to make the Accompts. The Mayor also, and Aldermen for the City, appointed one of the Exchequer, Attorney of the said City ad calumpniand' & clamand', i. e. to complain and to claim their Liberties, if, and when their Necessity required. And thus, having Licence from the Lords, departed. And so in the Common Pleas they appointed one of that Place Attorney of the City. But, in the King's Bench, they appointed two Attornies jointly and severally to claim the Liberties and antient Customs of the City, if, and when Necessity required.

WHICH being done, they returned, the Commoners on Horseback going before in a Company according to the Suits of their Mysteries or Trades. But they of the Mystery whereof the Mayor was, and they that were of his Livery, went next before the Mayor. But none went near the Mayor for a considerable Distance: But the Serjeants at Arms, Mace-bearers, and his Sword-bearer, and one Sheriff on his Right Hand, and the other on his Left, with white Rods in their Hands, all going before. The Recorder and the Aldermen follow'd next after him thro' the Middle of West-cheap unto his House; and then those, that were not invited to the Feast, went home.

THE same Day, after Dinner, the new Mayor was wont to go from his House to the Church of St. Thomas of Acon, those of his Livery going before him; and the Aldermen in like manner being there met together, they came to the Church of St. Paul; whither, when they were come, namely, in the Mid-place of the Body of the Church, between two little Doors, they were wont to pray for the Soul of Bishop William, who, as is said, obtained great Liberties, by his Intreaties, for the City, from William the Conqueror, a Priest saying that Office De profundis, called the Dirige. And from thence they passed to the Church-yard, where lay the Bodies of the Parents of St. Thomas of Canterbury; and there they said also, for all the Faithful of God departed, De profundis, &c. near the Tomb of the aforesaid Parents.

AND from thence they returned through Cheapside Market, sometimes with Wax Candles burning, if it were late, to the said Church [Sancti Thomae erased] and there the Mayor and Aldermen offered single Pence; which being done, every one went to his House.

When the MAYOR was sworn before the Constable of the Tower.

If the King's Exchequer were not at LONDON, or if the Court were vacant, the Mayor was presented to the Constable of the Tower of LONDON, or his Lieutenant; who was accepted and sworn without the first Gate; as was done with Sir Nic. Brembre, elected Mayor in the Eve of Palms, in the 50th of Edward III. Likewise on the Morrow of the Feast of Simon and Jude, John le Blount, Mayor, was presented, sworn, and accepted by John de Blakbrok, Lieutenant of Sir John de Sandwick, Constable of the Tower, Ann. 31 Edw. Filii Reg. Edw. and this Liberty is put in the King's Charter.

The Custom of the MAYOR and Aldermen on All-Saints Day, and other Holidays.

ON the first Day of the Month, i. e. of All-Saints then next following, the Mayor with his Family was wont to go after Dinner to the Church of St. Thomas *. And the Aldermen also, and those that were of the Livery of the Mayor, with honest Men of the Mysteries in their several Habits or Suits, were wont there to be assembled, and thence to repair to St. Paul's, and there to hear Vespers, and so to go home.

IN like manner on the Nativity of our Lord, the Mayor, Aldermen and Sheriffs, and those of the Mayor and Sheriffs Liveries, were wont to come together at St. --- Church, and thence to pass to St. Paul's; and there, on the right Side of the Choir, in the Stall next to the Dean's Stall, the Mayor was wont to stand, and the Aldermen stood according to their Rank, as well as on the same Part of the Choir near the Mayor, as of the other Part, to hear Vespers, and the Comptory. Which being heard, it was done further, as was shewed in the Chapter next before.

THE same Procession was observed on St. Stephen's Day; and so on St. John Evangelist's. But in the Feast of Innocents, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Sheriffs were wont to hear Vespers in St. Thomas's Church. And there on the Morrow to hear Mass, and also Vespers. Which being done, they went home.

THE former Ceremony was also observed on the Feast of Circumcision and Epiphany, and Purification of the Glorious Virgin.

IN Easter Week, on Monday before Nine of the Clock, the Mayor, Aldermen and Sheriffs were wont in their Habit, and also a great Company of People of both Sexes, to come to the Hospital of St. Mary without Bishopsgate, to hear a Sermon: In like manner on Tuesday and Wednesday in the same Week.

LIKEWISE, towards the Feast of Whitsuntide, the Mayor, Aldermen and Sheriffs were wont to meet, and provide themselves agreeably with Suits of Garments. The Mayor moreover and the Sheriffs gave Liveries to their Friends, and their Household Servants, and the Officers of the City, in an honourable Manner, according to each one's Degree. And Monday in Whitsun-Week, between Nine and Ten o'Clock before Dinner, the Mayor, Aldermen and Sheriffs in their Habits, met together in the Church of St. Peter's upon Cornhill; and also all of the Livery, as well of the Mayor as Sheriffs. From which Place the Procession of the Rectors of LONDON going before, first followed those of the Livery of the Sheriffs, next those of the Livery of the Mayor. Then the Mayor, with the Recorder and Aldermen, according to their Degrees, passed thro' Cheap into Paul's Church-yard; and entering on the North Side, being met there by the Procession of the same Church, they went out by the South Part of the same Church-yard; and so by the Close from Watling-street, they enter'd the Church at the great Inn on the West Part; and there they stood still in a Body, until the Hymn Veni Creator had been sung by the Vicars and Organs; at each other Verse an Angel sent from above incensing. Which being done, the Mayor and Aldermen going up to the Altar, offered. And then every one went home.

* In the old Book in the Chamber of London, from whence this Account is taken, the Word Thomas is blotted out in this and many other Places, to comply with the Act of Parliament in Henry VIII's Time, that order'd the Name of Thomas a Becket to be blotted out of all Books of Devotion; and so for Safety they blotted it out of others too.

AND then the Archdeacon of LONDON was wont to give to the Serjeant at Mace, Macebearers, with the Mayor, Sheriffs, and those of the Chamber, two Nobles, equally to be divided among them, for keeping the Procession of the Rectors from the Crowd of the Common People.

ON the Morrow, being Tuesday in Whitsun-Week, between Nine and Ten o'Clock before Noon, the Mayor and Aldermen met at St. Bartholomew's, and from thence a Procession of the Common People of Middlesex going before them, they pass'd through Newgate, and so to St. Michael ad Bladum, i. e. the Quern; and so further, by the Old Change, they enter'd through St. Austin's Gate, St. Paul's Close, and further, as it was performed the Day before; and 10 s. were given by the Archdeacon to the said Serjeants, as was said before.

THE third Day, being Wednesday in Whitsun-Week, the Mayor, Aldermen and Sheriffs, met the aforesaid Hour at the Church of St. Thomas of Acon. And from thence the Procession of the common People of Essex going before, they pass'd directly to St. Paul's Church-yard; and it was done as the Day before; and the Archdeacon of Essex gave the said Serjeants 6 s. 8 d. And it is to be noted, that when the said Fees were not paid, the Archdeacons were wont to be distrain'd to pay them.

Provisions made for the Personal Appearance of the ALDERMEN at the Elections.

ONCE at the Election of a Mayor, the Aldermen absented themselves, fearing to admit the Office of a Mayor, at the Instance of William de Ilford, then Common Serjeant for the Commonalty of the City, Richard Lacer being then Mayor about 1345. And since the Aldermen ought to meet together on Simon and Jude's Day, to the Election of Mayors in Guildhall; it was order'd, that from henceforth every Year, on the Feast of the Translation of St. Edward the King, (which was October 13) the Mayor and all the Aldermen, for the Time being, and also out of every Ward of the City, twelve, eight, or six, according as the Ward shall be great or small, of the discreeter and wiser sort of each Ward, should meet together; and that none, unless they be summoned, come, nor intrude themselves in such Election of Mayor or Sheriff. And that on the same Feast of St. Edward they choose a Mayor, according to the Custom, for the following Year: That the Mayor so chosen on that Feast, between the Feast of St. Edward, and the Feast of St. Simon and Jude next following, may dispose of his Estate.

IT was also agreed, that if he who was so chose in the Feast of St. Edward for Mayor, and shall absent himself on the Feast of Simon and Jude following, and depart at a Distance, not willing to take upon him the Burthen of the Mayoralty, whether he be absent or present in the Time of the Election, nevertheless the Serjeants of the City that shall be for the Time, shall cause 100 Marks to be levied of his Goods and Chattels, Lands, Rents, and Tenements, who shall so absent himself, to be paid to him who on the said Feast of Simon and Jude shall happen to be chose in his Place by reason of his Absence.

IT was agreed also, that all the Aldermen be present every Year in the City of LONDON, as well on the Translation of St. Edward the King, as in the Feast of Simon and Jude, at the Election of a Mayor. And if any Alderman at those Feasts shall absent himself, he shall pay to the Chamberlain of the said City 20 l. Sterling, unless the Alderman so absent, be absent for a reasonable Cause, and so can excuse himself to the Mayor and Aldermen.

AND the like Ordinance was made in the Time of the Mayoralty of Walter Turk, viz. Anno 24 Edw. III, of those that absented themselves in the Election of Sheriffs, under the Penalty of 100 l. Sterling. Which Ordinances are inserted in the Book F. And this was once executed, viz. 42 Edw. III, because Walter Berneye, elected Mayor on Friday in the Feast of the Translation of St. Edward, came not on the Feast of Simon and Jude then following, to take his Office. Simon de Mordon was chose on that Feast of the Apostles Simon and Jude, for the same Year, and the Morrow after admitted and presented to the Barons of the Exchequer; and of the Goods of the said Walter were levied 100 Marks for the Use of the said Simon.

To add a few Things more, collected from Records of the Tower, or Inquisitions, concerning the Mayors of LONDON:

SPECIAL Favours have been granted by the King to the Mayor: As was King Edward the III'd's Grant to Reginald de Conductu, or, Reynold of the Conduit, who was Mayor two Years together; whereby he was at great Expences, to the overburdening his Estate. And whereas the Mayors used to take great Benefit from the Merchants Strangers that repaired hither in great Numbers for Traffick, this Foreign Trade was stopp'd by reason of King Edward's great Wars abroad. The King therefore, in the 18th of his Reign, granted the said Reginald, in relevation' status sui, i. e. for the Relief of his Estate, 21 l. of yearly Rent, issuing out of divers Messuages and Shops in the said City, belonging to the King.

THE King sometimes made Mayors, as well as Custodes, by his own Authority, and sometimes excused Persons from serving the Office of Mayor, or any other Magistracy of the City. Of this last we have an Instance in one Simon, a Merchant of LONDON, who had a Patent from King Edward III, in the First of his Reign, whereby that King freed him from serving Mayor, Sheriff, Alderman, or Coroner, against his own Will in the aforesaid City or elsewhere: And not only so, but Quod quietus esset de omnibus Pris, Auxiliis, Vigiliis, & Contributionibus quibuscunque, i. e. to be quit of all Prizes, Aids, Watches and Contributions whatsoever, as well within the City of LONDON, as elsewhere within the Kingdom. And that the Goods of the said Simon be not taxed to Tenths, or to pay other Quota's. This was extraordinary indeed; and surely his Merit at the King's Hand was great.

THESE Mayors were appointed by the King's Letters in the 16th of Edward II. The Office of Mayoralty being in the King's Hands for certain Causes (as the Record ran) the King committed it to Nicholas Farendon, Citizen of LONDON, as long as it pleased the King; and commanded the Aldermen, Sheriffs, and the rest of the City, that they be obedient to him as Mayor. And in the 14th of the same King, the Mayoralty being then in the King's Hand, per Considerationem Curie, i. e. by the Consideration of the Court, he constituted Robert Kenda Mayor, to do, to execute, &c. in all Things that belonged to the said Office, and to take to himself those Things which the Mayors have been accustomed to take.

Richard II. in the 20th of his Reign, with the Assent of his Council, appointed Richard Whittington to serve Mayor in the Room of Adam Bamme, who deceased in his Mayoralty, until the Day accustomed for the Election of a new Mayor.

Now to give an Instance or two of the King's Letters to certain Persons to be Custodes of the City, when the City had forfeited their Liberties, or the King had assumed them: These were constituted, not for a Year, or a set Time, but while the King pleased; and they had sometimes extraordinary Powers over the City granted them to chastise it. In 25 Edw. I. John Breton was made Custos. And the Record says, Habet potestatem amerciandi & castigandi Aldermannos, & Vicecomit. ibid. & ministros suos immorigeros, i. e. He had a Power of amercing and chastising the Aldermen and Sheriffs of the City, and their Servants, if they were disobedient. And Richard II. in the 16th of his Reign, by the Consent of his Great (that is, his Privy) Council, constituted Baldwin de Radington, Knt. Custos of the City, Donec aliter duxerit ordinand' i. e. until he shall think fit otherwise to appoint.

allowed to be carried before the Mayor.

IN Honour to the Mayor of LONDON, King Edward III. indulged by his Letters, that Maces carried before the Lord Mayor of LONDON might be of Silver; but Maces of that Metal to be carried in no City in England besides. For this Command was given out 20 Edw. III. That no Man within City or Town, or elsewhere, do carry Maces of Silver, except the King's Serjeants only; but to carry Maces of Copper, and no other Metal, except the Serjeant of LONDON, who may carry their Maces of Silver within the Liberties of LONDON before the Mayor, in Presence of the King.

MAYORS have been absent from the City, and gone beyond Sea at the King's Command. Such a Thing happened 2 Edw. I. when that King commanded the City to appoint two Citizens to officiate in his Place. By his Letters to the Sheriffs and Commonalty, directing them to provide two discreet Citizens among themselves, to keep the said City loco Majoris, and them to obey as Mayor; the Mayor, at the King's Command, being about to go beyond Sea.

THE Mayor's Seal was sometimes set to Deeds, for the better witnessing and Confirmation of them. Thus in the 20th of Richard II. the Common Seal of the Mayor was set to one J. S. for the better witnessing the Matter, as the Record runs, and for that the same was better known than the proper Seal of the said J. S.

THE Mayor, pro tempore, was constituted Custos and Protector of the Hermitage, near Grippllegate, in the 3d of Edward I.

The Mayor's Person inviolable.

THE Mayor's Person is inviolable, and 'tis an high Crime to assault him, or make any Resistance to him. Once such a Thing happened about the Year 1339. Andrew Aubrey being Mayor; when, in a popular Tumult, headed chiefly by two, Haunfart and Brewere, an Assault was made upon the said Mayor, and some of his Servants wounded; But this was looked upon as such an heinous Deed, that those two were presently tried and convicted at Guildhall, and thence carried forth to Cheapside, and beheaded. This was about 15 Edw. III. Which Justice, that King allowed of, and sent the Mayor and City a special Indemnity for what they had done. This being somewhat remarkable, it may not be improper to set down, from the Record itself, the Occasion of the Tumult; the Affront offered the Mayor, the Trial and Execution, with the King's Approbation and Justification of the Judgment done.

THE Letters Patents set forth, That the King being disposed to go to Paris beyond Seas, and willing to provide as securely as he could, for the safe Custody of the City of LONDON, and the Conservation of the Peace thereof, had required and charged the Mayor, Sheriffs, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City, that he being Abroad out of the Kingdom, they should keep the said City, and the King's Peace there, as far as they were able; and that, if there should be in the said City any Malefactors and Disturbers of the said Peace, the King being thus Abroad, they should cause due and speedy Punishment to be done upon them: And that the said Mayor, Sheriffs, &c. had so taken upon them, at their Peril, the Custody of the City, and Conservation of the Peace, and to inflict Punishment, according to the King's Desire and Command.

Now, in Pursuance of this Commandment, there happening suddenly to arise in the City, Fights and Differences between the Fishmongers and the Skinners of the City, they, the Mayor, Sheriffs, &c. went to pacify the said Fight and Dissension, and did attach Malefactors and Disturbers of the Peace, being there found, as it was incumbent upon them; in Respect of their Office, to do. But Thomas, the Son of John Haunfard, and John le Brewere, and some other Malefactors and Disturbers of the Peace, not permitting the said Attachment to be made, made an Insult upon the said Mayor, Sheriffs, and other Ministers of the City, there performing the Duty of their Office, for the Conservation of the King's Peace, and rescued the Malefactors attached by the Mayor and Sheriffs. And the said Thomas, with his Sword drawn, laid his Hand upon Andrew Aubrey, then Mayor of the said City, rushing upon him with all his Force to overthrow him. And the said John grievously wounded one of the Servants of the said City, then obeying the said Mayor and Sheriffs, in Contempt of the King, and Danger of the Commotion of the said City. The said Thomas and John being presently taken for this, and led to the Hall of the Pleas of the said City, called Guildhall, were there indicted and charged before the said Mayor and Sheriffs; and for these Things, by their own Acknowledgments, convicted for that Cause; and by the Consideration of the Mayor, Sheriffs, Aldermen, and Commonalty aforesaid, in the Hall aforesaid, were adjudged to Death, and in a certain Street, called Le Cheap, were beheaded.

WE considering (as the Record goes on) if so great Rashness of the aforesaid Thomas and John had been passed over unpunished, it had yielded Boldness to others of doing the like Things; and so thinking the said Punishment very seasonable, for the Conservation of our Peace, and to be well done; and willing by the Consideration aforesaid, that the said Mayor, Sheriffs, Aldermen and Commonalty be secure; and to provide that they may not be troubled by Reason hereof in future Times. What has been done by the Mayor, Sheriffs, &c. as much as belongs to us, we approve and confirm; and so forbad that hereafter they should be sued neither by himself, his Heirs or Justices, on Occasion of their Death. Teste Rege apud Turrim London, 4. Jun.

It was reckoned the Privilege of one that had been Mayor and Alderman of LONDON, not to serve the King, without his Will, in any Part of the Kingdom. Such a Matter happened once in Henry VI. his Reign. Nicholas Wotton, some Time Mayor and Alderman of LONDON, living in Kent, stood upon this Privilege, and refused to serve, when he was impanelled with others before the Assize in the said County, to enquire upon Articles touching the King's Peace; and refused to swear. prætextu Libertatis Civitatis LONDON, i. e. on Pretence of the Liberty of the City. But yet this was looked upon in Wotton as a Contempt; for which he afterwards had a Pardon in 17 Henry VI.

Henry de Waleis, Mayor, removed the Sellers that came to LONDON with their Wares and Provisions from one Place, where, it seems, they used to stand, to another; for which, the sworn Men of one of the Wards presented him to the King's Justices, and knew not Quo Warranto he did so.

Concerning the ALDERMEN.

Alderman signifies in the Saxon Language, Senior, or an Elder Person; for Alde is Old. So that Alderman answers to Senator among the Romans. Yet in Aldermen, the old Age of the Mind is more to be regarded than of the Body, and the Gravity of Manners, rather than Antiquity of Years. Whence in the old Laws of King Knute, and other Saxon Kings, he was called Alderman, who is now called Judge, or Justiciary, as appears in the Book of Customs. But in many other Laws of St. Edward, they who are now called Justices, were termed Lagemanni, Laxmen.

THESE Aldermen were also called, as well in Name as Honour, Barones; for it is found about the Year 1350, that in the Burial of Aldermen that honourable antient Custom was observed, viz. that in the Church where an Alderman was to be buried, one armed with his Arms, bearing in his Hand a Standard, on an Horse with Trappings, carried aloft his Shield, Helmet, and his other Arms, with the Standard; as the Manner yet is, of burying the Lords Barons. But by Reason of sudden and frequent Changes of the Aldermen, and often Plagues, by little and little the Custom vanished in LONDON. But by this it appears, how great Honour was in former Times given to Aldermen.

For none was accepted for Alderman, unless he were without Deformity in Body, wise and discreet in Mind, wealthy, honourable, faithful, free, and of no base or servile Condition; that no Disgrace, which might happen to him upon the Account of his Birth, might thence redound on the rest of the Aldermen, or the whole City. And hence it came to pass that none was made Apprentice, or at least admitted into the Liberty of the City, unless he was known to be of a Gentlemen-like Condition; or if after he had been made Free, if it came to be known that he was of a servile Condition, for that very Thing he lost the Freedom of the City; as it happened to Thomas le Bedel, Robert le Bedel, Alan Undirwode, and Edmund May, Butchers; who, in the Mayoralty of John le Blount, lost their Freedoms, because they acknowledged they held Land de Villenagio of the Bishop of LONDON; and they remained without Liberty of the City.

WHENCE in the Mayoralty of Nicholas Exton, Fishmonger, Anno 1386, or 1387, in the 9th or 10th of Richard II. it was ordered, that in the taking of Apprentices, and also in the taking of Freedoms, that antient Custom for the future should be kept.

A modern Alderman is called from the Ward over which he is; as Alderman of Cheap, Alderman of the Bridge, Alderman of Queenhithe. But antiently, on the contrary, the Ward was called from the Name of its Alderman; as the Ward of Candlewick-street was called the Ward of Thomas de Basing; the Ward of Castle-Baynard was called Simon Hadesok's Ward. In the like Manner the Tower Ward was called the Ward of William de Nadesoke; and the Ward of Cheap was called Henry de Frowycke's Ward: So the Parish of St. Bridget was said to be in the Ward of Anketil de Auvern, which is now called the Ward of Faringdon, from Nicholas de Farendon, afterwards Alderman of that Ward; and this appears in the Book B.

THE Aldermen also antiently had such a Privilege, that they were not put into the Inquisition. In the Time of John le Breton, Custos, among other Ordinances by him, and certain Aldermen chosen in this Behalf, by the Commonalty, (and the King confirmed the same for the Time) this was one, that such Aldermen were Judges of the City. Yet it is found, that as well the Aldermen as the Sheriffs of LONDON, were put into the Inquisition by the King, viz. for Burglary, and breaking into his Treasury at Westminster; but so rare and so great a Case cannot be drawn into Consequences.

THE Mayor, Sheriffs, and all the Aldermen used to cloth themselves in one Suit (or Habit) twice in the Year, viz. when the Mayor rode to take his Oath at Westminster. And this Vesture was made of honourable Furs; and so they were used to be clothed again in one Habit against Whitsuntide, with a Lining of Silk. Whence, on Monday after the Feast of Epiphany, 31 Edw. III. it was ordered by the Mayor and Aldermen, that whensoever it happened, that the Mayor and Aldermen were clothed in one Habit, none of them should give away or alienate his Robe within that Year, upon the Penalty of 5 l. for the Use of the Commonalty.

THE Aldermen were wont to pay nothing for enrolling Charters or Deeds, however pertaining to them.

How they were to be punished that made any Assault upon the Aldermen exercising their Offices in keeping the Peace, appears by William Hulot, Shield-Bearer; abiding with the Bishop of Bath, and Officer of the King's Receipt, whose Hand was adjudged in Guildhall to be cut off, because he had made an Assault upon John Rote, Alderman, in the Time of Nic. Exton, Mayor; in the 10th of the Reign of King Richard.

BUT more fully, Assaults, Reproaches, Lyes, and Scandals of the Aldermen, are spoken and discoursed of elsewhere, in the Liber Albus.

FORMERLY Aldermen were not to be removed from their Office during their Life, unless for some great Offence, or enormous Crime; for which they deserved also to lose their Freedom of the City. Yet afterwards Edward, Son of King Edward, in the 12th of his Reign, by his Charter, granted that the Aldermen might be removed yearly. But long since, the King and his Council, considering the great Losses, Disprofits and Dangers which have happened by a yearly changing of the Aldermen in the City, for some Time, and which might easily happen, it was declared and decreed, as now it is; that the Aldermen should remain immoveable, unless some reasonable Cause of removing them happened, as is contained in the Charter of King Richard II. made to the City (Anno 17.) and confirmed by Act of Parliament.

AN Alderman of LONDON's Privilege is to be exempted from serving Offices elsewhere. This Case is printed in some of the Law-Books. Alderman Abdy had an House at Laytonstone in Essex; Wards took their Names from the Aldermen.

Their Privileges.

Assaults made upon Aldermen, how they were punished.

Aldermen not removeable.

An Alderman chosen Constable in the Country.

A Market removed by the Mayor.

Alderman, what it signifies.

They were Barons.

How to be qualified.

Essex; where Constables were elected out of the Inhabitants of every House by Presentment every Year in the Leet. And the said Alderman, by the Name of John Abdy, Esq; was nominated by the Leet holden such a Day, to be Constable there the Year following. And because he refused, the Steward imposed a Fine upon him. It was moved to have a Writ directed to the Lord of the Manor (who was Sir William Hicks, Bart.) and his Steward (who was Mr. Conyers) to discharge him: And it was granted, For that he ought to be discharged by his Privilege; and for the Reason of his Attendance in the Courts of LONDON; and he needed not execute by his Deputy.

Two Aldermen
Treasurers of a Subsidy.

Two Aldermen of LONDON were appointed Treasurers of a Tax given by Parliament to King Richard II, as in the Records, viz. A Parliament had required to know, how and in what Manner the Sums were defray'd (granted by a former Subsidy.) Sir Richard le Scrope, the King's Steward, answer'd the Parliament, that the King's Pleasure was, That William Wolworth, and John Philpot, Citizens of LONDON, Aldermen and Treasurers, therefore appointed and sworn, should shew the same.

Not many Years since, a great Contest happen'd between the Commonalty and the Court of Aldermen, concerning who should examine and decide any Controversy arising about the Election of an Alderman: And on Thursday, September 20, 1711, Sir Gilbert Heathcote, Kt. being Lord Mayor, a Common-Council was called to pass the Orphans Bill. Then (the Bill depending in Common-Council this whole Year, relating to the Election of Aldermen) the Question was put, Whether it should pass or no? The Lord Mayor opposed it, and would not put the Question. After three Hours debate, a Clause of the Bill was left out [which was the Reason of all the Debate for the whole Year past;] viz. That all controverted Elections, relating to Aldermen, should be decided by the Common-Council, and not by the Court of Aldermen themselves. Then the Bill was pass'd, which enacted, That in all future Elections for Aldermen, the Ward shall return only one Alderman, and one Commoner. That upon the Demise of the Alderman of Bridge Ward without, the Aldermen above the Chair may change their Wards for that. If they refuse, the Common-Council to choose one. That none but Freemen, paying Scot and Lot, shall have a Right to poll for Aldermen. And if any Action ensues upon that Account, it is to be defended at the City's Charge. The Orphans Bill was also pass'd.

UNDER this Head of Aldermen, may not be improperly subjoin'd, the Act of Common-Council last mention'd, for the Election of Aldermen, with three others, viz. 1. For the Nomination of Aldermen, and Election of Common-Council-Men, made Ann. 1692. 2. For the farther regulating the Nominations and Elections of Aldermen and Common-Council-Men; and for regulating the Elections in Common Halls, &c. made Anno 1712. 3. For reviving the antient Manner of electing Aldermen, made Anno 1714.

An ACT to regulate the Election of ALDERMEN.

WHEREAS on the Twentieth of September, in the third Year of the Reign of King Henry IV, it was agreed and ordained by the Mayor and Aldermen, That in the Elections of Aldermen, thence forwards to be made, there should be named and chosen, four of the most honest and sufficient Citizens of the City, one of which, most fit to support the Honour and Charge of the City, according to the Discretion and found Consciences of the Mayor and Aldermen for the Time being, should be admitted and sworn to execute the same Office; which said Ordinance, in the Common-Council holden the Twenty-third Day of November then following, was approved.

BE it enacted by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, the Aldermen and Commons in this Common Council assembled, and by Authority of the same, That the said Ordinance, and every Article and Thing therein contained, shall be, and is hereby repealed and made void to all Intents and Purposes whatsoever.

AND for the better Regulation of the said Elections for the future, Be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That from henceforth, in all Elections of Aldermen of this City, there shall be named, elected and presented to the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen, for the Time being, or by the Householders of that Ward which shall be destitute of an Alderman, being Freemen of the said City, and paying Scot and bearing Lot, two Persons and no more, viz. one Alderman, and one able and sufficient Citizen and Freeman of this City, not being an Alderman; which said Alderman so to be nominated and presented, shall and may remove to, accept and take such Ward, by the Inhabitants whereof qualified as aforesaid he shall be so nominated, elected and presented, if present when the Report of the said Nomination and Election shall be made, to the said Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen, and shall declare his Intention so to do. In which Case, there shall be a Wardmote holden, and the like Nomination and Presentment made to the said Court, by the Inhabitants of that Ward whereof he was an Alderman, within four Days next ensuing: But in case such Alderman so nominated and presented, shall be absent at the Time of making the said Report, or being present, shall declare his Refusal to remove; then in every such Case, the other Person nominated and returned with the said Alderman, shall, by the said Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen, be accepted, admitted and sworn, well and truly to execute the said Office of Alderman: And in case of his Refusal to take the same Office upon him (unless he can discharge himself therefrom according to the Laws of this City) he shall be subject and liable to all Pains and Penalties which can be inflicted on him by the Laws and Customs of the said City, or otherwise, for such his Refusal.

AND for avoiding Delays in making the said Elections, Be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That the Lord Mayor for the Time being, shall, at the first Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen, holden next after the Space of seven Days following every such Nomination and Election, by the Inhabitants of any Ward that shall be vacant of an Alderman, to be accounted from the Determination and Finishing thereof, and not before, make Report to the said Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen, of the Names of the Persons so nominated and presented for Alderman of that Ward; and the said Court shall accept thereof, and proceed thereupon, in Manner before set forth.

AND whereas by an Act of Common-Council, holden the sixteenth Day of June, in the fourth and fifth Years of the Reign of King Philip and Queen Mary, it is amongst other things enacted, That the Alderman of the Ward of Bridge Without, should always from henceforth, at the Time of Vacation, and Lack of an Alderman thereof, be elect and chosen by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the said City, for the Time being, at a full Court of Aldermen, by them to be holden in the Inner-Chamber of the Guildhall of the same City, in Manner and Form following, and in none otherwise; that is to say, That they the said Lord Mayor and Aldermen, for the Time being, shall then and there, at their said full Court, among themselves, nominate and appoint four good, discreet, sufficient and meet Citizens, being freemen of this City or Liberties thereof, either resident within the Borough of Southwark, or within the same City or Liberties of the same, to be put in the Election of the Alderman of the said Ward, so being void of an Alderman; and of the same four Citizens, so by them nominated and appointed, shall, in the antient and accustomed Manner, forthwith elect and choose one, by Scrutiny, to be Alderman of the said Ward.

BE it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That the said last recited Clause, and every Article and Thing therein contained, be, and the same is hereby repealed and made void; and that upon every Vacancy of an Alderman of the said Ward, the Senior Alderman for the Time being, who hath born the Charge and Office of Mayoralty of the said City, and is discharged from it, shall and may, at his free Will and Pleasure, remove to, accept and take the said Ward; and in case of his Refusal to remove to that Ward, then the next Senior Alderman, and so successively every other Alderman, according to his Seniority, who hath in like manner born the said Office of Mayoralty, shall and may (if he thinks fit) remove to, accept, and take the said Ward. And in every such Case, there shall be a Wardmote holden, and the like Nomination and Presentment made to the said Court, by the Inhabitants of that Ward whereof such Alderman so removing, and taking upon him to be an Alderman of the said Ward of Bridge Without, was an Alderman, within four Days after every such Change and Removal, as is before provided for the other Wards of the said City: But if none of the Aldermen who have born the said Office of Mayoralty, will remove to and accept the said Ward, then, in every such Case, the Lord Mayor of the said City for the Time being, shall, within fourteen Days then next ensuing, cause a Common-Council to be summoned and holden: At which Common-Council the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Commons then assembled, shall, by Plurality of Voices, forthwith elect and choose one fit and able Person, being a Freeman of the said City; to be Alderman of the said Ward. Which Alderman, so to be chosen from Time to Time, shall have and enjoy like Prerogative, Liberty and Benefit to change and remove from the said Ward, and to accept and take at his Free Will and Pleasure, any such other Ward within the said City, as it shall fortune he shall be hereafter duly elected and chosen unto by the Inhabitants of the same other Ward, in like Manner and Form, as the other Alderman of the same City, lawfully may, and commonly use to do; any thing in the said former Act, or any Coram Richardo Hoare, Mil', Majore Civit' pred', Francisco Child, Mil', Willielmo Withers, Mil', Samuele Garrard, Bar', Aldermannis ejusdem Civitatis, & Willielmo Lewen, Armigero, Aldermannino, ac uno Vicecomitem ejusdem Civitatis, necnon majore parte Communiariorum dictae Civitatis in eodem Communi Concilio tunc & ibidem assemblatis.

An ACT for the further regulating the Nominations and Elections of ALDERMEN and COMMON-COUNCIL-MEN; and also for regulating the Elections in Common Halls, for obliging the ALDERMEN to nominate and appoint COMMON-COUNCIL-MEN to be their Deputies.

FOR preventing several Abuses that have lately happened in the Nominations and Elections of Aldermen and Common-Council-Men of the City of LONDON, by long and unnecessary Adjournments of Polls and Scrutinies upon such Nominations and Elections, and making undue Declarations of Persons to be nominated and elected, who have no Right to the same, to the great Vexation and Disquiet of the Freemen inhabiting in the several Wards of the said City; and also for the further and better regulating the several Nominations and Elections herein after mentioned for the future.

Be it enacted, ordained, and established by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons in this Common-Council assembled, and by Authority of the same, that if in any Nomination or Election hereafter to be made of an Alderman or Common-Council-Man, or either of them, of any of the Wards of the said City, a Poll be lawfully demanded, the same shall be begun the same Day such Poll is demanded, or the next Day then following at furthest, unless it be Sunday, and then on the next Day after, and so duly and orderly proceeded in from Day to Day, as aforesaid, Sundays, publick Fast-Days, or Holidays excepted, until such Poll be finished; and if a Scrutiny upon such Poll shall afterwards be lawfully demanded, the Electors of the respective Candidates in Nomination then present, shall immediately, out of themselves, or others, duly qualified to Vote in such Nomination or Election, nominate to the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, or other Person holding the said Court of Wardmote, any Number of Persons, not exceeding six, for and on Behalf of the Candidate and Candidates on each Side (which Persons so nominated, shall be deemed and taken to be the Scrutineers for such Nomination or Election, whether of Aldermen or Common-Council-Men) to whom the Lord Mayor, Alderman, or other Person holding the said Court of Wardmote, shall, within four Days next ensuing the finishing the said Poll, upon Request of the Candidate or Candidates, or any other Person or Persons appointed to make such Scrutiny on his or their Behalfs, and at the Charges of such Candidate or Candidates, or other Person or Persons appointed to make such Scrutiny, requiring the same, deliver, or cause to be delivered to him or them, one or more true Copy or Copies (attested by him under his Hand) of the Poll taken in the said Nomination or Election; and the Persons so nominated by the said Electors, for each of the said Candidate or Candidates, shall, within 10 Days next after the Receipt of the said Copy or Copies, deliver or cause to be delivered to the Mayor, Alderman, or other Person holding the said Court of Wardmote, the Names in Writing of the several Persons who polled in the said Nomination or Election, against whose Votes they shall object, with the particular Heads or Reasons against each respective Name for such their Objections, who shall thereupon within three Days then next following, at the Request of the said Candidate or Candidates, or some other Person or Persons appointed to make the said Scrutiny, on his or their Behalfs, at the Charges of such Candidate or Candidates, or other Person or Persons appointed to make such Scrutiny requiring the same, deliver or cause to be delivered to him or them, one or more true Copy or Copies (attested by him as aforesaid) of the Paper containing such Names and Objections as aforesaid; and the Lord Mayor, Alderman, or other Person holding the said Court of Wardmote, shall within 10 Days then next following (exclusive of such Days as are before excepted) upon full hearing the Parties, touching the same in the said Court of Wardmote (which shall be adjourned from Time to Time, and kept on Foot for that Purpose) openly and publicly declare which of the said Candidate or Candidates are duly nominated and elected, and at the same Time deliver to the respective Candidates, or other Persons appointed to make such Scrutiny, a true List in Writing, signed by such Lord Mayor, Alderman, or other Person holding such Court of Wardmote, of the Names of all such Persons as he shall allow or disallow to have good Votes, and who were objected against as aforesaid, on either Side upon such Scrutiny, that so the Candidates contesting, may know which of the Electors objected against are allowed, and which of them are disallowed, in every such Nomination or Election.

And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, that in all Elections of Mayor, Sheriffs, Chamberlain, and other Officers of the said City, usually chosen at Common Hall, where a Scrutiny upon a Poll is lawfully demanded and granted, for determining the Elections of such Officers or any of them, the Sheriffs of the said City for the Time being (to whom the Right of granting and taking the Poll and Scrutiny, or either of them, doth properly belong) shall, upon full hearing the Objections against any Person son voting in the said Elections to qualify his Vote, and the Answer made thereto or before they make Return of such Officer as shall be chosen, openly and publickly declare, in the Place where the Scrutiny shall be made, whether the Person or Persons so objected against, have or hath a Right, and be well intituled, according to the Laws and Customs of the said City, to Vote in the said Election, or not, and be allowed or disallowed by him accordingly; that so the Candidates contesting may know which of the Electors objected against are allowed, and which of them not allowed in the said Elections.

And whereas several of the Aldermen of the said City that now are, have appointed Persons to be their Deputies, who are not of the Common-Council, whereby great Inconveniencies do happen:

Be it therefore further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, that all and every such Deputy and Deputies, shall, at the Feast of St. Thomas the Apostle next ensuing, be removed and absolutely discharged from their several Places or Deputies; and that from and after the said Feast, no Alderman of the said City, shall at any Time or Times nominate or appoint any Person to be his Deputy, but such as shall be of the Common-Council of the said City, for that Ward whereof he is Alderman; and that every Nomination, Election or Appointment of any other Person shall be void to all Intents and Purposes whatsoever, any Law, Custom or Usage of the said City to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

And be it also enacted, that no Common-Council-Man, so to be nominated and appointed as aforesaid, shall continue in the said Place or Office of Deputy, any longer than for the Time that he shall be and remain of the Common-Council of the said City, for the Ward wherein he was Deputy: And that upon his Removal from, or not being chosen of the Common-Council for that Ward, for any succeeding Year, every such Nomination and Appointment to be Deputy, shall be void: And in such Case every Alderman shall nominate and appoint some other Person, being of the Common-Council of the said City, for the Ward whereof he is Alderman, to be his Deputy, in his Room and Stead.

And be it further enacted, that to all and every Precept and Precepts hereafter to issue, and be sent out for the summoning any Court of Wardmote, for the Nomination and Election of an Alderman and Common-Council-Men, or any of them, this present Act be annexed.

And that before any Nomination or Election be made, as aforesaid, at any Court of Wardmote, so much of this present Act as relates to the Nomination and Election of Alderman, and Common-Council-Men, shall be publickly and distinctly read and declared to the Persons who shall then be and appear at such Court, and be duly put in Execution and observed.

An ACT for revising the antient Manner of electing ALDERMEN.

WHEREAS by the antient Usage and Custom of the City of LONDON; when any Ward of the said City became vacant and destitute of an Alderman, the Inhabitants of that Ward, having a Right to Vote in such Elections, were wont to chuse one Person only, being a Citizen and Freeman of the said City, to be Alderman of the said Ward.

And whereas several Acts and Ordinances of Common-Council have been heretofore made to alter the said antient Way and Method of Election, particularly on the First of August, in the twenty first Year of the Reign of King Richard the Second, it was ordained, that for the future in the Elections of Aldermen, two at least, honest and discreet Men, by the Men of the Ward which should be destitute of an Alderman, should be chosen and presented to the Mayor and Aldermen, so that either of them whom they should chuse might be admitted and sworn; and on the twentieth of September, in the third Year of the Reign of King Henry the Fourth, it was agreed and ordained by the Mayor and Aldermen, that in the Elections of Aldermen thenceforwards to be made, there should be named and chosen four of the most honest and sufficient Citizens of the City, one of which most fit to support the Honour and Charge of the City, according to the Discretion and sound Consciences of the Mayor and Aldermen for the Time being, should be admitted and sworn to execute the same Office: Which said Ordinance in the Common-Council, holden the twenty third Day of November then following was approved.

And whereas by an Act of Common-Council made the twentieth Day of September, in the tenth Year of her Majesty's Reign, in the Mayoralty of Sir Gilbert Heathcote, Knt. intituled, An Act to regulate the Elections of Aldermen, the said last recited Ordinance is repealed and made void, to all Intents and Purposes whatsoever: And it is thereby (amongst other Things) enacted, that from thenceforth, in all Elections of Aldermen of this City, there should be named, elected, and presented to the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen for the Time being, by the Householders of that Ward which should be destitute of an Alderman, being Freemen of the said City, and paying Scot and bearing Lot, two Persons and no more, viz. one Alderman and one able and sufficient Citizen and Freeman of this City, not being an Alderman; which said Alderman so to be nominated and presented, shall and may remove to, accept and take such Ward, by the Inhabitants whereof, qualified as aforesaid, he shall be so nominated, elected and presented, if present when the Report of the said Nomination and Election shall be made, to the said Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen, and shall declare his Intention so to do. In which Case, there shall be a Wardmote holden, and the like Nomination and Presentment made to the said Court, by the Inhabitants of that Ward whereof he was an Alderman, within four Days then next ensuing: But in Case such Alderman so nominated and presented, shall be absent at the Time of making the said Report, or being present shall declare his Refusal to remove; then, in every such Case, the other Person nominated and and returned with the said Alderman, shall by the said Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen be accepted, admitted and sworn, well and truly to execute the said Office of Alderman, as by the said several Acts or Ordinances, Relation being thereunto severally had, may more fully appear.

Which several Ways of electing and presenting more than one Person to the said Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen, upon a Vacancy of an Alderman, have been found to be very inconvenient, and to create unnecessary Difficulties in settling such Elections in Cases where Contests do arise.

Be it therefore enacted by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, the Aldermen and Commons in this Common-Council assembled, and by Authority of the same, that the said several recited Acts or Ordinances of Common-Council, and every of them, and all other Acts and Ordinances of Common-Council, so far only as they or any of them oblige and require the Inhabitants of the several Wards of this City, in Elections of Aldermen, to nominate, elect and present more than one Person to the said Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen, shall be and are hereby repealed, and made absolutely null and void.

And for reviving the said antient Custom, and restoring to the said Inhabitants their antient Rights and Privileges of chusing one Person only to be their Alderman; being it further enacted, by the Authority aforesaid, that from henceforth, in all Elections of Aldermen of the said City, at a Wardmote to be holden for that Purpose, within the Time by the Laws of the said City limited for holding the same, there shall be elected, according to said antient Custom, by the Householders of that Ward which shall be void of an Alderman, being Freemen of the said City, paying Scot, and bearing Lot, only one able and sufficient Citizen and Freeman of the said City, not being an Alderman: Which Person so elected shall be returned by the Lord Mayor, or other Person duly authorized to hold such Wardmote, to the said Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen, within the Time for that Purpose by the Laws of the said City limited and appointed, and shall be by them admitted and sworn, well and truly to execute the said Office of Alderman; and in Case of his Refusal to take the same Office upon him (unless he can discharge himself therefrom, according to the Laws of the said City) he shall be subject and liable to all Pains and Penalties which may be inflicted on him by the Laws and Customs of the said City, or otherwise, for such his Refusal.

Provided always, and be it enacted by the Authority aforesaid, that all Acts of Common-Council heretofore made, relating to the Time of electing, or the Method or Manner of taking Polls and Scrutinies upon, or making Returns of such Elections, and every Article and Thing in them, and every of them contained, which are not by this or some former Act repealed or altered, shall stand and be in Force, and be duly observed by all Persons therein concerned; any Thing herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Provided also, that nothing herein contained shall extend, or be construed to alter the Manner of constituting or electing an Alderman of the Ward of Bridge Without, whenever the same shall become vacant; but that the Method of constituting and electing an Alderman of the said Ward, shall be continued and observed, as in and by said Act made the twentieth of September, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, is directed and appointed.

G I B S O N.

In this Place, Mr. Strype adds a Doubt upon a Clause in this Act of Common-Council, concerning the Election of two Aldermen in the Wardmote; which is as follows:

The Case of the Inhabitants of the Ward of Bishopsgate, in Reference to the Return of an Alderman by the Lord Mayor, &c. with the Opinion of Sergeant Prat, and Mr. Lechmere thereon, drawn up by Mr. Richard Bromley, a Common-Council-Man of the said Ward.

THE Courts of Wardmotes are Court-Leets, and are an antient Franchise of the City of LONDON, which have been held Time out of Mind, and are confirmed by divers Acts of Parliament. The Government of these Courts is in the Court of Aldermen, who are a Court of Record, and Conservators of the Rights and Franchises of the said City, and are sworn to uphold and maintain the same.

THE said Courts of Wardmote are held by the Lord Mayors as Stewards thereof, or by their Deputies. And all Returns of Officers chose, and other Matters which concern the Government of the said City, transacted in the said Courts of Wardmotes, are always made to the Court of Aldermen, who have Cognizance thereof.

By antient Custom the Aldermen of each respective Ward were chosen by the Inhabitants of the same, paying Scot, and bearing Lot, which by some late Acts of Common-Council, is restrained to Freemen only, viz.

By an Act made the 20th of September, 1711, it is (inter alia) enacted, that from thenceforth, in all Elections of Aldermen of this City, there shall be named, elected, and presented to the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen, for the Time being, by the Householders of that Ward which shall be destitute of an Alderman, being Freemen of the said City, and paying Scot and bearing Lot, an Alderman, and one able and sufficient Citizen and Freeman of this City, &c.

AN Election is lately made of an Alderman for the Ward of Bishopsgate, pursuant to the said Act of Common-Council.

THE Lord Mayor makes a Return to the Court of Aldermen of A. B. as duly elected, and called for him to be sworn into the Office.

A Petition was presented to the Court of Aldermen by many Inhabitants of the said Ward, complaining of an undue Return.

WHICH said Petition his Lordship refused to be read in the said Court, before the Person he had returned, should be sworn.

Quere 1. Whether the Court of Aldermen ought not first to read and consider the Petition, before the Person he returned, be sworn?

The Judgment of Mr. Lechmere follows:

I am of Opinion, that the Court of Aldermen are in Justice bound to read the Petition; and likewise to conclude, and come to a Resolution upon it, before the Person returned by the Lord Mayor, be sworn and admitted into Office; if the Court of Aldermen have Power to do Right to the Petitioners, as I think they have. It must be a great Injustice to them, as well as Reproach to their own Proceedings, to defer the Consideration of a Petition, till it shall be too late to give Relief upon it.

Quere 2. Hath the Court of Aldermen a Right to judge and determine concerning the Merits of the Election, notwithstanding any thing contained in the said Act of Common-Council?

I think the Court of Aldermen have an unquestionable Right to judge of the Election. It has upon former Occasions appeared, that they have immemorially exercised such Power, of reconsidering

considering the Election upon the Petition of the Electors: And that they have, as the Case was done right to the Ward, even against the Report of the Lord Mayor, by admitting the Person, who appeared to them to be duly chosen into such Office, tho' not returned. And this Power of the Court of Aldermen, I conceive, neither is nor can be abridged, or taken away by the Act of Common-Council.

Quere 3. If so, is the Court at Liberty to judge upon the same ab integro? Or, are they confined to the Objections delivered to my Lord Mayor, by the Scrutineers in such Elections?

THE Court of Aldermen are at Liberty, nay, I think, they must in Justice adjudge them upon the Merits of the Election ab integro, if insisted on by either Side, and cannot be confined to the Objections of the Scrutineers. The Order of the Common-Council in that Respect is but directory, as to the Proceeding of the Lord Mayor, and does not extend to the Court of Aldermen, who are in Nature of a superior Court, and must re-examine the State of the whole Election, if required, as necessary to do Justice to the Parties.

May 11, 1713.

N. LECHMERE.

Serjeant Pratt's Opinion upon the forecited Act, and another Act of Common Council made the 6th Day of December 1712, viz.

IT is there enacted (inter alia) that the Scrutineers in any Scrutiny upon an Election of Aldermen, shall within ten Days after a Receipt of a Copy of the Poll-Book, deliver to the Lord Mayor a Copy of their Objections with their Reasons.

Quere 1. Whether Shop-keepers, payingot and bearing Lot, lodging in such Ward, and being Freemen of the said City, have not a Right to vote in such Elections?

Answer. A Shop-keeper is in Law, and within the Intent of this By-Law, as I conceive, Domus Mansionis: And therefore a Shop-keeper within the Ward, being otherwise qualified, hath a Right to vote in such Elections, as I conceive.

Quere 2. Hath the Court of Aldermen a Right to judge and determine concerning the Merits of the Election, notwithstanding any thing contained in the said two Acts of Common-Council?

Answer. The Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen are not concluded by the Report of the Lord Mayor; but being obliged to admit, and swear the Person that is elected, and presented to them by the Householders, must of Necessity, as incident thereto, have a Power to enquire into the Merits of the Election; especially, if Complaint be made by the Electors, that the Report is wrong.

Quere 3. If so, is the Court at Liberty to judge upon the same ab integro? Or, are they confined to the Objections delivered to my Lord Mayor?

Answer. The last By-Law was intended only to prevent Delays by the Lord Mayor; and therefore hath prescribed a Method for his Proceeding; but doth not, as I conceive, extend to the Court of Aldermen. But they may enquire into the Right of Election without Regard had to any Proceeding, to the End that they might admit and swear the right Person who is not bound by any Respect of the Scrutineers.

JOHN PRATT.

THERE was also a notable Case lately of Alderman Conyers, (Sir Gerard Conyers, Kt.) and Alderman Delme, (afterwards Sir Peter Delme, Kt.) and the Common-Council, opposing their Election, which was as follows:

VOL. II.

THE Courts of Wardmotes are Courts Leet, and are an antient Franchise of the City of LONDON, which hath been held Time out of Mind, and are confirmed by divers Acts of Parliament. The Government of these Courts is in the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, who are a Court of Record, and Conservators of the Rights and Franchises of the said City, and are sworn to maintain and uphold the same. The said Courts of Wardmote are held by the Lord Mayors, Stewards thereof, or by their Deputies: And all Returns of Officers chosen, and other Matters, which concern the Government of the said City, transacted in the said Courts of Wardmotes, are always made to the Court of Aldermen on St. Thomas's Day, who have Cognizance thereof, by antient Usage confirmed by the Act of Parliament for restoring the City Charter.

THE Aldermen of each respective Ward were chosen by the Inhabitants of the same, paying Scot, and bearing Lot, which by some late Acts of the Common-Council is restrained to Freemen only. In two late Elections of Aldermen in the Ward of Broad-street and Langborn, the said Lord Mayor for the Time being, held the Wardmotes, and took the Polls and Scrutinies, and made Returns of the Persons whom he apprehended to be duly elected, to the Court of Aldermen. And no Complaint being made to the said Court of an undue Election, Mr. Conyers was admitted, and sworn an Alderman for the Ward of Broad-street: And Mr. Delme for the Ward of Langborn, by the said Court, according to the antient Custom and Usage.

SOME short Time after, the other Candidates in the said Elections finding themselves disappointed, and depending upon their Interest in the Court of Common-Council, and being resolved to make it a Party-Cause, applied themselves to the said Court, and obtained an Order to commence Suits in the Queen's-Bench Court at Westminster, against the said Mr. Conyers and Mr. Delme: And the said Court of Common-Council appointed a Committee of their own Members to prosecute the same, and ordered Monies out of the Chamber of LONDON, to carry on such Prosecution; and the said Committee have caused several vexatious Suits to be commenced in the Queen's Courts at Westminster against the same Mr. Conyers and Mr. Delme, and have applied great Sums of Money, which they received by Virtue of the same Order, for carrying on the same, to the Damage and Oppression of Mr. Conyers and Mr. Delme.

THE said Mr. Conyers and Mr. Delme, being returned, admitted and sworn according to the antient Custom and Usage of the said City, and no Complaint or Objections being brought to the Court of Aldermen of any undue Election in the said Wards, 'tis presumed the Acts of the said Court in Admission of the said Aldermen is conclusive; and the Matters in question in the Suits brought, being touching the Right to the Title of the said Office of an Alderman, which being for Life, is a Freehold within the Purview of the Laws of this Kingdom; whether any Person or Persons, who are not immediately concerned in Interest in the said Freehold, who shall concern themselves in the Prosecutions of such Suits, by the Application of Money, or otherwise, for carrying on the same, are not within the Statutes of Maintenance, and may not be prosecuted by Indictments, or by Information in the Crown-Office for the same; notwithstanding any Orders of the Common-Council for that Purpose.

THE Court of Common-Council, as now constituted, is but of a late Standing: By antient Custom and Usage the Members were summoned by the Lord Mayors and Court of Aldermen out of

of the several Companies and Myſteries, to adviſe with, and make Ordinances, as Occaſion offered: And at other Times, out of the ſeveral Wards, for the ſame Purpoſes, but without any certain Number. Their Qualifications and Number, as is preſumed, depended upon the Diſcretion of the Lord Mayors and Courts of Aldermen; and their Buſineſs was chiefly to adviſe about the Revenues, and common Welfare of the City; their very Stile and Oath import ſo much. The Oath they take is to this Effect following, viz.

“ To give good and true Counſel in all Things “ touching the common Welfare of this City, “ after their Wit and Cunning; and that for “ Favour of any Perſon, they will maintain no “ ſingular Profit againſt the common Profit of “ this City.

THOUGH the preſent Settlement of the Common-Council differs, as to the Choice and Number, from what it did formerly, it doth not appear that they have acquired any new Authority.

WHETHER their late By-Laws for altering the antient Cuſtom and Uſage in the Wardmotes, confirmed by Parliament, in the Election of Aldermen, and taking away the Right of Unfreemen, being Inhabitants in the ſaid Wards, paying Scot, and bearing Lot, at the Time of Elections, be not void in itſelf, and no Ways binding to her Majeſty's Subjects in ſuch Wards, whoſe antient Rights are invaded thereby.

THE Trial of this Caſe (by the Reſolution of the Common-Council) coſt the City ſome Thouſands of Pounds, and the two Aldermen elect as much; and the Matter at laſt was dropp'd.

BUT this Expence was complain'd of in the Houſe of Lords, ſitting Anno Dom. 1719, Apr. . . . when the ſaid Houſe received the Report of the Committee appointed to examine into the many Sums of Money which had been iſſued out of the City Caſh, for carrying on Cauſes and Suits at Law, relating to the Elections of Aldermen and Common-Council-Men, which begun in the Year 1711; by which it appears that 2827*l.* 10*s.* had been expended in ſuch Kind of Suits and Proſecutions; which the Lords having debated, reſolved, “ That the Common-Councils of “ LONDON having iſſued great Sums of Money out of the Chamber of LONDON, in “ maintaining ſeveral Suits of Law between Citizen and Citizen, relating to controverted Elections, have abuſed their Truſt, been guilty of “ great Partiality, and of a groſs Miſmanagement of the City Treafure, and a Violation of “ the Freedom of Elections.

BUT now to proceed on the antient Cuſtoms, as taken out of the Records of LONDON.

Concerning the ALDERMENS Courts, called WARDMOTES.

Wardmote, what.

A Wardmote is the Aſſembly of the whole People of one Ward ſummoned, the Alderman the Head, being preſent, or his Deputy, for correcting the Defects, removing the Annoyances, and promoting the Commodities of the ſame Ward.

WARDMOTE is as much as Plebſcitum among the Romans, and Folkſmote among the Saxons.

THE Alderman was wont once, twice, or more times in a Year, by Virtue of a Warrant from the Mayor directed to him, to hold his Wardmote. In which he was wont to inquire of the State and Quiet of the ſaid Ward, and to preſent the Defects to be corrected by the Alderman.

The Choofing of an ALDERMAN.

IN chooſing of an Alderman, [according to antient Cuſtom] the Mayor was wont to go to the Ward which was vacant, and in the Place where the Wardmote of that Ward was held, there calling before him, if he would, by the Beadle, all the Freemen inhabiting that Ward: And there an Alderman ought to be choſe by the Mayor, and the ſounder Part of them, preſently, if they would, or could, or elſe by a prefixed Day, ſo that they exceeded not 15 Days, to make that Election; becauſe then the Mayor ought, and was wont, with the Advice of the Aldermen his Fellows, to appoint an honeſt, wealthy and circumſpect Man for Alderman of that Ward.

AND the Men of the Ward, when they had choſen, were to preſent the elected Perſon to the Mayor and Aldermen, to be admitted; which Elect, after he was admitted, if he reſuſed to take upon him this Office, or to undergo it, he ſhould loſe his Freedom by the Cuſtom of the City, to which he ſhould not return without making a notable Fine and Payment.

AND if the Elect was admitted, he was to ſwear to the Oath accuſtomed; but if the Mayor and Aldermen, for ſome notable Cauſe, thought not fit that the Elect be admitted, the Ward muſt proceed again to a better Election: But if they would not, or out of their ill-willing and proud Diſpoſitions, chooſe another, whom, for the Benefit and Honour of the City, the Court would not condeſcend to admit, the Mayor and Aldermen, after 15 Days Expectation, as in the former Caſe, were wont to chooſe and admit another.

The Manner of holding a COMMON-COUNCIL.

THE Day before, the Mayor and Aldermen ſhall cauſe to be ſummoned, by the Servants of the Chamber, to come to Guildhall, out of each Ward, 16, 12, eight, or four (according to the Greatneſs or Smallneſs of it) of the wiſeſt and wealthieſt Sort; and that none but they that are ſummoned come, nor preſume to be of this Council, and that under Pain of Imprifonment antiently, more lately, under a certain Penalty and Correction, made in an Ordinance in the Time of Nicholas Wotton, Mayor. All the Commoners ſummoned ſhall be called over ſingly by a Servant of the Chamber, ſtanding higher than the reſt; and thoſe that make Default, a Clerk of the Chamber ſhall note in a Roll, which he ſhall hold in his Hand, of the Names of the ſummoned. They that appear ſhall go together.

If a Matter of Controverſy and Doubt happens, about which they cannot agree, they ſhall be examined ſeparately by a Servant of the Common Clerk, and of the Common Serjeant at Arms, by Oath, &c. Note, for the coming of the Men of one or two Wards, if they have been ſummoned, the Buſineſſes of the City ſhall not be delayed; but they may proceed without expecting the coming of the Abſent, and every one ſummoned, and not coming, ſhall be amerced 2*s.* for every Time.

THE Oath of every one elected to a Common-Council is, That he ſhall ſwear to be faithful to our Lord the King, and his Heirs, &c. That he ſhall come when he ſhall be ſummoned for a Common-Council of the City, unleſs he be reaſonably to be excuſed; that he ſhall give good and faithful Counſel, according to his Underſtanding and Knowledge, and no Man's Favour ſhall maintain a private Profit againſt the publick and common common Profit of the City, &c. So help thee GOD, &c.

IN the Time of the Mayoralty of Sir John Ward [Anno 1375] this Ordinance of choosing Commoners for a Common-Council of this City was entered; that whereas before these Commoners were chosen by the Wards, hereafter they should be chosen by each Mystery, and not by Wards, viz. out of some Mysteries six Men, out of others four, and out of others two; and to do this, Bills were sent by the Mayor, not to the Aldermen, but to the Governors of each Mystery; but during that Ordinance, Tumults increased among the People; the Great were despised by the Less; whence great Controversies and Divisions arose between the Citizens, as appeared in the Election of Nicholas Brembre, John Northampton, and other Mayors.

AFTERWARDS the discreeter and worthier Persons of the City being called together, it was treated about the Amendment of the said Ordinance; and it was finally decreed, that according to the antient laudable Customs, a solid and approved Common-Council should be henceforth chosen by the Wards, and not by the Mysteries only; and that Custom in the great Assemblies of the Common-Council held and kept to this Day.

Of the SHERIFFS.

THE Sheriffs of the City were formerly called Bailiffs: They were Judges of themselves only in their Courts of Personal Pleas, and in the Hustings they were not Judges alone, but also Executors of the Judgments and Precepts of the Mayor, &c.

THEY are also the Mayor's Eyes, seeing and supporting Part of the Care, which the Person of the Mayor alone is not sufficient to bear; for they and all their Officers ought, and have been accustomed to be obedient to the Mayor for the Time, as Members serving the Head, in superseding and bringing before him Complaints, had, and affirmed with them, to examine, &c. and in performing all other his Commands.

WHEN a Question or Debate shall arise between the Sheriffs, and some other belonging to the Sheriffs themselves, or their Officers, it ought, and was accustomed to be determined by the Mayor and Aldermen; because the Liberty of the City hitherto hath not allowed the Sheriffs to be Judges themselves in their own Causes.

THERE happened once, in Edward II's Time, great Discords to arise between Sir John le Blund, Mayor, and Reginald de Thunderle, Sheriff, and his Clerks and Officers. This gave Occasion to the making of an Ordinance upon the Disobedience of the Sheriffs and their Clerks; which was this; "Since that many Evils happen to the Commualtie and Sheriffs, by the Disobedience, Ignominy and Rebellion of the Sheriffs, their Clerks and Servants, it is agreed and appointed by the Mayor and Aldermen, that all Sheriffs, Clerks and Servants be obedient and yielding to their Superiors in all lawful Things, and that may be done de jure. And if they shall not, but be, and may lawfully be, convicted upon this, let them be removed from their Office, without having it again afterwards.

AND the Difference between the said Mayor and Sheriff, received this Accommodation by the Judgment of the Aldermen.

Cognitio & Concordia R. de Thunderle.

"Before the said Aldermen and others, the Discords and Disagreements arisen between

"Sir John le Blund, Mayor of LONDON, and Reginald Thunderle, Sheriff of LONDON, by common Friends mediating, were quieted; and that in the Manner underwritten: To wit, that the said Sir John remitted and pardoned the foresaid Reginald, all Manner of Rancours and Hatreds between them from the Beginning of the World to this Day: And the said Reginald, for the foresaid Remission and Pardon, pledged to the same John ten Hogsheds of Wine; so that the said Reginald do not offend against the said Sir John for the future: But if he again offend against him, and upon this may lawfully be convicted, he obliged himself, his Heirs, and Executors, to pay the said ten Hogsheds.

Of the Election of SHERIFFS.

FOR the Custom of electing Sheriffs, the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, and Commons being assembled on St. Matthew's Day, in the Manner as is appointed in the Election of Mayor; First, the Mayor shall choose according to his own free Will, one discret Man, Free of the City, to be one of the Sheriffs for the ensuing Year. For whom he will answer the Moiety of the Farm of the City to the King, if he, so chosen by the Mayor, be not sufficient. But if the Mayor choose by the Counsel and Assent of the Aldermen, they must answer with him. And those Persons that are chosen by the Common-Council, for themselves and for the others summoned by the Mayor for this Cause (as before is declared) shall choose for the Commons another Sheriff; for whom the whole Commonalty must answer, for the other Moiety of the Farm due to the King, if he be not sufficient.

IF a Controversy arise among the Commons upon the Election, it may be done and discussed in the Manner as is contained in the Article of the Common-Council.

IF any of those chosen refuse, or absent himself, that he be not present at Guildhall the Eve of St. Michael at Ten o'Clock, to take his Charge, then shall be levied of his Goods, Lands, and Tenements, 100 l. one half to the Use of the Chamber, the other half to him that shall then presently be elected and charged with the Office on his Default. And if being chosen again the second Time he refused the Charge, all his Goods, Lands and Tenements were to be arrested for all the Costs relating to that Office.

ABOUT the Right of Election of Sheriffs, Matters ran high in the City, at the latter End of King Charles II's Reign: The Mayor adhering to the antient Custom of nominating one Sheriff, and the Commons endeavouring to break that Custom, as by the Charter having that Power in themselves to choose both Sheriffs; which begat great Feuds and Disturbances among the Citizens, and many Pamphlets were printed pro and con upon that Argument. In the Mayoralty of Sir John Moor, the Court of Aldermen directed some judicious Persons to consult the Records of the City, what the Custom and Practice had been in former Times; which, after it was drawn up, the Court required it to be printed by this Order, viz.

Thursday, June 25, 1682, and 34 Car. II.

This Court taking Notice of divers Papers that have been printed, touching the Usage in choosing the Sheriffs of this City and the County of Middlesex, doth Order, That this Collection which hath been made out of the City Records by Direction of this Court, be forthwith printed, to give Information

Wherein the Sheriffs were Judges.

Great Discords between the Mayor and Sheriffs.

mation to the Citizens of this City, touching this Matter.

WAGSTAFF.

It was called A brief Collection out of the Records of the City, touching Election of Sheriffs of LONDON and Middlesex.

THE Collector first sheweth, that the Charters are to the Citizens to choose their Sheriffs: But that by Usage and peculiar By-Laws those Elections were restrained to the Liveries. And that so it had been the Usage from the 21st Year of Edw. III. for the Mayor to nominate or choose a Person, either in the Common Hall, or, if drank to before, to present him to the Common Hall. And he there hath been always confirmed and allowed to be one of the Sheriffs, until the Year 1641, except in four or five Years between the 21st of Edward III. and the Year 1641. Wherein the Sheriffs were on the Day of Election both nominated by the Commonalty, the Persons chosen by the Mayor having before refused the Office, and paid the Forfeiture. And from 1641, during all the Time of the Rebellion, and so to the Year 1663, the Person nominated by the Lord Mayor was refused to be confirmed by the Common Hall; but hath been confirmed ever since (except in the Year 1674) to the Year 1680.

THE Collector further shewed, that this Privilege of the Lord Mayor was in the City Records several Times, said to be according to antient Customs, Rules and Ordinances of the City.

THAT indeed 4 Hen. V. in an Act of Common-Council then made, it is said, that the Sheriff ought to be freely and indifferently chosen by the more sufficient Citizens, summoned to those Elections. Other Acts of Common Council make particular Mention of, or imply the aforesaid Privilege. As an Act of Edward III.'s Time, That Citizens absenting themselves on the Day of Election, to avoid the Office of Sheriff, should forfeit 100 l. And the Mayor every Year to say in his Conscience and by his Oath, if he had chosen any other than he hath chosen, if he had been present, and to name the Person. And the Commonalty in the same Manner.

AN Act made 7 Rich. II. That St. Matthew's Day shall be the Day of Election of a Sheriff; and when the Commons shall have agreed upon a Person, they shall present him to the Mayor and Aldermen.

AN Act made 19 Hen. VIII. That if any Citizen happened to be named or Elected, as well by the Mayor, According to his antient Privilege, as by the Commonalty on the 2d of September, and take not the Office, he shall forfeit, &c.

AN Act made 30 Hen. VIII. That the Election of Sheriffs for the Commonalty, shall be had and used on the Day of St. Peter ad Vincula; provided, the Mayor shall not any Time before Lammas, name and elect one of the Sheriffs, at his Pleasure.

AN Act made 13 Eliz. That if any Citizen happen to be chosen Sheriff, either by the Mayor, or else by the Commons, at Times and Places appointed, &c. and appear not to take upon him the Office, he shall forfeit, &c.

AN Act the 24th of the same Queen: Whereby the 1st of August is appointed for Confirmation; Allowance and Election of the Persons to be named Sheriffs by the Lord Mayor, according to antient Usage: And for the Election of another by the Lord Mayor and Commons. If the Person to be named by the Mayor shall before the 1st of August refuse to take upon him the Office, or decease; or that new Nomination shall need to be made, it shall be lawful for the Lord Mayor, before the 1st of August, to make a new Nomination, or Nominations, as hath been accustomed.

AN Act 36 Eliz. and the same also is repeated 7 Car. I. differing only in the Penalties; which are made greater by this of 7 Car. I. This repealeth all former Acts touching Election and Confirmation of Sheriffs: And constituteth the Day, as well for Confirmation and Allowance of such Persons, as shall be chosen and elected by the Lord Mayor to be Sheriffs, as for the Choice of such other Person as by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Commons shall be chosen to be Sheriff, to be the 24th of June. And thereby it is enacted, That if any Person so chosen and elected, do not before the next Court of Aldermen enter into Bond to take upon him the Office, he shall forfeit 400 l. And that if any Forfeiture shall be made by any Person to be first chosen or elected by the Lord Mayor, 100 l. of such Forfeiture shall be to him that shall first in the same Year accept that Office. And if after such Acceptance, any other Forfeiture shall happen to be made by any Persons that shall be chosen by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Commons, 100 l. shall be to him that shall first after accept the Office, being elected by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Commons.

AND that no Alderman by Posteriority of Election shall be inferior to a Commoner; and that the Lord Mayor do not choose any Commoner, while there is an Alderman eligible.

THE usual Proclamation that begins at the Common-Hall on Midsummer-Day, declares, That they are summoned for Confirmation of the Person chosen by the Lord Mayor, and for Election of another, to be Sheriffs for the Year ensuing.

FROM the Beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, Persons drank to by the Lord Mayor, have frequently, before Confirmation by the Common Hall, sign'd Bonds to hold the Office, or paid the Forfeiture upon Refusal to hold, or swore themselves not of Ability to hold.

By all which it may appear, (as the Paper concluded) that what Sir John Moor, the then present Lord Mayor had done, in choosing Mr. North, and presenting him to the Common Hall to be confirmed, was no Innovation, but was warranted by Usage and Acts of Common Council, notwithstanding the false Insinuation lately set forth in Print to the contrary.

A farther Account of the Affair of choosing Sheriffs at this Time, we shall give our Readers in the Words of Bishop Burnet, in the First Volume of the History of his Own Times.

" AT Midsummer [1682] a new Contest discovered how little the Court resolved to regard either Justice or Decency. The Court had carried the Election of Sir John Moor to be Mayor of the City of LONDON at Michaelmas eighty one. He was the Alderman on whom the Election fell in Course: Yet some, who knew him well, were for setting him aside, as one whom the Court would easily manage. He had been a Non-conformist himself, till he grew so rich that he had a Mind to go through the Dignities of the City: But tho' he conformed to the Church, yet he was still looked on as one that in his Heart favoured the Sectaries: And upon this Occasion he persuaded some of their Preachers to go among their Congregations to get Votes for him. Others, who knew him to be a flexible and faint-hearted Man, opposed his Election; yet it was carried for him. The Opposition that was made to his Election had sharpened him so much, that he became in all things compliant to the Court, in particular to Secretary Jenkins, who took him into his own Management. When

“ When the Day came in which the Mayor used
 “ to drink to one, and to mark him out for Sher“ riff, he drank to North, a Merchant that was “ Brother to the Chief Justice. Upon that it
 “ was pretended, that this Ceremony was not a “ bare Nomination, which the Common Hall “ might receive or refuse as they had a Mind to “ it; but that this made the Sheriff, and that “ the Common Hall was bound to receive and “ confirm him in course, as the King did the “ Mayor. On the other hand it was said, that
 “ the Right was to be determined by the Char“ ter, which granted the Election of the Sher“ riffs to the Citizens of LONDON; and “ that whatsoever Customs had crept in among “ them, the Right still lay where the Charter “ had lodged it, among the Citizens. But the “ Court was resolved to carry this Point: And “ they found Orders that had been made in the “ City concerning this Particular, which gave “ some Colour to this Pretension of the Mayor’s.
 “ So he claimed it on Midsummer-Day, and “ said, The Common Hall were to go and “ elect one Sheriff, and to confirm the other that “ had been declared by him. The Hall on the “ other Hand said, that the Right of choosing “ both was in them. The old Sheriffs put it “ according to Custom, to a Poll: And it was “ visible, the much greater Number was against “ the Lord Mayor. The Sheriffs were always “ understood to be the Officers of that Court:
 “ So the adjourning it belonged to them: Yet
 “ the Mayor adjourned the Court, which, they “ said, he had no Power to do; and so went on “ with the Poll. There was no Disorder in the “ whole Progress of the Matter, if that was not “ to be called one, that they proceeded after “ the Mayor had adjourned the Poll. But tho’
 “ the Mayor’s Party carried themselves with “ great Insolence towards the other Party, yet
 “ they shewed on this Occasion more Tem“ per than could have been expected from so “ great a Body, who thought their Rights were “ now invaded. The Mayor, upon this, resol“ ved to take another Poll, to which none should “ be admitted, but those who were contented to “ vote only for one, and to approve his Nomi“ nation for the other. And it was resolved,
 “ that his Poll should be that by which the Bu“ siness should be settled: And tho’ the Sher“ riffs Poll exceeded his by many Hundreds, yet “ Order was given to return those on the Mayor’s “ Poll, and that they should be sworn; and so “ those of the Sheriffs Poll should be left to seek “ their Remedy by Law, where they could find
 “ it. Box, who was chosen by the Mayor’s “ Party, and joined to North, had no Mind to “ serve upon so doubtful an Election, where so “ many Actions would lie if it was judged a“ gainst them at Law: And he could not be “ persuaded to hold it. So it was necessary to “ call a new Common Hall, and to proceed to a “ new Election: And then, without any Pro“ clamation made as was usual, one in a Corner, “ near the Mayor, named Rich, and about 30
 “ more applauded it; those in the Hall, that “ was full of People and of Noise, hearing no“ thing of it. Upon this it was said, that Rich
 “ was chosen without any Contradiction; and “ so North and Rich were returned, and sworn “ Sheriffs for the ensuing Year. The Violence “ and the Injustice with which this Matter was “ managed, shew’d that the Court was resolved “ to carry that Point at any Rate: And this “ gave great Occasions of Jealousy, that some “ wicked Design was on Foot, for which it was “ necessary, in the first Place, to be sure of fa“ vourable Juries.

THE arbitrary Proceedings in this Affair were looked upon as Matters of great Consequence; and we find the Lord Russel, in his last dying Words, declare, “ That from the Time of chu-“ sing Sheriffs, he concluded the Heat in that “ Matter would produce something extraordi“ nary; and was not much surprized to find it “ fall upon him.

THE next Year 1683, Sir William Pritchard, An Act for re-Mayor, there was made an Act of Common-^{gulating the} Council for the Regulation of the Election of Sheriffs, upon a Report made by Sir James Edwards, Sir John Moor, Sir Henry Tulse, Alder-^{Election of} men, and several other Commoners appointed thereunto. Which Report was to this Ten-nour:

THAT they found the Usage for the Lord Mayor to nominate and elect one of the Sheriffs of this City and Middlesex, called in Question in the troublesome and disorderly Times, as it was unhappily that Year, (viz. 1683) or the two last: And that they had examined the Usage in that Particular, and found it very antient, and not questioned that they could find, until the breaking out of those Troubles (between King Charles and the Parliament.) And that they had seen very many Acts of Common-Council that took Notice of it, and allowed it; and particularly the Act made 7 Car I. touching the Election of Sheriffs. To which last mention’d Act they were of Opinion, that certain Additions or Explications should be made in some Particulars, which seemed not sufficiently provided for thereby: And that they had prepared a Bill for that Purpose, which they presented to the Honourable Court. All which they humbly submitted to the Wisdom and good Pleasure of this Honourable Court, the 5th of June, 1683, with their Names subscribed; who were, Sir
William Turner, Sir John Moor, Sir Henry Tulse, Sir Thomas Langham, Franc. Griffeth, Nathaniel Hawes, Hen. Loads, Pet. Ailworth, *Nic.
 Charleton*, and Tho. Vernon.

THE Bill being then read, it was put to the Question, Whether the same should be read again, or re-committed, and be determin’d to be read again? It was so done accordingly. And the Question being put, Whether it should be read the third Time? It was carried against the further Reading thereof. Then, upon a further Question, Whether the said Bill should pass or no? and Poll taken thereupon, 113 Commoners being for the passing it, and 78 against it, the same was pass’d, and made the Act of this Court.

THE Penalty in this Act was, for a Freeman chosen, and refusing to act, to forfeit 400 l. For an Alderman chosen Sheriff, and refusing, to pay 600 l. Whereas before, the Forfeiture was but 600 Marks.

AND whereas there was of late great and fierce Disputes and Contests touching the Usage of the Mayor to elect a Person for Sheriff, which hath given great Disturbance to many good Citizens, and Offence to his Majesty; and Feuds and Animosities have thereby arisen, and are still too much continued among many Citizens; and other manifold Inconveniences and Mischiefs have been occasioned thereby to the City, and greater may ensue, if due Remedy be not provided. To take away and remove all Occasions of the like Disturbances for the future, it is declared and enacted, That hereafter the Person who shall be nominated and elected by the Mayor according to antient Usage, be one of the Sheriffs; and such Election shall be declared to the Commons of the said City assembled in the Common Hall the 24th of June, being the Day appointed for the Confirmation and Allowance of such Person; and also for the Choice and Election of such other Person

Person as by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council shall be chosen, to be Sheriff of the said City and County of Middlesex.

Pilkington and Ward, Alderman, sued by the Duke of York.

THESE Bandyings among the Citizens, gave great Offence to the Court; and both his Highness the Duke of York, and the King himself, soon shewed their Resentments; for in this Year 1683, a Suit commenced, wherein James Duke of York was Plaintiff, and Thomas Pilkington, Esq; (who was afterwards Sir Thomas Pilkington, and Mayor) was Defendant, upon an Action of Scandalum Magnatum, for that he had charged the Firing the City upon the Duke.

THIS Pilkington had been Sheriff the Year before; he was an honest but an indiscreet Man, says Bishop Burnet, who gave himself great Liberties in Discourse. He being desired to go along with the Mayor and Aldermen to compliment the Duke upon his Return from Scotland, declined going, and reflected on him as one concerned in the Burning of the City. Two Aldermen swore they heard that, and swore it against him. Sir Patience Ward, the Mayor of the former Year, seeing him go in to that Discourse, had diverted him from it, but heard not the Words which the others swore to; and he deposed, that to the best of his Remembrance he said not those Words. Pilkington was Cast in 100,000 l. Damages, the most excessive that had ever been given. But the Matter did not stop there: Ward was indicted of Perjury, it being said, that since he swore that the Words were not spoken, and that the Jury had given a Verdict upon the Evidence that they were spoken, by Consequence he was guilty of Perjury. It was said on the other Side, that when two swear one Way, and a third swears another Way, a Jury may believe the two better than one; but it is not certain from thence he is perjured: If that were Law, no Man would be a Witness: If, because they of the other Side were believed, he should be therefore convicted of Perjury. A Man's swearing to a Negative, that such Words were not spoken, did only amount to this, that he did not hear them; and it would be hard to prove that he who swore so had heard them. But Ward proved by him that had taken the Trial in short Hand, as he had done some others with great Approbation, that he had said, To the best of his Remembrance these Words were not spoken by Pilkington: Upon which Jefferies had said, that his Invention was better than his Memory: And the Attorney-General, in summing up the Evidence to the Jury had said, they ought to have no Regard to Ward's Evidence, since he had only deposed upon his Memory; yet that Jury returned Ward guilty of Perjury: And it was intended, if he had not gone out of the Way, to have set him on the Pillory. The Truth is, Juries became at that Time the Shame of the Nation, as well as a Reproach to Religion; for they were packed and prepared to bring in Verdicts as they were directed, and not as Matters appeared on the Evidence.

King Charles seizes the City Charter.

KING Charles, the same Year, shewed his Displeasure against the City in a higher Manner, namely, in seizing its Charter, by an Information against the Lord Mayor and Commonalty for usurping of divers Franchises and Liberties within the said City, and for assuming to themselves an unlawful Power to levy several great Sums of Money, as well upon the said Citizens of LONDON as Strangers; and in particular, upon those who came to the Market of the said City, by Colour of the Laws and Ordinances of their Common-Council by them in Fact ordained and established, without any other Right or Authority, and for that the said Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens in their Common-Council assembled, did vote and ordain, that a certain Petition, under the Name of Mayor, &c. should be exhibited to the King maliciously and seditiously; and to the Intent that the same Petition might be published and dispersed abroad, &c. they did ordain it to be imprinted, and did print, and cause the same to be printed and published, &c. Of all this Proceeding we shall give a fuller Account hereafter, in a Chapter concerning the Charters of the City of LONDON.

BUT to shew in what a Ferment Things were in the City, upon the Infringement of this Custom of the Mayor in nominating a Sheriff, Thomas Pilkington, Esq; Slingsby Bethel, Samuel Swinnock, John Deagle, Richard Freeman, John Jakel, John Key, and John Wickham, Sir Thomas Player, Henry Cornish, Samuel Skute, and Francis Jenkes: All these were, in the Years 1682 and 1683, prosecuted and convicted for a Riot, about the Election of Sheriffs for the City of LONDON; and by Judgment of the Court of King's-Bench in Trinity-Term, 1683, were fined 4100 l. and by Imprisonment, and otherwise, were forced to pay the same; which soon was paid into the Exchequer.

Sir Richard Levet being Mayor, an Act of Common-Council was made and printed, wherein it was ordered, concerning an Act of Common-Council made in the Mayoralty of Sir Robert Duncy, Knt. which repealed two Clauses in two Acts of Common-Council, made in the several Mayoralties of the said Sir Robert Duncy and Sir William Pritchard, Knts.

THE Act made in Duncy's Mayoralty, mentioned an Act made May the 5th, 34 Reg. Eliz. Sir William Webbe, Mayor, touching the Choice, Election and Confirmation of the Sheriffs of this City and County of Middlesex, and divers other Acts of Common-Council made concerning the same. Now by Duncy's Act, all those Acts were made void and of none Effect; for that the same Laws had not taken so good Effect as might have been wished, by Reason that the Penalties and Forfeitures therein contained, had been over mild; and thereby his Majesty's Service was in Danger of Prejudice; and the Citizens, by Reason of their often Refusal of the Office of Sheriff, had been much troubled and disquieted.

Now it is ordered, that the Day for Confirmation and Allowance of such as shall be chosen by the Lord Mayor to be Sheriff of the City and County of Middlesex; as also for the Choice and Election of such other Persons, as by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons, should be chosen to be Sheriffs of the City and County of Middlesex, should be yearly holden on the 24th of June. Or if there should be just Cause to make a new Election, then the same to be from Time to Time on such Day as should be ordered by the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen.

THAT no Freeman of the City so to be chosen, be discharged or exempted from the Execution of the Office of Sheriffalty, except he will voluntarily take his Corporal Oath, before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen in open Court, that he is not of the Value of 10,000 l. in Lands, Goods, and separate Debts; and do bring with him six other Citizens of good Credit and Reputation, who shall voluntarily testify upon their Oath, that in their Consciences they believe that the said Person hath deposed and sworn truly.

AND if any Person, being a Freeman, shall be chosen Sheriff, and Publication, by open Proclamation, made in Guildhall, in the Hustings Court, in the Presence of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, and, in his Absence, in the Presence of eight Aldermen at least; and being called to come forth, and take the Office of Sheriff, shall not personally appear in the Inner Chamber of Guildhall, at the next Court there to be holden (unless

And if the Person so to be chosen, deny to become bounden, or declare his Choice, then he shall forfeit 600 Marks. And the same Person so offending, or refusing after such Forfeiture, shall remain eligible yearly afterwards.

AND if any Default or Forfeiture shall be made by any Person that shall first in any Year be chosen by the Lord Mayor; then 100 l. Parcel of such Forfeiture, shall be bestowed upon such Person as shall first in the same Year accept and take upon him the said Sheriffalty, or upon such other Person as shall be chosen by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Commons of the said City. The Residue of the Forfeitures shall be used, and employed to the Use of the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens.

AND if any shall not pay such Forfeitures to the Chamberlain within three Months, then he shall, over and above the said Penalties and Forfeitures, forfeit and lose the Sum of 100 l. more.

AND that no Alderman, in Respect of Posterity of Choice to the said Office, be inferior in Antienty or Pre-eminence to any Commoner, it is enacted, that the Lord Mayor shall not elect any Commoner to be Sheriff, so long as there shall be then an Alderman of the City eligible to the same Office.

THE Lord Mayor and Aldermen to have no Power to dispense with, or remit any of the Forfeitures without the Assent of the Commoners, in publick Common-Council.

June the 5th, Anno Dom. 1694, Sir William Apsbury, Mayor, that Clause of the former Act, "That the Lord Mayor shall not choose or elect any Commoner so long as there shall be an Alderman of the City eligible." And another Clause in another Act made the 6th of June, 35 Car. II. in the Mayoralty of Sir William Pritchard, wherein it was enacted, "That the Person who shall be nominated and elected according to antient Usage by the Lord Mayor to be one of the Sheriffs, and such Election to be declared to the Commons assembled in Common Hall upon the 24th of June, shall there by the Commons be confirmed and allowed to be one of the Sheriffs; and that upon proposing the said Person, in case any Hand shall be holden up in Token of Confirmation, the said Person shall be taken to be confirmed and allowed. And then another Person shall be chosen by Majority of Hands to be the other Sheriff." Which Clause being not only repugnant to Reason, but contrary to the Rules and Methods of Election, the said several Clauses before recited, and either of them, were repealed and annulled.

WHICH two former Acts were reckoned so material and necessary to be known by the Citizens, that in the Year 1700 there was an Act of Common-Council made, that they should be published in Print, for the Direction and Use of all Common-Council-Men in the several Wards; which was as follows:

IT is ordered, That the Act of Common-Council made in the Mayoralty of Sir Robert Ducey, Knight and Baronet, relating to the Choice, Election, and Confirmation of Sheriffs for this City and County of Middlesex: As also another Act in the Time of the Mayoralty of Sir William Apsbury, Knt. which repeals two Clauses in two Acts of Common-Council made in the several Mayoralties of the said Sir Robert Ducey and Sir William Pritchard, Knights, touching such Choice, Election and Confirmation, be Printed together; and that each Deputy and Common-Council-Man of the several Wards of this City have one of the said Books when Printed.

WHEREAS an Act of Common-Council made the fifth Day of May, in the thirty fourth Year of our late Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth, of England, &c. in the Time of the Mayoralty of Sir William Webb, Kt. deceased, one Act was made and ordained, for touching and concerning the Choice, Election and Confirmation of the Sheriffs of this City and County of Middlesex: And whereas also divers other Acts of Common-Council have been made touching the same, be it therefore enacted by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Common-Council of this City, that the said Act made the fifth Day of May, in the four and thirtieth Year aforesaid, and all other the said Acts made touching or concerning the Choice, Election and Confirmation of the Sheriffs of the City and County of Middlesex, shall be void and of none Effect, for that the same Laws have not taken so good Effect as might be wished, by Reason that the Penalties and Forfeitures therein contained have been been over-mild, and therefore his Majesty's Services have been in Danger of Prejudice; and the good Citizens of this City, by Reason of often Refusal of the said Office of Sheriffalty, have been much troubled and disquieted: For better Reformation whereof, be it now therefore enacted, ordained and established by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, and Commons in this Common-Council assembled, and by the Authority of the same, that henceforth for ever, the Day, as well for Confirmation and Allowance of such Persons as hereafter should be chosen and elected by the Lord Mayor of this City, for the Time being, to be Sheriffs of the said City and County of Middlesex; as also for the Choice and Election of such other Persons as by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Commons shall be chosen to be Sheriffs of the said City and County of Middlesex, shall be yearly holden on the four and twentieth Day of June. And if it shall happen by the Death or Refusal of any of the said Person or Persons so to be chosen or elected, as aforesaid, or by Death of any Sheriff of this City, departing in the Time of his Sheriffalty, or upon any other Occasion whatsoever, shall be just Cause to make a new Election; then the same shall from Time to Time be at such a Day and Time, as by the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen for the Time being shall be ordered and appointed: And that no Freeman of the said City, so to be chosen or elected, as is aforesaid, shall be discharged or exempted from the Execution of the said Office of Sheriffalty, by Supposition or Excuse of Defect, or Insufficiency of Wealth, except he will voluntarily take his Corporal Oath before the Lord Mayor, and greater Part of the Aldermen, in open Court of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen for the Time being, that he is not of the Value of ten thousand Pounds in Lands, Goods and separate Debts, and do likewise bring with him six other Citizens, Freemen of the said City, of good Credit and Reputation, such as the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen for the Time being, shall allow, who shall likewise voluntarily testify upon their Corporal Oaths, that in their Consciences they believe, that the said Person so to be chosen or elected Sheriff, hath deposed and sworn truly concerning his Value as is aforesaid. And it is likewise ordained and enacted by the same Authority, that if any Person, being a Freeman of this City, shall be chosen or elected Sheriff of the same City and County of Middlesex, and Publication thereof, by open Proclamation, being made in the Guildhall, in the Place where the Court of Hustings is usually holden in the Presence of the Lord Mayor and six Aldermen, for the Time being (at the least) or in the Absence of the said Lord Mayor, then in the Presence of eight Aldermen of the said City, for the Time being (at the least;) and being called to come forth and give his Consent to take the said Office of Sheriffalty upon him, shall not personally appear before the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, for the Time being, in the Inner Chamber of the Guildhall aforesaid, at the next Court there to be holden (unless he have such reasonable Excuse as the Lord Mayor and greater Part of the Aldermen for the Time being, shall in open Court allow) and then there become bounden to the Chamberlain of the said City, for the Time being, and his Successors, by his Deed Obligatory, in the Sum of one thousand Pounds, with Condition, that if he shall personally appear in the Publick Assembly in the Guildhall of the same City, on the Vigil of St. Michael the Arch-Angel then next following, at the Time in that Behalf accustomed, and then and there take upon him the Office and Charge of Sheriffalty of the said City and County, that then the said Obligation shall be void: Or if such Person so to be chosen or elected, shall, before the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, openly declare his Refusal to take upon him the said Office, then every such Person which shall make such Default in Appearance, or which shall not become bounden, or which shall declare his Refusal, as aforesaid, shall forfeit the Sum of Four Hundred Pounds of lawful Money of England, to the Mayor and Commonalty of the same City, to be employed to the Uses hereafter declared and expressed, unless he shall be duly discharged of the said Office of Sheriffalty, for Want or Defect of Ability in Wealth, upon Oath taken, as is aforesaid. Provided nevertheless, and be it enacted, ordained and established by the Authority aforesaid (any thing in this Act to the contrary notwithstanding) That if the Person so to be chosen or elected, and making Default in appearing, or denying to become bounden, or that shall declare his Refusal, as aforesaid, shall be an Alderman of this City at the Time of his Choice or Election, then every such Alderman so to be chosen or elected, shall forfeit the Sum of Six Hundred Marks, of lawful Money of England, to the Mayor and Commonalty of the same City, to be employed to the Uses hereafter in this Act declared and expressed. All which Forfeitures or Penalties shall be recovered by Action, or Bill of Debt original, to be commenced and prosecuted in any of the Courts of Record of the King's Majesty, or his Heirs or Successors, within the said City: And that the same Person or Persons so offending, or refusing, after such Forfeiture, shall nevertheless remain eligible yearly afterward to be Sheriff of the said City and County, as if he or they had never been before chosen or elected to the said Office. Provided also, and it is likewise enacted and declared, touching the Uses and Employment of the said Forfeitures, That if any such Default or Forfeiture shall be made, as aforesaid, by any Person that shall first in any Year be chosen or elected by the Lord Mayor for the Time being, to be Sheriff of the City of LONDON and County of Middlesex, That then one hundred Pounds, Parcel of such Forfeitures, shall be given and bestowed upon such Person as shall first in the same Year accept to take upon him the said Office of Sheriffalty: And if it shall happen after such Acceptation of the said Office, any other Forfeiture by Default or Refusal shall be made in the same Year by any Person that shall be chosen or elected by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Commons, for the Time being, to be Sheriff of the said City and County of Middlesex, that then one hundred Pounds, Parcel of such Forfeiture, shall be given and bestowed upon such other Person as shall first after such Forfeiture in the same Year accept and take upon him the said Office of Sheriffalty, being thereunto elected and chosen by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Commons of the same City: And that all the Residue of the same Forfeitures, and all other Forfeitures and Penalties for Refusal, or making Default to appear, denying to become bound, or declaring Refusal to take the said Office of Sheriffalty, as is aforesaid, shall be wholly and entirely used and employed to the only Use and Behalf of the Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens of the said City; any Act, Law, or Ordinance to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding. And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That if any Freeman of this City, which shall incur any Penalty or Forfeiture before declared, by Force of this Act, shall not within three Months next after such Forfeiture incurred, well and truly pay unto the Chamberlain of the said City, for the Time being, all such Penalties and Forfeitures to such Uses as in this this Act is appointed and declared, That then every such Person failing of such Payment, shall, over and above the said Penalties and Forfeitures before declared, forfeit and lose the Sum of one hundred Pounds more to the Use of the said Mayor and Commonalty, to be recovered in Form aforesaid. And to the Intent that no Alderman of this City shall, in Respect of Posteriority of Choice or Election to the said Office of Sherifftalty, be inferior in Antieny or Preheminence to any Commoner, and for other good Considerations: It is therefore enacted, That the Lord Mayor of the said City for the Time being, shall not at any Time hereafter choose or elect any Commoner of this City to be Sheriff of this City of LONDON, and of the County of Middlesex, so long as there shall then be an Alderman of this City eligible to the said Office: Any former Law, Custom, Usage, or other Matter whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding. And to the Intent that the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen of this City for the Time being, shall not be burdened or charged with any Unkindness, nor pester'd with importunate Suits, if they shall refuse to relieve such Persons as shall make Default, or deny to become bound, or refuse to accept of the said Office of Sherifftalty, as is aforesaid, and for other good Considerations, it is likewise declared and enacted, That the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen of this City for the Time being, have not, nor shall have Power nor Authority in any Case, without the Assent of the Commoners in publick Common-Council of this City first had and obtained, to dispense with, remit or abate any of the said Forfeitures, or any Part thereof, which at any Time hereafter shall happen or grow due by Force of this Act; nor to give Respite of Payment thereof, or of any Part thereof, above the Term of one Year at the most; nor to give any Restraint or Delay of Suit to be commenced and prosecuted for Recovery thereof.

WHEREAS by a Clause in an Act of Common-Council made the Twentieth Day of July, in the Seventh Year of the Reign of King Charles I. in the Mayoralty of Sir Robert Duncy, It was amongst other Things enacted in the Words following: That the Lord Mayor of this City, for the Time being, shall not at any Time hereafter choose or elect any Commoner of this City to be Sheriff of the City of LONDON, and of the County of Middlesex, so long as there shall then be an Alderman of the City eligible to the said Office.

Which said Clause, in Respect of Accidents or Circumstances, may not at all Times be convenient to be practised.

And whereas by another Clause in an Act of Common-Council, made the Sixth Day of June, in the Thirty Fifth Year of King Charles II. in the Mayoralty of Sir William Pritchard, Knt.

VOL. II.

It was amongst other Things enacted in the Words following: That the Person who shall be nominated and elected according to antient Usage by the Lord Mayor of this City, for the Time being, to be one of the Sheriffs of the City of LONDON, and County of Middlesex, and such Election shall be declared to the Commons of the said City assembled in Common Hall upon the Twenty Fourth Day of June, shall there by the said Commons be confirmed and allowed to be one of the Sheriffs of the said City and County accordingly: And that upon proposing the said Person to be confirmed to the said Common Hall, in case any Hands shall be holden up in Token of Confirmation, the said Person shall be taken to be confirmed and allowed, and then another Person shall be chosen by Majority of Hands to be the other of the said Sheriffs, and to join with him that shall be so confirmed.

Which said Clause being not repugnant to Reason, but contrary to the Rules and Methods of Elections:

Be it therefore enacted by the Mayor, Aldermen and Commons in Common-Council assembled, and by the Authority of the same, That the said several Clauses before recited, and either of them, shall be, and are hereby repealed, annulled and made void.

And whereas by several Acts of Common-Council, the Election of Sheriffs, Chamberlain, Bridge-masters and Auditors of the Chamberlain and Bridge-house Accounts, and Aleconners, are appointed on Midsummer-Day yearly, except the Sheriff or Sheriffs, Chamberlain or other of the said Officers, for the Time being, shall die, or for just Cause be removed: And whereas in some Years (as in this present Year) Midsummer-Day happens to fall on the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, which ought to be kept holy, and is a necessary and required Part of the Service of God, and enjoined by the Laws and Statutes of this Realm:

Be it therefore enacted and declared, That from henceforth, whensoever Midsummer-Day shall happen to be on the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, That the Election of the Sheriffs, Chamberlain, Bridge-masters, Auditors of the Chamberlain and Bridge-house Accounts, and Aleconners, shall be on the Day next following, any Act or Acts, or any other Usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

GOODFELLOW.

And whereas by several Acts of Common-Council, the Election of Sheriff, Chamberlain, Bridge-masters, and Auditors of the Chamberlain's and Bridge-house Accounts, and Aleconners, are appointed on Midsummer-Day yearly, except the Sheriff, &c. for just Causes be removed. And whereas in some Years Midsummer-Day happens to fall on a Sunday, It is enacted, (as by the Act above) that then the Election shall be on the Day next following.

There is another Act of Common-Council lately made, which restores the Power to the Mayor to nominate a Sheriff: Being, *An Act of Common-Council for electing Sheriffs, held in Guildhall the 22d of Octob. 1703, Ann. An ACT to impower the Lord Mayor for the Time being to nominate one or more Person or Persons to be Sheriff of the City of LONDON, and County of Middlesex, for the Year ensuing.

WHEREAS several Disputes have risen about the Method of electing Sheriffs of the City of LONDON and County of Middlesex; for avoiding whereof in Time to come,

Be it hereby declared and enacted by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, the Right Worshipful the Aldermen his Brethren, and the Commons of the said City in Common-Council assembled, That the Right of electing Sheriffs for the City of LONDON and County of Middlesex, is, and shall be, in the Liverymen of the several Companies of this City in Common Hall assembled.

Be it also further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the Lord Mayor of this City for the Time being, from and after the Fourteenth Day of April unto the Fourteenth Day of June in every Year, to nominate, in the Presence of six Aldermen of the said City, a fit and able Person, being a Freeman of this City, for Sheriff of the said County of Middlesex for the Year ensuing, to commence at the Vigil of St. Michael the Archangel next after such Nomination: And if such Person, so nominated, shall, within six Days after Notice thereof given him, or left in Writing at the last Place of his Abode, pay to the Chamberlain of this City for the Time being, for the Use of the Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of this City, the Sum of Four Hundred Pounds of lawful Money of England, each and every Person or Persons so nominated by the Lord Mayor, and paying, as aforesaid, the Sum of Four Hundred Pounds, shall be, and is hereby exempted and discharged from serving the said Office of Sheriff of LONDON and County of Middlesex for three Years from thence next ensuing, and shall not be liable to be again nominated by any succeeding Lord Mayor.

And be it further enacted, That after the Expiration of the said six Days, it shall and may be lawful to and for the Lord Mayor of this City for the Time being, to nominate and appoint one other fit and able Person, being a Freeman of this City, to be one of the Sheriffs of the said City and County of Middlesex, for the Year ensuing, to commence as aforesaid, who upon like Payment of the said Sum of Four Hundred Pounds to the Use aforesaid, shall in like Manner be, and is hereby exempted and discharged for the said Term of three Years from serving the said Office, and from being again in like Manner nominated by any succeeding Lord Mayor, and so toties quoties, as the Lord Mayor of this City shall think fit to nominate between the said Fourteenth Day of April and Fourteenth Day of June in every Year.

And be it hereby further enacted and ordained by the Authority aforesaid, That if any such Person or Persons so nominated as aforesaid by the Lord Mayor for Sheriff of this City and County of Middlesex, shall, after Notice thereof given or left as aforesaid, refuse or neglect to pay unto the Chamberlain of LONDON for the Time being, the said Sum of Four Hundred Pounds, to the Use of the said Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens, within the Time above limited, then such Person or Persons shall, at the next Common Hall summoned for the Election of Sheriffs of the said City of LONDON and County of Middlesex, be the first Commoner or Commoners put in Nomination, and in the same Order as nominated by the Lord Mayor: And in Case such Person or Persons shall be then and there, or at any Time afterwards, duly elected Sheriff of the said City and County, and shall refuse or neglect to take upon him the said Office, or to become bound so to do, or otherwise discharge himself according to the Laws and Ordinances of this City, such Person or Persons shall forfeit and pay Six Hundred and Twenty Pounds of lawful Money of England, to the Use of the Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of the said City, to be recovered in the Name of the Chamberlain of the said City, by Action, or Bill of Debt Original, to be commenced and prosecuted in any of the Courts of Record of the Queen's Majesty, her Heirs and Successors, within the said City.

Provided, That nothing in this Act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to take away or diminish the Payment of the Sum of Twenty Marks, to be employed towards the Maintenance of the Ministers of Newgate, Ludgate, and the Two Compters, pursuant to an Act of Common-Council made the Sixteenth Day of December, in the Year of our Lord One Thousand Six Hundred and Fifty Six.

ASHURST.

The Election of Mayors, Sheriffs, and other considerable Officers of the City, is done at a Common Hall, as it is called. But divers Contentions and Animosities have happened between the Court of Aldermen and Commoners in and about these Common Halls, and the Elections made therein: To regulate therefore and settle these Matters of Common Hall for Time to come, and that Quietness and Peace might be maintained at them, An Act of Common-Council was made, Sir Thomas Lane, Mayor, intituled, For settling the Method of calling, adjourning, and dissolving the Common Halls, upon the several Elections of Mayors, Sheriffs, Chamberlains, and other Officers, usually there chosen. Occasioned, as the said Act set forth, by Disputes of the Right and Power of calling and adjourning Common Halls, such Elections of Mayors, &c. Whereby several Disorders had arisen among the Citizens. Therefore it was declared by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Common-Council, That the Right of assembling Common Halls for such Elections, and the Power to dissolve the same after such Elections made, and not otherwise, is, and of Right ought to be in the Lord Mayor. And it was enacted, That if after any Common Hall is assembled for any Election, a Poll or Scrutiny, or either of them be lawfully demanded, or any other Difficulty shall arise, which may require the Ajournment of the Hall; then the Right of granting, and taking the Poll, or Scrutiny, and adjourning of the said Hall from Time to Time, till such Poll or Scrutiny be concluded, shall be in the Sheriffs of the City for the Time being: And that if any Disputes or Difference shall arise at such Elections between the Sheriffs touching any Matter relating to Adjournments, Polls or Scrutinies; all such Differences shall be determined by the Lord Mayor: And such Orders and Directions as he shall make, shall be observed by the said Sheriffs accordingly. And in Default of immediate Compliance with such Orders, the Lord Mayor to proceed to the granting and and taking the Poll and Scrutiny, and adjourning the said Hall from Time to Time, till such Poll be concluded, and the Election finished.

It was further enacted, That where any Poll or Scrutiny for determining Elections shall be granted, the Sheriffs shall finish such Polls within three Days next and immediately ensuing the first Meeting and Assembling of the Common Hall; and they are required then to make Return of such Officers and Persons as shall be chosen, within seven Days next after finishing of such Poll; and in Case of Difference between the said Sheriffs, then the Lord Mayor is hereby required to finish such Poll within three Days.

Enacted further, That no Person that shall be duly chosen and elected Sheriff by the Livery-Men of this City in the Common Hall assembled, shall be discharged from serving the said Office after the 30th Day of August in any Year, without the Consent and Approbation of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Commons in Common-Council first had and obtained.

Enacted further, That whereas by an Act of Common-Council, June 6, that an Act made the 12th of June, 1643, repealing two former Acts, whereby the Court of Aldermen were to nominate two to the Common Hall for Election of a Chamberlain, and four for their Election of Bridge-Masters, and the Commoners to choose out of them, and no other, should be abrogated and repealed: The Court, taking the several Acts into Consideration, enacted, that the Clause of Repeal in the said Act made the 6th of June, be henceforth abrogated, and the said Act of the 21st of June is hereby revived, and declared to be in Force, so far as concerns the Repeal of the former Acts. And that for the future, the Nomination of any for Chamberlain, or Bridge-Masters, and the Choice of them, shall be made in the Livery of the several Companies, lawfully intitled to have such Liveries, according to the Laws and Customs of this City, in Common Hall assembled, and not otherwise.

THERE was a Charter granted to the City by King Edward I. in the first of his Reign, wherein was contained, that the Sheriffwick of LONDON and County of Middlesex, be holden for ever for 300 l. thence yearly to be paid, according as the King's Progenitors had granted to the City. And it was commanded to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, that the said Sheriffs be not burthened beyond the said Sum. For, it seems, before they had been oppressed and burthened with greater Payments than the said 300 l.

Sheriffs allowed Money out of the Exchequer, for the Execution of Traitors.

THE Sheriffs used to have Allowance from the Exchequer for the Charge of the Execution of Traitors. And it appears in the Records of the Tower, that King Edward III. in the fourth of his Reign, commanded the Treasurer and Barons of his Exchequer, that they should allow the Debt due to the Sheriff of LONDON for the Expences, circa Tractionem & Suspensionem Rogeri de Mortuomari, &c. i. e. about the Drawing and Hanging of Roger Mortimer and Simon de Bereford.

THE Sheriffs used to make their Benefit of Places under them, and so made the best of their Offices that Way; whereby their Clerks and Servants were very burthensome to such as had Business to be done with them. The Treasurer, and other the King's Justices, had this complained of before them by the Jury of the Inquisition, who said, "That John Adrian, late Sheriff of LONDON, and Lucas de Barentcourt, at that present Sheriff [viz. 1267.] and all other Sheriffs and Bailiffs, and their Clerks and Servants, as well in the Time of King Henry III. as of the King now, [Edward I.] take Gifts pro Officiis suis exercendis & non exercendis, i. e. for exercising or not exercising their Offices. And that without Money and Gifts they would not perform, nor do their Duties.

THIS was a Grievance of the City complained of at other Times, as appears by a notable Ordinance made by the Mayor and Aldermen in the Beginning of King Edward II's Reign, for Clerks and Serjeants of the City, belonging to the Sheriffs, who were come to that Pass, that the Mayor and Aldermen could not get their Precepts and Executions performed. The Ordinance, to be found in the Book Horne, is to this Tenor:

"Whereas LONDON, the City of the Lord King, in modern Times, no doubt, hath excelled other Cities in the Kingdom of England; and so much the more, for the daily Dangers happening in it, it ought more warily and securely to be governed by the Counsel and Help of very skilful Men, for the Royal State, and the Profit and Preservation of the People resorting hither. Hence it is, that when the Sheriffs of the said City, and their Ministers, according to the Precepts of the Mayor and Aldermen, delay to make Executions of Businesses, which happen in the same City from divers Causes, as well for levying Debts of the King, as Debts of the City, as making Executions, according as Cases perhaps emerge: And when the Sheriffs of the said City, and their Ministers in each Execution, and the Precepts enjoined them by the Mayor and Aldermen, are found so rebellious and remiss, that scarce any of the Precepts and Executions so enjoined, can be fulfilled either in Part or in Whole, or they be brought to their Duty.

An Ordinance for Clerks and Serjeants of the City.

"Thomas Romeyn, Mayor of LONDON, John de Wengrave, &c. Aldermen, in the third Year of the Reign of King Edward, Son of King Edward, seeing the huge Dangers, and manifest Scandals which might easily hang over the City and Citizens of the same from hence, the antient Memorials concerning the Ordinances of the City being searched, to correct such Defects of the Sheriffs and their Ministers, and to administer speedier Justice to every one, as is fit: We have now found register'd the Punishment upon such Sheriffs and their Ministers so offending, provided and ordered. Which Punishment, not willing at present to encrease, change, or diminish, but rather taking Care to ratify and confirm, we have appointed by the common Consent of the Commonalty of the whole City then present, namely, on Thursday next before Whitsunday, June the 4th, the Year abovesaid, that whensoever any special Precept on the Part of the Mayor and Aldermen, for levying the Debts of the King or the City, or doing any other Business, specially touching the City, shall be done or appointed by the Sheriffs; that the same Sheriffs, by themselves or their Ministers, have a certain Day to answer upon the Precepts to them made, delivered, and appointed. At which Day, if the Sheriffs come not, or come and shall not answer reasonably to their Precepts, or shall not excuse themselves by a reasonable Cause; that thenceforth they incur the Pain of Degradation, and be degraded from their Office; and their Servants, who shall be found obstinate in such Executions and Precepts, be wholly removed from doing or executing their Service for the future in the said City, so that they be by no Means restored to such Office again.

Degradation of a Sheriff.

The Power and Authority of the MAYOR, ALDERMEN and SHERIFFS conjunctively.

WHEN the King went Abroad, he commonly left some special Orders and Commands, by his Letters to the Mayor, Sheriffs and Aldermen, to take Care of preserving Peace in his Absence in the City, and to imprison and punish such as should make Disturbances and Insurrections, or be guilty of other Misdemeanors. Such a Letter did King Edward III. send to the Mayor, &c. in the 15th Year of his Reign; and according to this Charge they put to Death two Mutineers in Cheapside, as was told before.

TOWARDS the Beginning of the said King Edward's Reign were Insurrections in some Places in the Realm, particularly in Bedfordshire and LONDON. For the Felonies and Transgressions of the Law done in LONDON, the King sent Letters to the Mayor and Sheriffs, commanding them to make Inquisition about them, and to take those that were found guilty, and commit them to Prison till they should have further Command concerning them. Whereupon several were taken and put into Prison, whose Crimes touched the State of the King and his Crown. Afterwards the King appointed certain of his Justices, Oliver de Ingham, John Matravers, John de Stoner, Rob. de Malberthorp, and John de Grantham, to hear and determine according to the Inquisitions, and the Indictments according to those Inquisitions made.

THE Mayor and certain Aldermen lend King Edward III. Money, to the Sum of 4601 l. 3 s. 4 d. and the King, Ann. 45 of his Reign, granted them the Security and Oblation of his Customs and Subsidies for the Repayment.

THE Mayor and Aldermen had a Power granted to amend, correct, &c. the Customs of their City, when there should be Occasion; but this Power was afterwards revoked.

THE Mayor and Sheriffs were reproved by King Edward III. for leaving the City in Want of Provisions and Victuals, and for the great Dearthness of them, that being one of the great Cares of the Magistrates of LONDON to prevent. There is a Record containing a sharp Reprehension from that King to those Magistrates, for suffering Bread, Wine, Beer, and all Sorts of Victuals to be sold in the City at over-dear Rates; and for not supervising and reforming the Defects of Weights and Measures, which every Mayor took a Corporal Oath to do; yet none of them hitherto had performed his Oath as he ought, to the great Scandal of the Mayor, and Scandal also of the Inhabitants of the City, as also of those that resorted to it; and commanding them, under Pain of forfeiting all they could forfeit to him; that calling all the Aldermen, and other Commons of the City together, they should set such a Price upon the Victuals aforesaid, having Respect to what was first paid for them; and to correct the Measures and Weights, that Sellers should receive not excessive, but reasonable Gain; and that the Inhabitants, and others, resorting to the City, might feel the Benefit thereof, and of their Reformation of Weights and Measures, giving this Charge to the Mayor, viz. "That your Oath, as Mayor, may remain inviolable, do you chastise and punish all from Time to Time, who do against Right, and reform all other Things which you shall know to be repugnant to the good Government of the said City and Suburbs. That by your Diligence exhibited in this Behalf, that City may be reduced to its due State, and excessive Regrators wholly taken away. And that you publicly proclaim all and singular the Premises in the foresaid City and Suburbs in the accustomed Places. But if they should not appoint a speedy Remedy for all these Excesses, that then the Grieved should complain thereof to him and his Council; and he, in their Defect, would cause Remedy to be applied to these Excesses without Delay.

WHEN Executions, especially of Persons of greater Note, were to be done, the Mayor, as well as the Sheriffs, were required to assist at them. Roger Mortimer was adjudged, as a Traitor to be hanged, Anno 4 Edw. III. whereupon the Earl-Marshal, by Commandment, with the Aid of the Mayor and Sheriffs of LONDON, and Constable of the Tower, executed him.

The Mayor, on some Occasions, to assist at Executions.

THE Mayor and Aldermen did formerly lay Taxes upon the City, by their own Authority; which in an Inquisition taken before the King's Treasurer, and other his Judges, about the 14th of Edward II. the Jury of the Ward of Aldermanbury made this Presentment: Dicunt, &c. "They say, that the Commonalty of LONDON is, and ought to be common, and that the Citizens are not bound to be taxed without the Command of the King, or without their Common Consent. That the Mayors of the City, and the Custodes in their Times, after the Common Redemption made and paid for the City of LONDON, (of which Payment the Commons could never be certified, that might be Ann. 1296, 24 Edw. I. when the Liberties of the City were restored) have come, and by their own Authority, without the King's Command, and Commons Consent, did tax the said City according to their own Wills, once and more, and distrained for those Taxes, sparing the Rich, and oppressing the Poor Middle Sort; nor permitting that the Arrearages due from the Rich be levied, ad Exheredationem Regis, &c. to the Disinheriting the King, and the Destruction of the City. Nor can the Commons know what becomes of the Monies levied of such Taxes; and that this hath lasted from the Time of John Adrian, Mayor, or, usque nunc, and he was Mayor Ann. 1270 and 1271, the latter End of Henry III.

THE Mayor and Aldermen also took upon them to turn out Common-Council-Men, when they saw Occasion. Hence the sworn Men in the aforesaid Inquisition made a Presentment of this, viz. That the Mayor and Superiors of the City deposed Walter Henry of his Power, and the Council of the City, by an Action because he would not suffer the Rich to levy Tallages upon the meaner Sort, till the Rich had paid their Arrears of the Tallages.

C H A P. III.

A Continuation of the Temporal Government of the CITY, with a Catalogue of the PORTGRAVES, CUSTODES, BAILIFFS, MAYORS and SHERIFFS, to the Present Time.

THIS City of LONDON being under the Government of the Britons, Romans, and Saxons, the most antient and famous City of the whole Realm, was at length destroyed by the Danes, and left desolate, as may appear by our Histories: But Alfred, King of the West-Saxons, having brought all the Realm, from many Parts, into one Monarchy, repaired this City, and made it again habitable, and committed the Custody thereof to his Son-in-Law Adhered, Earl of Mercia. After whose Decease the City, with all other Possessions pertaining to the said Earl, returned to King Edward, surnamed the Elder, &c. And so remained in the King's Hands, being governed under him by Portgraves (or Portreves) which Name is compounded of the two Saxon Words Porte and Gerefe, or Reve. Porte betokeneth a Town, and Gerefe signifieth a Guardian, Ruler, or Keeper of the Town.

"These Governors of old Time (says Robert Fabian) with the Laws and Customs then used within this City, were register'd in a Book called the Doomsday Book, in the Saxon Tongue: But of later Days, when the Laws and Customs were changed, and for that also the said Book was of a small Hand, and sore defaced, [and hard to be read or understood] it was less set by, so that it was imbezeled and lost." Thus far Fabian.

NOTWITHSTANDING which, Stow says, that by seaching old Records, and especially in a Book some Time appertaining to the Monastery of St. Alban's, he found what follows of the Portgraves, and other Governors of this City.

First, That in the Reign of King Edward the Last, before the Conquest, Wolfgare was Portgrave, as may appear by the Charter of the same King in these Words:

Edward, King, Greeteth Alward, Bishop, and Wolfgare, my Portgrave, and all the Burgessees of LONDON. And afterward, that in another Charter King Edward Greeteth William, Bishop, and Swetman, my Portgrave. And after that, in another Charter to the Abbey of Chertsey, To William, Bishop, and Leofstane and Alfry, Portgraves.

IN the Reign of William the Conqueror, William, Bishop of LONDON, procured of the said Conqueror his Charter of Liberties; to the same William, Bishop, and Godfrey, Portgrave, and to all the Burgessees of the City of LONDON, in as large Form, as they enjoyed the same in the Time of King Edward, before the Conquest.

AND then in the Reign of the said Conqueror, and of William Rufus, Godfrey de Magnavile was Portgrave (or Sheriff,) as may appear by their Charters, and Richard de Par was Provost.

IN the Reign of King Henry I. Hugh Buche was Portgrave, and Leofstanus, Goldsmith, Provost, buried at Bermondsey.

AFTER them, Aubrey de Vere was Portgrave, and Robert Bar Querel, Provost. This Aubrey de Vere was slain in the Reign of King Stephen. It is to be noted also, that King Henry I. granted to the Citizens of LONDON the Sheriff thereof, and of Middlesex, as in another Place before is shewed.

IN the Reign of King Stephen, Gilbert Becket was Portgrave, and Andrew Buchewet Provost.

AFTER him Godfrey Magnavile, the Son of William, the Son of Godfrey Magnavile, by the Gift of Maud the Empress, was Portgrave, or Sheriff of LONDON and Middlesex, for the yearly Farm of 300 l. as appears by the Charter.

IN the Time of King Henry II. Peter Fitz-Walter was Portgrave. After him John Fitz-Nigel was Portgrave. After him Ernulphus Buchel became Portgrave; and after him William Fitz-Isabel.

THESE Portgraves are also in divers Records called Vicecomites, Viscounts, or Sheriffs, as being under Comes, i. e. an Earl; for that they then, as since, used that Office as the Sheriffs of LONDON do to this Day. Some Authors do call them Doomsmen, Eldermen, or Judges of the King's Court.

William Fitz-Stephens, noting the Estate of this City and Government thereof in his Time, under the Reign of King Stephen, and of Henry II. has these Words:

"This City (says he) even as Rome, is divided into Wards; it has yearly Sheriffs instead of Consuls; it has the Dignity of Senators and Aldermen; it has Under-Officers, and, according to the Quality of Laws, it has several Courts, and General Assemblies upon appointed Days.

IN the first Year of King Richard I. the Citizens of LONDON obtained to be governed by two Bailiffs; which Bailiffs are in divers antient Deeds called also Sheriffs, according to the Speech of the Law, which called the Shire Bailiva; for that they (like as the Portgraves) used the same Office of Sheriffwick, for which the City paid to the Fee-Farm 300 l. yearly as before, since the Reign of Henry I. which also is yet paid by the City into the Exchequer till this Day.

THEY also obtained to have a Mayor, to be their principal Governor and Lieutenant of the City, as of the King's Chamber.

The Names of the first BAILIFFS, or OFFICERS, entering into their Office at the Feast of St. Michael, the Arch-Angel, in the Year of CHRIST 1189.

A. D. 1189, 2 First Bailiffs, 5 Henry Cornehill,
1 Rich. I. 5 or Sheriffs, 2 Rich. Reynere.

THEIR first Mayor was Henry Fitz-Alwin, Draper, appointed by the said King, and continued Mayor from the 1st of Richard I. till the 15th of King John, which was 24 Years and more.

ONE great Thing was done in the Time of this first Mayor, about settling Laws and Orders for Buildings in the City; and there still remains in the Books of the Chamber, the Order how to proceed in the Assize concerning Buildings between Neighbours. "Ann. 1189, Henry Fitz-Alwyn being then Mayor, it was provided and ordained by the discreeter Men of the City, to appease Contentions which might arise among Neighbours in the City, upon Inclosure between Land and Land, that twelve Men, Aldermen of the City, should be chosen in full Hustenge, and there sworn that they would faithfully perform it, and come at the Mayor's Summons, unless hinder'd by some reasonable Cause, and to be present with the Mayor for executing the fore-said Business; and this was decided and confirmed in full Hustenge." By these sworn Men Orders were taken about Party-Walls, and about building them 16 Feet at least in Height, and three Feet in Breadth, and to build them of Stone, for Security against Fire, and concerning Gutters to receive and convey the Water from their Houses; all to be at common Cost; also concerning digging Pits for Water; concerning making Windows upon the Neighbours; concerning putting Corbells, i. e. Girders or Beams, into the Neighbour's Wall, &c.

Of this Mayor let this Remark be added to his other famous Acts, in his valiant Behaviour towards Wat Tyler: That many Citizens of LONDON, in his Time, gave over Trade and Traffick, and betook themselves to live upon Usury. He being Lord Mayor, by the Advice of the Aldermen, took such good and strict Order for the Execution of Laws, and Suppression of Usury within the City, as was a Pattern to the Commons in Parliament; who put up this Petition (as appears in the Rolls of Parliament) "That the Order that was made in LONDON against the horrid Vice of Usury, might be observed throughout the whole Realm." Whereunto the King answered, That the old Law should continue.

A. D. MAYORS. SHERIFFS.

Queen Elizabeth began her Reign the 17th of November, in the Year 1558.

1559 Sir Will. Hewet, Cloth- Thomas Lodge. worker. Roger Martin.

This Mayor was a Merchant, possess'd of a great Estate, valued at 6000 l. per Annum, and was said to have had three Sons and one Daughter; to which Daughter this Mischance happened (the Father then living upon London-bridge.) The Maid playing with her out of a Window over the River Thames, by chance dropt her in, almost beyond Expectation of being saved. A young Gentleman, named Osborne, then Apprentice to Sir William the Father (which Osborne was one of the Ancestors of the Duke of Leeds in a direct Line) at this calamitous Accident, immediately leapt in bravely, and saved the Child. In Memory of which Deliverance, and in Gratitude, her Father afterwards bestowed her in Marriage on the said Mr. Osborne, with a very great Dowry. Whereof the late Estate of Sir Thomas Fanshawe, in the Parish of Berkin in Essex, was a Part, as the late Duke of Leeds himself told the Rev. Mr. John Hewet, from whom Mr. Strype said he had this Relation.

Also, that several Persons of Quality courted the said young Lady; and particularly the Earl of Shrewsbury. But Sir William was pleased to say, Osborne saved her, and Osborne should enjoy her. The late Duke of Leeds, and the present Family, preserve the Picture of the said Sir William in his Habit of Lord Mayor, at Kiveton-house in Yorkshire, to this Day, valuing it at 200 l.

This Mayor was buried in St. Paul's Church, dying Anno 1599, as his Tomb bore Date, being a very magnificent Work; erected for him on the North Side of the South Isle, behind the Stalls in the old Choir, near Dr. Collet's, Dean of St. Paul's, lying on the West, and that of Sir William Cockain, Knt. and Bart. East of the same.

He inclosed also this Year, with a Brick Wall, a Piece of Ground near Bethlem, for a Burying-Place, to such Parishes in LONDON as wanted Church-yards:

The Device of the PAGEANT born before this Mayor, Octob. 29, 1585.

A SPEECH spoken by him that rid on a Luzarn before the PAGEANT, apparelled like a Moor.

From where the Sun doth settle in his Wayn,
And yokes his Horses to his fiery Carr,
And in his Way gives Life to Ceres Corne,
Even from the parching Zone, behold I come;
A Stranger, strangely mounted, as you see,
Seated upon a lusty Luzarn's Back,
And offer, to your Honour (good my Lord)
This Emblem thus in Showe significant.
Loe! lovely LONDON, riche and fortunate;
Fam'd through the World for Peace and Happiness;
Is here advanc'd and set in highest Seat,
Beautified throughly as her State requires.
First, over her a Princely Trophey stands,
Of beaten Gold; a riche and Royall Armes;
Whereto this LONDON ever more bequeathes
Service of Honour and Loyaltie.
Her Props are well-advised Magistrates,
That carefully attend her Person still.
The honest Franklin and the Husbandman,
Lays downe his Sackes of Corne at LONDON's Feet,
And brings such Presents as the Countie yeeldes.
The plesaunt Thames a sweet and dainty Nympe,
For LONDON's good convayes with gentle Streame,

And

And safe and easie Passage, what she can,
And keepes her leaping Fishes in her Lappe.
The Soldier and the Sayler franckly bothe,
For LONDON's Aid are all in Readiness,
To venture and to fight by Land and Sea.
And this thrice Reverend Honourable Dame,
Science, the Sap of every Commonwealth,
Surnam'd Mechanicall, or Liberall,
Is vow'd to honour LONDON with her Skill.
And LONDON, by these Freendes so happy made,

First thanks her God, the Author of her Peace;
And next with humble Gesture, as becomes,
In meeke and lowly Manner doth she yeeld, Herself, her Wealthe, with Heart and Willingness,

Upon the Person of her gracious Queene
Elizabeth, renowned through the World,
Stall'd and anointed by the highest Powre,
The God of Kings, that with his holy Hand
Hath long defended her and her England.
This now remains, Right Honorable Lord,
That carefully you do attend and keep
This lovely Lady rich and beautiful.
The Jewel wherewithal your Sovereigne Queen,
Hath put your Honour lovingly in Trust:
That you may add to LONDON's Dignity,
And LONDON's Dignity may add to yours,
That worthely you may be counted one,
Among the Number of a many moe:
Careful Leefテナunts, careful Magistrates,
For LONDON's Welfare and her Worthines.

D I X I.

Spoken by the Children in the PAGEANT, viz.

L O N D O N.

Here Troye I hight, whom Lud, my Lord, surnam'd,

LONDON, the Glory of the Western Side:
Throughout the World is lovely LONDON
fam'd,

So far as any Sea comes in with Tide.
Whose Peace and Calme under her Royal Queen,
Hath long been such as like was never seen.

Then let me live to caroll of her Name,
That she may ever live, and never dye:
Her sacred Shrine set in the House of Fame,
Consecrate to eternal Memorie.

My peerless Mistresse, Sovereigne of my Peace,
Long may she joy with Honour's great Increase.

M A G N A N I M I T Y.

The Country and the Thames afford their Aide,
And careful Magistrates their Care attend:
All English Hearts are glad, and well appaide,
In Readines their LONDON to defend.
Defend them, Lord, and these fair Nymphs likewise,
That ever they may do this Sacrifice.

The greatest Treasure that a Prince can have,
Doth lovely LONDON offer to her Queene;
Such Loyaltie as like was never seene,
And such as any English Heart can crave.

The C O U N T R Y.

For LONDON's Aid the Country gives Supplie
Of needful Things, and Store of every Graine.
LONDON, give thanks to him that sits on high,
Had never Towne less Cause for to complaine.
And love and serve the Sovereigne of thy Peace,
Under whose Raigne thou hast this rich Increase.

The T H A M E S.

With Silver glide my pleasant Streams do run,
Where leaping Fishes play betwixt the Shores:
This gracious good hath God so kinde begun
For LONDON's Use, with Help of Sails and Ores.

LONDON rejoyce, and give thy God the Praise,
For her whose Highness lengths thy happy Days.

The S O L D I E R.

Armour of safe Defence the Soldier hath,
So lovely LONDON carefully attends,
To keep her sacred Sovereigne from Skathe,
That all this English Land so well defends.
And so far LONDON bids her Soldiers goe,
As well may serve to sheeld this Land from Woe.

The S A I L O R.

The Sailor that in cold and quaking Tide,
The wrathful Storm of Winter's Rage doth bide,
With Streamers stretcht, prepares his merry Bark,
For Countries Wealth to set his Men awark.
That Queen and Country eazely may see,
The Seaman serves his Prince in his Degree.

S C I E N C E.

For LONDON's Safety, and her Happines,
The Soldier and the Sailor, may you see,
All well prepar'd, and put in Readiness,
To doo such Service as may fitting be.
I, Art, with them do joyne, and they with me.
LONDON then joy, and let all Ages knowe
What Duty to thy Sovereigne thou dost owe.

The First N Y M P H.

Thus with the Morning Sun and Evening Star
These holy Lights shall burne; the cheerful Flame
With sweetest Odour shall perfume as far
As India stands, in Honour of her Name.
Whose Trophie we adore with sacred Rights,
With sweetest Incense, and with endles Lights.

The Second N Y M P H.

So long as Sun doth lend the World his Light,
Or any Grasse doth grow upon the Ground,
With holy Flame our Torches shall burne bright,
And Fame shall brute, with golden Trumpets found,
The Honour of her sacred Regiment,
That claime this honourable Monument.

The Third N Y M P H.

Our holy Lights shall burne continually,
To signifie our Duties to her State:
Whose Excellent and Princely Majestye,
Approves it selfe to be most fortunate.

The Fourth N Y M P H.

Vertue shall witness of her Worthines
And Fame shall register her Princely Deeds;
The World shall still pray for her Happines,
From whom our Peace and Quietness proceeds.

VERSES written under the Arms of England.

Gallia victa dedit Flores, invicta Leones

A great Benefactor, and Founder of an Hospital, and endowed by him at Kirk Leedham in Yorkshire, in his Life-time; a brief Account whereof follows: It contains 40 Persons, viz. Ten old Men, and as many Women; all which must be of the Age of 63. Ten Boys, and as many Girls, their Age to be between Six and Eleven when admitted, who are all taught free; the Boys to read, write, and cast Accompts, by a Master; the Girls, to spin, card and sew, by a Mistress. To each Boy and Girl 2 s. 6 d. weekly; to the old Men and Women the same Allowance. The old Men to have Cloaks, and the Women Gowns, yearly. The Boys and Girls wear Blue Coats, as in Christ's Hospital. Each of the poor Folks have a lower Room, and another above it. There belong to the Hospital, a Chapel and a Chaplain, who is to read Prayers every Day, Morning and Evening, except on Days when Publick Prayers are said in the Church, whither they are then obliged to resort. The Salary to the Chaplain is 10 l. yearly. The Boys, when they go out from the School, which is at 17 or 18 Years of Age, have 3 l. to buy them Cloaths; and seven Years after, if not married, and have a good Character, are allowed 7 l. more and an Angel; and the Girls the same. The said poor Folks and Children have their Cloaths given them every Midsummer-Day, when they all in Order walk round the Court, and sing the Psalm, Blessed is the Man that careful is, &c. And then they repair to the Church, where the Chaplain reads the Orders to them.

In the same Town also is more lately erected a very fair, spacious and noble Structure, for a Free-School, and a Habitation for the Masters, the said Sir William Turner having left by his Will 5000 l. for the building and endowing of the same; the Master's Salary being 100 l. a Year, and the Usher's 50 l. Mr. William Oakley, of New College, Oxon, was appointed the first Master there about twenty Years ago, and Mr. Forder, Usher. Cholmley Turner, Esq; Nephew and Heir of Sir William Turner, sole Patron.

The said generous and Christian Benefactor lies interred under a comely Tomb, on the North Side of the Church-yard of the said Church of Kirk Leedham. The Inscription shews his Quality, and at the Bottom a Verse taken out of the Psalms, He hath dispersed abroad, he hath given to the Poor, his Righteousness endureth for ever.

Add to the rest, that he gave divers large Pieces of Silver Plate to the said Parish-Church, for the Use of the Communion.

Memorandum. Sir William Turner fined for Alderman before Alderman Starling, who held Sheriff the Year before him. But Turner was Mayor the Year before Starling, his Seniority of Alderman being reckon'd according to his fining.

By which Means it came to pass, that 1200 l. yearly Rent was paid for the same by the said Person.

Of the Antiquity of the MAYORALTY.

ALTHO' the Government of the City by Mayors is commonly reputed to begin with Henry Fitz-Alwyn, in the Beginning of King Rich. I.
yet

yet some Men, learned in the Antiquities of the City, affirm that Title of the Chief Magistrate to be antienter; for tho' no Name of a Mayor be found to be before the said Fitz-Alwyn, the Word Mayor, as Chief Officer of LONDON, is met with in the Time of Henry II. who was Father to King Richard. For it is found in a remarkable Book of the Archives of the City, that the Articles concerning the Pleas of the Crown were delivered to the Mayor, as well in the Time of King John and King Richard, as in the Times before them, viz. in those of King Henry II. their Father.

King Henry III. granted a Charter to the City, Anno 1233, to choose their own Mayor. The Charter, with the Terms thereof, is as follows:

Henricus Dei Gratia, &c. i. e. Henry by the Grace of God, &c. to the Archbishops, Bishops, &c. Greeting.

Know ye that we have granted, and by our present Charter have confirmed to our Barons of our said City of LONDON, that they choose them a Mayor of themselves every Year, Qui nobis sit fidelis, discretus, & ydoneus ad regimen Civitatis, i. e. who may be faithful to us, discreet, and fit for the Government of the City. Yet so, that when he is elected he be presented unto us, or our Justice (if we be not present) and swear Fealty to us; and that they may, in the End of the Year, remove him, and substitute another, if they will, or retain the same. Yet so, as the same be shewed unto us, or our Justice (if we shall not be present.)

We have granted also to our Barons, and have confirmed it by our Charter, that they have well and peaceably, quietly and entirely, all their Liberties which hitherto they have used, as well in the City of LONDON, as well in Water as on Land, and all other Places; saving to us our Chamberlainship. Wherefore we will, &c. Witnesses, L. Eustachius, LONDON, Peter, Winchester, John, Bath, Bishops: Hubert de Burgo, Earl of Kent, and our Justice, Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Glovern (of Gloucester) Ralph Fitz-Nicol, Richard de Argenton, our Stewards. Given by the Hands of the Venerable Father the Bishop of Chichester, our Chancellor, at Westminster, the 18th Day of February, in the 18th Year of our Reign.

It is also for the Honour of this great Magistrate of the City, that at any Prince's Coronation he is to attend as Chief Butler of England, and has a Benefit thereby; for (as it is found in the City Records) the Mayor of the City, by Reason of his Office of Mayoralty, Secundum libertates & consuetudines ejusdem Civitatis, prout Majores, Aldermanni, Vicecomites, & Cives ejusdem Civitatis facere consueverunt de toto tempore, i. e. According to the Liberties and Customs of the City, as the Mayors, Aldermen, Sheriffs and Citizens of the same City, have accustomed to do from all Times, claimed this Right, the 1st of Rich. III. by Prescription, and had it allowed at the Coronation; and so it is done in succeeding Times.

When several made their Claims at the Coronation of the said King Richard III. it is thus set down in one of the old Records of LONDON, Processus facti ad Coronationem Domini Regis Angli Richardi Secundi. "Memorandum, That the Mayor and Citizens of the City of LONDON, before the Lord Steward, appearing by the Recorder of the said City, claimed by Mouth, according to the Liberty and Custom of the said City, that the same Mayor, on Account of his Office of Mayoralty, may serve in his own Person our Lord the King, on the Day of his Coronation, as well in the "Hall as after Dinner in his Chamber, de Cupa Auri, to serve him with a Cup of Gold; and the same Cup, when he departed from the Feast of the said Lord King, together with an Ewer of Gold, to have for his Fee, and to carry away with him. And that the other Citizens, who should be chosen by the City, ought to serve the same Day in the Office of Butler, in the Aid of the Chief Butler, as well at the Table in the Hall at Dinner, as after Dinner in the Chamber, to the Nobles and others; as the Mayors and Citizens of the said City, their Predecessors, hitherto have, as is asserted, accustomed to do. And it was admitted by the King.

THERE is a large Entry made in one of the City Records of this Matter, which is thus translated: The Title is, Coronatio Domini Richardi Tertii, & Domine Anne Consortis sue, &c. i. e. The Coronation of the Lord Richard III. and the Lady Anne his Wife, &c.

To the Right High and Mighty Prince the Duke of Norfolk, Seneschal of England, SHOWN unto your good and gracious Lordship, the Mair and Citezeins of the Citee of LONDON, that where after the Liberty and commendable Customes of the said Citee, of Time no Man's Mind is to the contrary, used, enjoyed and accustomed, the Mair of the same Citee for the Time being, by Reason of the Office of Mairaltie of the said Citee, in his own Person, oweth of Right and Duty to serve the Kyng our Sovereigne Lord in the Day of his full noble Coronation, in such Place as it shall please his Highness to take his Spyces; and the same Cup, with the Kevering belonging thereunto, and a Layer of Gold, the said Mair to have, and with him to bear away at the Time of departing, for his Fee and Reward.

And also, that divers other Citezeins, that by the said Mair and Citee shall thereto be named and chosen, owen of Right by the same Custom at the same Day to serve in the Office of Butlership, in helping the Chief Butler of England, to the Lords and Estates that shall be at the said Coronation, as well at the Table in the Hall at Meat, as after Meat in the Chamber.

Beseechen your said Lordship, that Edmund Shaa, now Mair, and other Citezeins of the Citee aforesaid, to the said Office and Service now chosen; whose Names, in a Schedule hereunto annexed, be specified; may be admitted to do the same Service as their Predecessors, Mairs and Citezeins of the said Citee, in Case semblable, have used in Dayes passed.

Also, the said Mair and Citezeins praen, that they may sit in the Day of the said Coronation, at the Table next the Cupboard, of the list Side of the Hall; lyke as of late Tyme it hath been used and accustomed. And that the said Mair may have and enjoy the said Fee and Reward, according to the Duetie.

THE like Bill was offered to the same Duke, for the Coronation of the Queen, mutatis mutandis.

THE said King and Queen were crowned at Westminster, the 6th of July. And in the Day of the Coronation of the said King and Queen, after the Feast was finished; in which, as well Edmund Shaa, Mayor, as the Aldermen and other Citizens elected by the Common-Council, to attend upon the Chief Butler of England, according to Custom, were kindly and honourably handled. And the same Mayor, after Dinner ended, as before was said, offered to the said Lord the King, Wine in a Gold Cup, cum Fiola Aurca, i. e. with a Golden Viol of Water

ter (ad attenuand' Vinum) to temper the Wine. After that the Wine was taken by the Lord King, the Mayor retained the said Cup and Viol of Gold to his own proper Use. In like Manner the Mayor offered to the Queen, after the Feast ended, Wine in a Golden Cup, with a Gold Viol full of Water. And after the Wine taken by the said Queen, she gave the Cup with the Viol to the Mayor, according to the Privileges, Liberties, and Customs of the City of LONDON, in such Cases used.

CONCERNING the Policy of the Government of this City by this Magistrate, his Magnificence and Grandure, and the Freedom of the Citizens under his Influence, thus one, not named, in Queen Elizabeth's Reign, writes: "Strangers do no less envy than admire the Manner of it; seeing so populous a City, containing, by true Estimation, more than 500,000 of all Sorts of Inhabitants, managed not by cruel Viceroy, as in Naples or Milain; neither by a proud Podesta, as be most Cities in Italy; or insolent Lieutenants, or Presidents, as are sundry Cities in France, (whose Presidents are Noblemen or Captains, environed with a Guard of Soldiers, and holding their Cities possessed with a Garrison, as well in the quietest Calm of Peace, as in the hottest Combustion of War) but by a Man of Trade, or a meer Merchant; who, notwithstanding, during the Time of his Magistracy, carrieth himself with that honourable Magnificence in his Port, and Ensigns of Estate, that the Consuls, Tribunes, or Prætors of Rome (namely, when as the same was reduced to a Monarchy) much less the Podesta of any City in Italy, never bore the like Representation of Dignity; and that not only in Peaceable Seasons, but in Time of greatest War: For such Credit the Princes of this Land have reposed in their Fidelity and Direction, that we have few Examples in any Chronicle of any Nobleman, or other, appointed to assist the Lord Mayor in his Government; much less to be sole Ruler or Lieutenant for the Time, were the State never so troublesome, and the Affairs of never so great Consequence and Importance.

THERE are divers Ordinances and Privileges for the Mayors of LONDON, in the antient Records of the City: As,

THAT none be chosen Mayor again for five Years after the Year he was Mayor. Afterwards a Law was made, that none should be Mayor again but seven Years after he had been Mayor. Another Order was, that none should be Mayor but twice.

THAT no Mayors or Aldermen be Braciatores, i. e. Brewers, (who formerly kept Drinking-Houses sometimes.)

THAT the Servants of the Mayor be sworn to make and take the Rights or Dues of the Mayor.

THE Mayor ought to serve the King on the Day of his Coronation.

THAT the Mayor have two Hogheads of Wine, to forbear making six Men Free; according to an antient Custom. And again, by another Order,

THAT the Mayor have 40 Marks to cease to make Men Free.

A Fine of 100 Marks was laid upon one, for a Rebellion made to a Mayor.

ONE was imprisoned, because he would not come at the Mayor's Summons.

ONE made a Fine of 100 Hogheads of Wine, because he despised the Mayor, by calling him An evil Mayor.

Note, A great Dissension once [about the End of the Reign of King Edward III.] in the Election of a Mayor; some favouring one Man, and

some another; for which a third Man was chosen, and neither of them contended for was Mayor for that Year.

THIS great Officer, the Lord Mayor, has divers Privileges belonging to him; some of which are as follow: As the Head of the City, he is the Principal in all Commissions of Felony, &c. and the Chief Judge for the Jail-Delivery at the Sessions for Newgate. He is Conservator for the Rivers Thames and Medway. In all Commissions touching the River Lea, he is always one. He is Coroner within the City and Liberties. He is Chief Butler to the King at his Coronation, as was shewn before. And if the Commonalty choose a Mayor in the Absence of the present Mayor, for the next Year, the Election is void. Upon the Death of any of the Officers belonging to the Lord Mayor, during his Mayoralty, others are to be put in their Stead by him; which often proves very advantageous to him.

FOR his Domestick Attendance, it is very honourable. He has four Officers that wait on him, who are Esquires by their Places, as shall be seen in due Place; besides 29 or 30 other daily Attendants, many of whom have their Servants.

WHEN the Lord Mayor goes Abroad, he is usually accompanied with the Sheriffs, either on Horseback or in their Coaches, and other Officers walking by in their Gowns, on each Side. The Lord Mayor is always habited in a long Robe, sometimes of fine Scarlet Cloth, richly furred, sometimes in Purple, and sometimes over his Robes a Hood of Black Velvet (which some say is a Badge of a Baron of the Realm) with a great Chain of Gold hanging about his Neck; or sometimes a Collar of SS, with a rich Jewel pendant thereon.

THESE are usually the Lord Mayor's Attendants when he goes to the City, or to keep Courts at Guildhall, which is every Tuesday throughout the Year; except Holidays, or in Sessions Time; and the whole Month of August.

BUT upon the 29th of October, when he goes to Westminster in his Barge, accompanied with the Aldermen, all the City Officers, with the Companies of the City in their several Barges, adorned with Streamers, Pendants, Colours, and loud Musick, viz. Drums, Trumpets, Hautboys, &c. to take his Oath in the Exchequer Chamber, administer'd to him by the Barons of the Exchequer, viz. To be true to the great Trust reposed in him, he appears in great State. The like at his Return to Guildhall; where there is prepared a most sumptuous Dinner; to which many of the Nobility, the Judges, and divers Publick Officers are invited; and many Times Kings and Queens have been pleased to honour that Feast with their Presence.

UPON the Death of the King, the Lord Mayor is said to be the Prime Person of England; for when King James I. was invited to come and take the Crown of England; upon the Death of Queen Elizabeth, Sir Rob. Lee, then Lord Mayor, subscribed in the first Place, before all the great Officers of the Crown; and all the Nobility.

THIS great Magistrate is always chosen on Michaelmas-Day; by the Liverymen of the several Companies; out of the 26 Aldermen: In which Election the Senior Alderman below the Chair is usually elected, which Method hath, for the Preservation of the City's Peace, been long observed; except in the Year 1722, when some Endeavours were used to break through it, and set aside Sir Gerard Conyers; but to no Purpose.

TIME out of Mind, the Mayor of LONDON hath been of such high Esteem; that in all Writings or Addresses to him, the Title of Lord is prefixed; which is given to none but Noblemen, Bishops, and Judges; and of late to the Mayor of York.

Privileges of the Lord Mayor.

His Attendance: His four Officers Esquires by their Places.

The Lord Mayor's going to Westminster to be sworn.

The Lord Mayor or has the Title of Lord.

THE Lord Mayor of LONDON, for his great Dignity, is usually Knighted.

THE Custom and Form of electing this chief Officer of the City will be declared hereafter.

THE Masters, Wardens, Assistants, and as many as please of the other Members of the Livery of each Company, do annually invite themselves to dine with the Lord Mayor at his House, towards the Beginning of the Year, by sending to him some of their Members with a Purse and divers Papers of Money in it, each Paper containing two, three, five, or more Guineas in it, and expressing the Name and Place of Abode of the Person that sent them. And then on the Day that the Lord Mayor appoints, they meet at some convenient Place, and so go together to dine with him. Who, in Requital, towards the latter End of his Year, sends an Officer to every Man's House with the Present of a Silver Spoon Gilt, and withal invites them and their Wives to dine with him and the Lady Mayoreſs at his House on such a Day.

Now for the Sheriffs of LONDON and Middleſex: They were of old Time chosen out of the Commonalty, Commoners, and oftentimes never came to be Aldermen; as many Aldermen were never Sheriffs, and yet advanced to be Mayors; but of later Time, by Occasion, the Sheriffs have been Aldermen before, or presently after the Election.

Nicholas Farendon was never Sheriff, yet four Times Mayor of this City; and so of others: Which reproves a By-Word, Such a One will be Mayor before he is Sheriff.

FORMERLY the elder Sheriff was nominated by the Lord Mayor, by his drinking to such a Person whom he thought fit, calling him by the Name of Sheriff for the ensuing Year, wherefore he was, whether present or absent; and this Nomination was customarily confirmed by the Commonalty; but of late the Commons contended against that Custom; and so both the Sheriffs were elected by the Livery Men of each Company: The Time, the Method, and the Form thereof, shall be shewn hereafter. Now, very lately, the old Custom of the Lord Mayor's nominating a Sheriff, is again appointed and ordered by Act of Common-Council. And Sir John Parsons, Mayor, Anno 1704, was the first after that Act that nominated a Sheriff. The said Act shall, in due Place, be specified.

As to the Office of the Sheriffs, it belongs to them to serve the King's Writs of Process, be they Summons, Attachments, or otherwise, to compel Men to answer to the Law for the seizing on Goods, Lands, or Bodies, as the Cause requires; also all Extents, Writs of Profession, &c. And for the better Execution of this Office, after a Resistance, the Sheriff may raise the Posse Comitatus. He is to return Juries for Trials of Mens Lives, Liberties, Lands, and Goods; and upon Actions on the Case for Assaults and Battery, Defamations, Trespasses, &c. And such Jury-Men ought to be of honest Repute, and of good Ability to consider of, and deliver their Verdicts according to Justice and the Merit of the Cause. He ought to look after the keeping the Publick Peace. He is to see condemned Persons executed according to their Sentence, except pardoned by the King's Grace. He is to gather in and collect the Publick Monies, by Fines, &c. that belong to the King; and to be accountable for, and to pay the same into the Exchequer, first deducting his Publick Expences customarily allowed to the Sheriffs. If a Rescue be made after an Arrest, the Rescuer is liable to be sued, and to pay the Debt. In all Cases where the King is Party, the Sheriff may break open Doors, if Entrance be denied him; not upon any private Process, but upon Process of Outlawry, after Judgment, he may do it, or untile the House to come in; but in all Cases where the Door is open, he may enter, and make Execution of his Writ.

FOR the better performing of this Office, the Sheriffs jointly have their Under-Sheriff, who is always an Attorney, and generally of known Parts; who enters into Security for his just Performance of an Office of so great Trust; for the Under-Sheriff acts all for the County, but hath no Concern within the City and Liberty of LONDON, and keeps his Office in some convenient Place for the same, having his Deputy, and several Clerks to do the Office and Business: And for Bailiffs, there is no Want of them.

FOR the City of LONDON, and the Liberties, the Sheriffs have each their Compter or Prison, and to each their peculiar Officers; as, a Secondary, Clerk-sitters, a Prison-Keeper, with Serjeants and their Yeomen, for Arrests, Attachments, Executions, &c.

THEY have likewise each their Court, with a Judge belonging to it, for the Trials of all Causes on such Arrests. Of this Court more will be said in due Place. The Lord Mayor and Citizens have the Sheriffalty of LONDON in Fee, and Sheriffs are Guardians under them.

THE following are certain antient Fees due to the Mayor and Sheriffs.

Of the ALDERMEN.

BESIDES these annual Magistrates of the City, The Aldermen viz. the Mayors and Sheriffs, which are elected continual Magistrates. but for a Year, and on whom the main Government of the whole City relies, there are other Magistrates, who being once elected, are continual, namely, the Aldermen. And these have their particular Shares and Parts of the City committed to their Charge and Oversight respectively; having also their Deputies under them.

THERE are in this City (according to the Number of Wards) six and twenty Aldermen; out of which yearly on the Feast of St. Michael the Archangel, one who hath served Sheriff, is elected to be Mayor for the Year following. He is to begin and take Place on the 28th Day of October then next after his Election. The other Aldermen his Brethren are to him Assistants in Councils and Courts.

SEVERAL

SEVERAL antient Customs, Rules and Passages concerning the Aldermen of LONDON, may be observed out of the Records of the Chamber: Some whereof are these that follow:

NEITHER Mayor nor Aldermen to hold Bracium, i. e. a Brew-house or Tavern, or Bake-house; nor their Servants.

AN Alderman removed from his Office, or a Commoner from Common-Council, not to be re-elected.

AN Alderman lost his Liberty, because he was absent from the City for the greater Part of the Year.

AN Alderman lined not his Cloak, which he ought to use in Procession: Therefore it was adjudged by the Court, That the Mayor and Aldermen should all breakfast with him. [Perhaps this was some covetous Alderman, and this Punishment was to meet with him that Way.]

ONE was judged and imprisoned for false Words spoken of an Alderman.

ONE Gydney was imprisoned, because he refused the Office of an Alderman.

AN Alderman was once rejected because he was inhabilis, i. e. unable.

ONE was imprisoned at the Command of an Alderman.

HERETOFORE the Mayor and Aldermen came to Guildhall but once a Week.

THAT the Custodes of the City should have one Roll of the Pleas in the Mayor's Court, and the Aldermen another.

A Brief [that is, a Mandate from the Court] to admit Richard Whittington for Mayor in the Place of Adam Bammie, deceased, to the Time wherein it is customary for a Mayor to be chosen.

An Alderman was once elected and sworn Recorder.

ONE was imprisoned, and his Right Hand cut off, because he had made an Assault upon an Alderman.

Another imprisoned for Rebellion made to an Alderman. And another for opprobrious Words spoken to an Alderman.

THE Door-keeper of the Accomptant [Computatoris] removed, for speaking opprobrious Words to an Alderman.

IMPRISONMENT for a Year and a Day, and Loss of Freedom, for Rebellion made to an Alderman.

THAT four Persons ought to be presented, and one of them chosen for Alderman. This was confirmed by Common-Council.

THE Nomination of Aldermen elected by the Wards, rejected.

SOME Aldermen chosen by the Wards, for whom the Wards have been bound to answer.

AN Act of Parliament, that Aldermen be not removed every Year, but stand in their Office durante vita, unless there be a reasonable Cause.

A Brief [i. e. a Letter from the King] to choose an Alderman of Faringdon Ward Infra, and another of Faringdon Ward Extra; because it was too much for one Man to occupy both Wards.

Two Shillings granted to the Aldermen of every Seisin.

NONE to be Aldermen, unless born within the Kingdom of England, and his Father an Englishman.

THAT the Inhabitants of the Wards, in the Election of an Alderman, name not in their Election more than two.

THE Aldermen have been required in former Times to gather up all Debts due to the King, each in their Wards.

THE Aldermen, who may be called the Senators of the City, are chosen by the Common-Council-Men and others of the Livery residing in the respective Ward, when there is a Vacancy by Death. If any thus elected refuse to hold, he is fined: But this rarely happens.

YET this hath sometimes happen'd, when Men, either not caring to spend their Money, or affecting Retirement and a private Life, have endeavour'd, by some Means or other, to get themselves excused from being called upon, either for Alderman or Sheriff. Yet when able Men have thus declined this Honourable Service of the City, the Freemen have not taken it well at their Hands, and withal have refused to grant their Request. Such an Instance happen'd in Queen Elizabeth's Days. One Branch (who notwithstanding afterwards served Sheriff and Mayor) sued to be discharged of the Office of Sheriff and Alderman; thereby also to be discharged of the Office of Mayor, when that should come to his Turn. But the Commons, upon this, expostulated the Case in some Displeasure; and shewed, first, his Abilities, as he was of great Wealth in Lands and Goods, and without Issue; and moreover, had married with one Mrs. Minors, an antient Woman, without Issue, and in all Account past Child-bearing; the Widow of Mr. Minors, who also was rich, and died without Issue, and left his Substance to his Wife. It was urged also, that his Father and Grandfather were also Citizens of LONDON: So that, in all Mens Opinions, they said, there was not a Man in LONDON, whose Suit in this Matter could be more unreasonable. That the Example were perilous to the City, considering the great Charge that was to be born in these Offices, and the Unwillingness of miserable rich Men to take that Charge upon them. For one Precedent being had, they by this and like Ways would always travail to be discharged; and good Men, weaker in Wealth, should, for Love to the City, be driven to undo themselves, by taking such Offices upon them; and, finally, the City unserved.

THE Wards are to elect their Aldermen and Common-Council-Men. But for the regulating and adjusting of the Nomination of an Alderman, and electing of Common-Council-Men from Time to Time, was an Act of Common-Council made, Sir Thomas Stamp, Mayor, Anno 1692. By which Act it was declared "That it is, and antiently hath been the Right and Privilege of the Freemen of the City only, being Householders, paying Scot and bearing Lot, and of none other whatsoever, in their respective Wards, from Time to Time to nominate Aldermen, and elect Common-Council-Men. And it was enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That at all Wardmotes the Beadles of the respective Wards shall prepare and deliver to the Aldermen of the several Wards, or to such as shall be deputed and authorized to hold the same, one List of all the Freemen aforesaid, dwelling within the respective Wards, and also another List of other Householders within the Ward; to the Intent that such Freemen, Householders within the Wards only, as often as there is Occasion, may nominate Aldermen and elect Common-Council-Men; and that together with other Householders they may choose their Constables, Scavengers, Inquest and Beadles. And to all and every Precept and Precepts hereafter to issue, and to be sent out for summoning Wardmotes, this present Act be annexed and affixed: And before any Nomination or Election, the same to be publickly read and declared to the Persons who shall be and appear at such Courts."

ALL the Aldermen that have pass'd the Chair, and the three eldest Aldermen that have not been Mayors, are, by their Charter, Justices of the Peace within the City and Freedom thereof.

THE following is an Account of the WARDS and their ALDERMEN, as they stand at present.

BESIDES the Mayor, Sheriffs and Aldermen, there are several other eminent Officers belonging to the City.

First, There is a Recorder of the City of The Recorder.
LONDON, a grave and learned Lawyer, skillful in the Customs of the City: Also he is to be a chief Assistant to the Lord Mayors, for their better Direction in Matters of Justice and Law. He takes Place in Councils and in Courts, before any Man that hath not been Mayor, and learnedly delivers the Sentences of the whole Court.

THE Qualifications of the Recorder of the City are thus set down in one of the Books of the Chamber: That "He shall be, and is wont to be, one of the most skillful and virtuous Apprentices of the Law of the whole Kingdom: Whose Office is always to sit on the Right Hand of the Mayor, in recording Pleas, and passing Judgments; and by whom Records and Processes, had before the Mayor and Aldermen at Great St. Martin's, ought to be recorded by Word of Mouth before the Judges assigned there the correct Errors. The Mayor and Aldermen have therefore used commonly to set forth all other Businesses, touching the City, before the King and his Council, as also in certain of the King's Courts, by Mr. Recorder, as a chief Man endued with Wisdom, and eminent for Eloquence. His Qualifications.

THE Fee of the Recorder was sometimes more, and sometimes less, according to Time and Merit, as appears in the fourth Book of Liber Albus. After, the Recorder's Fee was settled at an hundred Marks: And he was to have of the Chamber such Vesture (Lineatam vel penulatom) lined or faced, and as often as the Mayor and Aldermen take every Year. And his Clerk, such as the Serjeants of the Chamber. The Recorder and his Clerk are wont to sit at the Mayor's Table.

WHAT the Recorder's Office was long ago demanded to be, to wit, in the Year 1304, may be worthy to be read out of a Record, viz. Die Lune, &c. "On Monday after the Feast of the Conversion of St. Paul, in the 32d of King Edward, before the Lords, John le Blund, Mayor, John de Burreforch, Sheriff, William de Beton, Walter de Fynchingfeld, William de Leyre, Thomas Romeyn, Adam de Folham, John of Canterbury, Simon de Paris, John de Dunstable, Richard de Gloucestre, Henry de Loucestre, Adam de Rokefle, &c. Aldermen, meeting together, John de Wengrave, Alderman and Recorder, was sworn, well and faithfully to render all the Judgments of the Hustings, after the Mayor and Aldermen should meet

" meet concerning their Pleas, and agreed together; and also all other Judgments touching the City of LONDON, &c. And that he shall do Justice as well to Poor as Rich. And that all the Pleas of the Hustings, presently after the Hustings is finished, he shall oversee, order, and cause to be enrolled, according to the Things pleaded, &c. And that he shall come prepared to dispatch the Business of the City, &c. when he shall be lawfully warned by the Mayor and Bailiffs. For which Labour the abovesaid Mayor and Aldermen have yielded to give the aforesaid John 10 l. Sterling by Year out of their Chamber, and 20 d. of each Charter written, and each Testament enrolled in the said Hustings, &c.

The present Recorder is Sir William Thomson, Knt.

The CORONER of LONDON:

Called so a Corona, i. e. a Crown, because he deals principally with the Crown; or, in Matters appertaining to the Imperial Crown of England. As to the Antiquity of this Office: There were Coroners in the Time of King Alfred, as appears by the Book, intituled, The Miroir. The Lord Mayor for the Time being is Coroner, but hath his Deputy for the Management thereof. In antient Time this Office was of such great Esteem, that none could execute it under the Degree of a Knight. As the Sheriff may enquire of all Felonies, so the Coroner is to enquire of all sudden Deaths: And to that End he impannels a Jury, takes Evidence upon Oath, and gives the Charge to the Jury.

In former Times this Officer was nominated and appointed by the King. In 51 Edw. III. the Citizens prayed, That they might place and displace a Coroner among themselves, answering unto the King what belongs thereunto. It was answered, The King will not depart with his antient Right.

To the Right of bearing which Sword, in the Chamber of LONDON, this Observation is to be made, according to an antient Writer of Armoury: "That the Bearer must carry it upright, the Hilts being holden under his Bulk, and the Blade directly up the Midst of his Breast, and so forth between the Sword-Bearer's Brows. This, in Distinction from bearing the Sword in any Town for a Duke, or an Earl, or a Baron. If a Duke, the Blade thereof must lean from the Head between the Neck and the right Shoulder,

VOL. II.

"nearer to the Head than the Shoulder. And "for an Earl, the Bearer must carry the same "between the Point of the Shoulder and the "Bearing of the Sword for a Baron.

The SHERIFFS OFFICERS.

THE Sheriffs also of LONDON, as the Sheriffs Officers. Mayor, for the State of the City, had their Officers. In the Year 1471; they were appointed each of them to have 16 Serjeants, every Serjeant to have his Yeoman. And six Clerks, viz. a Secondary, a Clerk of the Papers, and four other Clerks; besides the Under-Sheriffs Clerks, their Stewards, Butlers, Porters, and others in Household, many.

Of the MAYORS and SHERIFFS Liveries.

Now to say something of the Mayors and Sheriffs Liveries: To follow Precedent of former Times, the Clerks of Companies were to enquire for them of their Companies that would have the Mayor's Livery, their Money (as a Benevolence given) which must be 20 s. at least, put in a Purse, with their Names that gave it, and the Wardens to deliver it to the Mayor by the first of December. For which every Man had then sent him four Yards of Broad-Cloth, rowed or striped thwart with a different Colour, to make him a Gown, and these were called Rey-Gowns, which was then the Livery of the Mayor; and also of the Sheriffs; but each differing from others in the Colours.

Of older Times the Officers of the City wore Gowns of Party-Colours, as, the Right Side of one Colour, and the Left of another; as, for Example, it was in the Book of Accounts in Guildhall, that in the 19th Year of Henry VI. there was bought for an Officer's Gown two Yards of Cloth, coloured Mustard Villars (a Colour now out of Use) and two Yards of Cloth coloured Blue, Price 2 s. the Yard, in all, 8 s.

More, paid to John Pope, Draper, for two Gown-Cloths, eight Yards of two Colours, eux ombo deux de Rouge (or Red) Medley Brune and Porre (or Purple) Colour, Price, the Yard, 2 s. These Gowns were for Piers Rider and John Buckles, Clerks of the Chamber.

IN the Year 1516, in the 7th of Henry VIII. it was agreed by a Common-Council in Guildhall, that the Sheriffs of LONDON should (as they had been accustomed) give yearly Reyed Gowns to the Recorder, Chamberlain, Common-Serjeant and Common-Clerk, the Sword-Bearer, Common-Hunt, Water-Bailiff, Common-Crier, like as to their own Officers, &c.

MORE, Anno 1525, in the 16th of Henry VIII. Sir William Baily, then being Mayor, made a Request, (for that Cloths of Bay (as he alledged) were evil wrought, his Officers might be permitted (contrary to Custom) for that Year, to wear Gowns of one Colour; to which (in a Common-Council) one answered, and said, Yea, it might be permitted; and no Man said Nay, and so it passed. Thus much for Party-coloured and Rey Gowns. But for Benevolence to the Mayor, says Stow, of later Time, each Man giving 40 s. towards his Charges, received four Yards of Broad Cloth to make him a Gown; for Sir Thomas White performed it in the first Year of Queen Mary; but Sir Thomas Lodge gave (instead of four Yards of Broad Cloth) three Yards of Satten to make them Doublets. And since that, the three Yards of Satten is now turned into a Silver Spoon, and so it holds.

So that at the Feast of Richard Gresham, this 23 Hen. VIII. which was Anno 1538, were, Messes of Meat, 111 one half, and Guests of the Freemen entertained at Guildhall, 273; besides the Wardens of each Company, reckoning two to each Company, 120. In all 393.

THESE Companies severally, at sundry Times, purchased the King's Favour and Licence, by his Letters Patents, to associate themselves in Brotherhoods, with Masters and Wardens, for their Government. Many also have procured Corporations, with Privileges, &c. But they had no Licence procured by them, as Stow could find, for Liveries to be worn, but at their Governors Discretion to appoint, as Occasion required, sometimes in a triumphant Manner, sometimes more like Mourning. And such Liveries have they taken upon them, as well before as since they were by Licence associated into Brotherhoods, or Corporations. For the first of these Companies, that Stow says he read of to be a Guild, Brotherhood, or Fraternity in this City, were the Weavers, whose Guild was confirmed by Henry II. The next Fraternity, which was of St. John Baptist, Time out of Mind, called of Tailors, and Linen-Armourers of LONDON, was confirmed by Edward I. who gave to the Brethren thereof Authority yearly to choose to them a Governor, or Master, with Wardens, &c. The other Companies afterwards purchased Licence of Societies, Brotherhoods, or Corporations, in the Reigns of Edw. III. Rich. II. Hen. IV. Hen. V. Hen. VI. Edw. IV. &c.

Somewhat

Somewhat of LIVERIES worn by the Citizens of LONDON, in Times of Triumphs, and otherwise.

IN the Year 1236, 20 Henry III. the Mayor, Aldermen, Sheriffs, and Citizens of LONDON, rode out to meet the King, and his new Wife, Queen Eleanor, Daughter to Raymond Berengarius, of Arragon, Earl of Provence and Narbonne. The Citizens were cloathed in long Garments, embroidered about with Gold and Silk of divers Colours; their Horses finely trapped, to the Number of 360; every Man bearing a Golden or Silver Cup in his Hand; the King's Trumpets before them sounding, &c.

Anno 1300, 29 Edward I. the said King took to Wife Margaret, Sister to Philip le Bel, King of France; they were married at Canterbury. The Queen was conveyed to LONDON; to meet whom, the Citizens, to the Number of 600, rode in one Livery of Red and White, with the Cognizance of their Mysteries embroidered upon their Sleeves. They received her four Miles out of LONDON, and so conveyed her to Westminster.

Anno 1415, 3 Henry V. the said King arriving at Dover, the Mayor of LONDON, with the Aldermen and Craftsmen riding in Red, with Hoods Red and White, met with the King at Black-heath, coming from Eltham, with his Prisoners out of France.

Anno 1432, 10 Henry VI. he being crowned in France, returning into England, came to Eltham towards LONDON; and the Mayor of LONDON, John Welles, the Aldermen, with the Commonalty, rode to meet him on Horseback; the Mayor in Crimson Velvet, a great Velvet Hat furred, a Girdle of Gold about his Middle, and a Bawdrike of Gold about his Neck, trilling down behind him; his three Henchmen on three great Coursers following him, in one Suit of Red spangled with Silver. Then the Aldermen in Gowns of Scarlet with Sanguine Hoods; and all the Commonalty of the City cloathed in White Gowns and Scarlet Hoods, with divers Cognizances embroidered on their Sleeves, &c.

Anno 1485, 1 Henry VII. the Mayor, Aldermen, Sheriffs and Commonalty, all cloathed in Velvet, as in Mourning, met the King at Shoreditch, and conveyed him to St. Paul's Church where he offered his Banners, taken at the Victory of Bosworth over King Richard III.

THUS much for Liveries of Citizens in ancient Times, both in Triumphs and otherwise, may suffice; whereby may be observed, that the Coverture of Mens Heads was then Hoods; for neither Cap or Hat is spoken of, except that John Welles, Mayor of LONDON, was said to wear a Hat in Time of Triumph; but differing from the Hats now in Use, and commonly worn for Noblemens Liveries. Thomas Earl of Lancaster, in the Reign of Edward II. gave at Christmas in Liveries to such as served him, 159 Broad Cloths, allowing to every Garment Furs, to Fur their Hoods.

Stow mentions Pictures he had seen of Aldermen in the Reigns of Henry VI. and Edward IV. particularly of Alderman Darby, who dwelled in Fenchurch-street, in a Gown of Scarlet, and a Hood on his Head.

THERE was also, in the Glass-Windows of the old Guildhall, the Picture of a Mayor sitting in a Habit Party-coloured, and a Hood on his Head; his Sword-Bearer before him with an Hat, or Cap of Maintenance: The Town-Clerk, and other Officers, bare-headed, their Hoods on their Shoulders.

Hen. VIII. (towards the latter End of his Reign) wore a round flat Cap of Scarlet, or of Velvet, with a Bruch, or Jewel, and a Feather. Divers Gentlemen, Courtiers, and others, did the like. The youthful Citizens also took them to the new Fashion of flat Caps, knit of Woollen Yarn, black; but so light, that they were forced to tie them under their Chins, for else the Wind would be Master over them. The Use of these flat, round Caps so far encreased (being of less Price than the French Bonnet) that in short Time some young Aldermen took the wearing of them. Sir John White wore it in his Mayoralty, and was the first that left Example to his Followers.

THESE Hoods were worn, the Roundlets upon their Heads, the Skirts to hang behind in their Necks to keep them warm; the Tippet to lie on their Shoulder, or to wind about their Necks. These Hoods were in old Time made in Colours according to their Gowns, which were of two Colours, as Red and Blue, or Red and Purple, Murrey, or as it pleased their Masters and Wardens to appoint to the Companies. But now of late Time they have used their Gowns to be all of one Colour, and that of the saddest.

The Order observed by the LORD MAYOR, the ALDERMEN and SHERIFFS, for their Meetings and Wearing of their Apparel throughout the whole Year, according as it has formerly been used.

The First Day of August (which is now turned to Midsummer Day) for the Election of the Sheriffs of LONDON, &c.

THE Lord Mayor and Aldermen, with the Sheriffs, meet at Guildhall at Eight o'Clock in the Morning, apparelled in their Violet Gowns lined, and their Cloaks of Scarlet lined, without their Horses.

AND when they have been together in the Council-Chamber a certain Time at their Pleasures, [concerning the Nomination of certain Persons to be elected] the Lord Mayor and the Aldermen come forth, and put on their Cloaks in the Orphans Court, and then go down in Order to the Hustings Court; where being set, Mr. Recorder stands up, before the Bench and Companies for the same Cause there assembled, and makes his Obeisance, first to the Lord Mayor, and then to the Commons, and declares to them the Reason why they are assembled together; shewing to them, that it is for the Election of one of the Sheriffs of LONDON, and the Shire of Middlesex for the Year next ensuing; and for the Confirmation of the other Sheriff, nominated by the Lord Mayor, according to his Prerogative.

BUT the Lord Mayor and Aldermen go up into the Lord Mayor's Court, and there remain till the Sheriff be named and chosen, the Door being shut to them all the while.

THEN Mr. Sheriffs, Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Common-Serjeant, Mr. Town-Clerk, the two Secondaries, and the Counsellors of the City, and other Officers, continue still in the Hustings Court, to take and receive the Name of him that shall seem (by their Judgments) freely, and with one Consent, to be nominated and elected, and justly tried out, not only by Voice, but also by Hands, to be Sheriff for the Year following.

THEN the Commons go to the Election of Mr. Chamberlain; the two Bridge-Masters; the Auditors of the City and Bridge-House Accounts; and the Aleconners, according to the accustomed Manner.

THAT done, the Sheriffs, Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Common-Serjeant, Mr. Town-Clerk, the

*Hoods, antiently the Covering of Mens Heads, not

two Secondaries, the Counsellors of the City, and the Wardens of the Head Companies [Mr. Common-Cryer going before them, bearing his Mace] carry up the Report to the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of their said Election.

WHICH Report being received, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen come down again to the Hustings Court. And there being in Order set and placed, Mr. Recorder stands up, as he did before, and makes Rehearsal of his Name whom they have nominated and chosen; asking them, Whether it be their free Election, yea or nay? And they grant, yea, yea. Then Mr. Recorder gives them Thanks, and so they arise and depart home.

IN Case any Debates arise about the Election, so that a Poll be demanded, as of late Years it has often happened, then the Court is adjourned from Time to Time, till it be ended; and the Books cast up; and those that have the most Voices carry it.

On BARTHOLOMEW-EVE, for the Fair in Smithfield.

THE Aldermen meet the Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs at Guildhall Chapel, after Dinner, in their Violet Gowns furred, and there hear Evening Prayer; which being done, they go to Newgate, and so to the Gate entering into Cloth-fair; there they make a Proclamation, and then ride through Cloth-fair, and so return back again to Aldersgate, and so to the Lord Mayor's House.

On BARTHOLOMEW-DAY, artiently for the Wrestling.

So many Aldermen as dined with the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, were apparelled in their Scarlet Gowns, lined; and after Dinner, their Horses being brought to them where they dined, those Aldermen who dined with the Sheriffs, rode with them to the Lord Mayor's House, to accompany him to the Wrestling. When the Wrestling was done, they took their Horses and rode back again through the Fair, and so in at Aldersgate, and then home again to the Lord Mayor's House.

The Sunday after BARTHOLOMEW-DAY.

THE Aldermen met the Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs at St. Paul's Cross, at Eight o'Clock in the Morning, apparelled in their Scarlet Gowns, lined, without Cloaks or Horses, and there heard the Sermon; and if there was a Wrestling, or a Shooting, after Dinner, then they came to my Lord's Place with their said Scarlet Gowns, lined, and their Horses, as before, on Bartholomew-Day.

BUT afterwards the Custom altered, and then the Order was thus:

THE next Day after Bartholomew-Day (if it be not Sunday) is appointed for the Shooting, and the Service performed as upon Bartholomew-Day; but if it be Sunday, the Sabbath-Day, it was referred to the Monday then following.

For the Day of our LADY Fair in Southwark, September the 8th.

THE Lord Mayor and Sheriffs rode to St. Magnus's Church in their Scarlet Gowns, lined, without their Cloaks, after Dinner at Two o'Clock; and there the Aldermen met the Lord Mayor; and after the Evening Prayer they rode through the Fair, till they came to St. George's Church, and further to Newington Bridge, or to St. Thomas of Waterings, to the Stones that point out the Liberties of the City (if it be their Plea-tures) and then return over the Bridge, or to the Bridge-House, where they refresh themselves with a Banquet; and there the Aldermen take their Leave of the Lord Mayor, and depart the next Way, every one unto his own House. After all this is done, and the Lord Mayor brought home, his Officers have a Supper provided for them by the Bridge-Masters.

For swearing the SHERIFFS upon MICHAELMAS-EVE.

WHAT Day soever it falls, so many of the Aldermen as are invited to Dinner at either of the Sheriffs Houses, shall come thither to Breakfast, or else to drink, at Eight o'Clock in the Morning, in their Violet Gowns furred, with their Violet Cloaks brought with them; but if the Sheriff be an Alderman, then they must put on their Cloaks, and the Sheriff likewise his Cloak, and so go on to Guildhall, between two of the Grey Cloaks. But if the Sheriff be no Alderman, then to come between two of the Aldermen without Cloaks, and the Sheriff wearing his Livery-Gown and Hood. And after, when he is sworn, then he is to put on his Violet Gown and Cloak, and his Chain thereon; and the Aldermen must bring him home to his Place, with their Cloaks.

Upon MICHAELMAS-DAY, for the Election of the LORD MAYOR.

ALL the Aldermen meet the Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs, at Eight o'Clock in the Morning at Guildhall, wearing their Scarlet Gowns and Cloaks, furred; and after they have been a certain Time together in the Council Chamber, they come forth into the Orphans Court, where putting on their Cloaks, they go in Order to the Chapel, there to hear Service (and a Sermon) and so the Lord Mayor (with certain Aldermen) receive the Communion.

AND then after the Communion is ended, (and they have delivered their Offerings,) they return back into the Council-Chamber, and pausing there a While, they come to the Hustings Court; and being there set in Order, the Recorder rises up, and making his Obeisance first to the Lord Mayor, and after to the Commons, he declares to them, that they, as of old Custom, know that the Cause of their Assembly and meeting together (of the several Companies in LONDON,) is for the Election of the Lord Mayor for the Year ensuing, declaring to them divers Grants from King John's Time, for this their Election from Time to Time; that done, the Lord Mayor and the Aldermen go up into the Mayor's Court, and there remain (the Doors being shut to them) till the Election be brought to them.

THEN stands up the Common-Serjeant, (the Sheriffs standing on either Side of him;) and by the Sheriffs, the Chamberlain, the Town-Clerk, the two Secondaries, and the Counsellors of the City, in the said Hustings Court before the Commons; and he, the said Common-Serjeant, makes a brief Rehearsal of that which the Recorder had before spoken to them, saying, "There remained no more for him to say, but only to put them in Remembrance in what Order and Sort they should use themselves in their Election;" as namely, how they must nominate and chuse two: Of which two, the Lord Mayor and the Aldermen must confirm one. Which two being nominated, elected and chosen, the Common-Serjeant, the Sheriffs, with the rest before-named, and certain of the Head Wardens of the Chief Companies, go up to the Lord Mayor Mayor and Aldermen; and there present the Names of those two Men, which the Commons have nominated in their Election.

THEN the Lord Mayor and the Aldermen proceed by Scrutiny, to elect one of those two Persons, which the said Commons had before nominated. Then comes down the Lord Mayor again to the Hustings Court, and he whom they have chosen on his Left Hand; and so the Lord Mayor and Aldermen sit down again in Order. But he who is chosen, sits next to the Lord Mayor on his Left Hand. Then the Recorder stands up, and reading the Names of the Persons they have nominated and chosen, of which, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen have admitted one, whose Name he repeats, he demands of them, Whether it be their free Election, yea, or no? and the Commons answering yea, yea, the Sword-Bearer, of old Time, used to step to him, and take off his Tippet, which he had for his Pains, and then put his Chain on instead of it. Then the Lord Mayor Elect oftentimes makes a Speech to give them Thanks, as the old Lord Mayor doth likewise; after which, the Court breaks up, and the Lord Mayor for the Time being, and the Lord Elect, commonly go to one of the Sheriffs to Dinner.

Thus far is taken from the old Order; but note as to the Particulars of the Election.

THAT two Aldermen returned to the Lord Mayor and Court, are chosen by a Majority of the Hands of all the Liverymen of the City, who are near 8000 in Number, the Sheriffs judging of that Majority; and if it is demanded, a Poll is allowed, that is, the Names of those who vote taken in Writing, and after that a Scrutiny, i. e. an Inspection how those who polled are qualified.

THE Aldermen, who are Candidates, are all put up one after another before the said Livery, thus:

So many of you that will have A. B. &c. to be Lord Mayor of this City for the Year ensuing, hold up your Hand.

THIS is repeated in four several Places of the Hall by the Officers; that all the Livery may hear who is put up.

It hath been now long a Custom for the Prevention of Animosities and Disorders, to name the two next Aldermen below the Chair, and to elect the Senior; but this Method was endeavoured to be set aside, in the Year 1722, as has been said before; at which Time, on Michaelmas-Day, when the Court of Hustings were met to elect a Mayor, the Recorder, Sir William Thomson, made a Speech to the following Effect:

GENTLEMEN,

"You are here assembled in order to the Election of a Lord Mayor of this City for the Year ensuing.

"You cannot be unacquainted with the Nature of the Trust, and the Qualifications requisite for discharging the Duty of this Office.

"As he is your principal Magistrate, that his Care and Vigilance will be necessary for preserving the Publick Peace and Tranquillity; his Judgment and Integrity for the due Administration of Justice; his Courage and Resolution for maintaining your Rights and Privileges, your several Franchises and Jurisdictions, upon their just and legal Foundation.

"It is one of those valuable Privileges, your Liberty of nominating proper Persons to be (under his Majesty) Governors of this City for your own Security and Safety. And I "esteem it an Honour that I have this Opportunity of applying myself to so many worthy Citizens, Englishmen, Freemen, and Protestants, at this Juncture, when the Enemies of your Country are conspiring to bring you into a State of Confusion, to make Way for your Ruin and Destruction. At this Juncture, you (who have at Heart the real Welfare and Prosperity of this City) will allow me earnestly to recommend Peace, Unanimity, and Good-Will, amongst yourselves and Fellow-Citizens; you will be persuaded, that healing, and not widening your unhappy Breaches, is the most proper Method to defeat the Designs of your common Enemies.

"As you have now the Happiness to be protected in the Enjoyment of your Liberties, your Properties, and your Religion; as you cannot but desire to secure the Continuance of these Blessings; as you are now about to repose a Power and Trust of great Importance to the Publick; there is no doubt but you will be inclined to such a Magistrate as you shall believe will act sincerely and cordially for supporting the present happy Establishment in Church and State; and that it will be a prevailing Recommendation to your Favour and Esteem to be zealously well affected to our most gracious Sovereign King GEORGE, and his Protestant Royal Family.

AFTER this, Sir Gerard Conyers, the Alderman next the Chair, and Sir Peter Delme, were declared to have the Majority of Hands in the Hall; but a Poll was demanded for Sir George Mertins and Sir Francis Forbes; whereupon Sir Francis Forbes, being on the Hustings, desired the Recorder to declare on his Behalf to the Citizens, that he intreated such of them as required a Poll, and intended to vote for him, to desist, and not to proceed therein; for that he desired the Peace of the City, and that there might be no Contest upon his Account, but that the Election might go on in the Course which had been of late observed, according to Seniority. Notwithstanding this Declaration of Sir Francis, some Men still resolved to use their Endeavours to have him returned, and accordingly polled for him: But upon casting up the Poll, there was a very great Majority for Sir Gerard, almost 1900, for he had 3217 Votes, and Sir Francis Forbes but 1334; upon which Sir Gerard Conyers was made Choice of to be Lord Mayor for the Year ensuing.

For presenting the LORD MAYOR Elect to the Lord Chancellor or Keeper.

AFTER Dinner, on the Day of Election of the Lord Mayor, (or some Time afterward) it has been usual for the Lord Mayor Elect to go to the Lord Keeper or Chancellor, attended by five or six of the Aldermen, and the Recorder, all in their Violet Gowns, and by other Officers; the Recorder making the new Election known to his Lordship, and he returning an Answer highly approving their Choice, &c.

The Morrow after MICHAELMAS-DAY, for the new Sheriffs going to Westminster, to be sworn there.

ALL the Aldermen must be at the two Sheriffs Houses in the Morning at Eight o'Clock, in their Violet Gowns, furred; but the Lord Mayor, Mr. Recorder, and the two Sheriffs, must be in their Scarlet Gowns, furred, and their Cloaks carried with them to Westminster, where, going up to the Exchequer, the two new Sheriffs are presented, and the old ones sworn to their Account.

The antient Order for the Day of St. SIMON and JUDE, was,

THAT the old Lord Mayor shall have so many of the Aldermen to dine with him, come to his Place, [House] by Eight o'Clock in the Morning, in their Violet Gowns, furred, with their Cloaks, and Horses, and the Sheriffs to fetch him to the Hall, and there abide in the Council-Chamber, til the coming of the new Lord Mayor, and the rest of the Aldermen, with the Company of either of the Lords before them. And then, after they have been together a certain Space of Time, they come forth into the Orphans Court, and put on their Cloaks, and go down to the Hustings Court, where being set in Order, the Common-Crier makes Proclamation, commanding every Man to keep Silence.

THEN Mr. Town-Clerk gives the new elected Lord his Oath, which, when he has taken [the old Lord Mayor arises, and gives the new Lord his Place, the old Lord sitting down where the new Lord was placed;] Mr. Chamberlain delivers to him first the Scepter, next the Keys and the Purse, with the Seal of the Office of the Mayoralty. Then Mr. Sword-Bearer gives him the Sword. And then they arise, put off their Cloaks, and the old Lord rides home with the new Lord to his Place, and there leaves him, and so many of the Aldermen as dine with him. And the old Lord (with the rest of the Aldermen) ride to his own Place, the Sword born before him. And, after Dinner, the Aldermen depart home at their Pleasure.

On the Morrow after the Day of St. SIMON and JUDE, for the new Lord Mayor's going to take his Oath at Westminster.

ALL the Aldermen and the Sheriffs came to the Lord Elect by Eight o'Clock in the Morning, in their Scarlet Gowns furred, and their Cloaks born with them, and their Horses, and rode to Guildhall; and the Batchelors, called Rich Batchelors, who are a Number of substantial Freemen of the Company, the Lord Mayor is of, not as yet of the Livery, and the Livery of the new Lord's Company, with Gentlemen Ushers all going in decent Order before him.

BUT the old Lord rides from his own Place to the Hall alone, having no Officers to wait upon him, but the Common-Hunt, as a Gentleman Usher going before him, and the Common Huntsman, or one Yeoman of the Water-Side, with his own Men following him, and he taries at the Hall.

AND after they are all together, they go in their Coaches, but formerly it was always on Horseback, to the Three Crane-stairs in the Vintry, where they take Barge to Westminster-bridge, being attended by divers Companies in their Barges, adorned with Banners and Streamers, with the Sound of Trumpets, Kettle-Drums, Hautboys, and other Musical Instruments. And after they are landed, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen put on their Cloaks within the Palace, and go round about the Hall, where they perform many Courtesies, and so up to the Exchequer to be sworn. When the Oath is taken in the Exchequer, they come down again, and go first to the King's-Bench, then to the Common-Pleas; afterwards they take Barge again, and, of late Times, are saluted in their Passage by the Chambers and Guns, placed on the other Side the Water.

BEING landed at Black-friars, in LONDON, all the several Companies of the City, who had honoured him in their Barges to Westminster and back again, do likewise perform their attending Service, as he with the Aldermen ride to Guildhall, or what other Place he makes choice of, to dine at. The Streamers and Banners attend each Company as they pass, Musical Instruments playing before them, and before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen: The City Officers walk in State, bearing the Sword, the Mace, and Cap of Maintenance, together with the City Streamers, Banners flying, and Musick sounding. In their Passage to Guildhall, the Streets are lined with the Liverymen of the several Companies. The Artillery Company are now also in their Arms, paying their Respects to the Lord Mayor. There used formerly also to be the Solemnity of Pageants accompanying, with Speeches made from thence in Praise of the Lord Mayor, or of the Trade of the City; but these have been laid aside now, for more than 30 Years: The last remarkable Shew of this Sort was the Pageant of a Maiden Queen, in the Mayoralty of Sir William Gore, Mercer, A. D. 1702. During this Procession, commonly called the Lord Mayor's Shew, the Balconies of every House are spread with Tapestries; which, with the Windows, are thronged with Spectators, not only Gentlemen and Ladies, but with all inferior Ranks of People. Being come in this State to the Hall, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen alight, and go to the sumptuous Feast prepared for them, which is commonly graced with many of the Nobility, Privy-Counsellors, Judges, Foreign Ministers, Ladies, &c. and sometimes with Kings and Queens, especially in the first Year of their Coming to the Crown, as their present Majesties honoured Sir Edward Becher, and his late Majesty, Sir William Humfreys.

IN antient Times the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, after Dinner, used to go to St. Paul's, and all the Companies waited in their Standings for his coming; but that is now laid aside, the Dinner not being over till it is quite Night, and the Night concluding with a Ball.

For going to St. Paul's on ALL-SAINTS DAY, CHRISTMAS DAY, TWELFTH DAY, and CANDLEMAS DAY.

ALL the Aldermen and the Sheriffs come to the Lord Mayor's Place, in their Scarlet Gowns, furred. From thence they ride to Guildhall, the Lord's Company and the Batchelors, with their Gentlemen Ushers walking orderly before him; and there they hear Evening Prayer. When Prayer is ended they ride to St. Paul's Church, where both the new Lord Mayor and the old put on their Cloaks and go up to the Choir, and there hear a Sermon; which done, they walk about the Church, and there put off their Cloaks where they put them on: Then they take their Coaches again, and the Aldermen, with the Companies and Batchelors, bring the Lord Mayor home; and then they have Spice-Bread and Hypocras, and so take their Leave of my Lord. Here is further to be understood, that All-Saints Day is the last Day of the old Lord's riding with the new, in this Manner.

On St. THOMAS'S DAY.

THE Lord Mayor, and every Alderman likewise, is to sit in the Ward belonging to him; about such Business as is then necessarily required to be done: Each of them is to wear his Violet Gown and Cloak, furred.

For CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS.

For Christmas Holidays till Twelfth Day, if the Lord Mayor and Aldermen go abroad to any Publick Meeting, they are to wear Scarlet; but on the Working Days, within the Compass of the Twelve Days, if the Lord Mayor goes to Guildhall, Markets, or Streets, then he and they wear Black.

On INNOCENTS DAY.

Upon Innocents Day the Aldermen dine at the Lord Mayor's and the Sheriffs, wearing Scarlet; but the Ladies wear Black.

For Sunday after CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS.

The Lord Mayor and the Aldermen must be in their Violet Gowns, without their Cloaks, to hear the Sermon.

For Monday after TWELFTH-DAY.

The Lord Mayor and the Aldermen meet at Guildhall by Eight of the Clock in the Morning, in their Furred Scarlet Gowns, and their Cloaks, without Horses, to receive of their several Wards, their sealed Indentures of the Wardmote Inquests, and for swearing of the Constables and Scavengers.

On GOOD-FRIDAY, of old Time.

The Lord Mayor and the Aldermen used to meet at St. Paul's Cross at One o'Clock in the Afternoon, to hear the Sermon, in their Pewk Gowns, and without their Chains and Tippetts.

For Monday and Tuesday in EASTER-WEEK.

All the Aldermen and Sheriffs come unto the Lord Mayor's Place, before Eight o'Clock in the Morning, to Breakfast, wearing their Scarlet Gowns, furred, with their Cloaks, and Horses. And after Breakfast took their Horses, and rode to the Spital; and there they put on their Cloaks, and so sat down in order to hear the Sermon. Which done, they rode homeward in due Order, till they come to the Well with two Buckets now a Pump within Bishopsgate, and there so many of the Aldermen as dined with the Sheriffs, took their Leave of the Lord Mayor, and the rest went home with him.

For Wednesday in EASTER-WEEK.

Like as before on the other two Days; only reserved, that the Lord Mayor and the Aldermen must then be in their Violet Gowns, and suitable Cloaks. But the Ladies (on the two former Days, wearing their Scarlet) on this Day were attired in Black. The Spital Sermons are now constantly preached at St. Bride's Church. The Feast is given on Monday by the Lord Mayor, on Tuesday by one of the Sheriffs, and on Wednesday by the other.

On LOW-SUNDAY.

All the Aldermen used to meet the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs at St. Paul's in their Scarlet Gowns furred; without their Cloaks or Horses, to hear the Sermon.

On WHIT-SUNDAY.

All the Aldermen used to meet the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, at the Church-Yard by Moor-fields, wearing their Scarlet Gowns lined, without Cloaks, to hear the Sermon appointed for that Day.

On Monday and Tuesday in WHITSUN-WEEK.

They used to meet the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs at St. Paul's, for the same Purpose.

On the Day which was order'd for the LORD MAYOR's Knighthood.

All the Aldermen used to meet the Lord Mayor at the Three-Cranes, if the King was at Westminster, or at Saint Hill, if the King was at Greenwich, by Seven of the Clock in the Morning, wearing their Scarlet Gowns, and their Cloaks carried with them. After Morning Prayer was ended, they took Barge to wait upon the King, and when the Ceremony was finished, returned with the Lord Mayor to Dinner.

There is now no particular Day appointed for Knighting the Lord Mayor; but when he has that Honour conferred upon him, it is most commonly before the Time of his Mayoralty, upon waiting on the King with an Address, or some other like Occasion.

For going to St. Paul's the first Sunday of every Term.

All the Aldermen and Judges meet the Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs at St. Paul's, wearing their Scarlet Gowns, either furred or lined, according as the Time of Year requires.

For Election of BRIDGE-MASTERS, if any of them depart within the Year.

The Lord Mayor and the Aldermen in their Violet Gowns without their Cloaks, sit in the Hustings Court, while they be chosen, and do not remove until such Time as the Election be made.

At such Time as a KING is to be crowned.

All the Aldermen do meet the Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs at the Three-Cranes in the Vinttry, according to the Hour of their Summons appointed. The Lord Mayor (for that Time of Service and Attendance) wears a Crimson Velvet Gown, a Collar of SS. and Scepter, but no Cloak. The Aldermen wear their Scarlet Gowns, and their Cloaks carried with them, either furred or lined, according as the Season of the Year requires. There taking Barge, they land at Westminster, and there they give Attendance in the Exchequer Chamber, (being served with Cakes and Wine) until they be called by the Heralds, and then they put on their Cloaks.

At what Times the LORD MAYOR wears his Cloak.

From Michaelmas to Whitsuntide, Violet Furred; and from Whitsuntide to Michaelmas, Scarlet lined.

The Lord Mayor, and those Knights that have born the Office of the Mayoralty, ought to have their Cloaks furred with Grey Amis. And those Aldermen that have not been Mayors, are to have their Cloaks furred with Calabre.

And likewise, such as have been Mayors, are to have their Cloaks lined with changeable Taffata; and the rest, their Cloaks lined with green Taffata.

For

For the first Day of every Quarter Sessions.

THE first Day of every Quarter Sessions, in the Forenoon only, the Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs wear their Violet Gowns and Cloaks furred; but at Midsummer Quarter Sessions, the first Day, they wear Violet Gowns and Scarlet Cloaks, and the other Days, black.

For the Burial of ALDERMEN.

THE Aldermen must be in their Violet Gowns, except such as have of their Friends Black Gowns, or Mourning. When an Alderman dies, the Sword-bearer is to have a Black Gown, or three and thirty Shillings and four Pence in Money. And if any Alderman deceased do give the Lord Mayor a Black Gown, the Sword-Bearer must have another, or forty Shillings in Money, as the Value thereof, and so carry the Sword in Black before the Lord Mayor.

THE Chamberlain is not to wear his Tippet, but when the Lord Mayor or Aldermen do wear their Scarlet or Violet.

At the Nomination of an ALDERMAN.

FOR the Nomination of an Alderman, the Lord Mayor wears his Black Gown, and Violet Cloak, and both the Sheriffs their Black Gowns.

For the Election of GOVERNORS at Christ's Hospital, &c.

FOR the Election of Governors, belonging to the several Hospitals, the Lord Mayor and the Aldermen do wear their Black Gowns.

For the Election of Members of PARLIAMENT for the City.

ALL the Aldermen meet my Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs at Guildhall, at 9 o'Clock, in their Violet Gowns, and their Cloaks furred or lined, (according to the Season of the Year) and sit in the Hustings Court while the Commons choose them. The old Order was, That they must choose Mr. Recorder for one of their Knights, and one Grey Cloak (or Alderman above the Chair) for the other, and two Commoners, which done they departed.

NOW the four Members that serve for the City are chose (out of the Candidates which are put up) by the Livery of the City, as is said for Lord Mayor, only here the Majority carry the Election, without the particular Choice of the Aldermen, as in the Case of Lord Mayor.

THERE having been frequent Disputes between the Aldermen and Commons, concerning the Extent of their respective Rights and Privileges, and particularly in electing of Magistrates; the Aldermen, who seem'd to be most in Favour with the Administration, in the Year 1725, procur'd an Act of Parliament which settled these Matters very much to their Advantage, in the Opinion of the Commons, at least, who petition'd against it, and of many of the Peers, who enter'd their Protests on passing the Bill, the Preamble whereof sets forth, That whereas of late Years great Controversies and Dissentions had arisen in the City of LONDON at the Elections of Citizens to serve in Parliament, and of Mayors, Aldermen, Sheriffs, and other Officers of the said City; and many evil-minded Persons having no Right of Voting, had unlawfully introduc'd themselves into the Assemblies of the Citizens, and presum'd to give their Votes at such Elections, in manifest Violation of the Rights and

Privileges of the Citizens, and of the Freedom of their Elections, and to the Disturbance of the Publick Peace: And whereas great Numbers of wealthy Persons, not free of the said City, did inhabit and carry on the Trade of Merchandize and other Employments within the said City, and refus'd or declin'd to become Freemen of the same, by reason of an antient Custom within the said City, restraining the Freemen of the same from disposing of their Personal Estates by their last Wills and Testaments: And whereas great Dissentions had arisen between the Aldermen and Commons of the Common-Council of LONDON, in or concerning the making or passing of Acts, Orders or Ordinances in Common-Council, which, if not timely settled and determin'd, might occasion great Obstructions of the publick Business and Concerns of the said City, and create many expensive Controversies and Suits at Law, and be attended with other dangerous Consequences: To the Intent therefore that suitable Remedies might be provided for preserving the Privileges of the City of LONDON, and the Freedom of Elections therein, and for settling the Right of such Elections, and putting a Stop to the aforesaid Controversies and Dissentions, and the ill Consequences of the same, and that a constant Supply might be had of able Officers, capable of supporting the Dignity of, and maintaining good Order and Government within that antient, populous and loyal City, it was enacted, That after the 1st Day of June, 1725, upon every Election of a Citizen, or Citizens, to serve for the said City of LONDON in Parliament, and upon all Elections of Mayors, Sheriffs, Chamberlains, Bridge-Masters, Auditors of Chamberlains and Bridge-Masters, and all and every other Officer and Officers, to be chosen in and for the said City by the Liverymen thereof, and upon all Elections of Aldermen and Common-Council-Men chosen at the respective Wardmotes of the said City, the presiding Officer or Officers at such Elections, should, in case a Poll was demanded by any of the Candidates, or any two or more of the Electors, appoint a convenient Number of Clerks to take the same; which Clerk should take the said Poll in the Presence of the presiding Officer or Officers, and be sworn by such Officer or Officers, truly and indifferently to take the same, and to set down the Name of each Voter, and his Place of Residence or Abode, and for whom he should Poll, and to poll no Person who should not be sworn, or being a Quaker shall not affirm, according to the Direction of that Act, and that the Form of the said Oaths should be as follows:

You do Swear, That you are a Freeman of London, and a Liveryman of the Company of Twelve Kalendar Months, and that the Place of your Abode is at and in this Ward, and that you have not Poll'd at this Election. So help you God.

AND in case of any Election of any Alderman or Common-Council-Man, every Person before he is admitted to Poll, should take the Oath herein after-mention'd, or being one of the People call'd Quakers, should solemnly affirm the Effect thereof, that is to say,

You do Swear, That you are a Freeman of London, and a Householder in the Ward of , and have not Poll'd at this Election. So help you God.

said) of the Paper containing such Names and Objections as aforesaid; and the said presiding Officer or Officers within ten Days then next following, (exclusive of Sundays) after having fully heard such of the said Candidates as should desire the same, or some Person appointed by him or them touching such Objections, should at or in the Place of Election, openly and publicly declare which of the said Candidates was duly elected, and the Number of legal Votes for each Candidate appearing to him or them upon such Scrutiny: And if the said presiding Officer or Officers, or any other Person or Persons, should offend in the Premises, every such Offender should forfeit for every such Offence, the Sum of Two Hundred Pounds of lawful Money of Great Britain, with full Costs.

AND it was further enacted, That after any Election made, and Scrutiny taken, the presiding Officer or Officers at such Election and Scrutiny, should deliver under his or their Hand or Hands, a true List of the Voters by him or them disallowed upon such Scrutiny, to any of the Candidates who should upon the final Declaration of the Election as aforesaid, demand the same, within six Days after such Demand made, such Candidates paying for the same.

A true List to be given of the Voters disallowed.

AND it was further enacted, That the Mayor, upon Request made to him by any Candidate or Candidates, his or their Agent or Agents, at any Election of a Citizen or Citizens to serve in Parliament for the said City, or of a Mayor or any other Officer or Officers to be chosen by the Liverymen thereof, where a Scrutiny should be demanded and granted, should issue his Precepts, as has been usual, requiring the Masters and Wardens of the Livery-Companies of the said City respectively, to cause their Clerks forthwith to return to him two true Lists of all the Liverymen of their respective Companies, and the said Clerks should return such their respective Lists upon Oath within three Days after the Receipt of any such Precepts, one of which Lists so returned, the said Mayor should forthwith deliver to the Candidate or Candidates on each Side at such Election, or to his or their Agent or Agents respectively.

AND whereas divers Controversies and Disputes had arisen touching the Right of Election of Aldermen and Common-Council-Men for the respective Wards of the said City, for quieting all such Disputes and Controversies for the future, it was further enacted, That the Right of Election of Aldermen and Common-Council-Men for the several and respective Wards of the said City, should belong and appertain to the Freemen of the said City of LONDON, being Householders, paying Scot as therein after provided.

PROVIDED, That Persons privileged from paying Scot and Lot might vote notwithstanding.

AND it was further enacted, That no Person or Persons whatsoever should have any Right or Title to vote at any Election of a Citizen or Citizens, to serve in Parliament for the said City, or of any Mayor or other Officer or Officers, to be chosen by the Liverymen thereof, who have not been upon the Livery by the Space of Twelve Kalendar Months before such Election, and who should not have paid their respective Livery Fines, or who having paid the same, should have received such Fines back again, in Part or in All, or should have had any Allowance in Respect thereof, and no Person or Persons whatsoever should have any Right to vote at any Election of a Citizen or Citizens to serve in Parliament, or of any Mayor, Alderman, or other Officer or Officers, or for the said City, or any the Wards or Precincts thereof, who had, at any Time within the Space of two Years next before such Election or Elections, requested to be, and accordingly had been discharged from paying to the Rates and Taxes to which the Citizens of LONDON inhabiting therein, were, or should be liable as aforesaid, or any of them, or have, within the Time aforesaid, had or received any Alms whatsoever, and the Vote of every such Person should be void.

AND to the Intent that a final End might be put to all Disputes between the Mayor and Aldermen, and the Commons of the Common-Council of the said City, touching the making or passing of Acts, Orders, or Ordinances in Common-Council, and that no Act, Order, or Ordinance might, for the future, be made or past in Common-Council, without the full Consent of the Representative Body of the said City, according to the antient Constitution of the same: It was enacted, that no Act, Order, or Ordinance whatsoever, should be made or past in the Common-Council of the said City without the Assent of the Mayor and Aldermen present at such Common-Council, or the major Part of them, nor without the Assent of the Commons present at such Common-Council, or the major Part of them.

AND to the Intent that Persons of Wealth and Ability, who exercise the Business of Merchandize, and other lawful Employments within the said City, might not be discouraged from becoming free of the same, by Reason of the Custom restraining the Citizens and Freemen thereof from disposing of their personal Estates by their last Wills and Testaments, it was enacted, That it should and might be lawful to and for all and every Person and Persons, who shall be made or become free of the said City; and also to and for all and every Person and Persons, who were then free of the said City, and on the the said first Day of June 1725, should be unmarried, and not have Issue by any former Marriage, to give, devise, will, and dispose of his or their personal Estate and Estates, to such Person or Persons, and to such Use or Uses, as he or they should think fit.

PROVIDED nevertheless, That in Case any Person who shall, at any Time or Times, from and after the said 1st Day of June, 1725, become free of the said City; and any Person or Persons who are already free of the said City, and on the said 1st Day of June, 1725, shall be unmarried, and not have Issue by any former Marriage, had agreed, or should agree, by any Writing under his Hand, upon, or in Consideration of his Marriage, or otherwise, that his personal Estate should be subject to, or distributed, or distributable, according to the Custom of the City of LONDON; or in Case any Person so free, or becoming free as aforesaid, should die intestate, in every such Case, the personal Estate of such Person, so making such Agreement, or so dying intestate, should be subject to, and be distributed and distributable, according to the Custom of the said City.

AND it was further enacted, That all and every the Forfeitures, hereby enacted or inflicted should be distributed in Manner following, that is to say, one Third Part thereof to the King's most excellent Majesty, one other Third

THE Protests made in the House of Peers against this Bill, were of the following Tenor :

Dissentient.

1. Because we apprehend, That the Penalty of two hundred Pounds upon the Officers presiding at Wardmote Elections, as well as at Elections even for Members of Parliament, is so small, that it may be construed into an Indemnification, and be looked upon rather as an Encouragement than a Restraint; by a wealthy, partial, and arbitrary Officer : At least we are of Opinion, That such a one will not sufficiently be deterred by it, from returning such Candidates as he likes, rather than such as the City chooses; and if ever that melancholy Case should happen, we fear neither the Candidates nor Voters will be able to find an effectual Method of doing Justice for so flagrant an Injury, either to themselves or to the Nation.

2. Because we cannot but think, from the Evidence given at the Bar, that this Bill will take away from many Citizens their Right of Voting in Wardmote Elections, by giving an Exclusion to all those who inhabit Houses under ten Pounds a Year, though they pay Parish Duties, or thirty Shillings in Lieu of them, which we conceive an unjustifiable Hardship upon those who may long have enjoyed that Right, and have had no Crime objected to them, much less proved, as we think it ought to be, before they can justly be deprived of it.

3. Because by this Bill no Act is to pass in Common-Council for the future (except what relates to the Nomination of some few Officers) without the Assent of the major Part of the Mayor and Aldermen present in such Common-Council, which we conceive will be too great an Addition of Power to the Mayor and Aldermen, who have already many and large Prerogatives uncontestedly allow'd them by the Commonalty of the City; and tho' the Council for the Bill insisted, That the Mayor and Aldermen had anciently that Right, which the Bill establishes; yet the Proof of that Right appear'd to us so remote and obscure, that we ourselves were too short-sighted to discern it, and on the other Side, it appeared plain to us, that even from the Time of incorporating the City, to this present Time, such a Claim has very seldom been made, and that it never has been acknowledged; and therefore we conceive, if there be any Foundation for such Right, (which we are far from thinking there is) the Dispute should be decided in the inferior Courts of Justice; and rather determined in the House of Lords upon an Appeal, than ended by an Act of Parliament, which seems to us such a Method of determining Controversies of this Nature, as may prove of the most dangerous Consequence to the Rights and Properties of all the Subjects of Great-Britain.

4. Because the Bill abolishes the Custom relating to the Distribution of the personal Estates of Free Citizens, which is a Custom, not only of great Antiquity, but seems to be wisely calculated for the Benefit of a trading City, and has been acquiesced under for so many Years; without the least Complaint of any one Free Citizen, that we ever heard of, that the taking it away in this Manner, cannot but appear to us too rash and precipitate; and may too, probably in our Opinion, be very detrimental to the true Interest of this antient, populous, loyal, and hitherto flourishing City; the Preservation of whose good Order and Government the Bill itself very justly and judiciously allows to be of the greatest Consequence to the whole Kingdom.

The following is a List of Chief OFFICERS to attend the Lord Mayor on Great Days.

THE four Pleaders, the Chamberlain, Town-Clerk, Common-Serjeant, the two Judges of the Sheriffs Court, the Secondaries of the Compters, the Under-Chamberlain, and Bridge-Masters, are to attend the Lord Mayor at his House, before his going abroad at Festival Times, and General Days.

Courts of ALDERMEN, where and when to be kept.

COURTS of Aldermen in Ordinary are kept at Guildhall, every Tuesday and Thursday through the whole Year, except Holidays and the Month of August till Bartholomew-Day is past, the Week before Christmas, Shrove-Tuesday, and the Week before Easter.

THIS Tract of the Order of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Sheriffs, &c. is often reprinted, for the Use of those that are concerned: It was printed Anno 1715.

For the ORPHANS Court.

THE Lord Mayor and the Aldermen come to Guildhall, wearing their Violet Gowns without Cloaks; but the Lord Mayor must have his Cloak on. The Common-Crier is the Warner of this Court.

Under OFFICERS.

BESIDES the Chief Magistrates, for the better seeing to the Quiet and safe Estate of the City, and such likewise as do belong to the Mayor and Guildhall; there are several Under Officers belonging to the several Wards; as first, there is in each Ward a Quest of Wardmote, the Charge of whom is to enquire into all Misdemeanors committed in the Ward, and to present them to the Aldermen; of these something will be spoken hereafter. There are also Beadles, Constables, Scavengers, necessary Officers in each Ward; and the Sheriffs have their Serjeants: All whose Offices may be known by the Oaths they are to take.

The Oath of a CONSTABLE was as follows:

YE shall swear, That ye shall keep the Peace of our Sovereign Lord the King, wel and lawfully after your Power. Also, ye shal arrest al them that make any Riot, Debate, or Fray, in breaking of the said Peace: And ye shal bring them to one of the Sheriffs Houses, or Compters of the said Sheriffs; and if ye be withstonde with Strength of any such Misdoers, ye shal rere up an Hue and Cry; and ye shal follow them from Strete to Strete, and from Ward to Ward, til ye may arrest them.

Also ye shal search at al Times, whan ye shal be requyred by Scavagers or Beadyl, for the common Noyfuance of the Ward. (And the Beadle and Raker ye shal help to rear and gather their Salary and Quarteridge, if ye be thereunto by them required.) Also, if there be any Thing don within the Ward, contrary to the Ordinaunce of the Citie. Also, such Faults as ye find, ye shal present them to the Maior, and to the Ministers of the City. And if ye be withstande with Person or Persons, that ye may not do your Office, ye shal present him to the Mayor, and the Common-Council of the Citie, or Names of them that so trouble you; and this ye shal not lone. So help you God and Holy Dome, and by this Book.

Ye shall also swear, That during the Time that ye shall stand in the Office, and occupy the Room of a Constable, ye shal once at the least every Month, certify and shew to one of the Clerks of the Maior's Court, and in the same Court, as well the Names and Surnames of all Freemen, which ye shall know to be deceased within the Month, in the Parish wherein ye be inhabired; as also the Names and Surnames of all the Children of the same Freemen so deceased, being Orphans of this City; and this ye shall not cease to do, as God you help, &c.

The

The Oath of the BEADLE of the Ward, taken out of the Book of old Customs, whereby his proper Office will appear, was this :

YE shal swear, That ye shal wel and honestly keep the Ward that ye be Bedyl ; and ye shal suffer no Maner Rybaudes, nor none of evil Living, nor Huckster of Ale, nor no Men holding Brothels, nor none other noyous, either Women flaundred of evil Name, and of evil Life, dwelling within the Ward, but you shal certify the Names of them unto the Alderman ; to that Intent, that he shal have them out within fifteen Days : And if the Alderman do it not, ye shal anone after the fifteen Days ended, do the Maior to wit. And if any Man make a Fray, or draw any Weapon against the King's Peace, ye shal do the Sheriffs to wit, that they may make levy by their Serjeants of such Misdoers.

Also, ye shal retorne good and lawful Men in the Hustings afore the Sheriffs, and the King's Crouner, to the Quest ; and not Men suspicious, and Maintainers of Persons of evil Name : And the Retorne that ye make, ye shal shew them three or four Days before the Hustings, that they may se the Retorne, whether it be sufficient or no.

Also, ye shal se that no Poulter, nor none other Viçtualler, make no Sale of Pultry, Corn, or Meal, or any other Viçtual, in no privy Place, against the Ordinaunce of the Maior, but ye shal warn the Maior and Sheriffs thereof.

Ye shal be none Officer in Court expedient, during Time of your Office of Bedylship. Also, ye shal brew none Ale, ye shal keep no Bake-House. Also, ye shal be no Regrator of Viçtual, nor none Huxter of Ale, nor no Partner with none of them. And other Things to your Office belonging, ye shal wel and lawfully kepe. So help you God and Holy Dome, and by this Book.

How this Officer was to be qualified, and how to be chosen, an Act of Common-Council was formerly made, Sir John Robinson, Mayor, and lately re-printed, viz.

Commune Concilium tentum in Camera Guildhall, LONDON. Decimo die Octobris, 1663, Annoq; Regni Domini nostri Caroli Secundi nunc Regis Angliæ, &c. Decimo quinto.

WHEREAS the Place of Beadle is an ancient Office in every Ward of this City; and very useful to the Aldermen for the Common Business and Affairs of the Ward; when the same is served by an honest and discreet Person, as it ought to be; but of late Times divers very unfit Persons have, by Favour and sinister Endeavours, procured themselves to be elected to the said Place; by whose Insufficiency and evil Execution thereof, much Trouble and Diservice hath ensued to the Aldermen and the Watches; and other common Business and Affairs to the Ward, which depend much upon that Officer, have been neglected and hindered, not only to the particular Damage of each Ward, but also to the general Injury and Disgrace of the Government of this City: For Remedy whereof for Time to come, be it enacted, established, and ordained by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, the Right Worshipful the Aldermen his Brethren, and the Commons in this Common-Council assembled, and by Authority of the same, That henceforth, at the accustomed Times of Election, or whensoever the Place of Beadle of any of the several Wards of this City shall become void, the Aldermen, with Consent of the Deputy and Common-Council-Men, or the major Part of them, of the said several Wards, shall nominate to the Inhabitants of every the same Wards in their respective Wardmotes assembled, two honest, sufficient and discreet Persons for the Place of Beadle of the same Wards: And that the said Inhabitants in the said Court of Wardmote, shall elect and choose one of the said two Persons so nominated to be Beadle of every the same Wards; and the Persons so elected shall have, hold, exercise, and enjoy the same fully and effectually, to all Intents and Purposes; any Custom or Usage to the contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding. STRACEY.

YE shal swear, That ye shal wel and diligently oversee that the Pavements in every Ward be wel and rightfully repaired and not haigned to the Noyaunce of the Neighbours; and that the Ways, Streets, and Lanes be kept clean from Donge and other Filth, for the Honesty of the City; and that all the Chimneys, Redosses and Furnaces be made of Stone, for Defence of Fire; and if ye know any such ye shal shew it to the Alderman; that he may make due Redress therefore; and this ye shal not lone: So help you God, &c.

The Oath of the SHERIFFS SERJEANTS.

YE shal swear, That ye shal wel and truly serve the Sheriffs of LONDON in your Office of Sergeants; and the Franchises of LONDON ye shal swear to maintain to your Power. And all Manner Persons that ye shal arrest by Plaint, Writ, or by Fray, or by any other lawful Cause, ye shal bring them unto the Counter, if ye be of Power.

Also, ye shall warn no Persons to agree with the Creditor of their Debts, but that a Plaint of such Debts be lawfully made. Also, ye shall warn no Person, on whom a Plaint or a Writ is in the Counter. And ye shal wel and truly enter such Plaints as ye shall have of your Clients, or of any other Person. Also, al maner Merciaments and Fines that ye shal receive, ye shal wel and truly bring them to the Counter, and there to deliver them to the Sheriffs, or to his Deputy. Also, ye shall not tarry nor delay none Occasion, nor make none untrue Process that ye shal have by Vertue of your Office, for Fraud, or Hurt, or Promise, or for your singular Avayle. Also, ye shal be no Loveday-maker, nor Maintainer of none Occasion. Also, in al Maner of Plaints ye shal retorne good and honest Persons, and true, and not suspicious, nor procured by you, nor by your Assent.

Also, you shal counsil nothing, whereby the Sheriffs, or any of their Curtyes or Officers may be hurt in their Avayles. Also, the Common of the City peaceably and gently ye shal entre. And also, to al other Persons, that have their Patents of Exemption of any Office, or other Charges within the City, of the King's Graunt, ye shal do, so Men them like, as ye do other Freemens Enquests.

Also, ye shal take no Yeoman into your Governauce, whiles ye be Officer with the said Sheriffs, unto the Time that ye shew the said Yeoman unto the said Sheriffs, and by him to be so accept. And also, ye shal not do away the said Yeoman being without a lawful Cause certified, and known to the said Sheriffs. And if that Yeoman be from you so voided, ye shal take away the Livery of the Sheriffs. And in al other Things your Office ye shal wel and truly keep and bear you. So help you God, and by this Book.

C H A P. IV.

Of the ROYAL CHARTERS of the CITY of LONDON.

Edward the Confessor's
Grant to the City.

THE Charters of the City, when they are recited, are commonly begun at William the Conqueror; but there is somewhat to be mentioned more early, namely, a Liberty belonging to the City, by the Grant of St. Edward, called Edward the Confessor, which deserves to be taken Notice of; and that is, that whosoever of servile Condition abode in it peaceably for a Year and a Day, was from thenceforth ever free from his Lord or Master, and a Freeman. King Henry VI. in the 7th of his Reign, which was Anno 1428, sent his Letters to the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, to be informed about this particular Privilege, and other like Customs of the said City; to whom they sent an Answer worthy Remark: Both which Letter and Answer were as follow:

Henricus Dei Gratia, Angliæ, &c. In English thus; Henry, by the Grace of God, King of England and France, and Lord of Ireland, to the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of LONDON, Greeting. Willing for certain Causes to be certified upon the Tenors of divers Liberties and Customs of the foresaid City, and concerning the Records and Memoranda of Servants and Natives coming to the foresaid City, and tarrying there for a Year and a Day, absque Calumpnia Dominorum suorum, i. e. without Complaint of their Lords or Masters, before you had, and enrolled, in our Court of the Chamber of Guildhall of the foresaid City, as it is said: We command you, the Mayor, distinctly and openly, to send the Tenor of the Liberties, Customs, Records and Memoranda before said, to us in our Chancery, under your Seal, and this our Brief. Witness myself at Westminster the 20th Day of January, in the 7th Year of our Reign.

THEN follows the Mayor's Answer.

NOS Henricus Barton, Mayor, &c. We Henry Barton, Mayor, and the Aldermen of the City of LONDON, send before the Lord the King in his Chancery, as within is commanded us, the Tenours of divers Liberties, Customs, Records and Memorials concerning Servants and Natives, had and enrolled in our Court in the Chamber of Guildhall of the said City: Which Tenors lie open in a Schedule fastened to this Brief.

THEN follow two Extracts; one out of the Book of Repertorium, Fol. 21. of the Second Part, beginning Inter nobilis urbis, &c. which is mentioned in the first Book.

THE second Extract is taken out of the Book in the Chamber, De antiquis Legibus, Libertatibus & Consuetudinibus Civit. LONDON. which Book is called Speculum, wherein is a certain Record contained to this Tenor:

Memorandum, quod tempore, &c. i. e. Be it remembered, that in the Time of holy King Edward, heretofore King of England, and before from all Time, no Memory of Man then was extant, such Dignity, Liberty, and Royal Custom, among others, was had, used and approved, in the City of LONDON, which is, and from all Time hath been called, The Free Chamber of the King of England, as from antient Time it was used and had in the great City of Troy, to wit, that every Servant, whosoever he were, that came to the City of LONDON, and tarried in it for a Year and a Day, without Reclamation of his Lord there: Afterwards he may, ought, and hath accustomed, through his whole Life, so freely and securely to tarry there, as it were in the House or Chamber of the King. And thence it is, that the same holy King Edward, among other Things, by his Laws remaining of Record in the Treasury of Guybald of the said City, and reciting the City itself to be the Head of his Kingdom; and that it was founded like, and after the Manner of old great Troy; and that it containeth in it the Laws, Liberties, Dignities and Royal Customs of great Troy; he appointed and ordained, that the same City of LONDON may have and keep every where, by one Inviolability always, all her old Usages and Customs, wheresoever the King himself shall be, whether in an Expedition, or otherwise.

And afterward King William the Conqueror, King of England, by his Charter, which remaineth of Record in the same Treasury, granted to the Men of LONDON, that they be worthy of all that both Law and Right, as they were in the Days of the aforesaid Edward. And moreover, the same William the King, among other their Laws, at the said City made, with the Consent of the noble and wise Men of the whole Kingdom, and remaining in the said Treasury, likewise remaining of Record, appointed and ordained, that if Servants remain Sine Calumpnia, i. e. without Complaint, by a Year and a Day in a Burgh compassed with a Wall, or in Castles, or in the Cities of the said King; whence the said City of LONDON to that Time, and from all Time before, was one, and the more Principal of the whole Kingdom, as is said before, from that Day let them become Freemen; and let them be for ever free and quit from the Yoke of their Servitude. It follows out of the said Tower Record:

It is to be noted, that the Laws, Recitements and Statutes of holy King Edward, of which mention is made above, are contained in Fol. 34, of this Book, in Title De Heretochiis & Libertatibus LONDON. And in Fol. 113, of the Book of Customs of the said City; and in Fol. 36, of the Book called Recordatorium LONDON. &c. it is also had in Fol. 162, of the Red Book of the Exchequer, called, The true Charter by which the foresaid Lord, the Conqueror, hath confirmed to the Citizens of LONDON all Rights and Laws which they had in the Time of Holy King Edward: Together with certain other Charters, by which the said Lord, immediately after the Conquest, gave the whole Hyde and Land of the City of LONDON, whereof he then had been possessed in his Demesne, to the Men of the said City, Patent and Remanent under the Seal of the said King in the Custody of the Chamberlain in the Treasury of the said City. Which Charters are contained and incorporated in the Great Charter of the Liberties and Customs of the City of LONDON, and are confirmed by the Lord the King (Henry VI.) and his Progenitors. But the Tenors of the said Charters are Patent in the Latin Tongue, in Fol. 238, of the Book of Ordinations of the said City." This is the Sum of what Account the City sent to King Henry VI. of their Liberties; which they fetched from Edward the Confessor, and how they were confirmed by the Conqueror. Now to proceed in the Charters given to the City.

THE first Charter, commonly remember'd among the Royal Charters granted to the City, is that King William the Conqueror, from whom, by Means of William, a Norman, Bishop of LONDON, the City obtained, in those rough Times, the Continuance of their Laws, Liberties and Privileges, according as they enjoy'd them in the Times of the Saxon Kings. This venerable Charter (which is still extant in the City Archives) consisted not of above eight or nine Lines, with a Seal of Green Wax, carefully preserved in Silk, and (which was a Favour) was writ, not in the French, but Saxon Language, in these Words, according to a Copy taken from it by Horne, Anno Dom. 1314, which is exactly as follows, only changing the Saxon Letters into the Modern.

" William Kyng gret William Bisceop, and " Gosfregth Portrefan, and ealle tha Burhwarn
 " binnen Londone, Frencisce and Englisce frend-
 " lice. And ic kithe eow thaet ic wille thaet

UNDER which, the Transcriber, Horne, wrote thus: Hoc est Transcriptum Carte Regis Willielmi Conquestoris facte Civibus LONDON. que admodum supra scriptum in veteri Lingua Saxonica, Anglica, mirabil. quantum ad modernam scripturam, que taliter nunc scribitur, Videlicet. Anno Dom. MCCCXIII. That is, " This is " the Transcript of the Charter of William
 " the Conqueror, made to the Citizens of " LONDON, which after the Manner above,

 " Language, it is wonderful how much it comes " to the modern Writing, which is now Anno
 " 1314, thus written.

AND then follows the same Charter writ in the Saxon then in Use; which differ'd somewhat, but very little, from the Saxon in the Original Charter.

WHICH Transcript was thus render'd into Latin by the same Hand.

" Willielmus Rex Salutat. Willhelmum Epif-

 " post diem patris sui. Et ego nolo pati, quod
 " aliquis homo aliquam injuriam vobis inferat.
 " Deus vos salvet.

AND lastly, take an old English Translation of this Charter with the rest, which is as follows:

" William Kyng grete William Byshop, and

AFTER William the Conqueror, the City obtained divers large Grants from the succeeding Kings of England, as one Charter from King Henry I, wherein he grants to his Citizens of LONDON, to hold Middlesex to Farm for 300 l. to account to him and his Heirs. And that the Citizens chuse a Sheriff, such as they will of themselves; with several other Privileges.

THE which Charter of Henry I. granted to the City of LONDON, was in these Words following:

HENRICUS Dei Gratia, Rex Anglorum, Archiepiscopo Cantuar' & Episcopis, Abbatibus & Comitibus & Baronibus & Justiciariis & Vicecomitibus & omnib' fidelibus suis, Francis & Anglicis, totius Angl' Salutem sciatis me concessisse Civibus meis LONDON' tenend' Middlesex' ad firmam pro ccc libris ad computum ipsis & heredibus suis, de me & heredibus meis: Ita quod ipsi Cives ponent' Vicecomit' qualem voluerint de seipsis, & Justiciar' qualem voluerint de seipsis ad custodienda placita corone meæ, & ad eadem placitanda. Et nullus alius erit Justiciar' super ipsos homines Londinens'. Et Cives non placitabunt extra muros Civitat' pro nullo placito. Et sint quieti de Eschot & de Danegeld & di Murdre; & nullus eorum faciat Bellum. Et si quis Civium de placitis Coronæ implacitatus fuerit, per Sacramentum quod iudicatum fuerit in Civitate, se difracionet homo LONDON. Et infra muros Civitatis nullus hospitetur, neque de mea familia, neque de alia hospicium vi alicui liberatur. Henry II. grants a Charter to the City.

Henry II. that next succeeded to the Crown, by his Charter confirmed the first; only this inserted, that none should be impleaded without the City, exceptis monetariis & ministris meis, & præter placita de Tenuris exterioribus; i. e. Except the King's Moneyers and Ministers, and except Pleas of Foreign Tenures. This King granted two.

Richard I. grants two. John five. Henry III. Nine.

KING Richard I. also granted two; and King John granted the City Charters of Confirmation, in Number five. The next King Henry III. granted nine. A part of the Second remains to us transcribed out of a Copy extant in the old Book of the Customs of LONDON, and was in Munday's Edition of the Survey, and is as follows :

Table of all the Charters of London.

In one of the City's Books is a Table in Latin of the Charters of the Liberties of the City; wherein are set down the Heads of every Charter from the Charter of William the Conqueror to that of King Henry VII. inclusive.

First, a Charter of King William, heretofore King of England (called The Conqueror) in the Saxon Language.

Also another Charter of the same King, in the same Language.

Also a Charter of King Henry I. wherein are contained the following Articles :

First, Of the Sheriffwick of LONDON and Middlesex, demised to Farm to the Citizens of LONDON for 300 l.

Also, That the Citizens of LONDON appoint what Sheriff they please of themselves.

Also, That the Citizens appoint a Justice, whomsoever, and such a one as they will, of themselves, to keep the Pleas of the Crown, and to plead them : And that no other shall be Justice over the true Men of LONDON.

Also, That the Citizens shall not plead without the Walls of the City, concerning any Plea.

Also, That they be quit of Schot and Loth, and of Danegeld, and of Murther (de Murdro). And that none of them go to War (faciat bellum.)

Also, That if any Citizen be impleaded of Pleas of the Crown, a Man of LONDON may discharge himself (disfrationet homo London) by his Oath; which shall be judged in the City.

Also, That none be entertained, lodged (hospitetur) within the Walls of LONDON, whether of the King's Household, or any other; none have Entertainment by Force or Livery (per vim vel Liberationem Marischalli, Chart. Hen. II.)

Also, That all the Men of LONDON be quit and free; and that all their Things throughout England, and by the Sea-Ports, be quit and free of Toll, Passage and Lastage (de Theolonio & Passagio & Lastagio) and all other Customs.

That the Churches, and Barons, and Citizens, have and hold well and in Peace, their Sokes, with all Customs : So that Strangers (hospites) that shall be entertain'd in the Sokes, give Customs to none unless to him whose Soke it shall be, or to his Servant, whom he shall place there.

That a Man of LONDON may not be judged to pay a pecuniary Mulct, unless above 100 s. (in mitt. pecunie, nisi ad Sawere ad C. s.) that is, of a Plea belonging to Money.

That there be no more Miskening (i. e. unjust and vexatious ciring into Court) in the Hustenge, tenge, nor in the Folksmot, nor in other Pleas within the City.

That the Hustenge sit once a Week, to wit, on Monday.

That the King cause the Citizens to have their Lands, Bonds and Debts, within the City and without; and concerning Lands, whereof they claim, he shall do them Right, (rectum eis tenebit) by the Law of the City.

That if any shall take Toll or Custom from the Men of LONDON (the Citizens of LONDON) the Citizens of LONDON may take in the City, of the Borough or Town where such Toll or Custom was taken, as much as the Man of LONDON gave for Toll, and receive as much for Damage.

That all Debtors that owe Debts to the Citizens of LONDON, pay them in LONDON, or in LONDON discharge themselves that they owe not; and if they will not do neither one nor other, then the Citizens to whom they are indebted may take (namia sua) their Goods by Distress, in the City of LONDON, the Borough, or Village, or County, in which he remains who owes the Debt.

Also, that the Citizens of LONDON have their Privileges for Hunting (Fugationes ad fugandum) as their Ancestors have had it, better and more fully, in Chiltre, Middlesex, and Surrey.

THEN follow, in the same Book, the Articles of King Henry II's Charter.

IN another Book belonging to the City, there is a Tract with this Title, De aliquibus Libertatibus Civitatis LONDON. i. e. Concerning some Liberties of the City of LONDON; which are Extracts taken out of the former and other Charters of the City, by some judicious Persons, that so Citizens might know their Privileges; and there is set before each Paragraph, Sciendum est, viz.

Sciendum est, &c. We must know, that within the Space of three Miles on every Part of the City of LONDON, a Man ought not to retain or hinder another, nor to buy of him [cum eo mercatum agere] if he be minded, in the Peace of the City to come to it; but when he shall have come into the City, then he may trade with him, whether rich or poor.

Sciendum est, &c. We must know, that a Man who is of the King's Court, or one of the Barons, ought not to take Harbour (hospitare) in the House of any Citizen of LONDON, by Force or Livery (Liberatione) or Custom, unless by the Free-Will of the Entertainer (Hospite;) for if he use Violence upon him in his own House, to take Harbour there, and shall be slain there, by the Inhabiter (Si vim hisplandi ei in domo sua intulerit, ibiq; ab hospite occisus fuerit) let him choose six of his Equals (Parentibus. Quare, an Paribus?) and sworn Men, himself the seventh, that he slew them for the Cause aforesaid; and so he shall remain quit of the Death of the said Slain, towards the King and his Equals, and the Lord of the Defunct.

Sciendum est, &c. It must be known also, that a Citizen of LONDON ought not to plead before the King, nor any other within the Walls of the City.

It must be known, that if any of the Citizens shall make a Forfeiture, which may be satisfied by Money, he ought not to be more than his own Ecre (ad suam Ecre) or Court. Let not the Sheriff of the City presume to retain any one's Money, or disturb him. Nor ought he to call any remaining in the Socne of another, to the King's Pleas, or do Justice concerning them, till the Keeper of that Socne (Liberty) in which he shall remain, or shall be deficient on the Parts or Part of retaining (De retro tenendo) unless the Sheriff shall find him openly and plainly forfeiting in the King's Socne.

A Citizen of LONDON, if he should come to the Folksmote, or to the Hustenge, (without Intention of Pleading,) has not there Need to answer to any one concerning any Complaint, unless he will of his own Accord.

A Citizen of LONDON, if by Occasion of Want he shall be willing to sell his Land, they cannot possibly forbid his Son, nor his Parent, unless they shall be willing to buy with his Consent (Ad concessum ipsius.)

Item, A Citizen of LONDON, if he shall hold any Land for a Year and a Day, without Claim or Challenge [Sine Calumpnia] he ought not to answer to any in the City remaining; unless who, after he should have claimed the Law, shall be of such Age that he knew not to claim it, or Sickness hindered, or was not in that Country, or was in the War.

A Merchant Stranger (Foraneus) after that he shall enter into the City, may be harboured wheresoever it shall please him; but let him take Care he do not sell his Ware by Retail (Ad incisionem;) as if he shall bring Cloths dyed, let him sell not less than 12 together: Or if he shall bring Pepper, or Cummin, or Ginger, or Allum, or Brasil, or Lacem, or Frankinsence, he shall not sell less than 25 lb. together: Or if he shall bring Girdles (Zona) he shall not sell less than 12 Girdles; and if Cloths made of Silk, or of Wooll, or if Linen, let him see that he cut them not, but sell them whole; but if he bring Wax, let him not sell less together than one Quarter.

A Merchant, thus a Foreigner, cannot sell wet Cloth, or Dye his Cloth in the City, nor do any Work that belongs to the Citizens.

Also a Foreign Merchant cannot make any Merchandize with his extraneous Sac (Sacio) Cloth within the City, to sell it again in the City, nor to make any Market, nor tarry longer in the City than 40 Days.

THE Citizens of LONDON shall not make War, nor ought they to go in any Expedition, either by Sea or Land; because they are free and quit of all Exercise. They ought to keep the City, as the Refuge and Fortification (Propugnaculum) of the Kingdom. For the Citizens have their Refuge and Egress, (as it were in a Castle, where they preserve themselves, and issue out when they see Occasion to defend themselves.)

DIVERS were the Privileges, Liberties, and Favours granted by all these Charters. The brief Contents of each were as follow. King William I. called the Conqueror, confirmed the ancient Liberties of the City. And by a Charter demised and granted to the Citizens the said City and Sheriffwick thereof; and afterward confirmed the same in Parliament. Which how strange soever a Parliament seemed to be then, the Words of the Record are, Auctoritate Parliamenti Wilhelmus demisit tunc Civibus LONDON. totam dictam Civitatem, & Vicecomitatum LONDON. cum omnibus Appendiciis, &c. Henry I. Son to William, confirmed the Liberties of the City of LONDON, and granted to them their Heirs and Successors for ever, the Sheriffwick of Middlesex, at the Farm of 300 l. per Annum. So that the Citizens shall appoint Sheriffs whom they please from among themselves. This was the better to enable the City to keep the Peace. For many Murders, Rapines and

The Privileges granted by these Charters.

Violences being committed in the City, the Offenders would thereupon fly into Middlesex; and the Citizens having no Power or Jurisdiction before in that County, the Guilty by that Means escaped unpunished. 3. King Stephen, by his Magna Charta, among other Things, confirmed the Liberties of the City, which they not only had in the Time of William the Conqueror, William Rufus, and Henry I. but those they enjoyed before, viz. in the Time of Edward the Confessor. 4. Henry II. did the same; and so did, 5. King Richard I. his Son, who by Letters Patents granted the Citizens all their said Customs, and all other Liberties and free Customs, which they had in the Time of King Henry, Grandfather to King Henry his Father, whensoever they were best and most free Customs. 6. King John, in the first of his Reign, by a particular Charter, confirmed to the Citizens and their Heirs, the free Election of their Mayor and Sheriffs, with a Power to displace and remove the Sheriffs at their own Pleasure. 7. King Henry III. by his Charter ratified and confirmed to the Citizens and their Heirs, the Sheriffwicks of LONDON and Middlesex, for the antient Fee of 300 l. per Annum, which was the original Rent in King Henry I.'s Time. And after the Citizens should present their Sheriffs so chosen by them, at the Exchequer.

Confirmation of these Charters by successive Kings.

THE said Charters of King Henry I. King John, and King Henry III. have by Inspecimus's been confirmed, by all the successive Kings, under the Great Seal of England, one of the greatest Obligations of the Kings to their People. They were confirmed afterwards by Parliament, and especially the great Charter of King John; wherein there was a Clause for all the antient Liberties and free Customs of LONDON, as well by Land as by Water. This Charter was ratified and confirmed by several Parliaments in King Henry III.'s Time, and particularly in the Parliament of the 52d of Henry III.

AND though King Edward I. his Son, in some Displeasure, took away their Charter, and kept the Liberties of the City for many Years in his own Hands, and constituted Keepers or Custodes over the City, without the Citizens Choice; yet at last, in the 26th of his Reign, became a gracious Lord to them, and restored them their Liberties, by this Brief signifying the same to the Officers of his Exchequer.

King Edw. I. his Restitution of the City's Liberties.

EDward by the Grace of God, &c. To his Treasurers and Barons of the Exchequer, Greeting. Whereas for the good Service that our beloved Citizens of LONDON have hitherto done us, by our Letters Patents we have rendered and restored to the same our foresaid City, together with the Maioralty, all their Liberties; (which City, Maioralty, and Liberties, we had long since caused to be taken into our Hands) to be had and held to the same Citizens, according to their Will, as freely and intirely as they had and held them on the Day of the said taking them away, as is contained more fully in our said Letters. We command you, that ye permit the same Citizens, to use and enjoy the Liberties which they have reasonably used on the Day of the foresaid taking, before you in the Exchequer before-said, according to the Tenor of our foresaid Letters. Witness myself at York the 28th Day of May, in the 26th Year of our Reign.

By which Brief Henry de Galys was chosen for Mayor, and admitted by the King at Fulham, on the Morrow after the Brief given: This was Anno 1298.

MOREOVER, King Edward III. in his first Year, did by his Charter grant and confirm, as a perpetual Law for him and his Heirs for ever, that since in Magna Charta of the Liberties of England, it was contained, that the City of LONDON should enjoy her antient Liberties and Customs; and because the said Citizens had at the Time of the said Charter, and in the Time of St. Edward the Confessor, and William the Conqueror, and his other Progenitors, divers Liberties and Customs, as well by the Charters of his Progenitors, as without Charters by antient Customs; he granted and confirmed to the Citizens, their Heirs and Successors, that they should enjoy their Liberties and Customs. And because their Liberties had been oftentimes impeached, and some of them forejudged in the tempestuous Time of Edward II. and other preceding Kings, contrary to Magna Charta: Therefore both the King, and the Lords and Commons, did set a Brand upon such illegal Proceedings; and by their solemn Act did publicly condemn them as Usurpations, to prevent the same in Ages to come; and also to put a Mark of Infamy upon the Name of Henry de Stanton, and his Fellow Justices, who, in the Quo Warranto, 14 Edw. II. refused to do the City Justice. And further, by the same Authority it was enacted, that the Liberty of the City should not be taken into the Hand of the said King Edward III. or his Heirs, for any Personal Trespas or Judgment of any Minister of the said City; nor that a Custos should be set over the City upon any such like Occasion; but the Minister that transgressed should be punished according to the Quality of his Offence.

VOL. II.

AND when King Richard II. endeavoured to shake the antient Government of the City, the Commons considering the high Consequences that would unavoidably affect the whole Kingdom by the Invasion of the Liberties of the City, they presently took the Alarm, and thereupon petitioned the King, That for the greater Quiet and Maintenance of Peace between his Liege People; and for Common Profit, his Citizens of his City of LONDON should be in the then present Parliament intirely restored to their Franchises and free Usages: And that it might please his most dread Highness, of his especial Grace, to grant and confirm to his said Citizens, and their Successors, by his Letters Patents, all their Liberties and free Usages, as intirely and fully as they or their Predecessors enjoyed them, in the Time of any of his most noble Progenitors, with the Clause of Licet usi non fuerint vel abusi fuerint, i. e. although they used them not, or misused them; as also with the Franchises which they enjoyed from his most gracious Grant or Confirmation, notwithstanding any Statutes, Judgments given, Ordinances or Charters late made or granted to the contrary, as well in the Time of any of his said Progenitors, as in his own Reign; because the Restraint of their Liberties and frank Usages had several Ways before that Time impaired and put back their Estates, and was not available to the common Profit of the Realm, &c. And further, to grant that no Mayor of the said City for the future should take, nor be constrained to take, in the Court of Exchequer, any Oath, but only the antient Oath used in the Time of Edward, his most noble Grandfather (whom God absolve) any Statute or Ordinance to the contrary thereof notwithstanding. To which he answered, De assensu Prælatorum, Dominorum, Procerum & Magnatum sibi in eodem Parlamento assistentium: le Roy le voet, i. e. so it pleaseth the King.

THUS, in former Times have Parliaments favoured the City in the Confirmation of their just Privileges: But to return to the Confirmations which the Kings and Queens of the Land have granted the same. The three great Charters before-said of King Henry I. King John, and King Henry

Henry III. have been confirmed under the Great Seal to the People, by these Kings and Queens, viz. Edward I. Edward II. Edward III. Henry IV. Henry V. Henry VI. Edward IV. Richard III. Henry VII. Henry VIII. Edward VI. Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth, King James I. King Charles I. and lastly,

ALL these Charters were confirmed to the City by King Charles II. which Charters were some Years ago printed; and the Book called The Royal Charter of Confirmation, granted by King Charles II. to the City of LONDON; it was printed in the Year of Sir Robert Clayton's Mayoralty, and dedicated to him; wherein are recited, verbatim, all the former Charters at Length, taken, as the Book vouches, out of the Record. To which printed Charter of King Charles II. any may have Recourse, that desires to know the Contents of all the Charters of LONDON, and the Privileges of the Freemen thereof.

The Quo Warranto brought against the City's Charter.

IN the 35th of the same Charles II. the City's Franchises were seized into the King's Hands, upon a pretended Forfeiture: But first, in the 34th of the said King, a Quo Warranto was issued forth against the City. Sir Robert Sawyer was at that Time Attorney-General, who, as Bishop Burnet says, was a dull hot Man, and forward to serve all the Designs of the Court. He undertook, by the Advice of Sanders, the Lord Chief Justice, a learned but a very immoral Man, to overthrow the Charter.

THAT which gave the Occasion of the King's causing this Quo Warranto to be brought against this City's Charter, was a Petition the Court of Aldermen and City made to the King, upon his Prorogation of the Parliament, when they were going to try several Noble Persons upon the Popish Plot; and for their Printing and Publishing the said Petition, which was looked upon as seditious, and possessing the People with an ill Opinion of the King and his Government. Another Pretence was, that the City had imposed new Taxes on their Wharfs and Markets, which was an Invasion of the Liberty of the Subject, and contrary to Law. It was said, that all the Crown gave was forfeitable back to the Crown again upon a Maleversation of the Body; and that as the Common-Council was the Body of the City, chosen by all the Citizens, so they were all involved in what the Common-Council did: And they inferred, that since they had both scandalized the King's Government, and oppressed their Fellow Subjects, they had thereupon forfeited their Liberties.

THESE Proceedings between the King and the City of LONDON, on an Information, in Nature of a Quo Warranto, were in the King's-Bench, in Hilary Term, Anno 1683, 35 Car. II.

The Proceedings on the Quo Warranto.

THE Information set forth, That the Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens of the City of LONDON, by the Space of a Month last past, and more, used, and yet did claim to have or use, without any lawful Warrant, or regal Grant, within the City of LONDON aforesaid, the Liberties and Privileges of the same City, viz. these Liberties and Privileges following: I. To be of themselves a Body Politick, by the Name of Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of the City of LONDON. II. To be Sheriffs of the City of LONDON and County of Middlesex, and to name, elect, make and constitute them. III. That the Mayor and Aldermen of the said City were Justices of Peace, and held Sessions of Peace. All which Liberties, Privileges, and Franchises, the said Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of LONDON, upon the King, had by the Space aforesaid usurped, and yet did usurp.

THE great Arguments insisted upon, whereby it was endeavoured to be proved that the City had forfeited their Liberties and Privileges were these:

I. Because they took Authority to levy Money upon the King's Subjects to their proper Use, by Colour of Laws and Ordinances by them de facto ordained; and in the Prosecution thereof of the 17th of Sept. 26 Car. II. in Common-Council, published a Law for the levying of several Sums of Money, of all that came to the publick Market within the City to sell Provisions, viz. of every Person for every Horse Load of Provisions, 2 d. per Day: For every Cart not drawn with more than three Horses, 4 d. per Day; if drawn with more than three Horses, 6 d. per Day; and if any paid them not, then to be removed from their Place in the Market. And that by Colour of this Law, the Mayor, &c. had for seven Years received great Sums of Money, amounting to 5000 l. per Annum, in Oppression of the King's Subjects.

II. That the Mayor, Commonalty and Citizens, on the 13th of January, 32 Car. II. [Sir Patience Ward then being Mayor] in their Common-Council did give their Votes, that a certain Petition, under the Name of the Mayor, Aldermen and Commons of the City of LONDON in Common-Council assembled, should be exhibited to the King: The Import whereof was, that by the Prorogation of the Parliament (which was from the 10th of January, 32 Car. II. to the 20th of January then next ensuing) the Prosecution of the publick Justice of the Kingdom, and the making necessary Provisions for the Preservation of the King, and of his Protestant Subjects, had received Interruption; and that they did order the said Petition to be Printed, and the same was Printed accordingly: Which was charged and aggravated upon the City to be done unlawfully, maliciously, advisedly, and seditiously, with Intention that the said Petition might be dispersed among the King's Subjects, to the Hatred of the King's Person and Government, and to disturb the Peace of the Kingdom.

THE Mayor, Commonalty and Citizens, in Rejoinder, (as to the former Argument) pleaded by protesting, that those Pleas by the Attorney pleaded, were insufficient in Law to forejudge or exclude the Mayor and Commonalty from being a Corporation; protesting also, that no Act or Deed, or By-Law made by the Mayor, Aldermen, &c. is an Act or Deed of the Body Corporate. Lastly, protesting that they, the Mayor and Commonalty, &c. never took upon them any unlawful or unjust Authority to tax the King's Subjects coming to Market, such yearly Sums as were alledged.

That LONDON is the Metropolis of England, and very populous, & Celeberrimum Emporium totius Europæ.

That there are, and Time out of Mind have been, divers publick Markets for Provision and Merchandize within the said City to be sold.

That the Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens have been, Time out of Mind, and yet are seized of these Markets in Fee, and by all the said Time at their own Costs and Expences have provided, and have accustomed, and ought to provide, at their own Costs, Places for the holding the said Markets and Stalls, and Standings, and other Accommodations for Persons bringing Provisions and Merchandizes to the said Markets, and Supervisors and other Officers for the better preserving and ordering the said Markets, and of the great Concourse of Persons coming to the same; and for the sustaining and and supporting of the said Costs and Expences, by all the Time aforesaid have had, and ought to have, reasonable Tolls, Rates, or Sums of Money, of Persons coming to the said Markets for their Stalls, Standings, and other Accommodations by them for the better exposing their Commodities had and enjoyed.

They further say, That the Citizens and Freemen of LONDON are very numerous, (viz.) 50,000 and more.

That within the said City there hath been, Time out of Mind, a Common-Council assembled, as often as necessary, consisting of the Mayor, Aldermen, and of certain of the Citizens; not exceeding 250 Persons thereto annually elected, called the Commons of the said City.

That there is a Custom within the said City for the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council, to make By-Laws and Ordinances for the Regulation and Government of the publick Markets within the City.

That these Liberties and Customs of the City were confirmed by Magna Charta, and the other Statutes in the Plea abovementioned.

That by Reason of the burning of the City in Sept. 1666. and the Alterations in the Market-Houses and Places thereby occasion'd, for the establishing and resettling the Markets within the City, 17 Sept. 26 Car. II. the then Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons, in Common-Council assembled, according to the said Custom, for the better Regulation of the said Market, did make and publish an Ordinance, entituled, An Act for the Settlement and Well-ordering the publick Markets within the City of LONDON, by which said Ordinance reciting that for the Accommodation of the Market-People with the Stalls, Shelters, and other Necessaries for their Standing in the Markets, and for the Amendment, Paving, and Cleansing the Market-Places, and for the Support and Defraying the incident Charges thereof, there have been always certain reasonable Rates, and Duties paid for the same. And to the Intent that the said Rates may be ascertained and made publick to all Market-People, and the Collectors restrained from exacting---It was enacted and ordained by the said Common-Council, that the Rates and Sums in the Replication should be paid to the Use of the Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens; or upon Refusal, to be removed out of the Market. And they aver, that these are all the Rates or Duties paid, and were reasonable Sums to be paid; and these they have demanded and received for the Use and Purpose aforesaid, as was lawful for them to do.

As to the other Matter alledged by the Attorney-General in assigning the Forfeiture, they say,

That within this Kingdom, viz. at the Parish of St. Michael Bassishaw, LONDON, there was an execrable Plot and Conspiracy prosecuted by Papists to destroy the King, and to subvert the antient Government, and suppress the true Religion in this Kingdom established.

That Sir Edmundbury Godfrey took Examinations of Witneses, and Informations of the same; and also of the Burning of LONDON by the Papists.

That divers of the Conspirators had lain in wait for him, and murdered him, to the Intent to suppress his Examination, and to deter other Magistrates from acting in the Discovery.

That Green, and others were try'd and hang'd for this Murder.

That Coleman, and others were also try'd and executed for the same Conspiracy.

That William Lord Powis, Lord Arundel of Warder, Lord Petre, Lord Bellasis, were impeached by the Commons in Parliament of High Treason for the same Conspiracies, and sent to the Tower.

That the King, in his Speech to that Parliament, had recommended to them the further Pursuit and Examination of that Conspiracy, declaring, He thought not himself nor them safe, till that Matter were gone through with; and therefore it was necessary that the said Lords in the Tower should be brought to their Trial, that Justice might be done; and the Parliament having made an Address to the King, wherein both Lords and Commons declared their being deeply sensible of the sad Condition of the Realm, occasion'd chiefly by the Conspiracies of a Popish Party, who had plotted and intended the Destruction of the King, and Subversion of the Government, and Religion of the Kingdom; and thereupon a solemn Fast was kept pursuant to the King's Proclamation, grounded upon the said Address, and divers Bills prepared to be pass'd into Laws for Preservation of his Protestant Subjects.

These Impeachments and Bills being thus depending, and the Lords in the Tower not tried, the Parliament was upon the 10th of January prorogued, as the Attorney-General above in his Replication hath alledged, by Reason whereof the Citizens and Inhabitants of the said City, being faithful Subjects to the King, were much disquieted with the Sense and Apprehensions of the Danger threatening the Person of the King, his Government and Realm, by Reason of the Conspiracies aforesaid, as is by both King and Parliament affirmed and declared; and conceiving no better Means to prevent, than by the sitting of the Parliament, and having received a Petition from divers faithful Subjects, Citizens of LONDON, to the same Effect: And it being lawful to petition, the Mayor, Sir Patience Ward, and the Aldermen and Commons, in Common-Council assembled, for the Preservation of the King and his Government, did cause to be written the Petition in the Replication mentioned, which is set forth in hac Verba; and did order, That after the same was presented to the King, it should be printed for the Satisfaction of the troubled Minds of the said Citizens, and traverse the Writing or making any other Petition, or making this to any other End or Intent than they have pleaded.

This great Case was only twice argued at the Bar: First, by Mr. Finch, the King's Solicitor, for the King; and Sir George Treby, Recorder of LONDON, for the City. And next by Sir Robert Sawyer, the King's Attorney General, for the King; and Henry Pollexfen, for the City.

The first Argument was in Hilary Term, on Wednesday, Feb. 7, as follows:

Mr. Solicitor. The Questions in this Case, as I think, will be,

- I. Whether any Corporation can be forfeited?
- II. Whether the City of LONDON differ from other Corporations as to point of Forfeiture?
- III. Whether any Act of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council in Common-Council assembled, be so much of the Act of the Corporation, as can make a Forfeiture?
- IV. Whether the Acts by them done in making the By-Law, and receiving Money by it, or in making the Petition, and causing it to be printed and published, be such Acts, as if done by the Corporation, will make a Forfeiture of the Corporation?

I. The first of these Questions truly I should not make any Question at all, but that this Case has been a Case of so great Expectation, every Man has discoursed about it; and the Prejudice that some have entertain'd concerning it, have drawn them to assert the negative Proposition: Therefore, My Lord, because this strikes to the Whole, though I think it hath no Foundation in Law, I will beg Leave to remove this Objection out of the Case.

1. First of all, no Corporation hath any other Creation than any other Franchises have, and subsist upon the same Terms that other Franchises do.

2. There is a Trust or a Condition in Law, that is annexed to, and grows upon all Franchises, that they be not abused; and the Breach of them is a Forfeiture of the very Being of the Franchise.

3. And as there is no Foundation of that Opinion in Law, so the Mischiefs would be great, if the Law were otherwise. For,

1. First, That no Corporation hath any other Creation than other Franchises have; 'tis undoubtedly true that the King is the Original and Commencement of all Franchises; they have their Beginning from him; the Books are clear and full in it: I need not quote them, though there are many, Kelway 138. 17 Ed. 2. 530. in the Reports of those Times set forth by Mr. Serjeant Maynard. Now, My Lord, there can be no Corporation, but by the King's Letters Patents; for even the Prescription doth suppose there was the King's Patent to create it at first: And therefore the proper Enquiry will be about the second Thing.

2. How far the Breach of Trust that is annexed to a Franchise, is a Forfeiture of that Franchise.

First of all, There is no Rule in Law more certain, than that the Mis-user of a Franchise is a Forfeiture of that Franchise. This the Statute of 18 Ed. 2. does very well prove, which was an Act of Grace to restore Franchises to those that had lost and forfeited them. There it was restrained Ita quod libertat' non sint abusæ. And my Lord Coke, 2 Inst. in his Observations upon the Statute of Westm' 1. that Chapter of it that concerns Towns that exacted more Murage than was granted, fol. 233. says, They shall lose that Grant for ever; says the Mirror of Just. which my Lord Coke there quotes, that is no more than the Common Law; for the Law wills that every Man should lose his Franchise, that does misuse it; So the Abbot of St. Alban's Case, 8 Hen. 4. 18. The King seized the Franchise into his Hand, because the Abbot, who had the Jail, would not give Pledges to make Deliverance, and for detaining his Prisoners a long Time without making a lawful Deliverance. And so 20 Ed. 4. 6. The Abbot of Crowland's Case for detaining Prisoners acquitted after Fees paid, the King seized the Jail for ever. These two are cited by my Lord Coke, 2 Inst. 43. And in Sir George Reynel's Case, 9 Report, Fitzherbert's Abridgment, Titl' coron' placit' 233. A Layman was taken in a Robbery, the Ordinary challenges him as a Clerk, whereas he was a Layman: It was ruled, that for his false Challenge the Ordinary should lose his Temporalities to the King, and lose his Franchise to challenge Clerks, for him and his Successors for ever. Thus far is plain, that Franchises, if misused, are forfeited; and that though enjoyed by Persons in a corporate Capacity, as appears by the Cases put. And then as a Corporation may forfeit any Franchise they are seized of in Right of the Corporation, so may a Corporation forfeit the Franchise of the Corporation itself, upon the same Ground and Reason in Law; unless any one will say, The Franchise of being a Corporation cannot be misused; and that would be a very strange Matter to assert.

Every Corporation is entrusted with a Franchise to make Laws for governing the Subject within its Jurisdiction. If that Power be exercised to the Subjects Prejudice, as it may be, it were an hard Matter if there were no Law to redress that Grievance. Suppose a Corporation under their common Seal should authorize a Rebellion, would any Man say that were no Forfeiture? 'Tis said, indeed, by Pigott, 21 Ed. 4. fol. 13. Arguendo upon a Case (where the Question is, Whether a Corporation should avoid a Bond entered into by the Mayor by Durefs.) That a Corporation can neither commit Treason or Felony; but upon the same Reason that he urges, That a Corporation cannot act at all, that is, abstractedly from all the Members of it; for so this Notion is, that a Corporation is a Body in Consideration of Law only, and not Reality; and therefore the particular Act even of the Head of that Body shall affect him personally only. But this is only a Notion of his arguing; but it is the best Opinion of that Book, that Durefs to the Members did so affect the Corporation, that it should avoid the Bond.

Now, my Lord, a Corporation may be surrendered; and surely that that may be surrendered, may be forfeited; and I shall offer you some Authorities in this Case, 12 E. 3. rot. claus. memb. 36. a Writ is directed to the Constable of Dover, reciting, That the Cinque-Ports had seized divers Goods of several Merchant Strangers Portugueses, and others; and the Writ commands that Right should be done, or else the Franchise should be seized into the King's Hands, 6 Ed. 2. rot. Claus. Numb. 5. The Liberties of the City of Bristol were seized, and the Custody of it granted to for divers Contempts and Injuries done per Majorem, Ballivos, & Communitat' to the King; and so the Close Rolls of R. 2. m. 6.

There is another Case that comes further, Pasch. 9. Ed. 1. Majus rot. 25. I find it likewise among my Lord Chief Justice Hales's Collections, that he has given to Lincoln's-Inn Library; I took it out of that Book: 'Tis in the Collection of the Adjudicata in the Time of Ed. 1. fol. 28. a. Thus it was: There was the Abbot of St. Austin in Canterbury had made an Agreement with the Men of Sandwich, about paying ten Hogsheads of Wine yearly to the Abbot; and there was due to the Abbot some thirty Marks, and he had Judgment, and Execution went out; and thus 'tis in the Book, Vic. de — mandatur, quod levare fac' 30 Marcas de bonis ipsius, ad opus Abbatis, pro pretio 10 Doleorum Vini annuatim solvend'. And they made Rescue when the Sheriff came to execute the Writ, and they were sued for that; and the Judgment of the King and his Council, which was by Parliament, for it was adjourned into Parliament, was, Quod libertas de Sandwich forisfact' sit. And there is this Observation, tho' it be written with the same Hand, which is not his, but the Clerks that transcribed it, Judicium illud extendit contra Barones 5 Portuum, & eorum libertates, ut mihi videtur. These are the Words of that Book: And this will go a great Way with the City of LONDON, as to their Confirmation of Magna Charta; for the Cinque-Ports are confirmed by Act of Parliament, as well as they.

But, my Lord, there are many Cases of like Nature, and that even in the Case of the City of LONDON too, as I shall shew you by and by. Now tho' these are not Judgments in Quo Warranto's, to out a Corporation of a Franchise of being a Corporation, yet it shews, that these things things were Forfeitures of all the Franchises of a Corporation; for a Seizure is never but where there is Matter for Forfeiture found upon Record, as in Sir George Reynel's Case; or to ground a Forfeiture, upon which to bring a Quo Warranto, as in our Case. But in the Case of 9 Ed. 1. there it does appear Judgment was given by the Parliament, that the Liberty should be forfeited, not that it should be seized into the King's Hands only.

Now, my Lord, where all the Franchises of a Corporation are forfeited, what is the Corporation? Truly, 'tis nothing, 'tis but a Name; a Corporation, without a Power to act, is nothing at all. Indeed, I do not find any Judgment in a Quo Warranto of a Corporation being forfeited; yet, my Lord, it doth not follow from thence that this cannot be by Law; for many Quo Warranto's have been brought against LONDON, and other Places too, to out Corporations of their Franchises, but it hath always ended in Submission to the King, and so they have been at quiet. All the Quo Warranto's in Mr. Attorney Palmer's Time, after the King's Restauration, against the several Corporations, they all submitted; and yet that was to question the very Being of their Corporations.

Now, my Lord, pray consider a little upon the Rule of Law. It should seem very strange, if a Corporation should neglect to come into Eyre, or into the King's Bench, the same Term that a Quo Warranto is brought against them, they must be outed of their Franchise for ever, as 'tis said 15 Ed. 4. 6 & 7. And yet, when all the Contempts and Oppositions imaginable are found upon Record, that this should not be a Forfeiture, that seems absurd that a Neglect in Eyre should do it, but all the Oppressions and Offences in the World, when found upon Record, should not do it.

3. But, my Lord, the Mischiefs that would follow from hence are very great. How many Oppressions and Offences would be daily committed, if every Corporation were a Franchise and Jurisdiction independent upon the Crown? and the Punishment truly of some particular Men for those Offences would not be adequate, where the Power of offending and misgoverning should still remain; sure that were no adequate Redress of such an Inconvenience. And to this Purpose, my Lord, I shall humbly offer a Case, and 'tis that great Case between the Earls of Gloucester and Hereford, Hil' 20 Ed. 1. in B. R. Rot. Wallie 14. 'Tis likewise in Riley's Placita Parliamenti, 83, 86. The Case is this in short: They both claimed the Liberty of Returna Brevevium, and they had incurred great Contempts in refusing to obey the King's Writs; and Judgment was given against them, that the Liberty should be seized for this Reason, which, I think, will go a great Way in this Case, and for which I offer it, Quia puniendus est Dominus libertatis in eo quo deliquit. I think, my Lord, as I said, that will go a great way in this Case to shew the Reason of the Law.

My Lord, if the granting of too many and too large Franchises were a Mischief, as certainly it was by Law, and as appears by the Common Petitions 21 Ed. 3. Rot. Parl. N. 17. where they pray, That new and large Franchises may not be granted, because it tended to the overthrowing the Common Law, and great Oppression of the People. And the King's Answer was, That Care should be taken for the Time to come. I say then, if this were such a Mischief, that there ought not to be granted new and large Franchises, much more would it be a Mischief, if these Franchises should not be under the Controul of the Law, when they exercise such Oppression. And so, my Lord, I shall leave that Point; for I think it will be pretty clear, that a Corporation may forfeit their Being of a Corporation.

II. I shall next consider, Whether the City of LONDON be in any other Plight than any other Corporations. I think, truly, there is no Difference at all. Now this Question doth depend upon what they have set forth by their Plea; and that is, the Confirmation of Magna Charta, cap. 9. Civitas London' habeat omnes libertates suas antiquas, & consuetudines suas. And then the Act of 1 E. 3. upon which my Lord Coke, in his 4 Inst. 253. says, that the Franchise of this City shall not for any Cause be seized into the King's Hands. And then that of 7 R. 2. which says, that the City shall enjoy its whole Liberties, licet non usi vel abusi. This is their Foundation, upon which they would distinguish this City from all other Corporations. Now as to these things, I give these Answers:

First for Magna Charta, That plainly is no more a Confirmation to them, than 'tis to other Cities and Corporations. For not only the City of LONDON is named to have its antient Liberties and Customs preserved, but 'tis likewise omnes alie Civitat', &c. and all Cities, Boroughs, and Towns, and the Barons of Cinque-Ports, and all other Ports, should have all their Liberties and free Customs. So my Lord Coke agrees it in his Comment. And in what he cites out of the Mirror of Justice, and other antient Authors of our Law, they should enjoy their Franchises which they had Right to by lawful Title of the Gift and Confirmation of the King, and which they had not forfeited by any Abuse. So that the Act which confirmed them, did not purge former Forfeitures, much less did it licence other Abuses.

Then for their Acts of 1 E. 3. 7 R. 2. I shall humbly offer this, That as they are in Truth no Acts of Parliament at all, so they will not concern this Question, whatsoever my Lord Coke says concerning them. But I shall give some Instances before these Acts, to shew that they never had such an unquestionable Power as they now dream of, and then some Instances in After-times, that there either were no such Acts, or no such Sense, at least, is to be put upon them, as they have strained to make.

First it appears, 15 E. 1. that the Franchise of the City of LONDON was seized into the King's Hand, and Johannes de Britton was made Custos Civitatis London', who was no Freeman; and this implies, that the Franchise was seized into the King's Hands, for they had a Power to choose de seipsis, by Charter from King John, a Citizen to be Mayor or chief Governour; but here was another Governor appointed them.

Then Rot' Pat' 26 E. 1. Rex pro bono servicio civit' London' reddit eis civit' suam London' habend' dict' civibus ad volunt' Regis. Teste Rege. So that both the City, and all its Franchises, were seized at that Time; for he restored the very City of LONDON to the Citizens habend' during his Will and Pleasure. Thus, my Lord, it stood in the Time of E. 1. Then, in the Time of E. 2. seized again; 14 E. 2. memb. 21. of the Pat' Rolls, in 21. Rex dimisit civibus London' officium Major' civitat' London'. 15 E. 2. Rex dedit licentiam eligendi Major' London'. And in the second Part of Pat' Rolls, 15 E. 2. m. 5. the King recites, That whereas in the 14th Year of his Reign he had replevied to them the Office of Mayor, usque quindenam Sancti Martini, and also recites, which Office was seized into the King's Hands by the Justices of Eyre in the Tower of LONDON, and he was willing to continue it longer to them, ex gratia speciali, he did grant them the said Office, quamdiu, &c.

Then the second Part of Pat' Rolls in 20 E. 2. it is recited, That the King had seized the Office of the Mayoralty, and had replevied it from Time to Time; and that one Hamond de Chigwell was made Mayor, the King had accepted of him for Mayor, Et Rex volens eis gratiam uberioorem facere, grants him the Office of Mayor.

Now, my Lord, these Seizures shew plainly, that the Franchises of the City were forfeitable; for either they were seized upon Matter of Record found for a Forfeiture, or else upon some Matter which was to be a Ground of a Forfeiture. So then they were absolutely gone, and I do not find that these were ever taken out of the King's Hands by Process of Law, but were restored by Grace and Favour; for till the 20 E. 2. it appears, that they so long continued in the King's Hands, and he absolutely disposed of them.

Here is now a Favour to them, and a plenary Restitution. Thus it stood in the Reigns of E. 1. and E. 2.

Now the next Thing will be for their Act of 1 E. 3. which they back with my Lord Coke's Observation upon it, that it was Authoritate Parliamenti. Now truly, my Lord, there is no such Act of Parliament that is any where extant. For it is not in Print, neither are there any Parliament Rolls of E. 3's Time till 4 E. 3. And he that cites it, my Lord Coke himself, cites no Roll at all for it; so that where we shall find this Act of Parliament, truly I do not know. But this Act at best amounts to no more, than that for any personal Trespas of Officers the Liberties of the City should not be seized; but that signifies nothing, for that is not our Case. There are Acts of the Corporations, not of particular Officers; though I cannot but observe how the Law was taken to be at that Time, before this their pretended Act, even for the Offence of private Officers; and that appears to be the Law too in the Case of 9 E. 1. which I cited before, which was only the Offence of the Mayor of Sandwich, who refused to answer for a Trespas, and a Rescue was committed, and the whole Liberty seized.

Now this Act of 1 E. 3. be it what it will, though they would take it in that Sense, that no Forfeiture should be incurred for the Trespas of an Officer, yet I find quite the contrary thereunto, and that it hath not prevailed even in that Sense. For 5 E. 3. Rot. Claus. 14. there the King did discharge one from the Office of Mayor, and commands the Aldermen and Commonalty to choose another. Now this, my Lord, I take to be not so much a punishing of the Officer, as a breaking in upon the Franchise itself. But I shall shew more fully in the Reign of R. 2. that this was done.

Yet I will first take Notice of the Statute of R. 2. which is the next Thing that they rely upon; and this, with Submission, is no Act of Parliament neither; for though my Lord Coke, in his 4th Inst. 205, says, this is the Statute mentioned in our Books, which supports the Customs in LONDON to devise in Mortmain, and other Customs against Acts of Parliament, and cites Authorities in the Margin; yet, my Lord, I have looked, and can find none of them to speak to the Purpose for which they are cited, but the Book of 7 H. 6. fol. 1. where the Custom of LONDON to devise in Mortmain is in question; and there it was ruled a good Custom, because of the Statute that confirms it after the Statute of Mortmain, but says that Book, Quare the Statute; so that they were not well apprized of the Statute in those Days, though this were the Foundation of all the Resolutions of that Kind.

It appears by the Roll, that it is no Act of Parliament in the Nature of it, for it is 7 R. 2. N^o. 37. a Prayer of the Commons, That there might be a Patent granted to the City, confirming their Liberties, Licet non usi vel abusi fuerint. And the Answer was, Le Roy le veult; but this is no Act of Parliament, it is no more than a Confirmation of the Letters Patents, which had been primo R. 2. Besides further, there never was any Patent granted in Pursuance of this Act: And yet 'tis plain, that if it had been so, it would only have extended to Forfeitures that were past, but could never amount to a Dispensation, or Licence, for the future. And, my Lord, this appears by these Authorities and Records that I shall now cite: The first Part of Pat' Rolls is 6 R. 2. membr. 36, 37. whereby it fully appears, that notwithstanding these pretended Statutes, there was no such Privilege in the City, but that for the Offences of their Officers, or themselves, the Franchise should be seized.

But, my Lord, I must a little observe, that truly the City have attempted to raise themselves above the Fear of any Judgment in any of the King's Courts; for in primo R. 2. Parl. Roll 126, there they petition for a Confirmation of their Charter, with a Clause of Licet non usi vel abusi, which was what they then would have to be done in Parliament for them. But they do likewise desire in their Petition, that notwithstanding any Statute, Privilege, Charters, Judgment made, or to be made to the contrary, their Liberties might be confirmed; of this, 'tis said, the King will advise. There is in 1 R. 2. Parliament Rolls 121, as pleasant a Petition as the other; they there do desire, that the Interpretation of their Charter may be left to themselves; and where it is doubting, such Meaning as they should put upon it should be allowable. But to that the King's Answer was, That he would make the Interpretation of his own Charters, according as his Counsel should advise. So that I observe, they would feign have been absolute, but they could never do it; it hath always been denied them. So that from what was done at this Time, and after 7 R. 2. it does appear plainly, that there was no Difference between the City of LONDON and any other Corporation, only this is really the greatest. But as all Greatness is the King's Favour; so when Men forget their Duty, in abusing the King's Favour, this great Court is the Place to put them in mind of it. I come then to the third Question:

III. Whether the Act of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty, in Common-Council assembled, be an Act of the Corporation, so as to make a Forfeiture of the Whole? And with Submission, my Lord, that will be pretty clear too upon these Reasons:

1. First of all, the whole Corporation is fully represented by them, notwithstanding the Disparity of Number set forth in the Rejoinder.

2. Again, All By-Laws and Ordinances made for the good Government and Order of the City, are certainly the Acts of the Corporation; but the sole Power of making those Laws is in the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council; and therefore sure the whole Power of the Corporation is in the Common-Council.

3. They have the sole Power of the Corporation-Seal. They can bind all the whole Corporation by any Alienation to, or Charge upon their Inheritance; and by Consequence they may surrender all or any of their Franchises, and then, as I said, they may forfeit them.

4. They

4. They have pleaded that there hath been Time out of Mind a Common-Council, consisting of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Two hundred and fifty Citizens, who are called the Commons of the City. So that it shall be intended now, that as they have prescribed for it as incident to their Corporation, it was Part of their Original Constitution to be thus represented by them, and ruled and governed by their Laws: But there is another Reason for it, and that is, that it is an inseparable incident to a Corporation, imployed in Law without Grant, that they have a Power to make By-Laws to bind the Corporation, without which there were no Government in a Corporation; and therefore a Misuser of that Power must be a Forfeiture of their Corporation, because 'tis a Breach of their Original Trust: 22 Affis. pl. 34. there is this Rule given, and a true one it is, Where there are many Franchises granted, which do not depend one upon another, there the Misuser of one is a Forfeiture of that one which was misused; but where there are several Parts of a Franchise depending all upon the said Franchise, if any Part be misused, the entire Franchise shall be forfeited. As for Instance, if a Man have a Fair, a Court of Pypowders is incident to it, the Misuser of that Court of Pypowders is a Forfeiture of the whole Fair itself; for where any Part is abused that is incident to an entire Franchise, that Abuse forfeits the Whole.

And this is the Opinion of Palmer's Reports in the Case of the Corporation of Maidenhead, where 'tis doubted whether the Market was forfeited for taking too much Toll, because the Toll was not inseparably incident to the Market, and so was not dependent upon the entire Franchise, and there the Rule is taken, as I have said before, that the Misuser of the Part of an entire Franchise, or a Power that is incident to it, is a Forfeiture of the Franchise.

Then, my Lord, if they cannot forfeit here, the whole Power of the Trust of the Corporation is reposed in them, and may be misused by them, to the Oppression of the King's Subjects, and there is no Remedy, if they shall not be punished at all. For it is much harder to say, that several Acts of all the particular Persons should forfeit the Corporation, than that their joint Act should do it. But this, my Lord, is an Act contrary to the Trust upon creating the Corporation, and may be a Misuser to the Prejudice and Oppression of all People; and if this should not forfeit the Corporation, there is no Remedy at all, but the Power remains of oppressing as it did before.

Now, my Lord, I think, with Submission, I have made it pretty plain; and as they are not distinguished from other Corporations in Point of Privilege as to Forfeitures, so this is their Act, and shall bind them, being done by their Representatives.

IV. Then the fourth Point will be, Whether these Offences set forth in the Replication are Forfeitures?

1. The first is the making of that Law in the Common-Council for the levying of Sums of Money upon the King's Subjects, and the actual levying of those Sums accordingly; and this they justify under their Prescription to have reasonable Tolls, as they set forth in their Pleadings, from all Persons that come to their Markets to sell Provision there, and Power to reduce their Tolls to a Certainty by an Act of Common-Council. This is their Justification; so that, my Lord, the first Thing to be considered is,

(1.) What Right they have to these Tolls, or Sums of Money assessed by the By-Law; and then

(2.) Whether if they have no Right, their taking upon them to make a Law be a Forfeiture?

(1.) For their Right, that depends upon a Prescription to have reasonable Toll, as they set it forth, and this, as they have pleaded it, appears to be no Right at all; for a Prescription to have Toll and Tollage, not shewing how much is certain, is void; for reasonable Toll is not incident to a Market, but the Party has it by the King's Grant, and so 'twas adjudged in this Court, Mich. 39 & 40. Eliz. cited by my Lord Coke in his Second Inst. 220. So if the King grant a Toll, if he do not in his Grant ascertain how much shall be taken for Toll, that Grant is void, and so is the Prescription too, as you may see in the Corporation of Maidenhead in Palmer's Reports, fol. 79, grounded upon 9 H. 6. 45. & 11 H. 6. 19. and so he cites the Opinion of Popham in the Case of Heedy and Weeldhouse, for no Subject can prescribe to have Toll, but by the Grant of the King.

But, my Lord, this is not properly a Toll neither, nor in the Nature of a Toll; for that is always paid by the Buyer, and never paid before a Sale; but here all that comes to the Market, whether they buy or not buy, sell or not sell, they must pay by this Law. My Lord, I confess, there may be a Custom for Persons to pay for Standings in a Fair, or Market, as the Case was 9 H. 6. 45, but yet that must be prescribed for in a certain Sum, which is not done here. And this customary Payment is in the same Nature as a Toll traverse, or a Toll through, which cannot be in an uncertain Sum; for they are all by Prescription, and a Grant of them, now uncertain, would not be good.

But, my Lord, however, Judgment upon these Pleadings must be given against the City; for either the Prescription as they have set it forth, is good, or it is not good; if it be good, then the Traverse that is taken, is well taken, to wit, that they have no such Custom, and they ought to have taken Issue upon that which they have not done; for, my Lord, they have taken Issue thus, That, Time out of Mind, they have had reasonable Toll of all Persons coming to the Market to sell their Provision, without tying of it to the reasonable Toll assess'd and reduc'd to Certainty by the Law; and this is naught: For tho' they had a reasonable Toll in general, taking the Prescription to be good, yet if either that reasonable Toll in the Use of it were not taken in that Manner, or to that Value that they assess by their By-Law, then have they done wrong; and therefore our Traverse is proper to their reasonable Toll, that they had not, Time out of Mind, such a Toll as they set forth; for it must be such a reasonable Toll as may answer to that which is assessed in the By-Law; and that they have not put in Issue. For the King, when once he hath granted a Market, cannot after grant Toll to that Market, because it is a free Market, and the People have Right to come to it as a free Market; neither can they, when once by Custom they have exercised their Power of assessing reasonable Toll, alter that at their Pleasure; for it being once set, all People have Right to come upon such Terms: And if they increase the Toll, under Pretence to reduce it to Certainty, it will be void; for they may lower their Price if they will, but they can never come to increase the Penalty. If therefore they have done ill in not taking Issue upon the Traverse, which does take in the full Substance of the Rejoinder; if it be good, then Judgment must be given against them upon that Reason; so then, my Lord, the Question will be, of the Charter? And truly, my Lord, that it is, For,

(2.) Whether the making of a Law to raise Money at large upon the Subject be a Forfeiture of

First, It is the usurping of a Power that they neither can have, nor have by Law.

Secondly, It is a Breach of the Trust annexed to the Corporation; for 'tis a Misuser of the Franchise, to the Oppression of the King's Subjects; and therefore the Charter must be forfeited, and not the other Franchise; not the Franchise of a Toll, for they have none; nor the Franchise of the Market, for that would be nothing. If the Market be forfeited, it must either be extinguished, or kept; if it be extinguished, 'tis a Punishment to others that did not offend; and if it be kept, tho' it be forfeited, 'tis no Punishment to them that do offend: And 'tis a Question whether a Market may be forfeited for taking unreasonable Toll; and that appears in the Case of Maidenhead. And, as my Lord Coke says upon the Statute about taking outrageous Toll, the Franchise should be seized only till it be redeemed by them.

But, my Lord, however, without going far into this Matter, this Offence lies not only in taking the Money, but in taking upon them, and usurping a Power to make Laws to raise Money. They have taken upon them a Legislative Power to oppress their Fellow Subjects, that is their Offence, and that is a Misuser of their Franchise. My Lord, in the Case of Ship-Money it was not the Quantum of Money that was raised, that was complained or quarrelled at, but it was the Manner of levying of it without an Act of Parliament. The Logick and Consequence of that was it, which was so much debated and stood upon. So here, the Abuse and the Offence is the making the Law, and the Consequence of that; for by the same Reason that they have a Prescription to lay so much, they may have a Prescription to lay ten times as much. So that upon what I offer upon this Point, I conceive it ought to amount to a Forfeiture of their Charter, and the Loss of their Corporation.

Then the next Thing will be that which is the last Matter, that is the Petition, and that is of a strange Nature; where the Offence is not only in presenting, but in printing and dispersing of it; it charges the King with interrupting the publick Justice of the Nation, and the making the necessary Provisions for the Security of his Protestant Subjects; for, my Lord, to say that the Prorogation of the Parliament, which is the King's Act, who surely has alone, and none but he, the undoubted Prerogative of calling, proroguing, and dissolving Parliaments; to say that Act of his was an Interruption of Justice, is all one as to say, the King did interrupt: And 'tis done by them as a Corporation; 'tis the Act of the City in their Common Council, in the Name of the Corporation; and as we have pleaded it, the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty, in Common-Council did do it, which sure is the Corporation, as they would have it. And that I rely upon for the Reasons I offered before upon that Point.

Then the Matter of this Petition is the taking upon them to censure the King and his Government by this Petition. The printing and dispersing it is now publickly scandalizing and libelling the King; for 'tis in the Nature of an Appeal to the People: 'Tis unlawful to print any Man's private Case, while it is depending in any Court of Judicature, before it comes to Judgment, because 'tis an Appeal to the People. And that was my Lord Chief Justice Hales's Opinion in Colonel King's Case. And the ill Consequences of such Proceedings are so many, and the Danger so evident in these licentious Days, that I do not know indeed whither it may tend.

The Fact is confessed by them in their Rejoinder; but they say they did it to alleviate Mens Fears, and quiet their Minds, absq; hoc, that they did it aliter vel alio modo. Surely, my Lord, this is no sort of Excuse in the World, nor is it capable of any. They have owned the Thing, but they have excused it in the Manner of doing thereof. And I may venture to say the Traverse is impertinent: Suppose a Man be indicted for publishing a Libel, and he owns the Fact, but doth traverse absq; hoc, that he did it malitiose, or with an Intent to defame, that surely would be an idle thing; for those are Constructions that the Law puts upon it, and are not Matters traversable, or to be put in Issue. But if the Fact be done, the Law says, 'tis maliciously done, and with such an Intention. Therefore a Confession of the Fact is a Confession of all the Consequences that the Law puts upon the Fact.

My Lord, this can amount to no less than the Forfeiture of their Charter, not only for the Greatness of the Offence, but because otherwise the Law would be unequal; for if this were the Case of a private common Person, he must be fined and imprisoned during the King's Pleasure, as was the Case of Harrison in 1 Cr. 503. for Words spoken of Justice Hutton. Now, my Lord, a Corporation is not capable of suffering this Imprisonment; and therefore 'tis a much greater Offence in them, as the Body is greater than any particular Member: And then that which is a greater Offence would have a less Punishment, if the Charter itself were not forfeited, than it would if a particular Person were punished. And give me Leave to apply here the Reason of the Earl of Gloucester's Case, that I cited before, Quia Dominus Libertatis puniretur in eo quo deliquit. So they shall lose their Charter for the Abuse of that Power that was intrusted with them by their Charter. Therefore, upon the whole Matter, I do humbly pray your Judgment for the King, that they may be outed of their Franchise of being a Corporation.

The Recorder of LONDON, Sir George Treby, thus answers:

May it please your Lordship,

I am of Counsel, in this Case, for the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of LONDON. The Recorder's Answer.

The Record hath been truly opened by Mr. Solicitor in all Particulars, except an Omission of one or two, which I shall mention.

The Information sets forth and charges, That the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of LONDON, had, by the Space of a Month before the Information, used, or claimed to use, without any Warrant or Royal Grant, the Liberties therein set forth; that is to say, to be of themselves a Body Politick and Corporate with such a Name, and by that Name to plead and be impleaded, to answer and be answered; and likewise to make Sheriffs and Justices of the Peace: But as to these there are only Imparances, and, I suppose, Continuances. But as to the first Article, the Defendants plead and prescribe, That they are a Body Politick Time out of Mind; and then they set forth, indeed, several Acts of Parliament, and Charters of Confirmation. To this Mr. Attorney General doth reply two things:

First, He takes Issue upon the Prescription, That they are not Time out of Mind a Body Politick with such a Name; and then he assigns a Forfeiture, which Mr. Solicitor, indeed, does call two Causes; but they rather seem to be but one joint Cause; but yet take them to be two.

The first is, That the City did assume upon themselves a Power to meet and make Laws for the Government of the City, and thereupon did make make the Law which is now in question; and thereby did levy and order to be levied for one Horse-load of Provision so much, &c. and that this should be paid to the Use of the City, and for Default of paying, the Persons denying to pay this Rate, should be removed from their Standings in the Market.

The second Branch is, The Petition, and therein are those Words which Mr. Solicitor hath repeated about the Prorogation of the Parliament.

And to all this the Defendants do rejoin, That the City of LONDON has, Time out of Mind, been seized of these Markets; and they say, That the City of LONDON is the Metropolis of the Kingdom, and consists of above Fifty Thousand Citizens and Inhabitants; and that (at their proper Costs and Charges) they are to provide, and always have provided a Market-place to sell Provision in, and also Officers for the Preservation of good Order, and Regulation of that great Concourse of People that comes thither; and that they have always amended and cleansed the Markets; and for these Charges of the Market-places, and Officers, and cleansing of the Markets, they have always received, and ought to receive reasonable Tolls. They say that, Time out of Mind, there has been a Common-Council in the City, and that for the like Time there has been a Custom, that they should make By-Laws for the better Regulation of the Markets, for the ordering where such and such Markets should be held, and for the assessing and reducing to Certainty the Tolls and Rates that are to be paid by Persons coming to the Markets, so as such Laws be profitable to the King and his People, and agreeable to the Laws of the Kingdom; and then again they set forth the several Confirmations of their Customs and Privileges by Acts of Parliaments and Charters.

And then, as to the second Branch of their Forfeitures, they set forth, that there was such a Plot, and such Proceedings in the Courts of Justice against the Conspirators; and that there were several Judgments and Executions upon it; and they set forth several of the King's gracious Speeches to his People in Parliament, amongst other Things, that he did there, in his Speech therein mentioned, recommend to the Lords and Commons in Parliament assembled, to pursue the further Examination of the Plot, adding, That he thought not himself nor them safe, till that Matter was gone thro' with, and that the Lords in the Tower might be brought to their speedy Trials, that Justice might be done. They set forth likewise an Address of both Houses for a Fast, wherein they desire that the King would issue forth his Proclamation, which Proclamation was accordingly issued; and in that it is expressed, (I cannot repeat the Words, but to this Purpose) That the Dangers impending could not be prevented, but by the Blessing of God upon the Councils of his Majesty and the Parliament. Then they set forth, that the Parliament was preparing several Bills for the Preservation of his Majesty's Person, and the Protestant Religion, and the Peace of the Kingdom; and those Bills could not be enacted elsewhere, and that they were then depending: And they set forth further, that the Parliament was prorogued before those Bills were enacted: And they set forth also, that the Lords impeached could not be tried, but in Parliament; and, that by the Law of the Land, it is lawful for the King's Subjects, in their Distresses, and for Redress of Grievances, humbly to petition the King for Remedy in that Behalf; and that for Satisfaction of the Citizens, who had made their Applications to the Common-Council, and for the alleviating of their Fears, and out of their Zeal for the Preservation of the King's Person, and the Protestant Religion, they did give their Votes to this Petition, as is charged; and they give their Reasons for it, that is, it was order'd to be printed, to the Intent that false Rumours (concerning the Citizens petitioning the King) might be prevented, and the Enemies of our Lord the King from proceeding in their Conspiracy, be deterred, and the Fears and Perturbations in the Minds of the King's Subjects might be allayed, and that the Citizens and Inhabitants of the said City might better know what was done upon their Application to the Common-Council.

My Lord, I have taken some Notes of what Mr. Solicitor has said; but I beg your Lordship's Leave, that I may first deliver what I have prepared upon the Argument; and afterwards I will talk upon my Notes, and give particular Answers to the particular Things he has insisted upon, for so much of them as I shall not answer in my Discourse, which I must beg your Lordship's Patience in; for I fear I shall be pretty long.

I shall go on upon the same Points Mr. Solicitor has done, and endeavour to meet him, and give an Answer in all Particulars, and shall add a Point or two which he has not mention'd; as, particularly, that this Information (as it is here laid upon this Quo Warranto) is not brought against right Persons; for it is brought against the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of the City of LONDON: Whereas it ought to be brought against particular Persons for usurping such a Corporation, if it can be brought at all.

The first thing that I shall go upon is, That a Corporation cannot be forfeited; for now we must begin as it were from the Replication; for there is disclosed all the Matter, upon which the Stress of this Point lies.

And that a Corporation cannot be forfeited, I think will appear by opening the Notion and Nature of a Corporation, which you may find in my Lord Coke's 1st Inst. fol. 202, 250. He says, It is a Body to take in Succession, framed as to that Capacity by the Policy of Man, and called a Corporation, because the Persons are made into a Body, and so are of Capacity to take or grant, &c. And he says, That Persons capable of purchasing are of two Sorts; Persons natural, created of God, such as private Men, as J. S. and J. N. and Persons created by the Policy of Man, as Persons incorporated into Bodies Politick. So then if this be the true Notion of a Corporation, then all the Question is, Whether there shall remain such a Person in the World as this Corporation of the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of LONDON?

And that this is a meer Personality and Capacity, will further appear even by this Quo Warranto itself, which says, That we did claim and usurp to be a Corporation under such a Name, and thereby to plead and be impleaded, to answer, and to be answered: So that there is no more now can be consider'd in this Record, but whether we have, or can have, the Capacity of being Plaintiff and Defendant.

My Lord, in Brooks's Abridg. tit. Corporation, (I cite not what is said there as an Authority, but only as an Opinion) he joins the Titles, Corporations and Capacities, together: I say, it is only the Judgment and Notion of the Man who your Lordship knows never uses to join any Words as Titles, but what are synonymous; and there he joins Corporations and Capacities, to shew, the Nature of a Corporation is a Capacity. And suitable to this, is what Justice Wyndham says in Dr. Patrick's Case; A Corporation is a meer Capacity, a Civil Capacity; (says he) I do call it an Ens Rationis: Whether he did affect that Word because it was in the Case of a Man in the University, I cannot tell; but the Meaning was, that this was the Notion of a Corporation, ration, that it was an invisible Person and Capacity only.

Now, my Lord, I do not love to litigate about Words: I must confess that Mr. Solicitor does not speak without some Authority, when he calls a Corporation a Franchise; but, I say, it is not properly a Franchise to have a Power to be impleaded and to plead; for as to that they are Consequents; which belong to the Person rather than a Liberty or Franchise that is superadded to it. Therefore, in Hobart 210. Norris and Stap's Case, the Case of the Wardens and Fellowship of the Weavers of Newbury; I think it unnecessary to cite the whole Case, but there, my Lord, Hobart says, Tho' a Licence or Power to make Laws is given to a Corporation by a special Clause, yet it is needless; for I hold it to be included by Law in the very Act of incorporating; and so is also the Power to sue and be sued: Such Body is a Person that must answer the Law as a Defendant, and sue as a Plaintiff.

But I do agree, I say, that there is one Case, and yet but one in all the World, wherein a Corporation is called a Franchise; and it is in Coke's Entries, tit. Quo Warranto, Placito primo; a Quo Warranto is brought against several Persons, to shew by what Warrant they claim divers Liberties, Privileges, and Franchises, as to be of themselves a Body Politick and Corporate, by the Name of the Burgesses of Helmesley, in the County of York; so that under that general Word, I confess it may be called a Franchise; and the rather, because Mr. Noy (a Man of great Learning) in his great Argument of Fulcher and Haywood's Case, in Mr. Justice Jones's Reports, says it is a Franchise, for it was called so in such a Plea.

But now, my Lord, that it is not in its own Nature forfeitable, is made plain by all these Qualifications that have been attributed to it, and Expressions in our Law Books about it: As, that a Mayor and Commonalty, or Body Corporate, can never die, 1st Inst. Fol. 9. b. 3. Coke 60. a. 2. Bulstr. 233. 21 Edw. 4. Fol. 13. a Mayor and all the Officers; but the Commonalty have Succession in perpetuum, and can never be said to die: And this Notion, my Lord, has gone further than England. I beg your Lordship's Pardon if I take the Liberty to cite a very Learned Author, Grotius, in his Book De jure Belli & Pacis, lib. 2. cap. 9. he says, Cities are immortal; and a City does not therefore cease to be a City, though all the Citizens of it should die.

But the dissolving of a Corporation by a Judgment in Law, as is here sought, I believe is a Thing that never came within the Compass of any Man's Imagination till now, no, not so much as the putting of a Case. For in all my Search (and upon this Occasion I have bestowed a great deal of Time in searching) I cannot find that it ever so much as entered into the Conception of any Man before; and I am the more confirmed in it, because so learned a Gentleman as Mr. Solicitor, has not cited any one such Case, wherein it has been (I do not say adjudged, but) even so much as questioned or attempted; and therefore I may very boldly call this a Case primæ impressionis.

1 Inst. Fol. 13. b. there it is said, If Lands holden of J. S. be given to an Abbot and his Successors; in this Case, if the Abbot and all the Convent die, so that the Body Politick is dissolved, the Donor shall have again his Land, and not the Lord, by Escheat; so that he does allow a Body Politick may be dissolved indeed; but it is not properly a dissolving, nor a dying of that Body, but a taking away of the Subjects in which it did subsist, or to which it did adhere. And there unless it be by such an Accident, as all of them dying, or by Violence, as in the Case of the Monks of Bangor, I never heard before that a Corporation was dissolved; to be sure not by a Judgment in Law. My Lord Rolls, in his Abridgment, Part 1. Fol. 514. tit. Corporation, at the Letter I, makes it a Head of one of his Titles, How a Corporation can be dissolved; and therefore was led very properly to enquire into all Things that might dissolve a Corporation; for that Book is in the Nature of a Common Place Book. Now under that Head he cites not only the common Case, If all the Members die, then 'tis a Dissolution; but he says further, and he cites an Authority for it, If a Corporation consists of so many Confratres, and so many Sisters, and all the Sisters die, this Corporation is dissolved; for both the Brothers and Sisters are integral Parts of the Corporation, and it cannot subsist by Halves. But he does not go further, he does not say, If they shall levy too much Money upon the Market, nay, he does not say, if they should commit Treason (if it were possible they could do so) which had been more proper to have instanced in, he being naturally led to it under that Title; for that is a Thing that happens a thousand times oftner than the Death of all the Members. And, under Favour, if the Law be so as they would have it, every Penalty levied upon a By-Law does endanger the Corporation every Whit as much as this of the Rates upon the Markets.

Littleton, my Lord, in his Seft. 108. (it is a general Rule, but commonly taken Notice of, and may be in this Case) says there, upon the Statute of Merton, An Action will not lie against a Guardian for the Disparagement of his Ward, because it was never heard of from the Time of the making of that Statute, that such an Action was brought; and yet he adds, that the Words of the Statute might very properly ground such an Action. Now, my Lord, that was a Matter of two hundred Years before Littleton wrote, that that Statute was made; and 'tis possible such an Action might have been brought, but not remembered, and that is an Action brought by an Inferior against a Superior, the Ward against his Guardian; but here this Suit, if it can be brought, is brought by the King, who is Supreme, and therefore there can be no Reason to think, but he would have brought many of these Suits to have dissolved Corporations, if by Law it might have been done.

Besides, my Lord, Acts of Parliament can never be antiquated, because a Statute is a Law in Writing; but the Common Law is not a Law unless it be repeated and practised. And so is Davis's Opinion in the Preface to his Book, and in the Body of his Reports too: He says, That when People have tried and used such an Act, and found it useful and profitable to the Publick, and fit to be practised, that Act of Repeating begets a Custom, and so becomes in its Name and Nature the Common Law of the Land. But now, my Lord, if I can challenge all the Times, and all the Precedents that ever were in this Kingdom, to shew me where ever there was a Forfeiture of a Corporation, or a Judgment given against a Corporation to forfeit it, no, nor ever thought of till this last Year, I think I may assert 'tis not Law: And if it extend to this Corporation of LONDON, it must have extended to all Corporations formerly, and it must do so to all still.

In the Case of Ecclesiastical Leases, in the fifth Report, and in several other Places, there is a large Discourse of what Bishops and other Spiritual Corporations might do at Common Law; 'tis said, they might grant for Years, for Life, in Tail, or in Fee. But what might they grant? Their Lands and Tenements, their Possessions and Revenues; but never one Word, that they could grant away themselves, or Politick Capacity; still that which was their very Being, was not in their own Power to grant away; and, if it were not to grant, much less were it in their own Power to forfeit: For if it should be so, there is never an Hospital in England, but if it have taken too much Toll, were to be destroyed; and never a Bishoprick, Deanry, and Chapter (nay, almost particular Parsonages, for they are Spiritual Corporations too; and all the Corporations of England are under the same Rule of Law) if they have transgressed in any of the Kinds assigned here for a Forfeiture, but were to lose their very Being.

That these were in the Power of these Spiritual Corporations at the Common Law, no Man doubts; but if any Man does tell me, that the restraining Statutes do extend to the Corporation, truly, I must deny it; for it is Lands, Tenements, and such Things, that are mentioned, and there is Provision made only against Grants, and not against Forfeitures. A Forfeiture, Mr. Solicitor says, must be a great Breach of Trust; and so it must indeed! and how then should they answer for it? If a Bishop, or a Dean and Chapter, have Lands in Fee upon Condition, and they break the Condition, their Lands are gone: But if that Breach of Condition shall amount to a Forfeiture of their being a Corporation, that were very strange; this would dissolve and destroy all the Colleges in the Universities, and all the Charity in the Kingdom; for every Breach of such Condition would be a Breach of Trust.

My Lord, there was a very proper Time when this might have been thought of, if it could have been maintained for Law, and that was in the Time of H. 8. He sent out Dr. London and others with a Commission of Inquiry, to examine into all the Misdemeanors of the Monasteries, Convents, and Colleges. To what Purpose was all this done? Could he not have brought Quo Warranto's against them? He needed not have hunted much for Misdemeanors and Offences; if they had but raised five Pounds, nay, for ought I know, if they had but raised five Pence upon a Market, or the like, they had all been dissolved; and 'tis so much the worse in this Case then, for this Reason: In those Regular, Religious Houses and Corporations, the Body of them was dead, and the Abbot or Head was only to appear for them, and plead and defend for them. Therefore 'tis said in the 1st Inst. 103. a. that in a Quo Warranto against an Abbot, or Bishop, or a Prior, for Franchises and Liberties, if the Abbot or Prior disclaim alone, this shall bind their Successors; and if it were possible that there might have been a Forfeiture, yet, without so much as troubling himself to assign that Forfeiture, he might have gone that Way by Quo Warranto to get a Disclaimer.

And 'tis very well known, there were Men put in those Houses to be Heads of them, on purpose to try if they could surrender them: And that they needed not to have done, nor have asked the Consent of the Members to have surrendered; for they needed only to have brought a Quo Warranto; for after the Renunciation of the Pope's Power and Supremacy, King H. 8. did grant his Conge d'Elire to choose the Heads of those Corporations; and when they were once there, and a Quo Warranto issued, the Abbot or Prior may say, This Corporation is but a Liberty or a Franchise, and I am the King's Creature, I will disclaim the Liberties, and there is an End of the Franchise: But this was not thought of in diebus illis.

I think, my Lord, that in Case of a Town the Law is clear; though I shall not at present much contend with Mr. Solicitor upon that Point, that LONDON stands upon greater and better Circumstances than other Corporations and Towns. It is all one as to the main Points, whether it do, or not; though I shall say enough as to the particular Reason, to answer what he says to the contrary, by and by. But yet this I will say, A Corporation in a Town is more protected in Law, than others are: For, says my Lord Coke, if a Town or Borough does decay; yet it shall remain a Town or Borough; as is plain in the Instance of the Burgeses of Old Sarum, and the like. So that it seems; that though the Death of the Abbot and his Convent does destroy that Corporation; yet the Dilapidations and Decays of a Town do not destroy it, but it remains a Town still; nor is the Liberty of sending Burgeses to Parliament destroyed, or forfeited.

I confess, my Lord, I do not see but that at this Rate a Quo Warranto may be brought against a particular Man, to know by what Authority he claims to have the Liberty of a Subject, to sue and be sued, to plead and be impleaded: 'Tis a Capacity that's born with him, and belongs to him as he is born in England, or as he is by Act of Parliament naturalized, and made a Subject; especially in the Case of Denization it comes home to the Point. Why should not a Quo Warranto be brought against a Man, to know by what Warrant he claims to be a Denizen; and in that Respect to plead and be impleaded, to sue and be sued? These are relative Capacities, that stick and adhere to the Person; and if you once constitute the Person, you shall never say he shall not have the Incidents to such a Person.

This Case, indeed, my Lord, that I put last, is so gross a Thing, that it was never drawn in question, though some others have, as Dignities, Lordships, and the like; and yet no Quo Warranto was ever brought, or can lie in these Cases. And that is the Opinion upon that great and solemn Argument of the Case of the Earl of Oxford, in Mr. Justice Jones's Reports; where it was held, that an Earldom, or the like, is a personal Dignity, and such a one is in the Nature of a publick Person, and by no Means can part with or surrender that Capacity. And so your Lordship knows it was adjudged lately in the House of Lords in Parliament, upon the Petition of the Lord Purbeck: They all voted there, that Peerage could not be determined, nor surrendered; no, although there was a Fine levied, and all the Instruments of Law that could be contrived to annul it; and I cannot see, but that if this Capacity of a Corporation be liable to a Forfeiture, all others must be so too.

There is one Capacity indeed, and a small one; that a Feme Covert has by the Custom of LONDON, that she shall trade without her Husband, as sole Merchant, and be sued so, and shall sue: The Husband indeed is named, but only for Conformity; the Action is against her, and the Judgment against her severally, and the Debt must be levied of her Estate; can it be thought that a Quo Warranto lies for such a meer Capacity? No more than it can lie to know, by what Warrant such an one claims to be an Executor, or Administrator, or an Overseer of a Will; and yet there an Action is brought against them in such a Capacity, and as such they sue and are sued, though perhaps they would be glad to be rid of that Capacity too.

My Lord, 'tis true what my Lord Coke says in his 2d Inst. 664. there was a Custom to take Tithes of Marriage Goods within the Dominion of Wales, which is taken away by a Statute; and there he says, If a Custom, that was once reasonable and tolerable become grievous, and not answerable to the Reason wherein it was grounded, yet it cannot be taken away but by Act of Parliament; liament; for an Inheritance once fixed cannot be taken away but by Parliament. If this be so of a little Custom in Wales, how much more is it so of this great Corporation of LONDON, and, which is more yet, of all the Corporations in England?

My Lord, Mr. Solicitor was pleased to say; that a Corporation might be surrendered; I must confess, I should not willingly have meddled with that Point at this Time; but since it has been mentioned, I will only endeavour to say so much as may answer him in what he intended it for, as a Ground for the better proving the Point of Forfeitures. I believe Mr. Solicitor (because he cited no Authority for it) might rest very much upon the supposed Surrenders in the Time of H. 8. the Surrenders that were made of the Monasteries then; and I do believe he does presume, as others have thought, that those were Surrenders of their Corporations: Truly, my Lord, I believe they were not; and to prove that they were not, I shall rely upon the Dean and Chapter of Norwich's Case, 3 Coke 73, which is also reported in 2 Anderson 120, and I shall at the same Time mention another Case, and that is the Case cited before of Fulcher and Haywood, in Jones 166, and in Palmer 491, where the same Question comes to be debated, Whether the Deanry and Chapter of Norwich was given up and destroyed by their Surrender?

My Lord, in the Report of that Case in Palmer, I will first remember your Lordship of what is said by Whitlock in his Argument of that Case as it is Fol. 501, of that Book; there Whitlock sitting in this very Court, says, That although the King can create and grant a Corporation, yet he cannot dissolve a Corporation; and a Dean and Chapter being a settled Corporation, by their own Act cannot dissolve themselves; being once a settled Corporation cannot be Felo de se. But I say further, those Acts of Parliament made in H. 8's Time (they are all in your Lordship's Memory) that of 27 H. 8. gave all the Monasteries under two hundred Pounds a Year to the King; that of 30 H. 8. Cap. 13. recites, that several other Monasteries had been granted, surrendered, and forfeited to the King; and it says, that the King shall have them, &c. I do allow there are the Words surrendered and forfeited, and I mention them on Purpose to answer them; and this is the Answer I give them:

First, For the Word Surrender. When the Monasteries were surrender'd, that was only a Grant of the Lands, and nothing else; the Word Monastery can carry nothing else in it. And so is Wortly and Adams's Case in Plowden's Com. 194. where there is a great Discourse of the Surrenders of the Monasteries, and the Acts of Parliament about them, and what ensued upon them; but in all that Book it was not by any Means admitted, that the Corporation, or any of that, was by these Surrenders dissolved. And, my Lord, as to the Word Surrender, it is fully satisfied by the Words Lands and Tenements.

Secondly, As to the Word Forfeited, my Answer is this: The Corporation is not named in the Surrender, and therefore cannot be presumed to be intended to be surrender'd; and then there are other Things, as Leets, Liberties, and Franchises, which are named, and are capable of being forfeited; and so the Word Forfeited may be applied to them, and very properly; for they are liable to a Forfeiture; but the Word Corporation is not at all mentioned.

But for another understanding of the Word Forfeited, I desire your Lordship would give me Leave to cite a Case in the second Part of Rolls's Reports, fol. 101. (which is called, The Continuation of his Reports) and it agreeth exactly with the History of those Times: There were some Abbots, as the Abbot of Glastenbury, the Abbot of Reading, and the Abbot of Colchester, that were stiff Men, and would not surrender; thereupon the King gets them indicted of Treason (the Story is well known how he handled those Men) and thereupon they did graft a kind of Opinion, that their Land was forfeited by this Means; for a small Pretence would serve then to put People into an Act of Parliament of Attainder: And he tells you, that was the Reason why they put the Word Forfeited into the Act of Parliament; and then disbottom themselves upon the Statute 26 H. 8. cap. 13. that Statute that gives to the King any Estate of Inheritance, whereof any one is seized that commits Treason; though I do not by any Means allow it to be Law, that those Clergymen by their own Acts could forfeit so much as the Lands of their Corporation; but it was taken for a Pretence, and so they put in the Word Forfeited.

Besides, another thing is this, the same Statute says, The King shall have and enjoy the Things there given him, in the same Manner as they the Abbots, Priors, &c. should have enjoyed them. Now if the King shall enjoy all as they did, and in the same Manner, what then must he enjoy? It may well extend to Lands, to Leets, and to Markets, and particular Franchises; all those Things the King may have: But shall the King have their very Corporate Capacity? Shall the King have and enjoy the Liberty of suing, and being sued, by the Name of the Abbot and Prior, or the like? That Office, sure, he cannot execute; it is inconsistent with Sense or Reason to say, that he shall have it, or can have it. And in these Statutes they did doubtless accumulate Words to make them look the bigger, because they were to make a great Present to H. 8. by these Means.

Then comes 32 H. 8. cap. 24. that relates to the Corporation of the Knights of St. John at Jerusalem; and it seems by the penning of that Statute, that this very Question had been taken Notice of since the Time of the making of the last Statute in 30; for there it is declared, That that Corporation of St. John at Jerusalem shall be dissolved, and that the King shall have their Lands. So that their taking Notice, and providing directly to dissolve it, shews, that they had by that Time consider'd, that neither the Surrender of their Lands, nor the vesting of them in the King, had done any thing to the Corporation, save only they had deserted their House, and fancied themselves dissolved, because they were turned out of their Possessions.

My Lord, in the great Case of Haywood and Fulcher, 'tis again and again said there, That the Surrender of the Dean and Chapter (where they surrender'd all their Church, and all their Franchises and Hereditaments) was no Surrender of the Corporation, no, though the King did take it to be a Surrender, for he accepted it as a Surrender, and granted them a new Incorporation of the same Name, only adding, Ex fundatione Regis Edwardi Sexti: So that he did take it to be a good Surrender; but it was adjudged that it was not a good one; and so it is held in 3 Coke 73. And so says the Dean of Wells's Case in Dyer 273. the Surrender is, Diaconatus Ecclesie Cathedralis de Wells. One would think it impossible to have surrender'd any thing by a stronger Word; but yet there they say, 'tis not good without an Act of Parliament.

And whereas it hath been sometimes said, as it is there, they were dissolved, and they have been dissolved by the Surrenders, and the like; there is a very good Answer given to all that Discourse in Palmer 495. where 'tis said, When they speak of a Dissolution by Surrender, 'tis a Relation of Fact only, and not of Law; that is, they they were dissolved in Fact, so as that they did desert their House, and did demean themselves as if they were disincorporated; but they were not so in Law; for they fancied a Corporation could not be without Lands, and so, when their Lands and Church were given up, they thought all was gone and dissolved: For (said they) a Dean and Chapter must be a Dean and Chapter of some Place, and when the Land is gone, how can they be said to be of such a Place? No, said the Judges there, that is no Reason at all; for the Corporation was before they had any Lands; and if those Lands were all evicted, or they all disfeized of them, yet they are a Corporation still. And in Rolls's Abr. 2. Part 185, 'tis said, the Abbies came to the King by the Statutes of Dissolution; so that they had no Opinion that the Surrender did carry even their Lands, though I do admit they did carry their Lands; but I may say, they could carry no more, they could not carry their Being of the Corporation.

There is a Case in Dyer 282. and 'tis the only Case that seems against us in this Point; there were two Deans and Chapters of St. Patrick and Christ Church in Dublin in Ireland; and these both, and not one of them, were together One Chapter of the Archbishop of Dublin, Time out of Mind, and One of these surrender'd, and then their House was used for a Place for the Courts of Justice, and continued so; and then a Lease is made by the Bishop, and that confirmed by the only remaining Dean and Chapter, which was that of Christ-Church: And whether that Lease was good or no, was the Question, and truly that was the only Question that is made there in that Book; and so 'tis of little Authority as to any Thing else; but 'tis true, that that Book does say in the End of the Case, that the Lease was held good, Quia Corporatio & Capitulum Sanctum Patricii prædicti fuit per donum & sursum redditionem Decani & Capituli prædicti legitime dissolutum & determinatum. My Lord, to that I answer:

First, There was no Occasion for this Reason; because it did digress from the main Point in the Case, as it is truly observed in Palmer, Fol. 502. Next:

Secondly, It was a private extrajudicial Opinion; it was the Opinion of but five Judges, and for ought appears seven might be of another Opinion, and yet the Case was sent for the Opinion of all the Judges here, because the Lawyers in Ireland, it seems, did make a great Doubt of it. And it was also an Opinion and Judgment of the favourable Side, for it was to confirm a Predecessor's Lease. But,

Thirdly, Certainly, my Lord, the Case is mistaken, for the Surrender could not be good without the Consent of the Bishop, which is also added at the End of the Case there: He is the Patron, and must necessarily confirm their Acts to make them valid, especially they being instituted, and given to him for his Advice in the Government of the Church, and the Disposal of its Lands.

Fourthly, My Lord, I have this further Answer to give it, that my Lord Coke says, in 1 Leon. 234. (and 'tis not denied) that this Surrender was by Act of Parliament, or else it had not been good. And beyond that,

Fifthly, I have by me a Manuscript of my Lord Dyer's Reports, the most authentick one, which was my Lord Coke's, and has his own Hand to it in sundry Places; and by that he does often correct the Prints of Dyer, and so also he might have done in this Case; for there all these Latin Words are left out; there is not one of them, nor any Space left to put them in, nor any Blot for their being razed out; it is an Addition of the Publisher, and printed in another Letter than the rest of the Case is; 'tis not in that Book, which I take to be the truest Original of Dyer: Besides, my Lord Coke's Answer, that it was by Act of Parliament, makes an End of all. And truly, my Lord, that the Determination of such Things should be by Act of Parliament, I shall cite you one Authority, and I borrow it of Mr. Solicitor, who has mention'd it before, tis Rot. Parl. 8 R. 2. num. 11. and it is taken Notice of by my Lord Coke, who cites it in his 4 Instit. 228. To which I add also, that the Liberties were seized, and the Case determined in Parliament: There the Case was this, the Mayor, Bailiffs, and Commonalty of Cambridge, had committed a notorious Uproar and Tumult; they had assaulted the Colleges of the University; they had imprisoned the Vice-Chancellor, and some of the Scholars; they had extorted from them two Releases, and a Bond of 3,000 Pounds; and after all this great Uproar and Tumult, a Writ went out, but Whence? From the Parliament, and there they are summoned, and there they are to shew Cause why the Liberties should not be seized, as forfeited; and there, upon full Hearing, it was adjudged by the King, with the full Consent of the Lords and Commons in Parliament, that the Liberties should be seized as forfeited: All this is taken Notice of by my Lord Coke. But yet, as if he thought it not enough to have said all this in the Body of the Book, he puts down in the Margin of that Book these Words, Nota, It was done by Act of Parliament. And that it was taken, that a Corporation cannot be dissolved but by Parliament, I shall cite your Lordship Davis's Reports, fol. 1. b. where he says, that neither by the Surrenders, nor by the Acts of Parliament that gave their Possessions to the Crown, were those Corporations dissolved; the Surrenders did not do it, and the Acts of Parliament did not intend it.

But, my Lord, I shall dismiss this Point, for, indeed, it will not conduce to the Question, which is not, Whether a Corporation be surrenderable or no; but, Whether it be forfeitable?

Now there are many things that are renounceable, that yet are not forfeitable; an Annuity pro Consilio impenso & impendendo may be surrender'd; and so is Empson's Case in Dyer, fol. 2. but it cannot be forfeited for Treason; 'tis a thing that adheres to the Person, and there is a Privy in it that makes it not forfeitable; so a Guardianship in Soccage, a Man may renounce it as well as he may Executorship; but they are neither of them forfeitable; and so is the Trust of a Freehold, and several other like Things.

My Lord, as to what Mr. Solicitor has said, That a Corporation may be seized, and therefore it may be forfeited, I think, certainly, that is no good Conclusion at all. Those Words of Seizures of the Liberties, and seizing into the King's Hands, he has with great Learning collected a great many Records about them, and they make a great Sound at first, but when they are narrowly look'd into, they make nothing of Argument at all; they have slept a long Time, and are but imperfectly remember'd; they may serve to amuse People, but when they are consider'd they will signify very little. Vet. Nat. Br. fol. 161. He distinguishes there (and every Body must) between the Causes of the Seizure of a Franchise into the King's Hands, and the Causes of a Forfeiture; and there he sets down several Things, and then adds, stude differentiam istorum; so there is a Difference, and that Difference ought to be well advised upon. In 2 Ed. 3. 28 & 29. Scrope gives the Rule, says he, in some Cases a Franchise ought to be taken into the King's Hands, and in some Cases it ought to be seized till a Fine be made to the King; and in some Cases Cases it ought to be fore-judged; and so he makes three Distinctions. Now, my Lord, this will answer (as I shall observe by and by) all that Mr. Solicitor has produced about Seizures, either by Act of Parliament, or for a Fine, or for a Distress for want of an Appearance. If a real Action, there goes out a Grand Cape, and there the Lands shall be seized into the King's Hands; and that looks big upon Record; but if you come to know the Meaning of it, 'tis only that the Sheriff should return Issues upon it, and that is a very little thing; the King has no Pretence to the Title of the Land, nor is the Suit His Suit, but the Party's: So the seizing of a Bishop's Temporalities, and the Lands of Priors Aliens, and the like. But Words must have a reasonable and legal Construction; as when a Statute is made, that if a Man does so and so his Body shall be at the King's Will, and he shall do with him at his Pleasure, as in the Statute of Maintenance, and the Statute against transporting of Money, that is nothing but that he shall forfeit the Use of his Body, and the Liberty of his Body, and shall be imprisoned for the Offences.

And this I shew, to distinguish about this Word Seizure, and by that Distinction to answer the Weight of all the Records that Mr. Solicitor has cited. Those Seizures that were of any Towns, I say, they were only till they had made a Fine to the King; and when the King had so seized them, what did he do? He put in a Custos upon them, which was to keep them in good Order; he put them into a safe Hand, but it was never intended to suspend or destroy the Corporation; for the Corporation went on as it did before, it might sue as it did before, and was as liable to be sued as before; it was to put a Guard upon them, not for their Destruction, but for their Preservation; to quell Insurrections, to keep Peace and good Order among them; the Seizure of the Liberties was not a seizing of the Corporation, because a Corporation is not a Liberty, it cannot be seized; for the King cannot exercise the Liberty of a Corporation; the King may seize the Mayoralty, and the King may put in such a Deputy that may be a Custos; he may seize the Sherifalty; he may seize a Leet, or a Market, or he may receive the Profits of them, and execute, by Deputy, the Purport of them: But what can he do when he has seized the Corporation? Can he himself be the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of the City of LONDON? or can he put in any one to be such Corporation? it is not a Thing manurable; 'tis not a Thing seizable, nor ever was seized; for the King can seize nothing, but what he can have and use when he has seized it. And therefore all those Custodes that were put into LONDON, upon the seizing of the Liberties, were only in the Nature of the Lord Lieutenants, that were to keep Order in the City, and prevent Breaches of the Peace; but still the Customs, the Courts, and the Usages of the City went on as they did before; I cite not any Record indeed for it, because there is no need, 'tis so well known; but if there be any Doubt of it, we will make it appear, that during all those Times Mr. Solicitor speaks of, who has cited a great many Records, and if he can find as many more, yet still all along the City was in Statu quo, as to their being a Corporation; they did sue and were sued, and they did all manner of Acts as a Corporation, which shews that it was not so much as suspended, much less forfeited. This is without Contradiction very plain, during all the Time of those Seizures. If it had been forfeited at all, it must have been extinct; and if there could have been a Judgment given against it, it could not have been taken into the King's Hands, but it must have been an Ouster of the Liberties.

In Felverton there is a Case of the King against Staverton, a Quo Warranto is brought against Staverton for keeping a Court Leet, and a Court Baron, within the Hundred and Manor of Warfield; the Defendant disclaims the Court Leet; as to the Court Baron, the great Doubt is whether a Quo Warranto can be brought for it, it appearing that he had a Manor; for that is inseparable to a Manor. For he that has the Demesnes and Copyholds, must call his Tenants together to do Suit and Service; and 'tis agreed, indeed, a Quo Warranto will lie. But Fleming, Chief Justice, and Fenner, doubted of it: And in that Case Judgment must be, that he shall be ousted of the Liberty, and not that it shall be seized; for the King cannot use it, and therefore 'tis impossible that it should be taken into his Hands: And so 'tis, as I said, of a Bishop's Temporalities, and the Lands of Priors Aliens, and the like; it is a meer Personality, and cannot be seized.

But Mr. Solicitor says, a Corporation can commit a Crime: Truly I do very much question that, nay, I shall deny it by and by: But if they do commit a Crime, the Punishment must be by other Means than a Forfeiture; and I will cite your Lordship a parallel Case: For, as I said before, a Corporation is an Ability or Capacity like that of a Denizen, and so can no more be forfeited than a Denizenship can. There is Verfeline Manning's Case in Lane's Reports, 58. and the same Case is in Rolls 1. Abbr. 195 in an Office of Intrusion, it is there found, that Verfeline Manning was a Denizen by Letters Patents, and in the Letters Patents there was a Clause, as is usual in Patents of Denization, Proviso, that Verfeline Manning the Denizen should do liege Homage, and that he should be obedient and observe the Laws of this Realm. The Office finds that he never did Homage, nor was obedient to all the Laws of the Realm; and it was urged, that consequently he had lost the Denization, for Breach of the Condition. No, says the Court there, by no means; this must have a reasonable Construction, not to take away his Capacity of being used as a Subject, and so suing and being sued; but the Proviso is to be interpreted thus, for his Non-obedience of the Law he shall forfeit the Penalties appointed by the Law: So, I say, a Corporation, if they do offend the Laws, shall forfeit and undergo the Penalties appointed by the Law, but not be disbanded, any more than a Denizen undenized.

My Lord, the next Point that I go upon is, what I at first mentioned, and that is this, That this Quo Warranto is not well brought, and there can be no Judgment given against us upon it, if we should admit (which I do not) that a Corporation is forfeitable; or if I should grant (which I do not neither, but shall come to that afterwards) that the Particulars assigned are Causes of a Forfeiture.

Now this Quo Warranto is brought against the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens, of the City of LONDON, that is to say, against the Corporation (for that is the Corporate Name, and no Man sure is so vain as to think that can be the Christian Name or Surname of any natural Person) therefore I say 'tis brought against us as a Corporation, and charges us, that we have usurped the Liberty of being a Corporation, under such a Name, for a Month before the Information brought. Now, my Lord, I say this is impossible, and this is repugnant; for the Question is here, Whether we are a Corporation, and that is a Liberty to be Plaintiff and Defendant? and then comes Mr. Attorney, and admits us to be Defendants; for he sues by that Name, and yet the very Question that he does bring us to dispute on is, Whether we are capable of being Defendants or no: That is just as if he should have said, I have brought you into Court, and you must be Defendants, or else I have brought you here for nothing; for there is no Cause depending without Parties, Plaintiff and Defendant, and then I will assign for the Cause of my Suit, that you are no Defendants; nor is it possible for you to be Defendants.

My Lord, this is plain Reason; but I shall strengthen it with great Authority; and that is the Case upon a Writ of Error, out of Ireland, to reverse a Judgment given in a Quo Warranto against the Corporation of Dublin: It is in Palmer the first Case, and 2 Rolls, Fol. 113 and 125. A Quo Warranto is brought against Cusack, and other Aldermen of Dublin, who pretended to have Privileges, and a Guild, and to be a Corporation, and this, I presume, is for their being a Corporation; for there is a Curia advisare vult as the Corporation, and so 'tis not put in the Case, but 'tis also brought for several Liberties that they did pretend to claim; as that they only, and none others, should sell and buy all Merchandizes, and no Body should buy of another, or sell to another, but to them; that all Merchandizes should be brought to their Common Hall, &c. Now as to these Liberties, they are forejudged, that the Liberties should be seized, and they ousted; as to their being a Corporation, Curia advisare vult; so the Case is in Palmer: But in the other Book in 2 Rolls 115, it is agreed, if a Quo Warranto be brought to dissolve the Being of a Corporation, it ought to be brought against particular Persons, for the Writ supposes that they are not a Corporation; and 'tis to falsify the Supposal of the Writ to name them as a Corporation. Now here this Writ, it supposes them to be a Corporation, or else they could not be Defendants; and then it comes and falsifies that Supposal, by assigning that they are no Corporation, nor ever were, or if they had been, they had forfeited to it; and so all the Foundation that this Writ stands upon is destroyed.

In this Case of Cusack, I am assisted further with a Report of it in my Lord Chief Justice Hales's Book: A Report of a very great Authority with all Men of our Profession, and there he says expressly, If a Quo Warranto be brought for the usurping a Corporation, it must be brought against particular Persons, because it goes in Disaffirmance of the Corporation, and Judgment shall be given that they be ousted of the Corporation; but if it be for Liberties claimed by a Corporation, then it must be brought against them as a Corporation.

Lord Chief Justice. What Folio is it in my Lord Hales's Book, Mr. Recorder?

Mr. Recorder. It is in my Lord Hales's Common-Place-Book, which is in Lincoln's-Inn Library, Fol. 168. placito 7, and this is our Case directly. If you go about to say, our Corporation is forfeited, or must be dissolved, nay more (as you say here) we never have been a Corporation; or by Forfeiture our Corporation is lost long ago, then there is nothing can come before the Court properly, but that J. S. and J. N. particular Persons, have usurped to be a Corporation, when they are none. This Information is brought in Disaffirmance of their being a Corporation; and therefore there must be set up some Body capable of being a Defendant in such a Suit; and who can that be but particular Persons, which ought to have been named, as they are in that Case of Cusack? For as Judgment of Ouster of particular Liberties, given against particular Persons, will not bend the Body of the Corporation; so the Judgment, that they are not a Corporation, will not be good, unless it be given against those particular Persons that usurp the Corporation. And I say farther, that individual Freemen of LONDON cannot possibly be bound by this Judgment: For they are not here before you, nor were they ever so; for it is the Corporation here that is made the Defendant. And I do now consider the Number that make up that Body (LONDON's being so populous doth not alter the Case) for the Case is the same, if it were the Corporation of Queenborough, or any other petty Corporation. Suppose twenty Men be a Corporation, or pretend to be a Corporation, and you come to enquire by what particular Means these twenty Men pretend to be a Corporation, or, as the Words of this Quo Warranto are, usurped to be a Corporation; you must not say that they are one, and then say that they usurped it, for 'tis not the Corporation that usurps to be a Corporation, that is impossible, but it is the particular Persons that usurp to be a Corporation, when indeed they are not one. A Corporation may usurp a Market, they may usurp a Leet, but they cannot usurp themselves. In Townsend's Book of printed Precedents (which is a laborious Thing, and wherein he has collected all the Precedents he could meet with, of Quo Warranto's) there is but one in all that Collection, that was brought against any Persons upon the Score of being a Corporation: And what is that? How was it brought? Not against a Corporation that was, but against a Corporation that never was, that is to say, a Parcel of People, that took upon themselves to be a Corporation, when they were not, and that is the same single Precedent in Coke's Entries 527, tit. Quo Warranto. The King against Helden, and other Burgeses of Helmshley, for usurping to be a Corporation, by the Name of the Burgeses of Helmshley. And how does the Attorney-General there bring the Writ? He brings it against particular Persons. My Lord Hobart, who was then Attorney-General, never thought he could have maintained his Quo Warranto, or expected Judgment against them, if he had brought it against the Burgeses of Helmshley generally, and then have said, that they were no Corporation; but he brings it against those particular Persons, and thereupon they come in and disclaim their being such a Corporation, and the having the other Liberties; and the Judgment is, That of those Liberties those particular People should be ousted, and should not intermeddle with them.

Now, my Lord, what Judgment can be given in this Case, that the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens, shall not intermeddle with the Being of Mayor, Commonalty and Citizens? 'Tis a very reasonable Judgment that Helden and those particular Persons should not intermeddle with such a Liberty, or be in such a Corporation; but if such a Judgment be given against the City here, that would be as much as to say, That you have never been what you are, or you shall never be what you are, that is the English of it.

And, my Lord, I am sure as there never was but one Quo Warranto that we can find any printed Precedent of against the Being of a Corporation, so that very Precedent is not against those that really were so, but particular Persons that usurped to be so. And if you search all the Records of this Kingdom, and all the Books in all the Offices, you will never find any that is brought against a Corporation, for being a Corporation, upon Pretence that they might be made none by a Forfeiture; and no Prerogative of the King shall extend to excuse this, but his Action shall abate, if it be not right brought, as well as the Subjects, and so is Plowd's Com. Fol. 85.

Further;

Further, my Lord, I have another Authority in this Point; and that is in the Case of the Corporation of Maidenhead, which hath been so often cited by Mr. Solicitor, and it is in Palmer, 80, 81, where it is said, When the Attorney-General hath supposed them to be a Corporation, it is not usual to plead them to be a Corporation; otherwise, if he had questioned them as Inhabitants of such a Town, then they ought to enable themselves: Those are the Words of that Book; and what can be more plain? Here the Attorney-General supposes us to be a Corporation, his Replication flies in his own Face; and he having supposed it at first, he is bound not to question us for our being a Corporation at any Time after: As to the Business of forisfecerunt, it is a strange and a new Word that never came into any Quo Warranto before, that I know of; but we will accept the new Word, but not the Thing, and that they have forfeited by such and such Acts: This sure will be very hard upon us; for if it be a Forfeiture, it must relate to the Time of the Thing done, to the Time of the making the Act of the Common-Council, to the Time of the Toll levied, or to the Time of the Petition; and if it do so, it must relate like a Forfeiture for Treason; it must reach all mean Acts, all the Leases that we have made since are gone; all the Judgments that we have given in any Cause are coram non Judice, and void; all the Acts of the Corporation are overturned by this Forfeiture, and we have been under a vast Mistake all this while. We have had no Mayors nor Sheriffs, no Kind of Officers, no Manner of regular and legal Proceedings; but we have been under a great Mistake ever since this Money was ordained or levied. We have forfeited all; and that it is so, is plain, because in all Quo Warranto's wherein Persons are convicted for usurping of Liberties, there is a Fine set upon them for continuing that Usurpation, and Reason good; then if it be an Offence for continuing the Liberty, we must be fined for doing it ever since the Forfeiture, when, if Mr. Attorney-General's Rule be right, there has been no such Corporation; but we ought to have discontinued all our acting as a Corporation, and laid it down; and so every Step that we have taken since hath been irregular, and every Act void.

If so be an Action be brought against Baron and Feme, and the Plaintiff should in his Replication say, they were divorced several Years before, Has he not undone all his Pleading? Here then is our Case, Mr. Attorney-General admits us to be sueable, and yet charges us to have no Capacity to be sued. I do implead you, but you have no right to be impleaded; here he brings us into Court, and when he has brought us here, he quarrels with us for being here; he makes us Defendants, and then questions whether we ought to be so; and so his great Charge against us is, that we are what he would have us to be, and what he hath made us to be; for if a Month before the Information, the Corporation was not, but the very Being of the Corporation was usurped, How come we at the Month's End to be Defendants? Here comes a new Creation interposed in that Time, and makes us Parties sueable in that Court, when by the Charge in the Information we were not so a Month before.

And then, my Lord, the Information is not quite so bad, but the Replication is worse: First, he takes Issue, that we never were a Corporation at all; and the next Thing is, if ever you were a Corporation, you have ceased so to be, because you have forfeited it so and so several Years ago. This is just then to put a Common Case (and I confess, a very familiar one it is) if I should bring an Action against a Man, and when he hath pleaded, I should by Way of Replication set forth, there never was any such Man as the Defendant, and take Issue upon it; or, if there were, that he was dead ten Years ago: And yet this is the Substance of Mr. Attorney's Issue, and his Replication.

My Lord, the Authorities before cited in Palmer, Coke's Entries, Rolls, and my Lord Hales's Common-Place-Book, are not all; for I have some other that never saw the Light in Print yet; and that is the Case of the King against Bradwell and others, Trin. 18. of this King. A Quo Warranto was brought against them for usurping to be a Corporation or Company of Musicians; it had been a strange Thing, if the Quo Warranto had been brought against that Corporation, and then the Attorney-General had said they were no Corporation, nor ever were; there they did think best and fittest to go against Bradwell, and the rest, and that by Name, and only so, not against the Body Corporate. So in that Case of the Corporation of Worcester, which was lately tried before your Lordship in this Court; when the Quo Warranto was brought against such Men for usurping to be all Aldermen and Common-Council-Men; if the Attorney-General had once called them Common-Council-Men, it had been a great Repugnancy for him afterwards to say that they were none, or if they were, that that Privilege of theirs was lost so long ago. So in the Case of the Quo Warranto against the Bermudas Company; it was against a Corporation, and against particular Persons by Name both. These Things have been considered, and doubtless they have gone on in an ordinary Way. I must confess, I was not privy to that particular Case; but by the Report of that Case, which I have seen, I have been informed that the Corporation never appeared; for they said, 'tis not Sense for us to appear; for it being a Question by what Warrant we are a Corporation, it is not we, supposing us a Corporation, that do usurp, but the particular Persons that do usurp, if it be at all usurped. Now, my Lord, if that had been a regular Suit, no doubt but there would have been Judgment against the Corporation, which there was not; and certainly the Replication of Forfeitures was not good against the Corporation, but against the particular Persons only.

All Mr. Solicitor's Authorities for seizing hold true, if the Corporation would never appear: And what is the Reason it should be brought against J. S. and J. N. but because Corporations do never appear in such a Case, in Regard it were not congruous they should appear? For the Quo Warranto must intend it so, that they were not a Corporation in Being, by implying a Forfeiture. Then, say I, no Judgment at all can be given upon this Score; Non admittitur exceptio ejusdem rei, cujus petitur dissolutio; a Man shall never be admitted to controvert that to be in Being, which he himself desires should be destroyed, and so has allowed it to be. Shall Mr. Attorney be admitted to deny the Supposal of his own Writ? And truly, I think, I might very well leave this Part of the Case, and this Point, to Mr. Attorney-General himself; for if he will have any Thing to be answered by us, he must maintain us to be a Corporation capable of answering; and so I have Reason to expect, that against his own Replication he will be pleased to support the Being of our Corporation, and so dismiss us hence.

My Lord, I have done with this Point; now I come to the Replication, which indeed is a Kind of a new Quo Warranto; for it brings in new Matter, and therein they do charge two Forfeitures; the one is, by Reason of the Abuse of the Market, the other is, by Reason of the Petition. My Lord, I shall answer both them:

That

That we were seized of the Market, that is pleaded, and that is agreed: That we were seized of Tolls, and were to have reasonable Tolls, that is agreed: That there is a Custom in LONDON to have Common-Councils, and that this was by Common-Council, is agreed; all this is agreed by the Demurrer: That this Toll, (tho' by the Way I must confess, and will agree with Mr. Solicitor, that it is not properly to be called a Toll; for a Toll is only for Goods sold, and when they are sold, in Recompence for the Officer's Attendance for the Testification of the Contracts, and the entering them in their Books; but I agree, this is not such a Duty for Goods bought and sold, but it) is for the Accommodation of Persons repairing thereunto for their Stalls; and, if I would call it by any particular Word, I had rather call it Stallage than any Thing else; it is for those Accommodations, which we have been at vast Charge in preparing and providing, and for the Maintenance of requisite Officers, and for the Cleansing of the Markets. Now, Mr. Solicitor objects, That we cannot prescribe for a Toll uncertain, and he cites the Case of Murage, and the like; and so I must confess, where Murage is granted, 'tis commonly a Thing certain; so is Pontage, and the like; but I believe (if I had thought that it would have been a Point insisted upon) I could have brought you Instances where Murage, and such like Things, have been granted in general, and they would have been antient ones indeed: And there is a Necessity for it in some Cases; for when a Town will repair its Walls, the Charge may be greater or less, as the particular Accidents may be, and so, perhaps, a certain Duty would not do it. When a Wall is to be built, there the Duty may be certain; but when it is built, to keep it in Repair, the Duty of Murage may be uncertain, according to the Charge; and if the Case be not so, it will come little to our Purpose, which is a Duty upon a great and a continuing Charge. I will name him some Things that he must agree to, and I know he will grant, are uncertain, as Pickage and Stallage, which are Duties for picking in my Earth to dig Holes for the Posts of Stalls to be fixed in: Now there can never be, nor ever was, any circumscribing in those Matters; for Circumstances in every of those Cases must govern it. If I have Occasion for my Stall to use a Foot of Ground, one Sort of Sum is necessary; if ten Feet, another Sum; it ought to be equal indeed, but it could never be good, if it were limited to a Sum certain; and in all Grants that ever were of Pickage and Stallage, they were never reduced to a Certainty; and those are Things too that relate to a Market.

And so I take it to be for Keyage, Anchorage, and the like; for when there are Posts or Places for Ships, to which they may be fixed, the Owner of the Port may have a Compensation for that, but that must needs be uncertain, according to the Circumstances; if a Ship be bigger or lesser, if a Ship stay a Month or a Day, it is not fit the same Rate should be paid; nor is it usually granted by particular Words, Co. Entr. 535, and 526, Placit. 4. the King against the City of LONDON for the Water Bailage, and other Things. They pleaded only a Right in General, and do not say what the Particulars were; and yet one of the Things demanded in the Quo Warranto was, as I said, the Water-Bailage; which, sure, if any Thing ought to be certain, that ought. In that Case it was good Pleading; though, I think, I could say more against it than this Thing, that is, in the Nature of Stallage; so that all that Mr. Solicitor hath built upon must, I think, needs vanish.

VOL. II.

My Lord, I do not think but LONDON ought to be, and is as much under the Obedience and Correction of the King, as any City; but yet, I believe, in these Cases of their Customs, you will give that Allowance and Indulgence to it, that all your Predecessors have done, which is greater than any they have given to any other Corporations in the Kingdom, and that because it was LONDON. That there should be such a Thing as a Foreign Attachment, I think, is hardly allowed in other Places: I am sure I have known it denied in some, that a Contract in Writing should be equal to a Book Debt; that a Feme Merchant should be sued without her Husband; or if he be named, he should only be named for Conformity. You take Notice, that LONDON is a Port Town, and that Men that trade there, sometimes go beyond Seas, and in their Absence their Wives trade by themselves, and, perhaps, carry on distinct Trades while they are there; and so they may do in other Places, may be; but only for the sake of LONDON do you take Notice of these Things there, and not elsewhere. Their Penalties that are sued for in their Courts, a great many of them are such as would not be well maintained in other Courts, or in any other Place; and yet they are maintained there, as namely, that their Penalties should be sued for before the Mayor and Aldermen, when the Benefit of them goes to their Use; and yet that is allowed in the eighth Report, notwithstanding the grand Objection, that they are in some Sort Judges and Parties, Rolls 2. p. Abr. Tit. Prescription, Letter H. Fol. 266. Numb. 2 and 3. The City of LONDON may prescribe to have a Court of Chancery in LONDON, of Matters tried in the Sheriffs Court, though such a Court cannot be granted by the King's Letters Patents; but the Mayor and Citizens of York cannot prescribe for such a Court, because it were very dangerous that such petty Corporations should have such Courts. And whatsoever is said by my Lord Hobart, in his Reports, 63, I do affirm, there is no Act of Parliament that erects a Court of Chancery in LONDON, or the Cinque Ports. If Mr. Solicitor had struggled with me about the Being, or not Being of that Act of Parliament, I would have agreed with him, that there was no such, sooner than some that he says are none. The Customs of LONDON have been upheld, and, I must confess, I think that is very strange, even against the general Words of an Act of Parliament, 2 Inst. 20. A Jailer in LONDON may permit his Prisoner, that is in Execution, to go at large with a Battoon in any Place within their Jurisdiction, and it is no Escape. And so is Plowden's Com. 36. A Citizen of LONDON may set up one Retail Trade, though he was bred to another, notwithstanding of the Statute 50 of the Queen. And for a general Rule take that that is said in Palmer 542, those of LONDON may prescribe against a Statute; and the Reason is, because their Liberties are confirmed by Statute, and other Towns are not. In Rolls Rep. 1 P. 105. Spike against Tenant, my Lord Coke being then Chief Justice, says, We take Notice of the Customs in our Courts, and other Courts in Westminster-Hall, and in LONDON. Fleetwood, Recorder of LONDON, says a very strange Thing in 1 Leon 284, Hollinshead's and King's Case, and in 4 Leon 182, that the King's Courts ought to take Notice, that those of LONDON have a Court of Record; for if a Quo Warranto issues to the Justices in Eyre, it does not belong to them of LONDON to claim their Liberties; for all the King's Courts have Notice of them; and truly truly I have been informed, I mean by Copies of Records, that when the Justices in Eyre came to the Tower, this was a Privilege allowed to them, they were not bound to set forth their Liberties, as others were.

My Lord, I think this, as it is pleaded, is a Duty very justifiable, and very well payable, by Virtue of this Custom. I do agree, as I said, a Toll is properly for Goods sold; and this is a Custom for the Accommodation of those that brought Goods to be sold; and that it is like that in Leonard 218, my Lord Cobham's Case, a Duty paid for the standing in the Cellar; and there that is held to be good. In Rolls 2 P. of the Abridgment, 123, Letter B. Hickman's Case, the Lord of the Manor may prescribe to have the eighth Part of a Bushel of Corn in four Bushels that are brought to the Market within the Manor, in the Name of the Toll, and that is for Stallage only; for it is said there, Whether it be sold or not. And in the same Book, Fol. 265, the Port of Dublin set forth, that they are Owners of the City of Dublin, and that they maintained Perches in the said River, to direct the Ships in the deep Channel, and that they kept the Key and the Crane; and therefore, in Consideration of that, they prescribed and demanded three Pence in the Pound for all Merchandizes in the said Port, and it was held good. Now I agree Toll-through, that cannot be prescribed for simply and generally, but by Toll-through. I mean, as you know, for passing and repassing through only, and not for staying. But yet even that may be prescribed for too, in Consideration of repairing a great Highway, or a very foul Way, or maintaining a Bridge, and the like. And therefore, if our Considerations here be as good, then we, maintaining those great Places, may prescribe for this Duty, as for passing through the Streets, though it were no Market.

There is a famous Case reported in Rolls 1 P. Fol. 1. and 44, and it is in 2 Bulstrode, and also in Moor; it was the Case of the Bell-Man of Litchfield: A Prescription is made, that the Corporation of Litchfield hath a Market, and they ought to repair the Way to it, and to appoint a Bell-Man that should sweep the Market-Place; and that for this the said Bell-Man, Time out of Mind, had taken of those that brought Corn to the said Market, and opened their Sacks to sell, a Pint of Corn, if but a Bushel or under; if more, a Quart. So that if it were opened and not sold, he was to have that Duty, and that Prescription was adjudged to them by all the Judges, and yet it does not appear there, whether the repairing that Way cost them 5 s. or 5000 l. and yet by Intendment they would not account it unreasonable, though it might have been urged it was very unequal; if they could take a Pint for that which was under a Bushel, perhaps they would take, by that Means, half of what the Party bought; but if there were fifteen Bushels, they had but a Quart, and this was objected as to the Inequality of it; and yet they all passed over that by a reasonable Intendment, and would not deny the Prescription to be good. And the Case of Coinage in Dyer, and the Case of 21 H. 7. 16, are admitted to be good Law, where the Town of Glocester prescribed for a Toll of Boats passing by the River near the Town.

Now, my Lord, for ours, there was very great Reason to induce it, the great Alterations that were made in LONDON by the Fire; and it was not the first Time that LONDON was burnt: And if there should be War, and so great Alterations and Confusions, there were great Cause, that the City, that lays out great Sums, and must be at such publick Charge, should not be Losers by it.

And we do set forth more than they do in the Case of Litchfield, that we provided the Market-Places at our own Charge; and if they will use them, they must expect to pay some Compensation for it; that we do keep Officers, and pay them for cleansing and keeping Order in the Markets: And above all, that we provide Standings and Stalls, and such Accommodations, and that I am sure is a Provision no Lord of a Market is bound to make, unless he will; and therefore the Market-People, that are accommodated by it, have great Reason to pay for it; and we pay all the Taxes for the Market-Places, for the Ground is ours; and that is not alledged in the Pleading indeed, but it must be implied, because we pay the Taxes, and they that have the Standings are not liable to pay the Taxes: And so is the Judgment in Rolls, 2 P. 238, and the 2d Abr. 289. And in the Case of Cusack, Justice Dodderidge says, that the Redeeming of one Fair from the Abbot of Westminster, cost the City of LONDON 8000 l. for he had a Fair at Westminster, and a Market for forty Days, and that during that Time no Sale should be in LONDON, or the Places adjacent; and a great Rate it was, if it were so. The Measure of a Toll is, according to my Lord Coke, 2 Inst. 58, when the Thing demanded for Wares or Merchandizes does so burthen the Commodity, that the Merchants cannot have a convenient Gain by trading therewith, and thereby Trade is lost or hindered, then it is an evil Toll. But here, indeed, the Market-People are better accommodated than ever they were; and Trade is so far from being discouraged, as that it is increased, as is implied in the Replication; for it is said, we receive 5000 l. a Year; which if it were so unequal, would not certainly be paid, nor could be, if there were not great Trade there. So that the Increase of Trade is the Thing complained of in this Quo Warranto. And the Truth of it is, I have examined and looked into the Fact of these Things, and there is nothing in this By-Law but was really antiently paid, except only in one Instance, whether it were 6 d. or no, that was paid when a Cart was drawn by two Horses, which now is but 4 d. and if we have increased the Toll, which I doubt whether it be so or no, it is only in a very Trifle.

Now, my Lord, this Case, I think, is a stronger Case than that in 5 Rep. the Chamberlain of LONDON's Case, there is no Consideration of Stalls, or cleansing the Place, but only they had an Officer to search and view, and that was a new Appointment of their own, they could not prescribe for it, but it was thought a Penny was a reasonable Recompence, and the Subject had a Benefit by it; and if he would bring his Cloth to LONDON to be sold, he should come thither to have it viewed, and give a Recompence for it. Now LONDON is all Market indeed, every Shop is a Market; and it hath been well said of the Judges several Times in Westminster-Hall, that LONDON is the Market of all England; and there is never an Acre in England but is the better for that.

As to the Imposition upon Coals, that is but an Inducement, and an Inducement is never to be relied upon, it is not to be stood upon; and Mr. Solicitor did very honourably decline it, and did not make any Thing of it, nor trouble the Case with it.

When the City did make this Act of Common-Council, they did consult with their Counsel for Matter of Law, and with their Officers and Fellow Citizens for Matter of Fact, and did adjust these Rates, and enacted them to be paid, they being being reasonable ones, and according to the ancient Usage; but if they were mistaken, it will be no Cause for you to give Judgment against them, for many other Reasons: As first, you cannot judge this to be unreasonable. I have not heard one Word said, that this is an unreasonable oppressive Toll. Here is Money levied; what then? If it be a reasonable Sum, it is not so great, it does not deserve the Name of Oppression. I say, it is not so great an Oppression, if they should have been mistaken in the Form of instituting the levying of it; if they might have done it under their Common Seal, and now they have done it without that by Act of Common-Council. Nay, it does not deserve that you should judge it unreasonable; you cannot do it here, for the Considerations are meritorious, and equivalent to it, the great Charge they were at in building, and they still daily are at in cleansing and repairing, and providing Stalls. But, however, the Case is not so disclosed here, that you can judicially determine this to be an unreasonable Toll; according to the Rule in Coke's Magna Charta 222. the Toll of a Market need not be certain, only it must be reasonable; and what shall be deemed reasonable the Judges must determine, if it come judicially before them: So shall reasonable Customs, and reasonable Fines, and reasonable Services, and reasonable Time to remove Goods, and the like, they must be judged by the Discretion of the Justices upon the true State of the Case before them. Now this Case must have all its Circumstances stated and agreed by Demurrer, or found by Verdict. And so is 4 Rep. 27. b. and Hobart 135. and 174. as in the Case of Copyholders Fines, the Quality and Yearly Value of the Land must appear, or else there cannot be Judgment, whether it be reasonable or no. In the 13th Report. fol. 3. and Croke Car. 196. where the Question was, Whether the Lord of a Manor might assess two Years and an Half Value of Copyhold Lands, according to the Rack-Rents for a Fine upon Surrender and Admittance, and upon Non-Payment to enter for the Forfeiture; as suppose Land, it be rented at 20 l. a Year, here is 50 l. demanded for Admittance; there it appeared judicially that it was unreasonable; and so it was adjudged, because the Value was certain. But who can here say, whether the providing of Markets costs 5 s. or 500 l.? it is not estimable. Perhaps we have overbought all these Tolls that they call unreasonable; we aver it to be reasonable; the Demurrer agrees it to be so, and you must intend it to be so, unless the contrary be set forth clearly in its Circumstances; for he that will have a Forfeiture, must shew the Circumstances to make it out.

My Lord, another thing is this, to answer Mr. Solicitor in that Point. I say, an unreasonable By-law is no reasonable Cause or Colour for forfeiting a Corporation, admitting it to be unreasonable, though I grant it not. My Lord Hobart, in Norris and Stap's Case, Hob. 211. says, That though Power to make Laws is given by special Clauses in all Incorporations, yet it is needless; for that is included by Law in the very Act of Incorporating. For as Reason is given for the natural Body for the governing of it, so Bodies Corporate must have Laws as a Politick Reason to govern them. Reason is a Faculty in them as 'tis in a Man, and may err; and therefore, says he, If the King do grant Letters Patents of Incorporation to Persons, and he doth thereby make Ordinances and By-Laws himself, they are subject to the same Construction and Rule of Law, as if they were made afterwards by the Corporation. For, the King can no more make an unreasonable By-Law than a Corporation; but if the King do, shall that affect the Corporation, and make the Corporation void by way of Repugnancy, or an instantaneous Breach of Condition? No, it shall not. And therefore, as they may receive unreasonable Rules from the King, without defeating of the Corporation, or having their Being thereby vacated, so they may make unreasonable By-Laws without the same Danger of destroying the Corporation. The Cases are very many, wherein By-Laws have been judged unreasonable; the Truth of it is; there is a great Misfortune in the penning and making those By-Laws; by some Means or other there is something discerned that still proves an Exception to it, as we see in the Case of the Carmen and Woodmongers: Their By-Law was made and re-made, and corrected again and again, before it could be made to hold Water in this Court; so in the Taylors of Ipswich's Case, and Bradnox's Case, which was here lately. All these have been adjudged void; but what then? In all these Cases it was never said; Hereby your Corporation is destroyed; you have erred in making a By-Law, and therefore you have lost your Being of a Corporation: Besides, if there were but a Colour for it, and in it were any thing tolerable, surely that were enough to make us excusable in such a Matter. If it has been received, as we agree it has, the Officers are Trespassers, every Individual of them are fineable, and any Man may bring his Action against them. But they that come to the Market think not fit to complain; if they did not like the Market, they would not come at all; and if they did not like the Payment, they would not come neither; and there is no levying of any thing unless they do come.

Now, my Lord, I will admit the levying and the receiving, and yet, I say, this is no Forfeiture; for here is a Mistake of Law, or a Mistake of Fact, by Colour whereof Money is received: This, by no means, will work a Forfeiture of a Corporation, for at that Rate every Penalty that has been levied by a By-Law, will be adjudged a levying of Money without Law, and so forfeit the Corporation, which has not been done in other Cases of By-Laws, and those much worse than this; because most of those By-Laws were made for levying Money upon Men for exercising a Trade; and 'tis much more to say, that you should levy such Sums of Money upon every Stroke of honest Industry, whereby a Man gets his Livelihood, than that you shall pay so much for your Accommodation in my Ground for the better vending your Goods. This hath been held good in some Cases, but in others it hath been held nought; and this hath all been received and levied to the Use of the City too; and so 'tis a levying of Money, whereby they have a great Advantage; nay, 'tis worse still, because it is imposed by Force, and recovered by Force; but here 'tis a voluntary Penalty, no Force, no Compulsion, only the being removed from their Standings, no other Penalty, no Imprisonment, or the like; but if you do not like the Conditions, you may be gone; I desire you to walk out of this Market, if you don't like the Price of the Provisions; and to be gone from the Stall, if you don't like the Price of the Standing. We were not bound to provide these Stalls for you, but having provided them, if you don't like them, you may leave them; in other Cases, the Man is imprisoned, and sued by Action for the Penalty; here, at any Time, if you don't like, you may be gone.

My Lord, I am very confident, if this be so, that all Monies levied by a Corporation without Law or Forfeitures, or where the Law is mistaken, then I dare boldly affirm, that we never were a Corporation two Months since LONDON was LONDON; but by Virtue of some some old sleeping By-Law or other, that has been set on Foot: Monies have been levied, which perhaps will not be in Strictness allowed good: And if all these had been Forfeitures, we had been in a strange Condition, not one Month or two should pass over us, but we had forfeited it; and never can there be, perhaps, a Month to the End of the World, but we should still be forfeiting. And what is said of us, may be said of any other Corporation that happens to make By-Laws. And I am sure, in former Times, there were Monies levied with a Witness; I mean not the late Times of Rebellion only, but an Hundred Years ago, strange Exorbitances of that Nature were committed by LONDON and other Corporations; then they went by way of Information, but never was it thought that it could affect the Being of a Corporation: If it should do so, I do not know whither it will go at last; the greater or the lesser Sum is not that that will difference the Law. Is it a Forfeiture to receive 5000 l.? Why is it not a Forfeiture to receive 500 l.? Why not to receive 5 s.? Why not to receive 5 d.? No Bounds can be set for that: If it be a Transgression of the Law, here is a Tort and a Wrong done by your By-Law, that you have levy'd 5 d. and therefore all this great Inheritance of LONDON, this, that is the greatest Inheritance of the Kingdom, is forfeited for a Trifle, upon Three Half-pence, or a Basket of Eggs.

Nay, my Lord, to go further, I say if this be a Forfeiture, I say 'tis only a Forfeiture of the Market; nay, not so much neither, 'tis only a Forfeiture of the Toll. My Lord, I cannot but once more mention that excellent Notion of my Lord Hobart, That the Power of making By-Laws is included in the Act of the Corporation; for, as Reason, says he, is given to a natural Body to govern it, so a Politick Body must have Laws, as its Reason, to govern it. Now then the making of these Laws is but the Exercise of that Reason, declaring the Mind of the Corporation, for the Direction of the Officers of it, what to do and what to take; and 'tis but like the Mind of a Man that directs his Hand what to do: For this is not like the Duty of Stallage, that relates to the Publick, and relates also to something that before they had no Interest in; but only relates to the Administration of a private Property, and directs the Manner of that Administration: They are Lords of the Market, and that is casual to them; it is not necessary for them so to be. If any Corporation bid their Officers levy so much Money, suppose they bid them take more Toll than is due, or levy more Money for Rent than is due for the Land, why this might be looked upon as a great Breach of Trust, and an Encroachment: They should have had but 6 d. and they took 7 d. and this done by Act of Common-Council, which is the Way of expressing their Mind; yet surely it would be no Forfeiture, because the Land is their own, and the Administration of it belongs to them only in Point of Interest and Property. Suppose a Gentleman has a Market, and his Reason, which is his By-Law, as my Lord Hobart says, puts him upon taking of Toll, but he does a little mistake the Law or the Custom, he bids his Servant take so much, which perhaps may be too much for Toll, does this destroy his Capacity of suing and being sued? you may as well say such a particular Person shall not plead, or be impleaded, if he do so and so: Nay this, if he were a Denizen, does not forfeit his Denization, and yet a Denizen is as perfectly a Creature of the King's as a Corporation is: It is Basilicon Doron, it is the Bounty and Kindness of the King to one born out of his Dominions, to give him the Capacity of a Subject, to sue and be sued, and the like, which cannot be forfeited, even for Breach of Conditions in the Letters Patents of Denization: For this is within Versellin Manning's Case; if he does not observe the Laws of the Land, 'tis true, he must be punished for it, but he shall not be undenizen'd.

My Lord, there is a Statute, which I think is a most plain Declaration of the Law in this Case, and 'tis the Stat. of West. 1. cap. 31. some call it the 30th, because they differ in the numerating and heading of the Chapters. 'Tis the Statute concerning those that take outrageous Tolls in Market-Towns. The Statute says, Le Roy prendra la Franchise del March en sa Maine; The King shall seize the Franchise into his own Hands. My Lord Coke, in his Comment upon that Statute says, he shall seize the Franchise of the Fair or Market, till it be redeemed by the Owner, that's all. But this is intended, says he, upon an Office to be found, for in Statutes all Incidents shall be supplied by Intendment.

Now, in the Quo Warranto that was brought against the Corporation of Maidenhead in Palmer's Reports, there is this very Case. That Corporation took an outrageous Toll, too much Toll, or that that was not justifiable, for going over their Bridge; yet it was so far from being imagined that this should be a Forfeiture (and yet the Case is the same, let any Man distinguish it that can) that it was a Question whether the Market was forfeited or no, as you may see in that Book, fol. 82. and there 'tis said by Doderidge, and at last it was agreed by all the Court, that it should be a Forfeiture only of the Toll, and not of the Market. And I desire that that Folio may be noted by your Lordship, and that you will please to look into what is said in that Case; for 'tis debated before, and it seemed as if they would have forfeited the Market by it, but not the Corporation; and yet that was not forfeited neither. And to this I will apply that Rule that Mr. Solicitor himself did mention, Puniatur in eo quo peccat: You have offended in the Toll, therefore you shall suffer in the Toll, not in the Market, to be sure not in the Corporation: For if it were that it should affect the Market, it would be because it hath some Relation to a Market, as a Toll hath; but how can this possibly affect or touch the Corporation? The Statute, indeed goes thus far, and says, Whoever shall take outrageous Toll shall forfeit the Market; but then shall we come and add, Whoever shall take outrageous Toll, shall forfeit his Capacity of holding a Market, or any thing else. Do they complain of us for taking the Legislative Power upon us, and therefore we shall forfeit our Corporation, when the Statute itself has appointed the Punishment, and says only, the Market shall be forfeited, and so make a new Law themselves? Statutes are supposed to be penal enough of themselves, and all penal Statutes are to be taken equitably as to the Penalty, and not stretched beyond the Letter. And wherever a Statute inflicts a Penalty, and says you shall forfeit so much, as my Lord Hobart says the Common Law shuts up the Negative, that you shall forfeit no more, how then is it possible we should forfeit that, which if it were forfeitable at all, is not within the Provision of this Law?

'Tis true, as Mr. Solicitor hath said in the Book of Assizes that he cited in Vet. Nat. Brev. 161. it is said you shall forfeit in the Case of a Misuser (where the Liberties are not depending one upon another) only the Liberty that is abused; but how that can be applied for him, I understand not; for nothing can be more flat and plain against him: If so be we should forfeit our Toll or our Market, be it so; nay, if we should forfeit our Liberty of having a Common-Council, what then? How is it possible to bring it up to a Forfeiture Forfeiture of the Corporation? You shall forfeit a Court of Pypowders, if you forfeit your Market, because 'tis incident to it, and dependent upon it, and subject to what Dangers the Market itself is subject to; but the Being of a Corporation, nothing can transcend that. To be sure what is incident to it, cannot transcend it; 'tis but a Subject to that which is superior.

For Example sake, my Lord, I will cite you a Case, which is the Case of the City of LONDON too about the Measurage of Coals. It is Sir Julius Caesar's Case, 1 Leon' 106. And I choose to cite that Book; for though it did not come out with your Lordship's Authority; yet my late Lord Chancellor gave this just Account of it, That it was one of the best of our later Reports. Sir Julius Caesar libelled in the Admiralty against the Officer of the City for measuring Coals upon the Thames. Fleetwood came to the Bar, and prayed a Prohibition; and Egerton the Solicitor, on the other Side complained, that the Mayor of LONDON did take a Fine for this Measurage, and made an Office of it; and this, he conceived, was Extortion (which is the Thing complained of here in so many Words) and being upon the Thames, should be punished in the Admiralty. As to that the Judges replied, By no means; and Wrey and Gawdey said, If it be Extortion in the Mayor, there is no Remedy for it in the Court of Admiralty, but in the King's Courts, and it shall be redressed here in a Quo Warranto, says Gawdey. 'Tis true, a Quo Warranto might well have been brought for redressing that Extortion, but it could not mean thereby that the Corporation should be dissolved: And that it was so understood, is most plain; for accordingly a Quo Warranto is brought. You have it in Coke's Entries, fol. 535. and 536. placit' 4. And the City of LONDON appeared and pleaded, and prescribed to it; and thereupon the Attorney-General that then was, my Lord Coke himself, was satisfied, and confessed their Title, and Judgment was given for them; and since it hath been held good, and they have enjoyed it in Peace; and this, I hope, is a good Example for Mr. Attorney to follow in this Case.

My Lord, I come now to that Part which I come least willingly to; I mean that of the Petition; and that which I have to say in it is this, my Lord: First I say, That this Petition is justified in the Pleading, and I hope it is very justifiable; if it were but excusable, 'tis enough. That it is justifiable to petition the King in our Necessities and Extremities, is plain from what my Lord Hobart says, fol. 220. He says it was resolved by the Court in Renham's Case; that it was lawful for any Subject to petition to the King for a Redress, in an humble and modest Manner: For, as 'tis there said, Access to the Sovereign must not be shut up in case of the Subjects Distresses. Now the Common-Council are not less privileged than any other sure, but rather more in this kind of addressing and petitioning. I cannot tell what Crime to make of this, there is so much alledged against us.

I did very well observe truly, and would always observe and remember in all such Cases, what my Lord Keeper here said to your Lordship, That Counsel should not so much speak, as if they would abet the Guilt of their Client, rather than advocate for their Innocency.

My Lord, if the Words themselves that are alledged are not Words that are unlawful to be deliver'd or spoken, then all this that they are dressed up with of the Intention to censure the King, and to bring him into Dislike with his People, all that must go for nothing, and are not to weigh in the Case. Now the Words are these: That there was a Prorogation, and by means of this, there being depending so many Impeachments of Lords and others; and Bills in the Parliament in both Houses, which could not be perfected any where but there, the Prosecution of the Publick Justice; and the making Provisions necessary for the Preservation of his Majesty and his Protestant Subjects, received an Interruption. Now, my Lord, I conceive these Words are not Words that in themselves are unlawful, and for that your Lordship will be pleased to consider our Plea; I need not repeat it, you have it before you: If they are in Sense and Substance the same Words that have been spoken by the King, and the Lords and Commons in Parliament; he that will not be satisfied with that Authority, will not be satisfied with any. Then what do we say? We say that the Prosecution of the publick Justice received an Interruption: Does not the King say so; and more, in his Speech, we have set forth, wherein he recommends it to both Houses, that Justice may be done? What is the Meaning then but this? If the further Prosecution of the Offenders goes not on, Justice is not done? and so we speak but the King's Words. We say they are not tried, or they were not tryed, they themselves complain of it to this Day; and therefore Justice did receive an Interruption. I am confident, without Reflection, that honourable Person my Lord Danby, in this Point, hath said Words much more liable to Exception, though truly Words that I believe deserve no Rebuke. He has complained that Justice was not done in his Case, because he was not tried, and that when he desired to be tried too; but his Liberty taken away, and he forfeited that which was dearer to him than Lands or Honours, his Health; whereby he endanger'd his Life, and lost all the Comforts of Life. If it were lawful for him to say, as certainly it was, That Justice was not done in his Case, why might not the City say so? Either these Lords ought to be condemned, or they ought to be acquitted; 'tis hard to say Justice is done, when they lie so long in Prison, and are not either acquitted or condemned.

Then we say this, That the making Provision for the Preservation of the King's Person, and of his Protestant Subjects, received an Interruption. To this Part we give this Answer: We set forth, That there were Bills depending in the Parliament for this Purpose, and that is agreed to us by the Demurrer; and that these Bills could not pass into Laws, any more than the Lords could be tried but in Parliament. Why then if it be so, that the Matter cannot be done, nor Provision made; but (as that Proclamation, that issued for the Fast, said, and as the Addresses of both Houses for the Fast do say) by the Blessing of God upon the Counsels of King and Parliament; if these Counsels, or the King and his Parliament are interrupted, this is not done. To make such an high Crime of this, I do not understand; I would not be thought to speak any thing to justify that which is really a Crime; but this is that I say, 'Tis not in Law, unlawful for us to petition the King, or address to him. But, my Lord, to take off the Edge of this Business, I shall beg Leave to read to your Lordship a Speech of the King's, made the 6th of March following, and therein there are these Words, The further Prosecution of the Plot.

My Lord, let any Man read, and spell, and see how in Substance the Words in our Petition differ from the Words of the King, making those Laws necessary for the Security of himself and the Kingdom, and this spoken the 6th of March, when this very Petition, now complained of, was presented in January or February before, and there was no Parliament between. No Man will say, that there were Laws sufficient for the Security of the King and Kingdom, when the King himself speaks of the Necessity of making such:

So then, those Laws that were preparing received an Interruption. The Lords were not tried; is not that an Interruption of Justice? since they could be tried no where else, as must be granted; and the King recommends it to them as not done, but necessary to be done. So the King said before, and so it is implied here. There is no such Thing said in the Petition, That the King did interrupt Justice, and the Proceedings of the Parliament: It is an Inference and a Consequence made by Wit and Art; not that the King did interrupt, or intend to interrupt Justice, but it says, by the Prorogation of the Parliament the publick Justice received an Interruption.

My Lord, suppose at that Time there had been a Pestilence here, and the King had been as much resolved to meet his two Houses as they him, but by Reason of the Pestilence he were necessitated and forced to make a Prorogation; then there comes such a Petition from the City, and says, That by Reason of this Prorogation those Bills that were depending did not pass, and the publick Justice received an Interruption: What is the Offence of this? 'Tis all true. If there be Bills depending, and Impeachments, that can no other where be tried, they do receive Interruption by a Prorogation. Can any Man say this is false? The Charge in the Replication is, That we did falsely and maliciously say, What? That which is true, and that which the King had said before, and that which the Lords and Commons said after him, That till those Things were done they were not safe; and those Things as yet were not done.

My Lord, there is this further in it, the Petition is set forth in hæc verba; and therefore I may take any Thing out of it to explain it, and restore it to itself; for this indeed is a very restrained Construction of the Petition.

It says, when this Interruption by the Prorogation was received, That the King for urgent Causes, and very good Reasons, did prorogue the Parliament. It is his Prerogative to do so; and God forbid but he should have it. I think, without doubt, we should be more at a Loss for Want of that Prerogative than we can by the Use of it: It is mine, and I believe every good Man's Opinion, that that Prerogative is very necessary and profitable for us all; but it is the Consequence of it that this Interruption of Justice is received; nay, we are so far from saying that the King did interrupt Justice, or intending it, that we say, we do hope the King's gracious Intentions were only to make Way for the better Concurrence of his Majesty and his Parliament. The King does, for great Causes, and best known to himself, who has the Prerogative, prorogue the Parliament; whereby, as a meer Consequence, not as the King's Intention, the publick Justice is interrupted: Nay, this we affirm was with a good Intention in the King, that he might the better be enabled to concur with his Parliament, as is set forth in the Petition. Can there be any Thing more properly said? 'Tis the greatest Justification of the Prorogation that can be. The King has prorogued the Parliament: What to do? Why Justice hath in view received an Interruption, but not in the Intention of the King. We know what the Meaning of it is, and so we set forth in our very Petition, It is to gain Time, that he may the better concur with his Parliament. It is a great Commendation of the King's Purpose, instead of charging him with Injustice, that he did resolve to concur with his Parliament for such Ends, and accordingly did prorogue the Parliament.

Now the Attorney-General hath put in, that it was ea intentione; there is the Sting of the Business to put in those Words, to make that which we may lawfully speak, of itself to be an Offence; but truly that signifies just nothing: It can never hurt a Thing that is true; it has great Authority in it, if it be applied to a Thing that is unlawful; but if in Substance it be true, and the Thing itself justifiable, those Words make nothing in the Case; and I think I need not argue that Point, but refer myself to the great Case that was in Westminster-Hall; and that is the Reversal of the Judgment given in this Court against my Lord Hollis, which was a Reversal in Parliament; and is printed in the last Impression of Mr. Justice Coke's Reports by Order of Parliament, and there they explode all the Notion of ea intentione, and this Business. A Man speaks Words that he might speak in Parliament (though I know not whether he might, or no) but the great Thing is, if Words, that in themselves are tolerable to be spoken, you shall not say they were spoken with an ill Intention; though, as I shall shew by and by, this hath a Kind of Fatality in it, and that is this, that it is done with an ill Mind by a Corporation that hath no Mind at all.

Mr. Attorney-General. Just now you said it had a Mind, and Reason was its Mind.

Mr. Recorder. I said as my Lord Hobart says, that a By-Law to it is a Mind, as Reason is to a Man, but it hath no moral Mind. My Lord, then I saw the Citizens of LONDON were indeed at that Time under great Consternation, by Reason of the Conspiracies that had been discovered in Parliament, and in the Courts of Justice; and it had been declared by the late Lord Chancellor, at the Trial of the Lord Stafford, which your Lordship may very well remember, That LONDON was burnt by the Papists; and therefore it was no Wonder that they were desirous that themselves and the Kingdom should be put into great Security against those Enemies. This, my Lord, I confess is a tender Point, and I would not speak a Word in it without a Law-Book to back me. I remember that my Lord Hobart says, that Zeal and Indignation are fervent Passions. The City of LONDON had great Indignation against the Papists for this Conspiracy against the King and Kingdom, and the Religion established by Law. There was no Disaffection in the City at this Time, but when the Petition was made sure, and I wonder that any Man should say, that knows LONDON, and was acquainted with it then, and looks upon this Petition, which passed nemine contradicente, that they had such an Intention as is insinuated; and pray let him read the Names of the worthy Aldermen that then sat upon the Bench, and the other Names of the Common-Council-Men then present, and then let him say, if, without Reflection, the King have more loyal Subjects in the City of LONDON than these Men were. And do you think if there had been in it any Sedition, or any of those ill Qualities that make up the ill Adverbs, which are joined to it in the Replication, not one of all those loyally disposed Men would have spoken against it? But alas! all of it passed nemine contradicente.

My Lord, I say, that if the Matter of it be justifiable, as I think it is, then all these Words will signify nothing, if there were never so many more of them: And the presenting and carrying of it to the King, that is no Offence, that is not so much as pretended to be one. And, my Lord, I think it a very harsh Translation of the Word into Latin, when the Petition says, That the Parliament's Proceedings, or the publick Justice, received an Interruption, to put that Word of Obstructionem in; truly, I think a better Word might have been found to express the soft Expression in the Petition; and they need not have put that hard violent Word Obstructionem, onem, when, to make English of it, they translated it Interruption.

But, my Lord, they do admit, I say, that the making and presenting of it to the King, is not the Offence so much as the publishing of it, by which it is exposed to many others besides. Now to excuse that, the Answer we give is this; and 'tis that which will carry a very reasonable Ground of Justification in it: Certain Citizens, that were private Men, had petitioned the Common-Council, and thereby they were importuned to make known the Desires of the City to the King, and it was reasonable to make known to those Citizens what the Common-Council had done to prevent false Rumours, which we knew were rife enough in those Days; and to shew that there was nothing ill in it, we did print it. And 'tis also all driving at the Common Interest, at the King's Safety, the Preservation of the Church and the Government established: All this they did desire might be known to these Citizens, and all others that enquired about it; and therefore they printed it, to evidence that there was nothing of ill intended in it. And I do wonder, I must confess, that this Objection of the publishing of this Petition should be so much insisted upon; for they say, that the Mayor, Commonalty, and the Citizens of the City of LONDON did it; and say not any Thing of the Common-Council, that they did print it: Now they that did vote it, knew it without Printing; and 'tis alledged in the Pleadings, and confessed by the Demurrer, that the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of LONDON, that is, the Corporation, consists of above 50,000 Men, which cannot well be intended otherwise. Why then, here is a Petition that is agreed to be well enough lodged, as to the Persons that voted it, it being the Liberty of the Subject to petition; and if this had been only presented to the King, though it had been by those 50,000 Men, nay, if it had been by 10,000 Men, who had been the Corporation, it had been well enough, so it had not been printed, but only kept private to themselves? Why then, 'tis very strange, that what is known to all LONDON, so great a Part of the Kingdom, should be lawful, but it should be heinously unlawful to send the News of it further. It went further than the City of LONDON; and therefore 'tis such an Offence as shall be a Forfeiture of the Corporation. My Lord, there is a Case of Lake and King, the Petition to the Parliament was scandalous in itself, yet it stood protected, being presented to the Parliament; and it was lawful to print it, provided it were delivered to a Committee of Parliament, or only to those that were Members; though 'tis said there, that the Printing of it is a great publishing, for the Composers, Correctors, and other Persons that are concerned in the Press, read every Letter of it. But it was answered, that Printing is but a more expeditious Way of Writing; and if he had employed 20 Clerks, it had been a greater publishing than three or four Printers. Possibly the Printers might not read it, or not be able to read it well, or not all of them read it at that Time.

Now here, my Lord, sure it was lawful to acquaint the Citizens what they had done, if you take it to be the Act of the Common-Council, and the Common-Council to be the Representative of the City. It was always agreed by the House of Commons, that any Member might send the Votes to those that sent them thither, and whom they represented; they have blamed indeed Men for sending the Debates, but never for communicating the Votes: And what they may do by Writing, that they may do by Printing. Why then might not the Citizens of LONDON, who by Custom choose those Common-Council-Men, well desire to know, and might well know what they had done? And then what they might do by Writing, they might by Printing; for that is but another Way, though a more suitable and compendious Way, of exhibiting any Thing that you would have go to many. And if it be lawful to impart it to all the City, and all the City does know it, though it does go further 'tis no Matter; for what is known to LONDON, may very well be known to all the Nation besides, without Offence, if it did go further. Besides, it shall never be intended it was published further, or that any others knew of it; for 'tis said to be published in the Parish of St. Michael Bassishaw, in the Ward of Bassishaw, and that is in LONDON, to the Citizens of LONDON; and so they only talked of it amongst themselves. Besides, the main Thing which I go upon, is, if there be no ill in the Thing itself, the ea intentione can make no Crime by a bare Affirmation, which we deny; and if it might be well said or done, it is lawful to print it, and the Publication is no Offence neither.

My Lord, the next Point I come to is this, That a Corporation cannot possibly commit a Capital Crime, or any other Crime against the Peace; and I shall offer this Dilemma, Either it was done seditiously, or not; if not, then there is no sufficient Assignment of a Cause of Forfeiture; if it were, then 'tis a Crime for which the Offender is indistable; and that I say is absolutely impossible for a Corporation to be guilty of. And here I will throw in also that Business of the Toll; and I will, for Argument's sake, admit the taking of a wrongful Toll to be Robbery, and then let the Argument go on. I have heard it said within the Bar occasionally, that a Corporation is intrusted with the Government; and that they commit Treason, and raise Sedition, as Mr. Solicitor hath said: I suppose it must be under their Great Seal: But I confess, I believe it is rather spoken to amuse, than to satisfy: But I really think it is no ill nor unjustifiable Thing for me to say, nor against the Government to affirm, That 'tis impossible a Corporation can commit Treason, or that it is intrusted with the Government in any such Kind.

But first, my Lord, I shall shew you what Opinion former Times had, and that because such an Opinion as this hath been broached of late Days.

Lord Chief Justice. Mr. Recorder, will you be much longer? Because I must sit here at Nisi prius this Afternoon, and yet I would fain hear the Argument, if it would not be too long.

Mr. Recorder. No, my Lord, I have almost done, and will cut short.

In 21 E. 4. Fol. 13. b. 'tis said by Pigot, That a Mayor has two Abilities; the one to his own Use, to take and to grant, and to do as another natural Person does; and then the Mayor, as Mayor and Commonalty, hath another Capacity to their common Use and Profit; and that is but a Name, an Ens rationis, a Thing that cannot be seen, and is no Substance; and for this Name or Corporation, 'tis impossible they can do or suffer any Wrong, as to beat or be beaten, as such a Body; but the Wrong is made to every Member of the Body, as to his own proper Person, and not as to the Name of Corporation; nor can the Corporation do a personal Wrong to another; nor can they commit Treason or Felony as to the Corporation, nor against any other Person. And if a Writ of Debt be brought against the Mayor and Commonalty, or other such Body, upon an Obligation; and they plead it is not their Deed; and it is found their Deed; they shall not be imprisoned as another single Person shall. The same Law is if they are found Disseisers with Force, they they shall not be imprisoned; nor in a Writ of Ravishment of Ward shall they either be imprisoned, or abjure the Realm; for such a Body is but a Name, to which such an Act cannot be done. So says Catesby in the same Book. In a Writ brought against them no Capias shall issue, because they are but as a dead Person in Law; and the Appearance upon a Capias cannot be otherwise than personal. And so to this Purpose says the Chief Justice there, If this Body will do any thing, it must be done by Writing. And all along it is the Tenor of the whole Case, that a Corporation cannot commit Treason, or any other Crime. But the Reason of the Thing is above any Authority. Suppose that they, under their Common Seal should commit Treason, and you bring an Indictment of Treason against the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of the City of LONDON, What Judgment shall be given against them in their corporate Capacity? What? it shall be, that Suspendatur per collum Corpus politicum. And then, what Execution shall be done upon that Sentence? What? must they hang up the Common Seal? Nothing else you can do can affect them; but in their private Capacity there they may be punished as single Persons.

A Penal Statute says, that he or she that offends against the Law, shall forfeit so much, or incur such a Penalty: Is a Corporation Male, or Female, that it should come under such a Provision? but the real Reason of the Law is this, it is a civil Being, it is Ens civile, it is Corpus politicum; it hath civil Qualities, but it hath no moral Qualities; and all Offences consist in the Immorality of them, and there must be Malice to make that Immorality. No Words or Acts are Treason or Felony, unless there be a traitorous Mind, or a felonious Mind; and therefore a Madman cannot be guilty of Treason, or Felony. Serjeant — brought an Action for these Words, that he had spoken Treason; it was moved in Arrest of Judgment, that this cannot be actionable; for he might speak Treason in putting a Case: Ay, that were well, said they, if it could be understood so; but we must intend it that he spoke Treason, as his own Words ex corde suo, which makes it Treason; for Treason consists in the Immorality of the Mind.

Another Reason is what Pigott said; as I said before, That a Corporation is but a Name, an Ens rationis, a Thing that cannot see or be seen, and indeed is no Substance, nor can do or suffer Wrong, nor any Thing where a corporal Appearance is requisite. What my Lord Dyer says in Moor 68. that he never saw, is, I believe, true in general, what no Man ever did see, that a Corporation could be bound in a Recognizance or Statute Merchant; and why? because it must be acknowledg'd in Person: And so in this Case, the Guilt follows the Person, but cannot a meer Capacity. In all Crimes the Offender must appear in Person, and plead in Person, and suffer in Person; but you can never bring the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens into Jail, to appear and plead to an Indictment, to receive a Judgment, or suffer Execution. Can a Body Politick, that is invisible, appear in Person? But then there is this great Objection, By this means, they say, if there be no punishing of them, there is no Government, and they may commit Treason under the Great Seal, they may raise Armies, and instigate a Rebellion, and all with Impunity. My Lord, I say no, and I give two Answers to it that are not to be replied to; and the first is this:

1. All these Persons, that are met together, though they are met corporally, in their corporate Capacity, for the Acts of the Corporation at that Time; yet, when they go out of their corporate Business, and commit Treason or Felony, the Crime does not egredi personas, every one of them is a Traitor or a Felon; and notwithstanding they appeared there under the Pretence of a Corporation, yet they are all liable in their private several Capacities, every one of them must be indicted personally, and suffer personally: For when they go about to do such a Thing, it is out of the Business of the Corporation; and they must answer for their own particular Offences. But,

2. I have another Answer to give to it. This Objection is to be retorted on the other Side, that if a Corporation authorize the levying of War under their Common Seal, they shall be affected by it in their politick Capacity, and are liable to the Law in that Capacity only, and must suffer in that Capacity only: And the Consequence of that is, they are discharged in their private Capacity; and this is a Law of Indemnity and Protection for all Crimes; for a Man cannot be liable two Ways for Treason, or Felony, or any other Crimes: If he be not liable in his private, he is in his publick Capacity; if not in his publick, he is in his private. And what is the Consequence of that? This is a Dispensation for a Corporation met together in a Body, to do any illegal Thing, or to commit any enormous Crime; for the King's Counsel say this, we are responsible for it in our politick Capacity; and, What Execution can then be done to punish that Corporation with such a Punishment as the Law inflicts, that is, Imprisonment, or Death, any more than upon an Action of Debt brought against them upon a Bond, and non est factum pleaded, and found for the Plaintiff? Can they be imprisoned? and the like. So that this shall protect and shelter them in the Commission of any capital Offence; for if they are to suffer for it as a Corporation, you must take Judgment against them, as the Law gives it; and how will that be done against an invisible Body? What will be the Execution against the Corpus Politicum, that can neither see nor be seen?

I think this mighty plain; and I must confess, I wonder how it could ever enter into the Mind of any Man, that a Corporation could commit a corporate Crime. I have, as it became me, in Regard of the Duty of my Place, and before that, for my own Learning, read Stamford's Pleas of the Crown, my Lord Coke's 4th Institutes, Poulton de Pace Regni, my Lord Hales's Pleas of the Crown, Dalton's Justice of the Peace, and other Books on that Subject, but I defy any Man to shew me in any of those Treatises concerning criminal Matters, any Resolution, that ever a Corporation could be so concerned, that they should be brought before a Justice of Peace, or proceeded against upon any Law for Treason, or Felony, or be hanged in their political Capacity.

My Lord, I shall conclude all my Discourse of this Kind (and I have almost done, because I perceive I incroach upon your Patience) with an Observation I have made upon the 19 H. 7. c. 7. and it is the Statute that makes Provision against Corporations, that made By-Laws against the Prerogative. That Statute says, that some Corporations did so; now an higher Offence than that, sure cannot well be described; and there that Law says, that those that do so, that make such By-Laws against the Prerogative, shall forfeit for so doing, for every Offence, forty Pounds, unless they are confirmed by the Chancellor and Treasurer, and Chief Justices, or any Three of them. Now to what Purpose was this Statute made, if the making of an ill By-Law (and worse cannot be than a By-Law against the King's Prerogative) should be a Forfeiture of the Being of a Corporation? How vainly did the King and Parliament employ themselves to make a Statute that a Corporation should forfeit 40 l. for such an Offence? No Man will say they had rather take that Penalty than another, when they might have a greater, if a greater could be had by Law. If they might have had a Quo Warranto, and thereby destroyed the Corporation, surely they would not have stood for the Penalty of 40 l. for they might easily have got more Money: No, they might have said, We will never pass it by, unless you will give us 4000 l. or a far greater Sum; nor shall you have your Corporation again, without you give us a considerable Recompence for it. And when the Process and the Proceedings were so expeditious and easy to come at in a Quo Warranto, as it was easy in those Days, Why should they put the King to the Delays in an Action of Debt for so small a Penalty as 40 l.? So that I take it to be a direct Judgment of the Parliament in that Case, that no Corporation should or could be forfeited for the making of any By-Law that was irregular, though it were even against the King's Prerogative.

But to hasten to a Conclusion: I have all this while, my Lord, supposed, that the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of LONDON have done this, but it is not so; this is not the Act of the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens, 'tis not the two hundredth Part of the Corporation, 'tis but the Act of the Common-Council; and we have distinguished ourselves by pleading, that it does not consist of above 250, when the City contains above 50,000. I must confess the Council is not taken Notice of much in Law; as is seen in Warren's Case, 2 Crook 540 & 2 Rolls 112. Warren being one of the Common-Council of Coventry, and displaced, sued out a Writ of Restitution, and upon that Writ it was returned, that by Custom the City might place and displace ad libitum; they there held that the Custom was good: But it is not so of a Freeman or Alderman, because he hath a Freehold; but a Common-Council is a Thing collateral to a Corporation, and the Office of a Common-Council is nothing but only to give Assistance and Advice, which they may refuse at their Pleasure. In Estwick's Case in Style 32. & 2 Rolls 456. it is said, 'That 'tis a Place meerly by Custom, and that the Common-Council is properly but only a Court of Advice; and, my Lord, you shall never intend more than that they were a Court of Advice: All the Rise of their Power is but by Custom, and that Custom is pleaded to give Advice for the Benefit of the City, and make By-Laws for the Good of the Corporation; and that is confessed by the Demurrer; and you shall intend no more than what is opened in the Pleading.

And then 'tis evident this was done by a very small Part of the Citizens of LONDON; and that does no way affect the whole Corporation sure: In James Bagg's Case, 1 Rolls, fol. 226. it is said; That if a Patent be procured by some Persons of a Corporation, and the greater Part do not assent to it, that shall not bind a Corporation. And if so be a Charter sealed, and sent by the King; because not accepted in pais, by the greater Party; bind not, shall an Act done by a few, and an Act done, that tends to a Forfeiture, bind the Whole in point of their Being? There is no Ground to say that the Common-Council represents the City; no more than a Counsel does his Client, or an Attorney his Master, only as far as is for the Benefit of the City, they are chosen and intrusted to make By-Laws; if they offend, they are but Ministers and Officers, and so they are within the Statute of Ed. 3. which I mention, though I think we have no need of that in the Case to help us; if they make an unreasonable By-Law it is void, and every Man that is aggrieved by it may have his Remedy; may bring his Action. Shall you supply this by an Intendment, that they have such a Relation?

N^o 10. Vol. II.

that they are the Representatives of the City of LONDON? that they have a Power to forfeit the Corporation? No, my Lord, by Law they are Part of the Corporation, but they have no such Power to forfeit the Corporation. A Custom shall never be construed to enable a Man to do a Wrong; and a great Wrong it is, that they that are trusted, and trusted but for a Year, and trusted but for the Good of the Corporation of which they are Part, should give up the Being, or, what is worse, forfeit the Being of that Corporation. The Custom of Kent, that makes an Infant capable of making a Feoffment, shall never enable an Infant Tenant in Tail to make a Feoffment, so as to work a Discontinuance of the Estate Tail, and put the Heir to his Formedon. Every illegal Act of theirs is beyond their Commission, and a Nullity of that is all in Respect of themselves; and it is as if they had never done it as to the Corporation, for they are by no means the Corporation; for tho' they use the Common Seal in some Cases, at some Times, so do the Court of Aldermen in other Cases; but it is only in other Cases wherein they are particularly intrusted. If an Act of Common-Council say that I shall have such and such Lands of the City's, that Act signifies nothing but as a Direction and Advice; when it is under the Common Seal, it is an Act of Corporation, and proceeding by Advice of Common-Council, it binds.

Now, my Lord, this is the more unreasonable; because we know that the Practice of the Common-Council in LONDON, being to advise for all the Inhabitants, they are chosen by the Unfreemen as well as others; and it is a strange thing that they should have a Capacity to give away the Liberty of the Citizens, when they are chosen by others as well as them. They had no such Trust for them; nay, all the Trust they had was to keep their Liberties, and not to destroy them. Has any Man a Trust to destroy himself? Sure no Man is trusted by God himself to be felo de se. And certainly then you can never understand it to be in the Nature of a Trust to destroy another; and the least Citizen, my Lord, has as much and as true an Interest in the Corporation of the City of LONDON as the greatest: And therefore 250, if they had been much the greater Number of the Citizens, would signify nothing to the rest of the Body.

My Lord, I shall only say this little more, here is no Crime charged relating to them as a Corporation: Here is, indeed, a fine Word used, that we did this contra fiduciam in corpore politico repositam; but all this is but an imaginary Trust; the King never gave them a Power or Authority; or intrusted them to make By-Laws that were unreasonable; he gave them a Power to make reasonable By-Laws, and so he does every Corporation: And the same Law that gave them the Power, limits that Power, and says, if they go beyond that Power, it is a Nullity. And these Acts relate not to them as a Corporation; the Petition is not so much as said to be against any Trust reposed in the Corporation; certainly there never was any such Trust: Did ever the King intrust them to advise him about the Matters contained in the Petition? and if not, then it is not contra fiduciam; therefore it relates to particular Persons: If it be an Offence, I hope it is none of the Corporation's.

But then the levying of Money, that is; contra fiduciam; they took upon them an illegal and unjust Power in the Common-Council. Suppose it so; how does this belong to the Corporation? It is an Incroachment upon Property; it is the most arbitrary Thing in the World. Whether they have the Market, and the Dominion of it, or not, is Matter of Fact; and being pleaded, is confessed by the Demurrer: And then for the

the Power of making By-Laws, that is a Thing that cannot possibly be taken from them while they are a Corporation; it is that which must be in them as a Corporation, like the Faculty of Reason in a Man to express his Resolutions by. And it is no more than if a Man that has a Market bid his Servant go and remove such as have Stalls there, unless they will pay so much. That Direction is as good a Law as this, and as bad a Law as this, and no more. There is nothing else in it but the Direction of the Officers, what they shall do in the ordering of the Markets, and disposing of the City's Property.

Then as to the formal Method of expressing themselves, whether it be by Act of Common-Council, or under the Common Seal, or by their natural Voice, it is all one, it is not a Thing that concerns them as a Body Politick: But if it were illegal and mistaken, I say the Penalty is only, that it shall be void. What the Common-Council, nay, what the Corporation does within the Limits of its Authority, is good; what beyond that it does, is void. If I command my Servant to distrain for Rent, and he kills a Man in the doing of it, this, as to me, is void; but as to himself, that is chargeable upon him. And what I say of the Common-Council, I say of the Corporation itself, That it is a Capacity, and a limited Capacity; it is the Act of the Members, not of the Corporation, if they do wrong. The Common-Council can act for the Good of the City, and the City can do no more, if they themselves should meet, Crooke, Eliz. Fol. 85. the Queen makes a Lease for Years of Lands to Men of Chesterfield, by the Name of Aldermen, and they by that Name grant all their Interest to Clerk; says that Book, This is void; for the Queen granting them a Lease as to the Aldermen of Chesterfield, this makes them a Corporation, and gives them a Capacity to take, but not to grant. And so Rolls Abr. 1. P. 513. and therefore no Corporation is to be considered as a Corporation, but only when it acts according to the Capacity allowed to it; and as to the rest, it all turns into their private Capacity, but it affects not the Body, nor hath any such Relation as to bind it.

My Lord, all the Question here is, Whether there shall be such a Person in esse as this Corporation? Whether the City of LONDON shall subsist as such a Person, to sue and be sued, to plead and be impleaded? There is nothing of Government or Misgovernment in the Case; but it is all about one Capacity, and nothing else, whether we shall be Defendant or Plaintiff in any Court.

My Lord, Magna Charta, and all the other Acts, that have gone in Confirmation of it, shew the great Care of the Government in all Ages to preserve the City of LONDON; and I look upon them as so many Declarations of the Immortality of it, and of all other Corporations. I shall use a strange Argument perhaps, at first hearing, but it is to me a great Evidence for us, that Magna Charta does not confirm our Being, but our Liberties and Privileges; it says, that the City of LONDON shall have its Liberties, it confirms its Leets, its Markets, and all those Things, that is, it confirms all that it has; it has not saved indeed, if a Corporation indeed be built upon a Corporation; but that particular Liberty may be destroyed, as that of Bridewell, and the like, but it does more than confirm its Being; for it does implicitly declare, that that was impossible to be forfeited: They confirm what needed Confirmation, but for their Being, there was no need of that; it only confirmed the supervenient Liberties, without which it might be a Corporation; but as to its Being, it meddled not with that. And if it were not so, it were an unreasonable Thing that we should have so many Acts of Parliament, that give such particular Powers to the Mayor and Commonalty of LONDON; and scarce any Act of Parliament that relates to the Publick, but LONDON is mentioned, and taken Care of in it. Are not all these Declarations, that LONDON should not stand for ever? Would not any one have said else, Pray what do you put such Confidence in LONDON for? There is not such a fickle Thing upon the Earth as the Being of the Corporation of LONDON. If they lay but 6*d.* upon a Joint of Meat, they are gone, and there is not a Month in the Year but they forfeit their Being.

The Act for Administration hath a Proviso, that says, it shall not extend to LONDON: Why, does any Man think that this Law was not intended to as perpetual for LONDON, as for any other Parts of the Kingdom? They did not question but LONDON would be a Corporation as long as England was England. It would be a strange Thing in the Example of it, that the World should be taught by one Instance, that a Corporation can be ruined, when so many People put their Trusts in those Corporations, and so many vast Inheritances depend upon them. And I think the King and the Government, or those you call so, are more concerned to preserve LONDON, than all the Persons that are in it. I would not speak it in this, by Way of Argument for my Client, but I think I could maintain it in all Places; only I hope and believe I shall have no Need for it.

My Lord, all Innovations (as this must certainly be a very great one) are dangerous: This Frame of Government has lasted and been preserved for many hundreds of Years, and, I hope, will be so as long the World endures.

My Lord, I am sensible I need your Patience, but I have just done. Here is a Charge that has very little, indeed there is nothing in the Matter of it, but the Weight and Consequences are fitter to be meditated upon than spoken of. And therefore, for these Reasons, I do pray, that these Liberties may be adjudged to us, and we may be dismissed out of this Court.

Now, my Lord, if your Lordship pleases, I will give an Answer to Mr. Solicitor's Authorities.

Lord Chief Justice. I suppose you do intend to argue it again, and therefore there will not be so much Need of that now; besides, it is late, and I cannot stay.

Mr. Attorney-General. My Lord, I think it may be very proper to have one other Argument the first Week in Easter Term.

Lord Chief Justice. Take what Day you will, Mr. Attorney.

Mr. Attorney-General. Let it be the first Friday in the Term, if you please, my Lord.

Lord Chief Justice. Let it be so. Look you, Mr. Recorder, I perceive you do agree, that the Petition setting forth, That the King having prorogued the Parliament, and thereby that Common Justice had received Interruption; you have justified in your Plea (I took it always to be so) and now at the Bar, That the King, by the Prorogation, did interrupt the Justice of the Kingdom.

Mr. Recorder. No, no, my Lord; then I have Reason to speak again, to make myself rightly understood.

Lord Chief Justice. Why, look you, you do agree that the King had prorogued the Parliament, and thereby that publick Justice was interrupted; if that were so, by whose Means, and by

by whom did the publick Justice receive Interruption, if not by the King? I did take it to be so really, and that you had justified it.

Mr. Recorder. My Lord, I do agree, as we say, and as the King himself said, that these Acts were not passed, nor the Lords tried, and so Justice was not done; and I would ask your Lordship, or any other indifferent Person, whether Justice were done, or necessary Provision for these Things made, if those Bills was unpassed? If it were so, it is a natural Truth, that thereby the Trial, and Acquittal, or Condemnation of the Lords was interrupted, and so was the Security of the King's Person, and the Protestant Religion, the Bills not being passed. For the King calls upon the Parliament to pass them the next Session, therefore they were not passed in the former Session. This is by no Means a charging of the Interruption of Justice upon the King; every great Thing that is done by the King may have a prejudicial Influence, it may be, as to some Particulars; but to say that thereby Justice is interrupted, is not to charge any Blame upon the King; because, though it may be prejudicial in one Particular, yet it may be useful to the Publick. No doubt, if the King do prorogue the Parliament for never so great Ends, and necessary Causes, yet if it have but one Bill passing there, suppose it be a private Bill about Naturalization, or the like, if a Prorogation comes, it is naturally true that that is interrupted, but that is not laying a Blame upon the King.

Lord Chief Justice. May it be said that the publick Justice is interrupted, if a Bill for Naturalization, or the like, pass not before the Prorogation? I speak it for this only, that they that argue next may think upon it. The Petition does say that the publick Justice was interrupted; did they mean it was true? Or did they mean it was not true? If they did mean it was true, then you have done well to justify it, to say it was so, and the King had done amiss in proroguing the Parliament. Yet it seems, the Common-Council of LONDON (neither by Charter nor Prescription) had any Right to control the King, nor to be of the King's Council neither; and therefore it was a Matter purely dehors. If the Matter were not true, why do you put in your Petition? If it be true, justify it, if you can. But here is the Matter, I would have a good Answer given me to this Point: The Petition was to the King; if so be the Petition had been delivered to the King (as it may be it was) it was but one single Petition to the King; that might be well enough, if there had been no more in the Case, it is very possible it might not have been a Question at this Time: But pray, I would know of them that argue next, by what Law or Authority it was, and what was the Meaning of it, that that which did not require two Clerks to write, in order to its being presented to the King, must be printed? By what Law is it to be justified, the printing and publishing of this Petition, and sending it all over the Nation, whereby the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council of the City of LONDON, do let all the Nation know, that they do look upon the King as one that by the Prorogation of the Parliament had given the publick Justice of the Nation an Interruption? Pray by what Custom or Law is this published? In the Case de Libellis famosus (even in the Case of a Subject) it is adjudged, that if you print a Libel, though the Matter of it be true, you shall be punished for it: Now when it is argued again, I would desire some good Satisfaction in that, what Reason or Ground there was for printing or publishing this Petition, unless it be to that Intent which is set forth by Mr. Attorney-General in his Replication?

Now for the other Point, as you have ordered the Matter, you hold that a Corporation cannot be forfeited. Mr. Solicitor did take some Pains to argue, that there was no Statute that did protect you from a Forfeiture; he was not aware of what you did insist upon: You say, that by the Common Law Corporations cannot forfeit their Being; if so be they cannot, there is an End of the Question. But I pray you do you take it that a Corporation can commit any corporate Act, or no? For according to your Definition of the Matter, if nothing will serve but the Act of the Mayor, Aldermen, and all the Citizens, I believe I may safely say, and so will every one else, that never any corporate Act was done by the City of LONDON since it was a City.

We know on the other Side, and you, when it makes for your Turn, told us, that the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council could make By-Laws, and they were good, and binding, that is, when it lay in your Way. For you make a Prescription in your Plea, and so also you have said at the Bar, that they may make By-Laws to bind the Corporation. So that it seems when it is for your Conveniency, then the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council can do as much as all the Corporation; but when you come to be touched with something that you have done, in which you have gone beyond what you should have done, then the Citizens are 50,000 Men, and these are but 250 Persons, that have done these Things. Either the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council are the governing Part of the Corporation, or else they signify just nothing: If they be, then whatsoever they agree upon binds the Whole, and must be taken as a corporate Act; or otherwise you will bring it to this Pass, that the Corporation can do nothing at all. For if the whole Corporation be not bound by such an Act, then it is impossible for you ever to do an Act that shall be an Act of the Corporation; so that that will be pretty hard for you that are for the City, I think, to maintain. Then I have but one Word more (I give no Opinion, but only tell you what I would have you apply yourselves to) is the Trust of making By-Laws annexed to the Lord of the Market? Or is it annexed to the Lord Mayor? Or is it annexed to the Corporation? Surely the Power of making By-Laws is annexed to the Corporation, and I cannot see how, as Owners of the Markets, they have that Power. Now by your Distinction, where there is a Franchise that does necessarily depend upon another, there the Abuse of any Part does forfeit the whole Franchise. If then this Power be annexed to the Corporation, as sure I think it is (but I reserve myself till I have heard a farther Argument about it) then consider, whether or no, when they have abused that Power, in making this By-Law, that is knit to them as a Corporation, it does not affect the Being of a Corporation? For it is strange a Corporation should commit a Fault, and not be punished for it. I tell you, I deliver no Opinion in any Thing now, but these Things I would have you give me some Satisfaction in; and there are, indeed, several other Things that will require Consideration, I only hint these now.

The Second ARGUMENT was in Easter Term, on Friday, April the 27th.

Attorney-General. This Case between the King and the City must be acknowledged to be a Case of Importance, both as it refers to the general Government of the Kingdom, and that of the City in particular. As it concerns the Particular of the City, it doth not bode such dismal Consequences, as some Men endeavour to frighten their Neighbours with; as if it were hereby designed to demolish at once all their Liberties, and to lay Waste and open the City of

of LONDON, and, to reduce it to the Condition of a Country Village; than which nothing could be more maliciously suggested of so excellent a Prince, who hath given such large Demonstrations, not only of his general Care of all his People's Welfare, but of his more especial and particular Kindness to this City of LONDON. This Quo Warranto is not brought to destroy, but to reform and amend the Government of the City, by pruning off those Excesses and Exorbitances of Power, which some Men (contrary to their Duty; and the known Laws of the Land) have assumed to themselves, under Colour of their corporate Capacity, to the reviling of their Prince, the Oppression of their Fellow Subjects, and to the infinite Disquiet of their Fellow Citizens. I shall not recount the Mischiefs which those Exorbitances have of late wrought within the City, both as to its Peace and Profit, as likewise to the Obstruction of the free Course of Justice, that few Causes escaped the Crime of Maintenance from a divided Party. These Exorbitances committed by the City, casting so great an Influence over the whole Kingdom, make the King's Interposition in a Course of Law necessary, by gently laying his Hands upon them for their Cure. Herein the Politick Body of his Subjects resembles the natural, that the disaffected Members are best cured by laying on the King's Hands upon the Body. It hath been observed, that the City of LONDON was never better governed, nor flourished more, than after it came from under the King's Hands. The Reason given by Edw. 1. at his Parliament in 18 Edw. 1. of Denial of the Petitions of the Citizens of LONDON, to be restored to their former State, Scil. To have a Mayor and their antient Liberties, is this: Quia sunt in bono statu, & omnia bene & in pace, & nullum Commodum apparet, to change it then. The City was in as good Plight, both as to its Quiet and good Government, and Profits too, whilst in the Hands of the King, under the Common Law Government, as it would be in the Hands of the Corporation. Neither did the City suffer by being in the Hands of the Crown, as it was in the Reigns of Edw. 1. Edw. 2. Edw. 3. and Rich. 2. nor their antient Customs and Privileges destroyed; but they were thereby indeed restrained, and held within the modest Rules of Government, in Subordination to the general Government of the Kingdom: And therefore the Danger threatened by this Suit will not be so fatal to the Being, or Well-being of the City, as was suggested. Nay, I may with great Assurance say, That if the City receive the least Harm hereby, their, or their Managers obstinate and final Impenitance, must draw it upon themselves. For though the Conclusion of the Replication upon the Assignment of the Forfeiture be, That the Liberties be seized, and they ab isdem penitus excludantur, that is but the formal Conclusion upon Assignment of Forfeitures, it shews what the Judgment of the Law may be, if demanded by the King's Attorney, and necessitated by the City's Obstinacy, but doth not exclude the King's Grace: But the Importance of this Case, to the general Government of the Kingdom, is of another Nature; and the Consequences thereof, both to the King and his Subjects in general, appear now far greater than before, from the Manner and Grounds of the Defence made for the City at the Bar, viz. from the general Topicks of Corporations, That they are immortal and indissoluble; that no Treasons or Seditions against their Prince can be committed by the Members of a Corporation, even though those Members meet and act jointly in the same Manner and Method, as they do all other corporate Acts; no, though they should vote raising of Men against their Prince; and should give Authority (under their Common Seal) to levy Money for that Purpose; that Murders, Felonies, and Oppressions of their Fellow Subjects, either by unjust Imprisonments, or levying Money upon them; that none of those Crimes committed by the Majority of the Members of any Corporation, and authorized under the Common Seal, will affect the Corporation, or the Government thereof, in Point of Forfeiture: But a Corporation once constituted, is out of the Reach of the Common Law, to determine its Being, or its Governments, for any Causes whatsoever. If such Notions as these could be true, or should receive the least Countenance in a Court of Law, it would be unsafe, either for the King, or any of his Subjects, to live in or near a Corporation. And the Complaint made by the Commons in Parliament, 21 Edw. 3. that the Increase of Franchises tended to the Extinguishment and Overthrow of the Common Law, would soon be made good to the Purpose, when such great Bodies of Men, as the Corporations within England consist of, shall jointly have a Power allowed them, Quidlibet impune audendi, without being capable of Separation. The Distinction between the Politick Capacity and the Natural, to subject the one to Punishment, and not the other, was framed in the Jesuits School, to encourage Subjects to rebel against their Princes; but never yet so far improved the Distinction to apply it to Corporations, (which, if they had thought of it) would have been more efficacious to their Purpose, than as they applied it; Assurance of Impunity being the strongest Argument for a Commission of any Crime. The Case being of such Consequence, both to the King and his Subjects in general, I shall endeavour to examine it by the Rules and Precedents of Law, that I may sever what is meer Notional, from what is of Substance in it. I forbear to trouble the Court again with Opening the whole Pleadings, but shall take the Case as it hath been opened; wherein the general Question is, Whether by any Thing disclosed upon the Pleadings, it appear to the Court, that the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty of LONDON, have forfeited their Right of being and acting as a Body Politick, and subjected that Right to be seized into the King's Hands?

In stating of the Question, I forbear to style it a Franchise or Liberty, that I may not by anticipating preclude the Force of Mr. Recorder's Argument, That is no Liberty or Franchise; but may reserve the entire Consideration thereof to its proper Place. And therefore I shall call it a Right, for such most certainly it is; and it includes both Jus agendi, & Jus habendi. Before we can arrive at the main Question, certain preliminary Points have been moved and debated; some to the Form of the Suit and Pleadings, others relating to the Matters thereof.

To the Form Mr. Recorder took these Exceptions:

1. That the Information is not well laid, because not brought against particular Members by Name, which ought to be in all Cases, where the Right of Corporations is questioned or struck at.

2. That the Replication is worse, importing a Contradiction both to the Supposal of the Information, and to itself; because it denieth LONDON to be a Corporation, which the Information allowed, and admitted it to be by assigning Causes of Forfeiture.

3. That no Judgment can be given upon these Pleadings, either of Seizure or Ouster; not of Seizure, because the King cannot seize what he cannot cannot hold when seized : And the Body Politick, by which Name it is sued; cannot be ousted of itself.

The great Triumph Mr. Recorder erected upon the Strength of these Exceptions, as for an assured Victory already obtained, makes it necessary for me to give a more particular Answer to them than their Weight would otherwise require. For the Authorities cited by him argue very little to this Purpose : And indeed he hath been so unfortunate in quoting of Authorities, that how little soever they seem to make for him, as to the Point he produceth them, yet they flatly make against him in some other material Point. Not only by his Authorities, but his Objections themselves, to the Form of the Information, admit, that a Corporation is in its Nature separable by Judgment of Ouster against the particular Members by their Natural Names. The Opinion of my Lord Hales, in his Common-Place-Book, Quo Warranto, fol. 168. pl. 7. argues, he did not think of the Indissolubility of Corporations ; but it is no Opinion, that the only Way to impeach them was by a Suit against particular Persons ; for it is only a short Reference to the Cases of Cusack, and others of Ireland ; and Farrer, and others of the Virginia Company : Which Cases (as also that of Fisher, Helden, and others of the Borough of Hebmerley ; the Case of the Musicians, and the Bermudas Company ; and the other Cases cited by Mr. Recorder) do fully prove, That Corporations are Franchises, and may be questioned and impeached in the very Point of being Corporations, by Suits of Quo Warranto. And they do prove, that the Suit may be brought against some particular Members by Name : And against the rest of the Corporation by the general Words ; as, Et alios Liberos homines, & alios Burgenses, & alios de Fraternitate. And these general Words are material and operative ; for a Judgment thereupon binds the Whole. In the Case of Cusack against particular Members by Name, cum diversis aliis Civibus Civitat' Dublin', Judgment was given to out not only the particular Men, but alios Cives, & Successores suos. Upon the Writ of Error, it was assigned upon Record as one of the Causes of Error, that Judgment was given to out the Corporation of those Liberties ; yet no Parties by their Names of Incorporation ; but Judgment was affirmed. And the Quære that is made in Rolls, 2 Report, in the Case of Ferrars, and others of the Virginia Company, whether the Corporation were barred ? probably did arise from the Non-observance of the Records, where Judgment was given, as well against the alios Plantatores, as the particular Men made Parties. In both the Cases the Suit was as well against the rest of the Corporation, as the Particular Men : The Appearance by Attorney was entered for both, and the Plea, as well in the Name of the rest, as the particular Men, and Judgment against both. And the Judgment against the Virginia Company discharged that Company.

These, and the other Precedents produced by Mr. Recorder, do prove that the King's Suit may be brought against particular Persons by Name ; and against the Residue of the Corporation, by a general Name of & alios homines ; or against particular Persons, and also against the Corporation, by the very Name of Incorporation, as the Case of the Bermudas Company : But they do not argue the King hath not a further Election, either to bring his Suit for questioning the Corporation, by the proper Name of Incorporation, without naming of particular Persons, or by some other general Name, which sufficiently describes the Persons. I shall therefore apply these Answers to the Objection warranted by Precedents at Law ; that where-ever many Persons are jointly concerned in Charge or Discharge, and the King hath Cause of Suit against them, he may sue them, either by naming some particular Persons, with a general Reference to others ; or he may sue only by a common Name of Description, without admitting them to be a Corporation, especially where the general Name sufficiently describes the Persons who took this Corporation ; and this as well for Offences at Common Law, as against Statute Laws. Where Murder is committed in the Day-Time in a walled Town; tota Villata oneratur ; and so for Repair of Highways, or Nuisances in Highways, Repairs of Bridges, and for levying of the Hue-and-Cry, the King's Suit, either by Indictment or Information, hath been used both Ways, either naming some few particular Inhabitants, but then always with a general Reference & alios Inhabitantes, which is essential, otherwise both Indictment and Information would be naught ; or they are frequently only by the general Name of Inhabitants, within a Parish, Hundred, or County, as the Case is, without naming any particular Inhabitants at all ; to produce Instances of this Nature would be infinite, the Cases frequently falling out both at the Assizes, and in this Court. It is so in Cases of Quo Warranto, Rot. 15. 23. R. A Mich. 27 Eliz. Quo Warranto against the Inhabitants of Denbigh, for using several Liberties ; as to hold a Court of Pleas before the Bailiff, and choosing Co. Ent. 537; two Aldermen, &c. upon Plea and Demurrer, Judgment of Seizure is given, & quod Inhabitantes capiantur. A Quo Warranto brought by Garrard, against Homines & tenuentes Manerii de Kings Haurston in Com. Bedford, for claiming to be discharged of Knight's Wages, &c. Hil. 40 Eliz. R. 38. they pleaded the Manor to be an ancient Demesne ; and their Plea was confessed, and Judgment for the Tenants, without naming any particular Tenant. These general Names of Inhabitants and Tenants were sufficient Descriptions of the Persons whom the King sued ; and yet this Suit, by those Names, works no Conclusion that they were a Corporation. So Cives, Burgenses, & Communitas of such a Place, are general Names to describe the Inhabitants of the Place by, antecedent to their being a Corporation. The like of Mayor, Bailiff and Burgesses, Mayor and Citizens, and Pontenarii, where Burgesses is but an Addition of the Name of an Officer to the common Name of the Inhabitants, and properly describes the Persons whom the King sueth : By these Names of general Description they are capable to take this Right of Incorporation by the King's Grant. The Grant doth not enable them to take this Right ; and if by such general Names in the King's Grant they may take, there can no Reason be assigned why they may not be sued by the same Name they took, when they are questioned for this Right, be the Name of Corporation the same, or any other. Upon Pleadings in the Case of a common Person, Major & Cives shall not necessarily be intended a Corporation, without it be especially set forth.

Inter Werom & Neal, 20 Eliz. B. R. 1. Leonard 106, in Trespass and Battery, the Defendant pleads Salisbury an antient City, and a Custom there, that if any Affray be committed upon any Officer, upon Complaint to the Mayor, he, as a Justice of Peace, might send for the Offender, and justifies, under the Commandment of the Mayor, to bring the Plaintiff before him : And on Demurrer joined, and Judgment against the Defendant, one of the Grounds thereof was, that it did not appear that Salisbury was a Corporation, although it did appear that Salisbury was a City, and had a Mayor ; much less shall it conclude conclude the King, who is not so strictly bound in his Suits as common Persons are. It is true, that in the Case of Maidenhead there are three Judges against Montagu, of Opinion, that they need not set forth they are a Corporation, because they are not questioned for it by their Information, but supposed to be one, and questioned only for a Market, which they claimed by the King's Grant. In the same Case it is agreed, if they had been sued by any other general Name, but the very Name of Incorporation, they should not be intended a Corporation, according to the Case of the King against the Corporation of Denbigh. And whoever looks into the Record, must conclude Montagu's Opinion to outweigh that of the other three Judges. That Suit against them was by the Name of the Pontenarii; the Grants which they plead recite the Corporation of the Pontenarii to be dissolved, and the Grant is a new Grant to the Bridge-Masters; so that there was no Room for any Intendment that it was a Corporation before the Grant, against their own Plea; but that which seems in the Case to have preserved the Bridge-Masters, is, that the Judges inclined to an Opinion, that it being for Maintenance of a Bridge, which was of necessary and publick Use, the Grant itself might amount to a new Incorporation, which was a plain Waiver of the former Opinion; and if the three Judges had continued their Opinion, Judgment would have been entered for the Defendant; but no Judgment was ever given in that Case: So that the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty of LONDON being a general Name, sufficiently describing the Persons against whom the Suit is brought, may be used in the King's Suits without any Manner of Conclusion to the King. But in the next it is yet stronger, where the Articles of the Suit is for usurping the corporate Right, that prevents a Colour of Pretence for any Conclusion; herein this Case differs much from that of Maidenhead, as to the Form of the Information. And in such Cases, where the questioning the Right is a special Article, the Form of the Information is the same against all Corporations, whether by just Title, or altogether usurped, and by Wrong: The Suit supposeth them all to be by Wrong, and usurped; and whether by Right or Wrong, cannot be known till the Title, by Pleading be disclosed and discussed; and many Times not then neither, because the Liberty may be lost by Default of Pleading, upon Nihil dicit, or Misdemeanor, by pleading a wrong Title, or insufficiently pleading a right Title.

A Quo Warranto contra Præpositum & Burgenses burgii sive villæ de Card, for claiming to be a Corporation, and divers other Liberties: They plead, that they claim nothing but under the Bishop of Bath and Wells. It appears by the Plea, that they had no good Incorporation, and Judgment might have been entered against them: But the Bishop obtained a Grant from the King of a new Incorporation, which I have seen and perused, and thereupon a Noli prosequi was entered.

My last Answer is, That where the King proceeds for a Forfeiture upon Breach of Condition, the Right is not determined till Judgment of Seizure; for it is a mistaken Ground, that Forfeitures to all Purposes relate to the Time of the Forfeiture: For as to Copyhold Estates, Offices and Liberties in Case of the King, which may be determined by Breaches of Fact, they are not avoided till the Fact, which causes the Forfeiture, be found upon Record: So that the Suit is well grounded against them, by the Name of Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty; for they continue such till Seizure, and till then are a Corporation de facto.

2. I shall be short in my Answers to the Objections to the Replication, because they are in effect already answered by what I have said. The Traverse of the Title Prescription is pursuant to the Supposal of the Information, which supposeth they have usurped that very Liberty, and puts them upon shewing their Title by that Name; even put the Case they have a good Title by that Name, by this Patent, or by Act of Parliament, and they will waive it, and set up a Title by Prescription. And this was done in the Case of Canterbury before, and in the Case of New Malton; where, upon the very same Information as ours, against the Bailiff and Burgesses of New Malton in Com. Ebor. they pleaded their Title to their Corporation by Prescription, and Issue taken; and it proved fatal to them; for Verdict and Judgment went against them.

Trin. 6. Jac. 1.
Rot. 31.

Then for the Contrariety of the Replication to itself, none appears; for the Traversing of the Prescription by such Name, is no Denial; but it may be a Corporation by Prescription by another Name, or it may have that Name also by Grant. And farther Replication is, That assuming upon themselves to be a Corporation by that Name, they committed the several Acts which are assigned for Breaches. And that is the only Advantage the King hath by Informations of Quo Warranto, he may go upon the Title, and take Advantage of any Defect therein, or of the Pleading thereof, and may also assign Breaches for a Forfeiture, as is held in the Case of Maidenhead Bridge. In the Case of Canterbury Issue was taken upon some Liberties, Breaches assigned to others. The King may plead several Pleas, and take several Issues, and demur to Part, as shall be advised.

3. The Objection, That no Judgment can be given upon these Pleadings, ariseth principally upon two notable Errors, against plain and express Authorities of the Law.

(1.) That nothing can be seized into the King's Hand, which the King cannot hold and enjoy when it is there.

(2.) That every Judgment upon a Forfeiture ought to be a Judgment of Ouster.

These mistaken Grounds having been so often made Use of by Mr. Recorder in other Parts of his Argument, for supporting a Supposition, That a Corporation cannot be forfeited, I shall (to avoid Repetition) leave them to be considered when I come to his main Argument; and therefore shall proceed to consider the preliminary Points moved relating to the Matter, viz.

First, Whether the Right of Incorporation of being a Body Politick may be forfeited, or seized into the King's Hands.

Admitting it may be, then,

Secondly, Whether the Acts of Common-Council, or the Members assembled in Common-Council, which is all one, may work such Forfeiture, or Cause of Seizure.

First,

First, As to the first Point, I must confess the Weakness of my Understanding, that upon what hath been offer'd from Reason or Authorities of Law, I cannot apprehend it render'd in the least doubtful to a Court of Law, whatever it may be in a Common Hall, and Publick Assemblies of the City, where strong Lungs have a Preference before a rational Head, but that the Right of being a Body Politick may be forfeited, or suspended.

It was moved as a Doubt by Mr. Solicitor, but as a vulgar Error obtruded from publick Prints upon the unthinking and unwary Citizens, which possibly gave Encouragement to the many Exorbitances committed within the City, and particularly to those now laid to their Charge; and, I thought, sufficient had been spoken by Mr. Solicitor to have prevented the Growth of so mischievous an Error. But for that Mr. Recorder did ex animo espouse that Opinion, as if no Man were in his right Wits, that did not concur with him in Opinion, and as if there were something in it indeed, hath laid his main Stress upon it, and erected it as his Palladium to defend the City by. And probably this Image (for, if examined, I fear it will prove no other than a Work of Imagination) may make that Impression upon some Men, that, conceiving themselves to be Citizens and Aldermen of an invisible and an immortal City, incapable of Dissolution, they may dream of being an independent Commonwealth within a Kingdom, and unaccountable to the King, or his Laws. It is therefore made necessary for me (with your Leave) to mispend some of your Time in speaking again to this Point; which I shall do,

1. By briefly stating what this Right is, whence it ariseth, and for what Purpose it was framed or introduced.
2. I will examine the Reasons and Grounds produced by Mr. Recorder, why it cannot be forfeited.
3. Then I shall offer the Reasons and Authorities of Law, that it may and hath been forfeited and seized into the King's Hands.

In speaking to all which, I will not so far distrust the Memory of the Court as to repeat what hath been so well urged by Mr. Solicitor from Reason and Authorities, but shall endeavour to avoid it what I can.

1. As to the first Thing proposed: This Right of a Corporation, aggregate of many (to which I shall confine my Discourses, being the only Thing under Consideration) is a Right granted to many natural Persons to be, have, enjoy, and act as one Body and Person. It confers jus Personæ, & Personam efficit, which our Law-Books express by the Name of Persona Politica, and Corpus Politicum, and, as such, is capable of all Civil Rights, both habendi & agendi. The Instruments of Creation of this Right, and the Claims thereof upon Pleadings, do best declare the Nature of it, viz. Quod homines Inhabitantes, Civés, Burghenses, or such other general Name, describing the Persons who are to take; sint unum Corpus Corporatum re, facto, & nomine. And when Prescription is made for a Body Politick, &c. Quod Homines & Civés, vel Homines & Burghenses sunt; & a tempore cujus, &c. fuerunt unum Corpus Corporatum re & facto per nomen--- So that it is something more than Notion, or meer Name; Corpus Corporatum fully expresseth it, a Body made up of several visible Bodies in unum collecta; & vinculo juris unita. And a Corporation is every whit as visible a Body as an Army: For though the Commission or Authority be not seen by every one, yet the Body, united by that Authority, is seen by all but the Blind: And if the King or the Law demand the Authority, it must be produced and shewn, and is as visible in the Eye of the Law as any other Right whatsoever, whereof natural Persons are capable. It seems strange, and almost beyond all Excuse, that the Recorder of LONDON should never have seen that great Body Politick assembled, unless he will excuse himself, that he is the Mouth of the City, and not the Eyes. Sir James Bage's Case, Co. 11 b. allows it to be such a Right, that every Member, separately consider'd, hath a Freehold therein; and all, jointly consider'd, have an Inheritance which may go in Succession. It is the same Right which the Civilians stile Collegium, or Universitas, and so stiled in Bracton's Time; sicil. Si Rex concesserit alicui Universitati, sicut Civibus vel Burghensibus.

Natural Persons, as such, are capable of taking and holding this Right. It is neither taken nor held in their Politick Capacity, but their Natural; for many Men, as Men, are capable of Union, which is evident by the Charters of Creation, and the Pleadings in all such Cases; it is Homines & Burghenses, Homines & Civés; who are constituted unum Corpus Corporatum. And as the Natural Persons are an essential Part constituting the Body Politick, so all the Operations and Exercise of this Right are only performed by the Natural Persons, 24 Ed. 4. fol. 14. That Book, and other Authorities, are express in the Point; though in a Case so evident, there need no Authority. And therefore when the Question is of Nonuser, or Abuser of Franchises by a Corporation, it must of Necessity be intended for some Acts or Negligence of the Natural Persons, or those Officers that are employed by them. And the Question will rest only upon this, What Acts, or what Omissions of the Natural Persons, will affect this Right, wherein all the Members of the Body have an Interest?

This Right is meerly of human Institution; and therefore as to its Birth, Form, Extent, or Limits, is directed and supported by the municipal Laws of each Country, and therefore for that Reason is stiled by our Books Political. By the Constitution of our Laws, this Right, as all Jurisdictions and Franchises, is lodged in the Crown, and thence only is derived. Bracton upon the Question, Quis concedere possit libertates, & quibus, & qualiter transferuntur? thus resolves it: Dominus Rex habet omnia Jura in manu sua; quæ ad Coronam & Regalem pertinent potestatem, & Regni gubernaculum; habet etiam Jusitiam & Judicium; quæ sunt Jurisdictiones; habet etiam ea quæ ad pacem pertinent. Ea quæ dicuntur Privilegia; licet pertineant ad Coronam, possunt ad privatas Personas transferri, sed de gratia ipsius Regis speciali. And then sheweth, that such Grantees as Usufructuaries may enjoy them, donec amiserint per abusum vel non usum.

The whole Current of our Books to this Day concur with this antient Author in this Point, That none can make a Corporation but the King; such Power cannot be prescribed for, it is so inherent to the Crown. The principal Case was of the Whitelawes in LONDON, who prescribed; That by the Custom of LONDON, the Men of any Art or Mystery might act as a Guild or Fraternity; and were capable of a Devise; and plead their Custom confirmed by several Charters; and, no doubt, would have pleaded some of the Acts of Parliament now pleaded, if the learned Counsel had then thought there had been any thing of Force in them. Judgment was given against them; for that none had such Power but the King. In that Case it appears, that the Abbot and Prior of Westminster were one entire Corpora-

Corporation, and divided by the King, and, after the Severance, a Quare impedit maintained by the Prior against the Abbot.

Some Corporations are by the King alone, as Dean and Chapter, Mayor and Commonalty; some by the Pope alone; some mixt, by the King, for their Temporal Possessions; by the Pope, for their Spiritualities. Whether the King grant them by Charter out of Parliament, or in Parliament, or by Act of Parliament, the King is still the Donor, and the Fountain and Spring from which this and all other Liberties flow. A Title by Prescription always supposeth a Grant in or out of Parliament, and is allowed by Law for supporting long Possessions, grounded upon ancient Grants before Time out of Memory; but by what Title soever these, or any other Rights are derived down, whether Grant or Prescription, their Natures remain the same, and they are governed by the same Rules of Law, and are equally subject to the like Civil Accidents, the one as well as the other.

The last Thing inquirable into this Head is, To what End and Purpose such Corporations were elected, and allowed by the Policy of our Laws.

This general Intent and End of all Civil Incorporations is in order to better Government. Government relates principally either to Persons or Things: That which relates principally to Persons may be properly called General Government; because, properly speaking, Persons only are the Subjects of Government. That which relates to Things is called Special Government, because limited to the Managery of particular Things, as Trade, Charity, and such like; for the Government whereof, several Companies and Corporations for Trade were erected, and several Hospitals and Houses for Charities. Of this Nature are the Trinity-Houses for regulating Navigation; and so the College of Physicians, the Corporation of Parish-Clerks, and a Multitude of other Special Corporations in England. The only End of erecting these Special Corporations was, for the better Order and Government of the several Matters specially committed to their Care.

The Corporations for General Government only, are those of Cities and Towns, Mayor and Citizens, Mayor and Burgesses, Mayor and Commonalty, and such like. The Corporations, as they are for the Government of Men only, having nothing specially committed to their Care upon the Incorporation, so they are erected for no other End or Purpose than Government. And if either at the Time of the Incorporation, which very few are, or afterwards, they have any Special Matter committed to their Care, it is purely collateral to the Ends and Design of erecting these sort of Incorporations within Cities and Towns. This appears by the Charters of Creation both antient and modern; the Form is much the same, which is after this Manner: Nos volentes, quod de cetero imperpetuum in eadem Civitate, Burgo, aut Villa [as the Case is] Libertat' & Precinct' ejusdem habeatur unus, certus & indubitatus modus pro custodia pacis nostrae, ac pro bono regimine & gubernatione Civitatis, Burgi, & Ville, ac Populi ibidem inhabitantium, & aliorum illic confluentium; & quod Civitas, Burgus, aut Villa, pax, concordia, & quiete sint, ad formidinem & terrorem malorum delinquentium, & in praeium bonorum; ac etiam ut pax, nostra ceteraque facta justitia & bono regimine ibidem melius custodiri valeant & possint. These are the Grounds upon which Corporations are erected.

The Limits and Extents of their Corporations, and Jurisdiction, are limited by their Charters; and there is a plain Difference made in many Charters between this and other Liberties, as to the End of granting, this being erected only pro bono regimine, being a Burden, and chargeable in the Execution of that publick Trust. Many other Liberties and Privileges, both of Ease and Profit, are granted to them pro meliore sustentatione of those Charges, which the Government would necessarily require. Since the Statute of Mortmain they cannot purchase without a special Non obstante: They cannot engross Trade by excluding Foreigners, Norris and Stap's Case, Hob. 211. So that no private Benefit can be assigned to be the End of erecting them. The Power of making By-Laws, which is incident to a Corporation, is only for better Government; and by that Rule they must be judged:

Having consider'd the Nature of a Body Politick aggregate, whence it flows, and for what Purpose it was erected,

2. I proceed to examine the Grounds and Reasons produced; why it cannot be forfeited, or seized into the King's Hands.

Many Things were produced by Mr. Recorder to make good his Assertion, more ad captandum populum, than to persuade a Court of Law. I will not mispend your Time in perusing the jocular Part of the Argument, which may make the Citizens smile one Way, and the Learned in the Law another Way; but I shall collect together what seems to have any Force of Argument. The Grounds the Argument went upon seem to be these:

- (1) That a Corporation is no Liberty or Franchise, but a meer Capacity of suing, and being sued.
- (2) That a Corporation, in its Nature, is not capable of being forfeited or dissolved.
- (3) That it cannot be surrender'd.
- (4) That the Forfeiting or Dissolving of any Corporation was never put in Practice, nor so much as ever came within the Compass of any Man's Imagination.

(1) As to the first, A Corporation is no Liberty, but a Capacity. Now it is proved, even just as all the rest will appear to be proved, by strong Averments, and Quotations of Books that prove no such Thing. The Authorities were 1 Inst. 250. Bro. Title Corporation and Capacities. In the Institutes the Words are, A Body Politick is a Body to take in Succession, framed as to that Capacity by Policy. The Authority is express against him, that a Body or Person Politick hath a Capacity to take in Succession, and is not a meer Capacity; and the other Words of the same Author are, And made into a Body and Capacity to take and grant: So that this Authority fails; it neither proves it no Liberty, nor to be a meer Capacity.

That of Bro. Tit. Corporation, proves less; for Capacity is of larger Signification, and incident to Natural Persons, as well as Corporate Persons; and such Instances are set down under that Title of Alienees, &c. and it is a great Imputation to the Memory of so learned a Person, that he should think that Corporations and Capacities were synonymous, or that he should tautologize in a Title in an Abridgement.

The Definition Mr. Recorder gives of a Corporation, that it is a Capacity of suing and being sued, which served him for many a Jest in his Discourse, is no better than to define a Man to be Animal bipes; or, which is nearer, a meer Capacity of walking with two Feet. Although the Authorities fail, and prove not the Matter, yet it is of that Importance to the Cause, that a Corporation be no Liberty, that something must be thought upon to make it out. For if it be admitted to be a Liberty, the Authorities will be too strong, that every Liberty and Franchise carries with it a Condition, that it be used, and well used, the Breach of which will amount to a Forfeiture. And therefore, when nothing else can be found to prove it no Liberty, Recourse must be had to the negative Argument, backed with strong Averments, that it was never so stiled in any Authority of Law; except in one Case, in the Town of Helmshy, Co. Ent. Quo Warranto, and Mr. Noy's Opinion in Hayward and Fulcher's Case, grounded only upon the Case of Helmshy. But one Swallow makes no Spring; and it was well Mr. Recorder spied it in that Case, otherwise the Averment had been without Exception.

If the Point had rested upon that Precedent, and Mr. Noy's Opinion, it would have better Authorities for it, than any could be produced against it. But there are Multitudes of Authorities, whereby Corporations are not only called, but appear to be Liberties and Franchises; several have been cited by Mr. Recorder, but not seen, or overlook'd by him.

In the Case of Cusack and others, in all the Parts of the Record it is stiled a Franchise or Liberty; and particularly in the Continuance, Curia advisare vult, and Time taken to advise upon it as a Liberty. So in the Case of Farrer, and others of the Virginia Company, throughout the Record stiled a Liberty and Franchise, even in the Judgment itself. Mr. Noy knew of these Cases, and many more before this Time; but knew it to be the Guise of Learned Men, in clear Cases, and of daily Experience, not to repeat many Authorities.

The Records of the Cases cited by Mr. Recorder, of the Borough of Hebmerly, the Case of the Musicians, and Bermudas Company, &c. do all call it a Franchise or Liberty. The Cases I have already cited do so too; against the Bailiff and Burgefs of New Malton; against the Mayor and Commonalty of Canterbury; against the Portreeve and Burgefs of Chard. Many more I have perused, but I conceive it too much to trouble the Court with them at present. It is certainly true in all the Records of Quo Warranto, wherever there is a special Article against a Corporation for being a Body Politick, it is always impeached by the Name of a Franchise and Liberty; and Multitudes there are of that Nature. And in so clear a Case I omit to mention the Writs of Non omittas, for entering into Corporations, and the Returns of their Bailiffs; which make out evidently, that Corporations are Franchises, and the Limits of the Corporation, and Limits of the Franchises are all one.

(2) The next Argument is drawn from the Nature and Qualities of Bodies Politick, That they are invisible, immortal, impeccable, and therefore impatible, with a large Jargon of non ens, & ens rationis. Certainly this Argument was fetch'd from the Clouds at the City's Charge; and it cost them dear: For I cannot believe it could enter into the Reason of any Man, much less of learned Men, that a Body framed by the Policy of Man can be immortal; or that a Body, compacted of many bulky visible Bodies, can be invisible; or a Body, whose very Parts and Members are mortal, is in its own Nature immortal. Mr. Recorder admits, that the Death of all ends the Corporation; and therefore if any learned Men have used such hyperbolical Expressions, most certainly they never intended the Citizens of LONDON, or other populous Town or City within England, of whom the Question is, but of some Corporation in Eutopia, where the Citizens neither eat, drink, nor die, or at least of some Corporation, that never had other Existence but in the Brain.

The Authorities cited were Co. 1 Inst. 9. Bulstrode. 233. 21 Edw. 4. 13. and many others; and many more might have been cited, and to as much Purpose; as Co. 10. fol. 32. Sutton's Hospital brings in a whole Regiment of Authorities speaking to the same Purpose. I do not remember that Book was cited, and there was Reason for it; for, in Conclusion, it spoils the Argument, viz. that these Expressions are of Corporations in Abstracts, not coupled with particular Men of this or that Town; where the Men act all, and the Corporation doth nothing otherwise than what the Men do. If it be consider'd abstracted from particular Men, it is but a bare Right, and coupled in the Notion of it with Men in general, who are the proper Subjects of Government, and remains only in Notion, and may well enough sustain these Epithets which have been given it, as all other Rights and Notions may; but whilst it remains such, it can no more sue or be sued, than commit Treasons, Felonies, Riots, or other Trespases; either against the Government or particular Men; neither hath it any Existence in re & facto, but in the Brain.

The Case, in deed, that is cited 1 Inst. 9. is applicable to any particular Corporation; the Case is thus put: If a Man gives Lands to the Mayor and Commonalty, or other Body aggregate, consisting of many capable Persons, without naming Successors, the Law construe it a Fee Simple, because in Judgment of Law they never die. If this be any Authority, it is from the Immortality of many Persons capable; for they are the Persons who are said in Judgment of Law not to die. Where my Lord Coke's Sense is plain, that these natural Persons, though capable to take in their natural Capacities jointly, which the Law would adjudge an Estate for Lives; yet the Grant being made to them by their Corporate Name; they take in that Capacity, and the Grant is not determinable upon their Death, but shall continue with the Corporation whilst it continueth. That my Lord Coke never dreamt of Immortality of a Body Politick, fully appears in his Writings, 1 Inst. 13. where he puts the Case insisted on by Mr. Recorder, of a Dissolution by Death of Abbot and Monk. He after puts the Case generally of other Corporations, as Dean and Chapter, Mayor and Commonalty: If Lands be given to them, and the Corporation be dissolved, the Lands shall escheat to the Donors, upon a Condition in Law: In the first Grant, if the Law raise such Condition upon Grant of Lands, much rather doth it upon the Grant of the Incorporation, where the Intent of the Donor is as special, and upon a greater Trust. That my Lord Coke understood it of other Dissolutions than by Death only, he refers in the Margin to the Case of the Knights Templers, which was not dissolved by the Death of the Members. That Corporations were dissolved many Years before the Statute De terris Templariorum, 17 Ed. 2. the Statute recites, the Corporation was dissolved, and that the King and several other Lords had enter'd upon all their Lands and Escheats: The Judgment of the Parliament was, they were well dissolved, and the Lords well intitled by Escheat, as the Law stood; and therefore by Act settles them upon the Hospitallers. This Corporation was dissolved by the Pope, and upon the Ground of Non user. The End of their Corporation was for guiding Christian Pilgrims to the Holy Land and Jerusalem, which the Saracens and Turks having over-run, and possessed themselves thereof, the Members of the Order never came there, but disposed of themselves in several Parts of Christendom. The Order was erected by Pope Honorius, 21 H. 1. Anno 1120. and was dissolved by Clemens Quintus, 4 Ed. 2. Ann. 1311. thirteen Years before the Statute; and their Spiritua ritual Corporation, which was the Principal, being dissolved, the Power of holding Lands, conferred by Temporal Princes, determined, 2 Inst. 431. & H. 432.

1 Inst. fol. 102. the Case is put, where the Tenant held by Homage Ancestral of a Body Politick dissolved; the Homage is gone, though a new Corporation be founded by the same Name. That my Lord Coke never entertained such an Opinion, appears by his Argument in the Case of the Dean and Chapter of Norwich, when Attorney-General. His Mistress's Heart was much upon that Case to preserve their Lands; and it was well argued by Mr. Attorney; and no doubt well studied; but this Topick, from the Indissolubility of Corporations, never came into his Head. Besides the Statutes of Confirmation, he insisted upon these Things: First, That the Words of the Surrender were not sufficient to surrender the Corporation. Secondly, That they were the Bishop's Counsel, and in some sort one Corporation with him. Thirdly, From the great Mischiefs which would ensue. This new Invention alone would have done the Business, if he had been so fortunate as to have found it out; or if any of the Judges had thought of it, they would not have gone about it so long, as at length to ground their Resolutions only upon the Points which did arise upon the Statutes. Fitzherbert is of the same Opinion, That if an Abbey be dissolved, a Presentation shall escheat to the Lord of whom it was held.

(3) The next Argument produced by Mr. Recorder was, That a Corporation could not be surrendered; upon which Head I will not entertain your Time, for these Reasons: First, Because it was not to the Question, and that Mr. Recorder admits, that many Things may be forfeited, which cannot be surrendered. Secondly, Because the Point may come judicially into Debate, some Dislike having been taken to Surrenders lately made; and I choose to refer myself to that Question which comes properly in Judgment. Thirdly, But my last and principal Reason is, that he hath produced no Authority of Law to make good his Assertion.

The Authorities of the Cases of the Dean and Chapter of Norwich, Mich. 40. & 41 Eliz. and Hayward and Fulcher's Case, Hil. 3. Car. 1. which both relate to the same Surrender, and are in Effect the same Case, only in the latter Case the Surrender is disclosed to the Court to be larger than did appear in the former Case; and though many Books are cited, yet they all contain but these two Cases, which make strongly against him. For throughout these Cases, both in stating the Question, Arguments of Counsel, and Resolutions of the Judges, it is plainly admitted that a Corporation might be surrendered: Otherwise the stating of the Question in the first Case, upon the Effect of the Words in the Surrender, of all their Possessions and Cathedral Church, Whether sufficient to surrender the Corporation? and the Arguments thereupon, and the Resolution of the Judges was needless; but it was plainly admitted, that a Corporation may be dissolved; and it was the Common Law Point they did resolve, that they were all idle and illusory. And so in the second Case, Whether the Dean and Chapter, without the Bishop, could surrender the Corporation? it is all along admitted, both by the Counsel upon the Grounds they went upon, and by the Judges in their Resolutions, that it might be surrendered, concurrentibus his que in jure requiruntur; and therefore, by the Resolution of the Judges, it could not be done without the Bishop, because he had an Interest in them. And when Whitlock in his Argument had Recourse to a more general Reason, which was, That the Surrender could not be good, because then they should be Felo se se, which is against Nature; Jones takes him up, and flatly denies it, and saith, That a Dean and Chapter might dissolve themselves by Cesser; or if all die, or resign, the Corporation is dissolved; but concurred with him, that the Surrender did not dissolve it, because the Bishop was no Party, nor consenting; and in the End Whitlock concludes his Argument, that it could not be done without the Bishop. And the Saying of Whitlock in that Case, That the King may grant, but not dissolve a Corporation, is certainly true in the same Sense as it is of Lands, and all other Rights whatsoever; the King may grant, but cannot resume without Cause; yet all may be forfeited upon due Cause, and by Judgment of Law returned to the King.

(4) The last Topick of Argument, by which Mr. Recorder concluded a Corporation cannot be forfeited, is a Non user; because never any Corporation was forfeited, nor did it ever enter into any Man's Imagination, that it could be forfeited. This, indeed, doth put the Proof upon me; and Mr. Solicitor hath already made it out with great Learning, by several Instances of Corporations seized into the King's Hands for Forfeitures committed by them; some by Judgments, others by Inquisitions finding those Forfeitures. But Mr. Recorder, with one Blast, hath blown them all away, that they are but meer Sounds, and look big with Seizure, and seizing of Liberties into the King's Hands; but, when strictly examin'd, they are of no Substance; and the Fruit of all the Examination ends in a Difference he hath found out between Seizures and Forfeitures; much such another Difference as was that between a Liberty and a Capacity, upon which the whole Weight of the Argument turned, That a Corporation was no Liberty, but a Capacity. And if so little a Distinction be enough to answer the Weight of Mr. Solicitor's Arguments, it will be in vain for me to attempt further Instances, unless I can reconcile this little Difference, and shew it to be as ineffectual as that between a Liberty and a Capacity was before; and therefore I crave Leave, in the first Place, to examine this short Answer to so many and so great Authorities.

It is objected, That those are Precedents of Seizures, but not of Forfeitures; for Seizures, in Case of the King's Suits, and of the Bishop's Temporalities, are of the same Nature as Seizures upon the Grand Cape's and Distingas in Suits between Party and Party, only to answer Issues. And when Liberties of Towns are mention'd to be seized, the Towns only are seized, and not the Corporation, which remains in statu quo; but where a Forfeiture is, there must be Judgment of Ouster. Every Sentence almost of this Answer is contrary to all the Books and Records of Law that I know of. The Authorities cited to prove the Differences are Nat. Brev. fol. 161, 162. which saith, Inquire into the Causes of Seizures, and Causes of Forfeiture; but what these Causes are, which may be Causes of one, and not of the other, are not disclosed. But my Lord Coke, in the Countess of Shrewsbury's Case, determines the Difference, and makes them all one. There are, saith he, three Causes of Forfeiture or Seizure of Offices for Matter of Fact, Abuser, Non user, and Refuser. He makes the Causes of both to be the same; Forfeiture is but the Fact upon which the Seizure is grounded, where the Subject hath Title of Entry for a Forfeiture, in the Causes of the Entry, different from the Causes of the Forfeiture. So in the King's Case, where Liberties are seized for an Abuser, whether it be by Judgment, or upon an Inquisition, or Presentment, finding the Abuse; can it be a Question with any learned Man, but the Seizure is for the Forfeiture? The King cannot seize without Cause, and the Cause must be some Fact in Breach of the Condition in Law annexed to the Liberty. The other Authority produced is of the Quo Warranto against Roger Mortimer, cited 2 Ed. 3. 29. in Strata Marcella, Co. 9. fol. 28. where, upon Denial of Aid, and the Defendants not answering over, Judgment was given of Fore-judger of the Liberty, and Error brought; where Scroop saith, That in some Cases Franchise shall be put into the King's Hands, in some Cases seized in the Right of the King until Fine; and in some Cases it shall be fore-judged, which holds for ever. I do admit this Case to be good Law, but it makes nothing to the Purpose to prove the Difference; or that Seizures by the King for Misusers are not for Forfeitures, or that Judgment of Ouster are only Evidence of Forfeitures, or to prove a Seizure in the King's Suit, is of the same Nature as the Grand Cape, or Distringas, upon Mean Process in the Suits of common Persons. And because neither the Book Cases, nor Mr. Recorder have given any Light into the Cases, which may vary the Judgment in a Quo Warranto, I will endeavour to state the Matter, how it stands upon Seizures of Liberties.

(1.) Liberties may be seized into the King's Hands by Award of the Court, which in that Book is styled, Put into the King's Hands; and that in two Cases principally:

Where the Defendants are summoned to appear at the King's Suit, and make Defaults.

Where a Contempt appears upon Record, in returning or executing the King's Process.

I shall give Instances of each. For the latter, 2 Ed. 4. fol. 5. in Case of Bailiffs, upon Error, the Bailiff appeared, and prayed a Day to bring in the Record; they failed at the Day. The better Opinion is, their Franchise shall be re-seized. And Vavasor there saith, If a Lord of a Franchise do any Trespas or Contempt to the King's Court, it is Cause in the same Court to re-seize the Franchise. For the former, 15 Ed. 4. 6. in Quo Warranto, if the Defendant appear not at the Day, the Liberties shall be seized; and if he do not replevin them, as in Eyre, they shall be absolutely forfeited; for the Statute of Quo Warranto directs the King's Courts to proceed in Quo Warranto as in the Eyre.

Trin. 16. Jac. 1. Briggs's Case, in Quo Warranto, the Defendant appeared not at the Day; the Liberties were seized, Roll. Rep. 2 Part, fol. 46.

Trin. 17 Jac. 1 Roll. 2. Part. 92. Quo Warranto against the Mayor and Burgeesses of Wygmore in Com. Lancast. upon Default made at the Day, it was agreed by the Court, That if they shewed not good Cause to excuse their Default, their Liberties should be seized into the King's Hands: This being in the Case of a Corporation, the Capias in manus should be of the Politick Person which made the Default. Where Seizure is by Award of the Court for a Contempt in Court, the Court may admit the Parties to affix and order Restitution; so where by Award of the Court, on Default of Appearance at the King's Suit a Seizure is made, which is in Nature of a Distress, to bring in the Party, by putting him out of the Possession of the Liberty, till he appear and replevy: The Court (if the Defendant's come in Time, and pray it) may deliver them the Possession upon Replevin; and this by the new Statute de Quo Warranto, 30 Edw. 1. Before that Statute the general Writ of Summons to answer to Liberties, as also the particular Writs of Summons upon the King's special Suits, superseded by the Use of any Liberty till the Justices met on the Day of Return. Which Mischief was remedied by that Statute; if they appeared not that Day, the Liberties were to be seized in Nature of Distress, to enforce their Appearance. And upon Appearance, if they demand to replevy them, the Judges might deliver back Possession of the Liberties, upon Security to prosecute the Claim, and answer the main Profits, if any, in Case Judgment were against them; much in the same Manner as the Practice is in the Court of Exchequer upon all Seizures to this Day, by the Seizures the King is in Possession: But if the Party appear and plead, and put in Security, he is, by Rule of Court, permitted to receive the Profits. But the Statute not limiting any Time for his Appearance, or to reply, that remained as it did before upon the Statute of Quo Warranto, 18 E. 1. which refers to the Practice in Eyre: So that if the Party did not replevin in Time, the former Seizure would amount to a Seizure after Judgment by Default, which is final.

(2.) Again, Liberties are seized into the King's Hands by Judgment of Court in the King's Suits, whether the Judgment be by Default, or Nihil dicit; upon Demurrer or Issue tried, this Judgment is final, and the Court cannot admit to a Fine, or award Restitution, unless upon Error brought. This Court is to set the Fine upon the Capiatur, but not the Fine for Redemption, that is purely in the King's Breast, & ex gratia Regis. There is no such formal Judgment of Seizure until Fine, but this upon Judgment and another Seizure upon Inquisition, or Presentment; which I shall mention, are the Seizures in the King's Right, represented in Mortimer's Case, but frequently entered quousque Dominus Rex aliud preceperit. What was intended by a Judgment of Ouster in that Book; and in what Cases by the Course of the King's Courts it ought to be, will best appear by antient Rule, taken and agreed by the Judges in Edward the Fourth's Time, before they were promiscuously used. The Rule is thus: Where it clearly appears to the Court, that when a Liberty is usurped by Wrong, and upon no Title, either by the King's Grant, or otherwise, there Judgment only of Ouster shall be entered: But where it appears, that the King or his Ancestors have once granted a Liberty, and the Liberty be misused, Judgment of Seizure into the King's Hands shall be given. These Rules carry their own Light with them: That which came out of the King's Hands, as Bracton useth the Words, is properly returned there again by Seizure, or (as our antient Books phrase it) by Re-seizure. But that which never came thence, but meerly usurped upon him, shall be vacated, and by Judgment of Law declared null and void.

There is another Case, which is there likewise resolved, and that is, where it is doubtful to the Court whether the Liberty commenced by Grant, or by Wrong; that for the Uncertainty the best and safest Course is, that Judgment be given of Seizure. This last Case was the Case in that Book, the Question arising upon a Default; What Judgment should be given? And by that Rule Judgment was given of Seizure, not of Ouster. And agreeable to these Rules, all the Judgments which I have met with have been given; and this Course hath been found most beneficial to the Subject, who, though by Forfeiture, Mispleading, or Default, he may lose his Liberty, may have Recourse to the King's Mercy for Restitution.

In the Case of the Bailiffs and Aldermen of Mich. 20. Jac. New Radnor, which was by Default, Judgment 1. Rot. 17. of Seizure was only given.

In the Case of New Malton, though the Issue, that the Corporation was by Prescription, was Rot. 3. tried against them; yet having long acted as a Corporation Corporation; they might have mispleaded their Title, as the City of LONDON hath done, in claiming that by Prescription which commenced by Grant within Time of Memory, Judgment only of Seizure was given; and not of Ouster. In all Cases of Disclaimer, Judgment only of Ouster shall be given; upon the same Rule Judgment only of Ouster was given in the Case of Staverton, reported in Yelverton and Crook: But the Entry there is mistaken; for it is entered Mich. 8. Jac. 1. Rot. 2. for it appeared to the Court, that it was a meer Usurpation without Title, for that no such Court as he claimed, could be gained by Prescription, nor indeed by Grant, through the Meanness of his Estate. Mr. Recorder insisted upon this Judgment, as a Measure for all Judgments upon Forfeitures of Liberties, but plainly mistook the Reason of it. Upon the Reason of these Rules, in such Cases were Grants do appear, but either the Parties are not capable of taking, or the Liberty granted, not allowable by Law, the Course hath been to enter a mixed Judgment both of Seizure and of Ouster.

In the Case of the Inhabitants of Denbigh, who claimed by Charter several Liberties; but it appearing they had no Capacity to take, yet the Usurpation being by Colour of Letters Patents, the Judgment was mixed both of Seizure and Ouster; for there was no Possibility of Restitution, because they were not capable.

Paſch. 17 Jac.
1. Rot. 2.

And in the Case of Cusack it appearing to the Court, that the Liberties granted did not pass, nor could be lawfully used; yet the Usurpation being by Colour of a Grant, Judgment of Seizure was given, as well as Ouster in these Cases, as likewise in Sir George Reynell's Case; and by Multitudes of Cases of Offices seized, it appears how vain the Objection was, that the King cannot seize a Corporation, because he cannot have it, or be the Mayor and Commonalty; for not only what the King may have or hold, but what he may dispose of, are in Judgment of Law, said to be in his Hands; and it is the proper Office of the Hand disponere, as well as tenere. And what but colourably came out of the Crown, though it cannot subsist by Law in a Subject, shall be seized, as in Cusack's Case.

(3.) In the last Place, there are other Seizures, which are by Process by Commission of Inquiry upon Inquisition found, or upon Presentment; and such are always for Forfeitures, upon Faults found in Breach of Conditions annexed by Law. That the King is in Possession of all incorporeal Rights by such Seizures upon Inquisition, appears by the Resolution in Sir George Reynell's Case. In these Cases of Seizures for Forfeitures, no Court, or the Lord of the Liberty, whether Body Politick, or Natural, can admit to a Fine, and thereupon make Restitution; neither is there any other Way by Law to take off the King's Hands, but by direct Traverse of the Fact, if the Fact found be not true; or by Demurrer, if the Fact found be not in Law sufficient Cause of Forfeiture. The Facts upon which such Seizures have been made, have been generally so notorious, and the Consequence of Law upon them, taken to be so evident, that I never met with any such Inquisition ever traversed or demurred to; but the Application for Restitution hath still been to the King's Grace. And these Inquisitions have been taken either ex officio by the Sheriff, or by special Commissions. The Sheriff by his general Commission is intrusted with the Preservation of the whole County, and the publick Peace thereof.

And though in the Grant of Corporations and other Liberties, there be special Clauses exclusive, Ita quod, &c. Yet these Clauses, as the Grants themselves have another Ita quod annexed to them by Law, that they preserve good Government, and do not abuse the Franchise, by committing or permitting Riots and great Disorders in Breach of the publick Peace; which if they do, is by Law a Non omittas to the Sheriff to enquire and take Care of the publick Peace within the Liberty.

The Town of Hereford was seized into the King's Hands by the Sheriff of the County, for holding of a Market contrary to the King's Prohibition. Upon Certificate thereof into Chancery, the King's Writ issues to the Sheriff approving thereof, and commanding him to keep it in the King's Hands, Donec Dominus Rex aliud inde precepit. Rot. Clauso 15 H. 3. memb. 7. Hales lib. K. fol. 41.

Of Seizures made upon Presentments, and Inquisitions taken by Commissions, there are many Instances, some whereof I shall mention when I come to the Precedents. The Seizures upon Judgments, or for a Forfeiture, which are always in the King's Right, do as effectually put the King into Possession, and oust the natural Persons from using the Right, as any Judgment of Ouster whatsoever. And the Difference between such Seizures, and those upon the Grand Cape, which are only upon Mean Process, and in Right of the Subject, and in his Aid, is too apparent to be further enlarged upon. There is some Resemblance between this Seizure upon the Grand Cape, and that in the King's Suit for Default, that Appearance for both are upon Mean Process, and both repleviable, if the Defendant or Tenant come in Time.

There is also a further Resemblance between them, which makes not for Mr. Recorder's Purpose; and that is, in that both are lost for ever, if the Parties come not in Time. For at Common Law, if upon a Præcipe quod reddat, and the Lands seized into the King's Hands upon the Grand Cape, the Tenant makes Default, and come not within forty Days, he could not wage his Law to excuse his Default, but the Demandant should have Judgment to recover the Land presently, 15 Ed. 4. fol. 7.

The Difference that it was not the Franchise or Liberty of the Corporation, but the Towns themselves were seized into the King's Hand, is as void of Authority as of Law. Sometimes indeed Civitas & Villa in Records are used promiscuously for the Franchise and Freedom, which is jointly used and enjoyed by the Inhabitants, exempt from the Common Law Jurisdiction: And in such Case the Seizure of the City or Ville, and of the Franchise, is all one; and the Inhabitants thereby put under the Government of the Common Law, discharged of the Franchise. But if the Town or City be taken for the natural Persons who are the Inhabitants, or for the Houses wherein they inhabited, which they must be upon Mr. Recorder's Distinction, otherwise it will be a Distinction without a Difference: Neither the Inhabitants nor Houses were ever seized, or could be seized into the King's Hands upon such Inquisitions as have been found, and Judgments of Seizure that have been given. The only Proof for this Difference was a strong Averment, that whilst the City of LONDON lay under the several Seizures, sometimes of the Mayoralty only, at other Times of the whole Franchise, the Corporation was as vigorous as ever, and in statu quo; not so much as suspended; but did exercise all corporate Acts as before. An Averment against the express Sense of all the Citizens, when under those Seizures, and against many Authorities of Law.

At the Parliament, 18 Ed. 1. the Citizens (for they had then no Mayor) petitioned the King in Parliament, Quod Rex velit eis concedere pristinum statum, se majorem & antiquas Libertates. Roll. Prerog. 204.

bertates. They petitioned not for their Houses, or the Liberty of their Persons, those were never seized; but to be restored to the Mayoralty, and their antient Liberties, which were under Seizure in the King's Hands. If the Corporation had been in statu quo, they would not have troubled the Commons to present such a Petition, nor the King to grant so idle a Petition, as eis concedere pristinum statum; but they who know their Condition better than Mr. Recorder, could admit themselves out of Possession; both of the Mayoralty and their antient Liberties, and pray to be restored to them. And the King's Answer was, He was not at present advised statum mutare. My Lord Coke's Opinion is, that the Chapter, when no Dean, or Commonalty, when no Mayor, have not Capacity so much as to make continual Claim, nor to take by Purchase, nor sue any Action.

If the Commons of LONDON meet on Michaelmas Day, and choose a Mayor, the old Mayor not present, the Election is void; and so any other Act without the Mayor. If the Commonalty, in the Vacancy of a Mayor make Obligation under their Common Seal, it is void; how much stronger will the Case be, when the whole Franchise is seized?

I have now removed the Objections which lay in my Way, by opening the Nature and Effect of Seizures of Liberties into the King's Hands, and where Judgment of Seizure, and whereof Ouster are properly given; whereby it may appear, that this special Capias of Capias in manus Regis, is as proper an Execution against the Body Politick, as the Common Capias against the Body Natural; and in Judgment of Law the Politick Person is as properly said civiliter mortua, by Judgment of Seizure, as the Natural Person is said civiliter mortua, by Judgment of any Attainder for any capital Offence. Mr. Recorder acknowledges, that in Case of Natural Persons, when the Law gives Forfeiture of the Body, or of the Liberty of the Body, it is all one in Judgment of Law; the Law is the same when it speaks of Bodies Politick, to forfeit the Liberty of the Body Politick, and to forfeit the Body Politick.

3. My Way thus cleared, I will lay down the Grounds and Reasons of Law, upon which I conceive, with some Clearness, that Corporations may be forfeited and seized into the King's Hands, as well as Offices; or any other Liberties whatsoever; and then shall instance in some further Precedents, whereby it will appear they have been forfeited and seized. My Grounds are principally these:

1. That there is a Condition in Law annexed to the Franchise of a Corporation upon its first Erection, as strong, if not stronger, than to any other Franchise or Liberty whatsoever.

2. That there is nothing extraordinary or peculiar in the Nature of a Corporation, to hinder taking Advantage of the Condition broken, or to exempt from the common Condition of other Liberties in Consideration of Law.

1. As to the first, Wherever the Law introduceth or alloweth any Right upon a Trust, or for the Benefit of the Publick, it implies a Condition, that the Trust be discharged; and the Ends of its Creation complied with. This Condition implied by Law is of stricter Obligation than Considerations express; it shall bind Infants and Females Covert, 8 Co. 44. The principal Case is of Offices; but the Book saith, So it is of Liberties and Franchises. And indeed throughout our Books, the Cases of Offices of publick Trusts and Franchises run parallel; and the greater the Trust is, or of greater Necessity to be performed, the Condition is still the stricter. And therefore in Franchises, as well as Liberties, if the Franchise be for the better Administration of Justice, and of Necessity, Non user will be adjudged a Breach of Condition; but where not of Necessity, bare Non user will not be a Breach; yet Refuser, which is an obstinate and willful Non user, may be a Breach; but in Case of all Liberties and Franchises whatsoever, Abuser was ever judged a Breach of the Condition. This Matter, upon the Question of Forfeiture of an Office is well stated in the Countess of Shrewsbury's Case, 9 Co. 50. Now this Franchise of a Corporation is granted upon a far greater Trust and Confidence than any other Liberty whatsoever; as I have already shewn, viz. For the Government and Peace of the Inhabitants, and others coming within the Liberty of the Franchise, in Subordination to the general Government of the King; and that they are intrusted therewith by the King upon the publick Account of Government only, and not for any private Respect or Benefit whatsoever. Other Franchises are either subordinate and auxiliary to this, as to hold Courts, have Jails, and such like, for the better Administration of the several Parts of Government; or else are of Profit or Ease; pro meliori sustentatione of the Charge and Burden of this subordinate Government. And therefore Banks, in the Argument of Hayward and Fulcher's Case, Palmer 495, calls it the Principal Liberty, and other Liberties the Accessories.

In the Case of Knights Templers, the Corporation was dissolved upon the Account of Non user, though without Default, but the End of their Institution ceased. The Case is much stronger where it is a voluntary Cesser, as where the Abbots and Monks put off their Habit, and leave their Houses, this Non user will be a good Cause of discharging the Order. Where the Commonalty have Power to choose every Year a Mayor, if they do not choose a Mayor, their Franchise shall be forfeited, or they may be fined, upon this Reason, that common Justice fails for want of such an Officer. Which was a Breach of the Condition annexed to their Liberty by Non user, 21 E. 4. 14. It appears by this Case, That the Commonalty, in the Vacancy of a Mayor, are to this Purpose a Corporation, to choose a Mayor to perfect the Body; and 'tis the only corporate Act that they are by Law enabled to do without a Mayor; and this Right may be forfeited too. And as by never choosing a Mayor, they themselves would dissolve the Corporation; so by forfeiting their Right, it is in the Power of the Law to dissolve them. It also appears expressly by this Case, that the King may proceed either for a Fine, or upon a Forfeiture, as he may do in the Cases of all Offices and Franchises whatsoever, as he shall be advised.

If Non user in some Cases (as I have shewn) will forfeit a corporate Right, no Shadow of Reason can be offered, why Misuser or Abuser will not do it as well as in all other Liberties. For as greater the Trust is, or stronger the Condition, so an Abuser of that Trust is a far greater Breach of the Condition, than a simple Non user. Single Bodies Politick have indisputably such Conditions annexed to them upon the Trust of their Creation; and the Breach of the Condition is in Law good Cause of separating the politick Person from the natural, by Deprivation, which in the Civil Law is of the same Effect as Judgment of Ouster by the Common Law; and their Suspension hath some Resemblance with our Seizures into the King's Hands. If Mr. Recorder had but observed the different Laws that Spiritual Corporations and Civil Corporations are guided by, he would not have raised his Wonder to that Height, that Quo Warranto's were never brought against Monasteries, Bishops, Deans and Chapters, Parsons and Vicars, and that bringing it now against the City of LONDON threatened the whole Hierarchy of the Church; when, with his Leave, all these, if they offend, may by Law lose their corporate Right; which may be severed from them by a certain Instrument called Deprivation, the Edge of which is no sharper than Judgment of Seizure, or Ouster in our Law. And certainly the Union between the politick and natural Body is as close and as strong in single Corporations, as in aggregate; and the same Authors have bestowed upon them the same Epithet, and that they cannot commit Treason and Felony; and the Body corporate of the Bishop, Parson, Prior, Alien, &c. is as invisible, immortal, and as politick as that of aggregate Bodies. Yet not only Treason and Felony, but far less Misdemeanors committed by the natural Persons will forfeit the corporate Right, and amount to a Breach of the Condition annexed by Law. So little Crimes, as Waste and willful Dilapidations, will be Causes of Forfeiture; many of the Cases thereof are put in Sir James Bagg's Case, to which I refer; 11 Co. 98. For I do take that Case to be an express Judgment in Point, That there is a Condition annexed by Law to every Corporation, and that the Breach thereof is a Forfeiture. The Resolution there is, that any Member of the Body may forfeit his corporate Right, and may by Law be divested of it, which Right is there called his Freedom and Liberty. And it is the same Right or Liberty, in which all, jointly considered, have an Inheritance, wherein each Member hath a Freehold; for they are not seized of this Right in their corporate Capacity, but as natural Persons, the Question being of that Right which gives them the corporate Capacity. And what any Member may forfeit, every Member may; and the same Acts which will forfeit the Right of every Member, separately considered, if done jointly by all the Members, will have the same Effect. What Act will amount to a Forfeiture, that Case generally determines, whatsoever is contrary to the Duty and Trust of a Member; especially if the Fact be contrary to his Oath, the Oath of Allegiance by the Statute 7 Jac. cap. 6. is made a Part of the Freeman's Oath. The Case goes further, and assigns many Particulars, which will be Breaches of the Condition, viz. Attainders, Forgery, Perjury, Conspiracy, or any other infamous Crimes at the King's Suit; if these will be sufficient Cause, there can be no doubt but Treasons, Felonies, and Oppressions, Seditions, and other Attempts in disturbing the Government, will be good Causes of Disfranchisement of any or many of the Members, who commit such Crimes. And this upon the Trust and Condition implied by Law, upon the first Erection of the Corporation; for the present Members are under no other Trust or Condition as to this Matter, than what the Law imposed upon the first Members.

I cannot see how the Counsel for the City can evade the Force of Sir James Bagg's Case, unless it be by a Distinction or two:

- (1.) Between every Man, and all Men; every Man may forfeit his Part, but all Men cannot forfeit the Whole: Just such another Distinction as was made to all the Precedents between Seizures and Forfeitures.
- (2.) The other Distinction seems to have a little more Colour, and it is between the King and the Corporation.

The Corporation, say they, are intrusted by Law with Power over their Members to remove them for acting against their Duty; but the King cannot disfranchise any particular Member; and if he cannot disfranchise any one Member, much less can he all Members, or seize their Liberties into his Hands; which in Law amounts to a Disfranchisement of all the Members.

I answer, the King may do both the one and the other; and in saying the King can do it, I mean in the Course of Law.

1. The King doth it, when the subordinate Ministers and Governors within the Corporation do it; for they do it as his Ministers, in Execution of his Laws; and it is their Duty to do it, according to the Trust he hath reposed in them, and the Power he gave them; and this Authority is greater or lesser, as he is pleased to grant it, as appears by Sir James Bagg's Case. If the King grant them express Authority to remove, they may remove the Offender before Conviction at Law. But if no express Power be granted, a Conviction at Law must be first had; and the Judgment of the Law directs their Duty, and they are accountable herein to the King in his Courts of Law. If they mistake the Law, and displace a Member convicted of an Offence, which amounts not to a Forfeiture, the Party shall be restored by Mandamus; an excellent Precedent of Restitution, if they do not their Duty, to disfranchise where the Offence requires it.

2. The King may do it, by commanding them to do it by his Writ out of the Court where the Conviction remains, or out of the Chancery, as he may the Coroner of the County, Mayor, and other Officers, as the Precedents have been: A Writ to remove the Mayor of Berwick. So where an Alderman is dead, the King may send his Mandamus to choose another, as done in the Case of Lanceston, P. 8. Car. 1.

23. R. Hale, Corporat. Pl. 5. If they yield not Obedience, they may be fined, or may incur the Forfeiture of their Liberties, as the Case may require.

3. In Case the Corporation cannot do Justice in punishing and displacing the Offenders, either because the Majority are Offenders, or favouring or abetting the Offenders, there being a Failure of Justice in the Franchise, which the Law will not permit, by Judgment of Law the City or Ville shall be restored to the Government and Jurisdiction of the Common Law, by Seizure of the Franchise into the King's Hands.

4. Failure of Justice, and the not suppressing and punishing of notorious Riots and Tumults, have been adjudged good Causes of Forfeiture of Liberties, and the Plea of Non Ability to suppress them, disallowed as any Cause of Excuse, as to the Point of Forfeitures of the Liberties, which doth and will appear by the Precedents insisted on by Mr. Solicitor, and what I shall superadd. So that I conceive the Authority of Sir James Bagg's Case remains unshaken, that there is a Condition annexed to the Franchise of a Corporation, the Breach whereof will be a Forfeiture. The greater the Trust of any Member of a Corporation is, the stricter is the Condition; as where any of the Members are chosen into any Places, which more immediately concern the good Government of the Corporation, a less Crime will be the Cause of his Removal, than will be of Disfranchisement of a private Member, as in the Case of an Alderman.

It was resolved, for being a Drunkard and Haunter of Taverns, he being a Magistrate more immediately intrusted with the Government, was Cause of Removal; though we have Freehold in the Place, yet it is upon special Trust and Confidence. The Law will be the same, if the Magistrate gives the least Encouragement to popular Tumults, or frequent Conventicles, and unlawful Assemblies. And it is no Objection to say, that some Statute Laws have laid a Penalty for the Offences,

Taylor's Case,

Offences, as it is in the Case of Drunkenness, and many Offences of Officers; and in Common Law Offences, the Law provides a Penalty against the Offender by Fine or Imprisonment; and yet the same Offence, if a Breach of Condition, will be Cause of Disfranchisement, as appears in Sir James Bagg's Case. The Penalties inflicted by Statutes or Common Law, are for the Breaches of particular Laws; but the displacing of a Magistrate is for Breach of the general Trust of his Place, wherewith he is intrusted for the Publick; and having broken that Trust and Condition, the Law adjudgeth him unfit to be intrusted, ne quisquam detrimenti capiat Respublica. The Question, What Acts of a Member will forfeit his corporate Right, is no where in our Books so distinctly put as in Sir James Bagg's Case. But the Question, What Acts of the Members, and of what Number of the Members will forfeit the whole Franchise, I know not where distinctly put in our Books, but as they lie scatter'd in the Instances of Forfeitures taken, and Franchises seized, otherwise than upon the general Rules of Non user & Abuser of the Trust committed to them. But the Civilians do largely treat upon these Questions; Whether the Cities, Colleges, and Universities may be forfeited and dissolved, and what Acts of the Members will be Causes of such Forfeitures. And therefore I crave Leave, before I conclude this Head, from the Condition annexed by Law to all Corporations; only to mention one of them. It is Oldradus de Ponte, in his Book intituled, Consilia sive Responsa, & Aureæ Quæstiones. Where he debates the Point at large Pro and Con, and puts the Objections of some Authors, which are much the same enthusiastick Raptures, as have been made use of in this Case, viz. that they have no Souls, but are immortal Bodies, and such like Stuff. But he resolves the Question thus; I will repeat his own Words: Sed licet non habent veram personam, tamen habent personam fictam fictione Juris. Et ideo dicit Lex, quod Municipium Curia & Societatem personæ sustinent: Et sic eadem fictione animam habent, & delinquere possunt, & puniri, ea tamen pœna quæ possit cadere in eas, scilicet, quod privetur Privilegiis, & sic Capite minuitur. Et sic sicut vera persona per mortem naturalem desinit esse quod erat, sic ista persona ficta per mortem Civilem, quæ est, ut privetur Privilegiis, desinit esse quod erat, quia amodo non erit Universitas. And then assigns the Causes generally: Et quod Privilegia possint revocari, cum incipiunt esse iniqua vel damnosa. Et non potest esse magis iniquum, si utatur eo in contumeliam concedentis. Though this be a full Opinion of a learned Man, as to the Case in Question, both as to the general Question of Forfeiture, and the particular Breaches assigned; yet I use it not as an Authority, but only to shew the Concordance of other Laws with the Law and Practice within this Kingdom; and that learned Men have before now not only dreamt of such a Thing, but have concluded the Point upon Debate and Reason of Law, That Corporations may be forfeited and dissolved, when their Privileges, as used by the Members, incipiunt esse iniqua vel damnosa.

(2) My other Ground is, that there is nothing extraordinary or particular in the Nature of Corporations aggregate, to exempt them from the Condition of single Corporations, or of other Liberties: If there be, it hath not yet been shewn. It must arise either from the Number of the Persons who take, and are the Subjects of this Liberty, because they are many, or from the Right conferred upon them. The Number of the Persons constituting this Body contributes nothing towards the Indissolubility thereof, pleaded for. They were several natural Persons before the Union, and remain so many natural Persons; and by retaining their natural Capacities, are as capable of being separated, as they were before capable to be united by taking this Right. And as to the Number of the Persons, a Corporation differs nothing from other Communities, which may assemble and act in a Body: As the voluntary Societies in Inns of Court and Chancery, and Armies, which act under Commissions, to some Persons to collect and assemble, others to act jointly under them. These Societies have their peculiar Rules and Laws to act by, and act jointly and in a Body as Corporations do: But yet, in the one Case, if the Members so agree, or in the other Case, the Commission be revoked, they are all separated, and the Union dissolved: So as to the Nature or Numbers of the Persons collected, a Corporation differs nothing from other Societies not incorporated. From Number may be presumed a greater Duration, and it is most probable many may outlive one; but it is certain that many shall die as one Man, and probable that all may die before others elected, which was admitted to be a Dissolution of the Body Politick; but ingeniously distinguished, that this was rather a Separation of the Persons from the Body, than of the politick Body from the Persons. Be it so, it is admitted then they are separable, and that Number cannot protect the natural Persons from being severed from the Body Politick by natural Death. And I have already shewn, that Number contributes nothing to the Indissolubility of a Corporation, by Separation of the Members one from the other, which is called a Civil Death; and in Cases of Civil Death, the separating the Liberty from the Person, or the Persons from the Liberty, is all one. To take the Office from the Officer, or remove the Officer from the Office, is all one; and so in Disfranchisement, to take away the Freedom of a Member, or to remove him from his Freedom, is all one: And so in Forfeiture of Franchises, the Judgment of Ouster is formally putting the Persons from the Franchise, and Judgment of Seizure taking the Franchise from the Persons; but in effect they are the same, viz. a Separation between the Persons and the Franchise. And this Separation being wrought by a Condition in Law annexed upon the Union, the Number of Persons can no more prevent it, than where Lands, or incorporate Inheritances are granted to many, and their Heirs, upon an express Condition, that no Advantage could be taken of the Condition broken, because the Grant is to many Men.

From the Nature of the Right or Franchise, as little can be inferred for this inseparable Union pretended.

(1) In its Creation, it is meerly by the Policy of Man, and the Rule is taken in Calvin's Case, 7 Co. fol. 25. That what is by the Law of Man, may be altered. And divers other Books speaking of the Effects of human Constitutions, laying down as a certain Rule, Quicquid colligitur, dissolvi potest; mortal Beings cannot confer Immortality.

All Rights whatsoever are incorporate, and sometimes abusive are stiled immortal, which by Intendment of Law is only, that they have Continuance so long as any Persons subsist capable of having them: And in this Sense the Right to Lands and Corporate Inheritances are of greater Duration than many Liberties, and particularly those of Corporations; because they subsist when they return to the Crown, which many Liberties do not, but are then extinct. Strata Marcella, 9 Co. & 15 Ed. 4. fol. 6.

(2) As to the Nature of this Right, whether it be consider'd as a Right of taking and holding in another Capacity than that of natural Persons, or as a Right of taking in Succession; under neither Consideration can it import any inseparable separable Quality. In the former, it is both the same with that of single Corporations, and plainly implies a Trust. In all the Cases of our Law, wherever any Persons take in another's Capacity, than their own, it is always upon Trust, as Executors or Administrators, Churchwardens, &c. and all single Corporations: And where the Law creates the Trust, the Law provides Remedy, if the Trust be broken, for putting the Trust into safer Hands. And likewise, if consider'd as a Right framed by Policy, to take in Succession, it is in Substance the very same with that of single Corporations; and if any Advantage be in Point of Duration, it inclines to the Side of single Corporations, as better framed by Policy to have Continuance, than the other of aggregate Corporations.

(1) Because the Choice of the Successions, whether elective, donative, or presentative, is placed elsewhere, and not in the Person himself, that it cannot be in his Power to prevent the Succession.

(2) Because the Law leaves it not in his Power to determine the Corporation, either by Surrender, or Forfeiture, but during his Life; and so cannot prejudice his Succession.

But in Lay-Corporations the Power of Succession being intrusted with them by Elections to continue it, the whole Right is in them, and consequently in their Power to determine it, either by not electing, or electing those the Law incapacitates, which is the Case of Worcester; or every Man of them may for good Cause be disfranchised, or the Franchise for Cause seized, and consequently, for want of Succession, fail. Besides, to go in Succession does not necessarily imply a Perpetuity: Goods may go in Succession, as to Church-Wardens. A Chattel Lease may go in Succession. The King grants Lands for Years, rendering the Rent to the Aldermen of Chesterfield; they take in Possession as a Corporation, Cro. Eliz. 35. (Mich 26). The same Case, Hales Corporation, pl. 25. Upon these Grounds that there is a Condition annexed to all Corporations, as well as other Liberties, and that there is nothing peculiar in the Nature of Corporations aggregate, to exempt them from being liable to Seizure for Breaches of that Condition, I conclude, Corporations may be taken into the King's Hands by Seizure; which is a Separation of the Liberty of being a Body Politick from the natural Persons, who (as Bracton phraseth it) were but Usu-fructuarii, and had not Absolutum Dominium. And by this Separation the natural Persons are only restored to the Government of the Common Law.

The Mischiefs that would inevitably follow, were the Law otherwise, have been insisted on by Mr. Solicitor. It were to set up independent Commonwealths within the Kingdom; and, according to the Judgment of the Parliament, 21 Ed. 3. would certainly tend to the utter Overthrow of the Common Law, and the Crown too, in which all Sovereign Power to do Right, both to its self and the Subjects, is only lodged by the Common Law of this Realm.

The Answer Mr. Recorder applied to the Mischiefs, That they may be otherwise punished, is of little Avail. Though he did not express in what Manner they might be punished, yet it must be intended by Fine, or at the Suit of the Persons injured by their Oppressions. The same Answer may be applied to the Oppressions by Officers, and the Abuses of all Liberties whatsoever, and likewise to excuse the Disfranchisement of any one Member of a Corporation: But that is no sufficient Remedy to cure the Mischiefs, whilst the Cause still remains, and is in as great Power to oppress, as before; which nothing can sufficiently restrain, but the Loss, at the least the Fear of the Loss of that Power. To put the Subjects grieved to contend with Corporations for their Relief by their several Actions, were for the Common Law to lay a greater Burden upon them, than what they suffered from the Corporation, as was sufficiently experimented in the Case of the Duty of Water-bailage of LONDON, before the Quo Warranto was brought to rescue them: And if they recover Damages, those Damages can only be levied upon the common Goods and Estate of the Corporation, 8 H. 6. 1. And many Corporations have had nothing in common Stock; and few Corporations sufficient to make Satisfaction for all their Oppressions. And to prosecute for a Fine is no Satisfaction to those who are injured, nor doth remove the Cause of the Oppression. And the Law would be very deficient, if such inferior Jurisdictions, or Corporations, were not subject to the Common Law upon the like Conditions as other Liberties, Franchises, and inferior Jurisdictions are.

Mr. Recorder hath affirmed it with great Assurance, That never any till this Suit ever so much as thought of resuming Corporations, which are subordinate Governments. I shall only request of him, and of the other Gentlemen of the City's Counsel, to shew me the Opinion of one learned Man of this Kingdom, or any other Nation, deliberately deliver'd upon the Question, That feodatory and subordinate Governments can not, for any Cause whatsoever, be forfeited or resumed. That de facto they have been resumed in other Nations, is testified by many Authors, with their Opinions, that de Jure they may be; which I forbear to trouble the Court with. Within this Kingdom of that Nature Counties Palatine, the Cinque-Ports, the Liberties of Lordships, Marchers, and such like, and the Corporations of Cities and Towns; which are all held of the Crown of England. What the Practice and judicial Opinions have been concerning these Liberties, according to the Law of this Land, Mr. Solicitor hath shewn in several Instances; which I shall not report, but shall produce some others to prove the same Matter. I beg Leave to rescue a very considerable Precedent produced by Mr. Solicitor, from the Gloss Mr. Recorder was pleased to put upon it, That it was an Act of Parliament; when 'tis no such Matter, but a Judgment of the King's Bench in Point upon a Forfeiture; it is the Case of Sandwich, cited p. 9. Ed. 1. Rot. majus, 35 Kane. the Record is amongst the Plea Rolls, in the Treasury or Tally-Office.

It was upon an Information at the King's Suit, presented by the Sheriff of the County against the Mayor of Sandwich, and three others, for assaulting the Sheriff's Bailiff upon Execution of the King's Writ within Stanore, beating the Officer, and taking the Writ from him, and tearing it, and stamping it under his Feet. They plead to the Jurisdiction, that Stanore was within the Liberty of Sandwich; within the Cinque Ports; and that, De aliqua seductione fac' corporis Regis, non tenentur respondere alibi, than at the Court at Shepway. The Plea was overrul'd upon this Ground, that none could claim such a Liberty without express Grant; and they shew no Charter for it, and were ruled to answer over. They insist upon that Exemption, and refuse to give any farther Answer; whereupon Judgment was given, that they be committed to Prison: And the Judgment goes farther, Et quia Johannes Dennis Major de Sandwich convictus est de transgressionibus predictis; & factum Majoratus in his quæ tangunt Comitatum est factum ipsius Communitatis, consideratum est quod Communitatis de Sandwich amittat Libertatem suam. This is an express Judgment of this Court upon the the Forfeiture of the Liberty, for a Crime committed by the Mayor and others, in a Matter relating to the whole Liberty. Before this the Franchise of Sandwich was seized, as forfeited into the King's Hands for a notorious Riot committed by the Inhabitants, in Obstruction of Justice, 3 Ed. 1.

The Case upon that Record was thus: Upon an Inquisition found of Purprestures within the King's Warren of Dover, by stopping a Water-course, whereby the Warren was overflowed, a Writ issued from the Court of Dover, to distrain the Offender by his Goods, to amend and remove the Purpresture: The Officer distrains the Cattle of Simon Ercheston, who was the Offender, and lived at Sandwich, within the Cinque-Port. Some of the Men of Sandwich make Rescous; and when the Constable of Dover sent Messengers to complain to the Mayor of Sandwich of this Rescous, and to require Redress; after the Complaint made, and no Redress had, several of the Men of Sandwich fell upon the Messengers, and severely beat them. Then the Constable sent more Officers to see Right done; against whom the Town was barricadoed and chained, and his Officers kept out by the Townsmen in hostile Manner. Then the Constable went in Person, and after some Time suppressed the Tumult, and upon their Submission, the Commonalty prayed the Constable would deliver their Submission to the King, which they then deliver'd to him under their Common Seal; and accordingly was deliver'd by the Constable to the King and Council, and adjourned into Parliament: And the Mayor, Bailiffs, and Commonalty, order'd to be at a certain Day, before the King and his Council in Parliament. Upon hearing thereof in the Presence of the Mayor and Bailiffs for the whole Commonalty, Judgment is thus enter'd upon that Record: Consideratum fuit per Dominum Regem & Concilium suum in Parlamento, quod Majoratus & Libertas de Sandwich pro predictis Transgressionibus in manus Regis capiatur, & tradatur in custodia Constabulario de Dover, ad disponendum de predicta villa secundum communem Legem & Consuetudinem Regni, non obstante aliqua Libertate. It evidently appears, both by the Form and Matter of it, that that Form was judicial, and not legislative, and agreeable to the Forms of Judgment in the other Common Law Courts, and in our Law Books. Here is a Judgment only of Seizure upon a Forfeiture, yet it amounted to a real Ouster; for the Town was actually divested of the Liberty, and deliver'd up to the Government of the Common-Law. For, capiatur Majoratus & Libertas de Sandwich in the singular Number, in manus Regis tradatur in custodia Constabulario suo, who is the Common Law Officer, within the Cinque-Ports, is no more than leaving the Town to the Government of the Common Law; which is fuller explained by the subsequent Words of disponendum de Villa secundum Legem & Consuetudinem Regni. And it appears by this Record, that there is a Difference between the Liberty and the Ville, though sometimes Ville is used for the Liberty of the Ville; but here the Mayoralty and the Liberty are seized, and the Ville deliver'd over to the Common Law Officer.

5 R. 2. N. 45.
to 66.

The next Precedent I insist upon, is that recited by Mr. Recorder, the Case of the Town of Cambridge, but lamentably defaced by my Lord Coke's marginal Note, and Mr. Recorder's Averment, that by the Record it appears to have been by common Consent of Parliament. I rather insist upon this, for that Mr. Recorder hath acknowledg'd its Force, that it worked upon the corporate Right, and was upon a Forfeiture, but lays the Force of it in its being an Act of Parliament, when in Truth it is a plain Judgment of a Court of Law; and it appears by the Record it was no Act of Parliament. Mr. Recorder cited the Record, 8 R. 2. No. 11. 4. Inst. 228. and it is probable Mr. Recorder looked no further than that Book for it: In the Margin it is so cited, but miscited; yet in the Body of the Book, in putting the Case, it is truly cited; for the Record is 5 R. 2. 45. to 66. and it is evident by the marginal Note; and my Lord Coke saying it was the common Consent, misguided Mr. Recorder, to affirm it to be an Act of Parliament, when the contrary appears by the Record. The Complaint to the King and his Council in Parliament against the Town of Cambridge was for a Riot committed, and an Assault upon the University; and the Fact in Substance is the same as related in the Fourth Institutes. It was prosecuted at two Suits, the one against the late Mayor and Bailiffs, who were at the Time of the Riot in their natural Capacity; the other against the Mayor, Bailiffs, and Commonalty in their corporate Capacity; the Writs returnable coram nobis & concilio nostro. The former Mayor and Bailiffs appear, and plead in their natural Capacity, that they were neither assenting nor aiding to the Riot; neither did or said any Thing, that might turn to the Damage of the University, unless only by Coaction and outrageous Compulsion: And there seems to have been no further Proceedings in that Suit. Upon the other Writ the Mayor, Bailiffs, and Commonalty appear, and pray they may have a Copy of the Articles, which were read to them, and Counsel allowed them, and Time to answer; and such Answer was returned, as is mention'd in the 4th Inst. But in the Record it is said, it was answer'd by the Court; and that the Court told them, that at present they should not be put to answer to the Crime (which must be in order to a Fine) but only touching their Liberties. Then touching their Liberties, they put in a Plea by their Counsel, to the Jurisdiction of the Court, which is omitted in my Lord Coke; only he saith, after many dilatory Shifts and Subterfuges following therein, the Court over-ruled the Plea to the Jurisdiction, and ruled them to answer in chief; and if not, Judgment should be enter'd by nihil dicit. They then pleaded a frivolous Plea, partly not guilty, partly in Excuse; and the King's Serjeant replied, and the Plea was held naught. Thereupon they submitted, as to the Franchise, to the King's Grace, saving that it might be no Conclusion to them, if they should be called in question for the Crime. Whereupon Judgment of Seizure was only given. The Words of the Record say thus: Nostre Seigneur le Roy de Assent des Prelates & Seigneurs en cest Parliament fist seiser la dic Franchise en sa maine come forfeit pur la ditz Causes. Throughout the Record it appears by all the Proceedings they were judicial; but the Plea to the Jurisdiction of the Court, and the Judgment by the King and Lords, only are Demonstrations it was no Act of Parliament, nor adjudged by the legislative Power, but by a Court of Law.

Cotton's Records.

It appears upon the same Record, that the King granted several of the Particulars which were seized; to the University, who enjoy them to this Day. Et la Remnante de la Franchise de la dit Ville the King granted to the Mayor and Bailiffs, to hold of him and his Heirs, at the antient Rent of 101 Marks.

33 Ed. 1. Plac. parl. 277. The Liberty of the City of Winchester seized into the King's Hands by Judgment of the King and Lords, for suffering a Hostage of Baion, who was committed to their Charge by the King for safe Custody, to escape, to the King's great Damage. The Writ of Seizure is directed to the Sheriff of the County, quod predictam Civitatem Wintonie & Libertatem tem ejusdem Civitatis, cum omnibus ad eas tangentibus sine dilatione capiat in manum Regis, & eas salvas custodiat, donec Rex aliud præceperit. Whereby the Franchise being seized, the Men of the City are put under the Government of the common Law Officer. Afterwards the City compounded with the King for 500 Marks, and then the King reddidit eisdem Majori & Civibus Civitat. & Libertat. prædict. habend. & tendum in forma qua eas tenuerunt ante captionem earundem in manum Regis, and Letters Patents of Restitution were granted; and a Writ of Restitution directed to the Sheriff.

These were Judgments by the King and Lords in Parliament, upon Forfeitures, and were Judgments of Seizure only, according to the settled Rule and Practice in the Common Law Courts.

Mich. 18. Ed. 3. Rot. 161. B. R. in the Treasury or Tally Office. A Judgment of the King's Bench, against the Town of Ipswich, upon a Forfeiture. The Bailiffs of Ipswich are impleaded by the King, upon a special Information, reciting that in the King's Bench, sitting there, several Malefactors were indicted for the Death of one John Holtby, and that many of the said Town, tam de majoribus quam de mediocribus, did comfort and encourage the Felons after the Felony committed, and treated and entertained them with Viands and great Joy: And, after the Departure of the Justices, kept a mock Court publicly, and summoned the Justices and the Officers of the Court, to appear under several Pains. To which the Bailiffs appeared, and were opposed by the Court, why they did not attach and stay the Malefactors? They answered, The Malefactors flew to Sanctuary: Being further opposed, that they did not attach those of the Town, that furnished the Malefactors with esculenta & poculenta, they pleaded, quod non ausi fuerunt, eo quod tanta fuit multitudo gaudentium, & plures eorum fuere e parentela Malefactorum: Whereupon Judgment was given contra Ballivos & Communitat. quod custodia ejusdem Ville seisiatur in manum Regis, & quod aliquis ex Parte Domini Regis, qui sit ausus ad pacem Domini Regis manutenendam, se intromittat in eadem Villa, quousque Dominus Rex aliud inde dixerit. Which the Record shews, is the Bailiff of the County, the Common Law Officer. And the Mayor and Bailiffs in open Court surrendered their Staffs of Office. This Judgment is agreeable to those in Parliament, and of Seizure only.

R. Claus. 7. Johan' Memb. 24. Civitas & Libertas Norwici was seized into the King's Hands, for hanging Approvers without the Licence of the King, or his Justices; and the Mayor was summoned to answer for the Damage done to the King, Rot. Fin' Memb. 10. (13 Ed. 1.) the Liberties of Norwich seized for a great Riot, and burning the Church: The Case is mentioned Roll. Prerogative, fol. 204. The Liberties of Norwich were again seized, 21. H. 6. upon a Presentment of a great Riot taken before Forrescae, and afterward regranted to them, 27 H. 6. Pat. Roll. Memb. 19. The Case is cited by Mr. Noy, in the Case of the City of LONDON, concerning the Death of Dr. Lamb, Cro. Car. 252.

The Liberties of Oxford were seized, 32 H. 3. for a great Riot committed by the Townsmen, when the King's Brother was there, and killing of his Brother's Baker. The Writ to the Sheriff runs thus; Quod capiat in manum Regis villam de Oxen, ut eam salvam custodiat ad opus Regis, ita quod Major & homines ejusdem nullam inde habeant administrationem; the King in the same Year pardons them, and grants them Restitution, and a Writ to the Sheriff to put them into Possession, 32 H. 3. Memb. 13. Hal. Lib. L. f. 326.

Again, the Liberties of Oxford were seized, 29 Ed. 3. and Part of their Liberties granted to the University, which are enjoyed by them to this Day, and the Residue restored to the Town; the Seizure was for a Riot committed, Rot. Claus. 29 Ed. 3. M. 21.

20 H. 3. the Liberties of Eversham, for using false Measures, when the King was there, and afterwards, upon Submission of the Abbots and Monks, the King makes Restitution to them, R. Cl. 20. H. 3. M. 8.

18 Ed. 1. the Town of Southampton was seized into the King's Hands, for wounding, even to Death, an Officer in serving the King's Writs: They after submitted to a Fine, and took a new Grant, and raised their Fee-Farm Rent to 20 l. per Ann. Roll. Prerog. fol. 204.

It would be too great a Trouble to the Court, to cite more Precedents of Seizures for Forfeitures. In all these Instances Restitution was never made by the Court, but by the special Grace of the King, after Submission to him, and upon such Terms as he was pleased to accept; and in some Cases was pleased to restore them to the Whole; in other Cases, but to the Part of the Liberties. That this Liberty of being a Body Politick may be seized into the King's Hands by Quo Warranto, Mr. Recorder, in Effect, hath admitted it, if the Suit be brought against particular Members; and the Cases produced by him prove it. For in the Case of Cusack, the Curia advisare vult was upon that very Point of being a Body Politick: And the Case of the Virginia Company, the very Liberty of being a Body Politick is, by the Judgment, seized into the King's Hands.

I will give some Instances where it hath been done, in Cases of Quo Warranto, against them by the incorporate Name.

Fitzh. Avowry 129. In the Iter of Lancaster, a Quo Warranto against the Bailiffs and Commonalty of Lancaster: They appear, and claim by a Charter of King John; whereby the King grants to them all such Franchises, which the Borough of Northampton had; but do not set forth upon Record what Franchises Northampton had; nor do make Title to the Franchise by Prescription: And for that Reason Judgment was given, that their Franchise be seized into the King's Hands as forfeited.

In the Case I before cited, a Quo Warranto against the Bailiffs and Aldermen of New Radnor, and Judgment against them by Default, that the Liberty should be taken and seized into the King's Hands, though afterwards it was reversed, because in miser cordia was entered instead of a Capiatur pro fine; yet it is a Judgment in Point, that a Corporation might be forfeited and seized by Default in Pleading.

The Case of New Malton, Trin. 6. Jac. B. R. 3. is an express Authority, that this Liberty may be seized by Judgment in a Quo Warranto against the Inhabitants of a Town, by their corporate Name. It is brought against the Bailiffs and Burgesses of New Malton; and the Form of the Information is the very same with this against the City of LONDON. They plead by their corporate Name, and intitle themselves to the Liberty by Prescription; and Verdict and Judgment against them by their corporate Name of Seizure only, that the Liberty be taken and seized into the King's Hands; and which is more, the Capiantur pro fine against them, is entered against them by the corporate Name of Ballivi & Burgeses, though the Corporation by the Seizure was dissolved; and the Reason, no Doubt, was, that that general Name was a sufficient cient Description of the Persons who were liable to the Fine for their Usurpation. And, no Doubt, can be made, but that the true Liberty may be forfeited and lost, by insisting upon a wrong Title; as well by Default, or any other Forfeiture whatsoever. This Town lies under the Weight of that Judgment to this Day, and are no Corporation; and being opposed by the Interest of the Lord Eure, who prosecuted that Quo Warranto, did never obtain any Restitution or Regrant.

Car. 2. 23 R.

A Quo Warranto against the Bailiffs and Burgesses of Berkhamstead, in Com. Hertford: They appeared, and Judgment pro defectu responsi given of Seizure, Pasch. 16 Car. 2. and they are no Corporation at this Day. In the antient Eyres, the Justices in Eyre, when upon Claims put in, the Liberties were lost, either upon some Defect in Pleading, or for some small Abuse or Mistake, the Justices were entrusted with the King's Mercy, to admit to a Fine for Redemption, and make Restitution: But Judgment first passed for Seizure. And regularly upon the general Summons of Quo Warranto in Eyre, or special Suit of Quo Warranto, which are all founded in the same Right, nor other Judgment can be given, if for the King, but a Capias in manus, or of Ouster; if for the Defendants, a Judgment of Allowance, or Eat sine die. The Capias pro fine is collateral, and for the Usurpation, not for the Cause of Forfeiture or Seizure. It was one of the Articles of Inquiry in Eyre, how they had used their Liberties; if an Abuse was found, though never so small, Judgment of Seizure was given; though afterwards redeemed by Fine upon Submission. Quo Warranto upon a Claim of Frank-Pledge in Eyre. It was demanded of the Defendant, if he had any Pillory or Tumbrel: He answered, he had not. Judgment was prayed on Behalf of the King; for that amounted to a Forfeiture; and, if that were not sufficient, then it might be inquired on Behalf of the King, how they had used the Liberty. The Jury find, that the Defendants and their Ancestors had View of Frank-Pledge, but find that the Defendants had taken Amerciaments of Offenders against the Affize for Bread and Beer, amounting to two Shillings, in such Cases where the Offenders should have been punished by the Pillory and Tumbrel. Ideo consideratum est, quod. Visus capiatur in manus Regis. And then they pray they may have their Liberty again upon a Fine, which is granted to them, upon Pledges for well using of their Liberties. And there is no Difference where the Liberty is lost upon a defective Claim or Mispleading, or for a Forfeiture in Quo Warranto; the Judgment is the same of Capias in manus; and it is all one, whether the Cause of Forfeiture be found by a Jury, or confessed upon the Pleadings, in a Quo Warranto.

The next preliminary Point which was moved is, Whether the Acts of Common-Council be the Acts of the Corporation, and do oblige them?

It seems a strange Question, That when to assemble, consult, determine, and to make Orders and By-Laws for the Rule and Government incident to every Corporation, without special Clauses of Grant, and that herein only consists the Exercise of the politick Reason of the whole Body, it should be doubted, whether what they determine and resolve upon, being so jointly assembled, be a Corporation Act, or may affect the Corporation? Upon the Erection of all Corporations, this Power of assembling, deliberating, and determining for the Corporation, is either intrusted with a few particular Members, whose Continuance in that Trust (both as to the present Members and the Succession of them) is directed by the several Charters: Or else it is intrusted with the whole Body, and that either expressly in plain Words, or by Implication of Law, when the Charters are altogether silent therein: The Law in such Case lodgeth the Power of assembling, debating and determining for the Corporation in all the Members, and the whole jointly assembled (or so many of them as upon Notice shall appear) constitute the Common-Council: And such Assembly is not stiled the Common-Council from being retained and giving of Counsel, as Mr. Recorder would have it, in which Sense he only, and the Common-Sergeant are the Common-Council of the City; but they are so called from their joint assembling and consulting for themselves, who constitute the Body Politick. In the same Sense, the Parliaments of England, by many Authorities, are called Communia Regni Concilia. This Power thus lodged in the Whole, may be the Whole, or the major Part, which always binds the Whole, being lodged or delegated to a certain Number, which may represent the Whole. In such Case, where the Power is transferred, those Members to whom it is transferred constitute the Common-Council in the same Manner, and their Acts are of the same Obligation, as where all meet, unless the Delegation were not general, but certain Cases reserved for the Determination of the Whole, as hath been done in several Corporations; but in all Cases not excepted, their Acts are the Acts of the whole Body. Where the Common-Council is constituted of the whole Body, or of all the Members, who will meet upon Notice, there is no Room left for Doubt, but their Acts, and the Acts of the whole Corporation are the same. Mr. Recorder seems the only Person that ever doubted it, and is not to be beaten from his Holds:

First, That the Common-Council consist only of particular Members, and their Acts bind only the Members; & Actio non egreditur Personam.

Secondly, That no Corporation Act can be without the Common-Seal.

Thirdly, That the Acts of the Common-Council of LONDON are under the Protection of the Statute or Charter in Parliament of 1 Ed. 3. their Acts are Personal, and they but Ministers of the City; and that the Charter provides, that the Liberty of the City shall not be taken into the King's Hands for any personal Trespas of any Minister of the City.

For the first, I have already demonstrated, that there are no Acts of the Corporation, but what are performed by the particular Members; I will not repeat. I have produced many Instances, that in Point of Crime the Acts of particular Members do affect the Corporation, touching their Liberty. That they do so in Point of Wrong between Subject and Subject, the Cases are infinite; I will only mention the Authorities: 9 H. 6. 36. b. 8 H. 6. 1. a. & 14. b. 45 Ed. 3. 2. b. 15 Ed. 4. 1. b. 5 H. 7. 26. a. 4 H. 7. 13. a. 32 H. 8. 9. a. 7. I shall add one Case more that absolutely destroys Mr. Recorder's Hypothesis, upon which he relies, That a Corporation cannot do or suffer any Wrong; it is 48 Ed. 3. 17. b. The Mayor and Commonalty of Lincoln bring Covenant against the Mayor and Commonalty of Derby, upon a Deed of Covenants made by the Predecessors of those of Derby to the Predecessors of Lincoln, that those of the Town of Lincoln should be discharged from Toll for their Merchandizes brought to Derby. In their Count they assign for Breach, that two of the Burgesses of Derby by Name did exact and take Toll of several veral of the Burgesſes of Lincoln. The Defendants firſt take Exception to the Count for Variance from the Writ; that the Writ ſuppoſeth and alledgeth the Breach to have been committed by the Mayor and Commonalty, and the Count aſſigns the Breach by two Burgeſſes: The Exception is over-ruled, and the Count held purſuant to the Writ for the Breach of Covenant, which binds the Whole, and muſt be made by the Members. Then it was inſiſted upon in Point of Law, That the Act of the two Burgeſſes did not oblige the Corporation. It was admitted, that the Act of all the Members met together would oblige the Corporation: But it was reſolved, that it was a Breach, and obliged the Corporation; and that the taking of Toll by their Officers, was a taking Toll by the Corporation; and the Reaſon given is, that all the Members of the Corporation cannot, by any common Intendment, be underſtood to meet together to take Toll. Here is an expreſs Judgment, that Crimen egreditur Perſonam, and ſhall render the Corporation liable for Wrongs done to a particular Member of another Corporation. Much ſtronger is the Caſe of the King upon Breaches of the Condition in Law, as I have ſhewn, where the Acts of the particular Members, committed againſt the King's Officers, are adjudged done againſt the King, and render the Corporation liable; but when all meet together, and do an Act, I may ſay it was never yet doubted, but the Corporation was obliged.

Trin. 17. Car.
1. Cro. 540.

The Caſe of Warren, which was cited, of the Place of Common-Council-Man of Coventry, is nothing to this Purpoſe; nor the Reaſon given, That ſuch Place was collateral to a Corporation; which was no more, than that the Court could not ex officio take Notice of it as a fixed Place or Office, but muſt take it upon the Return; it being variously uſed in ſeveral Corporations, as I have ſhewed; and the Cuſtom being returned to chooſe and remove them ad libitum, the Court could not judge otherwiſe, as they may of the Freedom of any Member, which is the ſame in all Corporations. And therefore in the Caſe of Eſtwick and Bret, Common-Council-Men of LONDON, where the Court could take Notice, they were choſen for a Time certain, the Court adjudged they could not be removed without Cauſe, and granted Reſtitution. That the Members of a Corporation can be puniſhed only in one Capacity, and not in both Capacities, and impeaching them for Treasons and Felonies in their Corporate Capacities, will be licensing them, or at leaſt giving them an Exemption and Encouragement to commit theſe Crimes impune in their natural Capacities, is a Strain ſo much above Ela, that I cannot underſtand it: Sir James Bagg's Caſe teacheth other Doctrine, That the puniſhing of any of the Members criminally for infamous Offences, by Fine, Impriſonment, or Pillory, at the King's Suit, doth not exempt the Criminal from Diſfranchiſement.

1. Rol. Reſtit.
Pl. 8. fol. 456.

The many Precedents I have produced do prove, that the Rioters or Members, who committed the Cauſe of Forfeiture, were not diſcharged by proceeding againſt their Liberties. In the Caſe of Norwich, for hanging the Approvers, the Liberty was ſeized for Miſgovernment, and Proceſs iſſued againſt the Mayor to answer it at Westminster, criminaliter. And in the Caſe of Cambridge, the Court told them, they did not put it upon them to answer criminally, but as to their Liberties. And they themſelves knew, that by Seizure of their Liberties they were not diſcharged of their Crime: And therefore in the Plea of Submiſſion, they inſert a Saving, that it might be no Concluſion to them, in Caſe they were impeached criminally. Mr. Recorder doth admit, that if all the Members commit Treason, and be executed, the Politick Perſon is deſtroyed as well as the natural Perſons, and that juſtly too for ſo great an Offence, and therefore the Extent of Forfeitures doth not encourage; but deter Offenders from Commiſſion of the Crimes. And the Citizens, when they know that their Riots, Oppreſſions, and Libelling of the Government, do not only ſubject their Perſons to Punishment, who are the immediate Actors, but alſo ſubject the Conſtitution and Government of their City to be queſtioned, will look upon themſelves under ſtricter Bonds for diſcharging their Duties, than common Subjects are. And therefore the Nobility, who have ſo great a Share in the Government, for Treasons do not only forfeit their Lands and Lives, but their Right of Peerage, which is a ſpecial Truſt for Government; and that was forfeited in Caſes where their Lands were not forfeited, but only during their Lives, upon the Condition annexed to that ſpecial Truſt; as before the Statute of 26 H. 8. of a Nobleman (to him and the Heirs Males of his Body) having entailed Lands, commit Treason, his Lands are not forfeited from his Heir in Tail; but the Dignity is forfeited and extinct, and not ſupported by the Statute of Donis, by Reaſon of the Condition annexed, Nevil's Caſe, 7 Co. fol. 34. The Law is the ſame, where the Dignity is granted in Parliament, or by Act of Parliament, it is no leſs forfeitable in one Caſe than in the other; the Condition the Law annexed is ſtill the ſame. If when the Members of a Corporation, corporaliter aſſembled, commit Treason againſt their Prince, it muſt certainly be acknowledg'd to be againſt their Duty, in whatever Capacity they be conſider'd; eſpecially ſince the Statute of King James, which makes the Oath of Allegiance to be Part of every Freeman's Oath; and the corporate Right is held of the King. If the Law allowed no other way of taking Advantage of Forfeiture of the corporate Right, but by executing of all the Members, the Law itſelf might be accused of as great Tyranny as ever was practiſed by the greateſt of Tyrants. And to this, and nothing elſe, the Principle laid down by Mr. Recorder, that Treasons, Murders, and Felonies of the Members do not affect the Corporation in Law, doth directly tend, viz. to introduce Cruelty.

The Objection that no Acts are corporate Acts, or can affect the Corporation, but what are under the Common Seal, nothing certainly can be more vain than ſuch an Aſſertion. Then no Mayor, Sheriffs or other Officers, ever acted legally in their Choice by the Corporation, becauſe not under the Common Seal: Then no By-Laws are valid as corporate Acts, becauſe not under the Common Seal: The ſame may be ſaid by moſt of the corporate Acts in Cities and Towns.

In the Caſe of Cambridge before the King and Lords, 5 R. 2. Birdfield and other Burgeſſes appear'd on the Behalf of the Commonalty; the Court demanded of them, if they had Authority under the Common Seal of the Town? They answer, The Town had no Common Seal, but that they were choſen at a Common Aſſembly of the Town ſummoned for that Purpoſe, which is the Common-Council, to appear for the Commonalty, to answer and receive ce queux la ley volt; and the Authority was judged ſufficient. The Common-Council, ſay they, are but Miniſters of the City, and the Liberty of the City hath a ſpecial Protection againſt the Perſonal Acts of their Miniſters by the Charter in Parl. 1. E. 3. I have a Copy of that Charter by me from the Records in the Tower. The King's Grant, indeed, is de aſſenſu Prælatorum, Comitum, Baronum, & totius Communitatis Regni in inſtanti Parlamento. The Conſiderations of the Charter are pro melioratione Civitatis; and for the the laudable Services of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty, performed to the King and his Ancestors; but the Grant is only Civ. Civitatis prædict. habendum sibi & successorib. suis. The Words of the Grant are, Quod pro aliqua personali transgressione vel judicio personali alicujus ministri ejusdem Civitatis, non capiatur libertas illius in manum nostram vel heredum nostrorum, nec custos in eadem Civitate ea occasione deputetur, sed hujusmodi Minister prout qualitas transgressionis requirit, puniatur. These are all the Words in that Charter, which refer to this Matter; and the same were granted to them in some former Charters out of Parliament. This appears by this Charter in Parliament, that Libertas Civitatis, which is the Franchise or Corporation, had been seized and might be seized for some personal Miscarriages of the Ministers; for it is merely the King's Grant that exempts them from it for the Time to come. I do agree, that every personal Miscarriage of their Ministers was never any Cause of Forfeiture, but it must be Miscarriages of Omission or Commission, which amounted to a Misgovernment within the Corporation. As 30 H. 2. Rot. Cl. memb. 5. The City of LONDON was taken into the King's Hands, for not levying a Hue-and-Cry upon the Death of Persons who were slain, Hale, Lib. L. fol. 269. H. 3. memb. 2. Their Liberty seized for giving of false Judgment in the Hustings, Lib. L. 309. These are sufficient to shew what are the Personalis Transgressio, and Personale Judicium intended to the Charter; though many the like Instances may be produced. Who are the Ministers intended partly appears by the Charter, but fuller by other Authorities, viz. Mayor, and Aldermen, and Sheriffs, who are in that Charter expressly mention'd. But this Charter did not prove of any great or long Advantage to the City, in differing them as to this Privilege from other Corporations; for they were met with, either by excessive Fines, set upon their Officers for personal Defaults and false Judgments; or that it excused the City only upon the first Offence; and if again they committed the like Offence, it was no longer personal, but become their Offence, because they did not displace their Officer to provide against his reiterated Crimes. And therefore, as Mr. Solicitor hath shewn, the Liberty of the City of LONDON was after this seized into the King's Hands for Misgovernment; besides, the Punishment of their Ministers became difficult, because the Offences being committed in LONDON, the Inquiry of them must be by Men of the same, who favour'd these Officers. And thereupon, to settle this Matter, an Act of Parliament was made by the same King, which is in Print. The principal Grounds of the Act, as the Act recites, 28 Ed. 3. c. 10. were, that the notorious Errors, Defaults, and Misprisions for Default of good Governance of the Mayor, Sheriffs, and Aldermen of LONDON, could not be inquired of, nor found by Men of the same City. The Act settles the Rule, That for the first Default of the Mayor, Sheriffs, and Aldermen, they shall forfeit 1000 Marks; for the second Offence 2000 Marks; and for the third Default, the Franchise and Liberties of the City shall be taken into the King's Hands, and this for the Defaults of their Ministers; which is a plain Judgment in Parliament, that the Franchise of LONDON may be forfeited; and explains the Charter of 1 Ed. 3. And to make the Remedy effectual, these Defaults are omitted to be inquired after by the Juries of Foreign Counties; and so shut the Door against all Pretences for the Charter, 1 E. 3. and former Charters. It is enacted, that the Ordinance shall be held firm and stable, notwithstanding any Franchises, Privileges, or Customs. By this Law the Fines of their Ministers for their first and second Offences, in Breach of good Government, are ascertained, which by the former Charters were at Discretion; but for the third Offence of their Ministers, their Franchise might be seized as before, 1 E. 3. and their other Charters might, for the Offence of Misgovernment, and from thence till this Statute for the second Offence. But neither the Charter 1 E. 3. or this Law, did extend to any outrageous Acts of their Members, as Breach of their Duty and good Government, but only to the personal Acts of the Mayor, Sheriffs, and Aldermen, in their several Trusts committed to their Managery. Under this Law the City of LONDON stood till 1 H. 4. from which King the City expected greater Favours than ordinary, as having merited them by being the chief Instruments of his Promotion to the Crown; but the Manner wherein they were instrumental, I forbear to mention. Yet from that King they could obtain no more, as to the Forfeitures for the personal Offences of their Ministers and Officers, than to be put into equal Condition with other Cities and Boroughs. The Statute, after Recital of 28 Edw. 3. That our Lord the King consider'd the good and lawful Behaviour of the Mayor, Sheriffs, and Aldermen, and of the Commonalty of LONDON towards him, and therefore willing to ease and mitigate the Penalty aforesaid, by Assent of Lords and Commons hath ordained and established, that the Penalty aforesaid, as well of the 1000 and 2000 Marks, and the Seizure of the Franchise, shall not be limited in a Certainty; but the Penalty in the Case shall be by the Advice and Discretion of the Justices, as other Cities and Boroughs be within this Realm; and that the Remnant of the Statutes stand in their Force: So that from 1 H. 4. the City of LONDON never could pretend to any other Exemption from Forfeiture of their Franchise, than other Cities and Boroughs may.

Here I crave Leave to join some other Records to those produced by Mr. Solicitor, particularly relating to the City of LONDON.

2 Pat. Roll. pars 2. memb. 9. The King appoints John Lord Breaton Custos of the City, with Commission to amerce and punish the Aldermen and others of the City, according to their Demerits.

8 Ed. 2. Memb. 3. dorf. A Writ issues for the orderly choosing of the Mayor and Sheriffs, which began then to be tumultuous, and, as the Record saith, Quod quidem populares & plebes, conspiratione inter eas habita, dissidia innumeraque facinora in dicta civitate nocte dieque perpetrantes, conventiculaque clandestina in locis privatis facientes, non vocati & summoniti; hujusmodi Electionibus se immiscent communicationibus & clamoribus. The Writ recites the Elections to have been per Aldermannos & alios Cives discretiores & potentiores; and commands that they be so done, prout in eadem civitate antiquit' fieri consuevit: Otherwise, that the King would not admit them, when presented to him or his Exchequer.

14 Ed. 2. pars 2. memb. 22. The King grants the Office of Mayor, seized into his Hands at the Iter in the Tower, to Robert Kendall, durante bene placito.

15 Ed. 2. pars 1. memb. 2. The King first replevins to the Aldermen, Sheriffs, and Citizens, the Office of Mayor, who present to the King Hamond de Chigwell for the Office, and the King admits him; and then the King grants to the Aldermen, Sheriffs, and Citizens, the Mayoralty to hold at the King's Pleasure.

26 Ed. 2. memb. 5. The King absolutely restores to them the Mayoralty, to choose as before the Seizure into his Hands.

16 R. 2. pars 1. memb. 28. dorf. A Commission issueth to the Duke of Gloucester, and several Lords and Judges; to enquire of the Defaults of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Sheriffs, upon the Statute of 28 Ed. 3.

16 R. 2. memb. 2. dorso. The Commissioners sat at Faton, in Com. Bucks, and the Mayor, Sheriffs, and Aldermen, were convicted of several Miscarriages, and the Liberty of the City (by the Judgment of the Court) seized into the King's Hands; and the King (by the Advice of his Council at Windsor) constituted Baldwyn Badington Mayor, in the Room of William Venner, and two other Sheriffs, and 24 Aldermen, to hold during the King's Pleasure; and they all took their Oaths before the King and his Privy Council: And in that Record the Prior of Christ Church was sworn an Alderman.

16 R. 2. pars 2. memb. 31. In the same Year the King, at the Intercession of the Queen, grants to the Aldermen, Sheriffs, and Citizens, that they might use their Franchises as they did before the Seizure; but with this Clause of Restriction, Quousque aliter ordinaverimus. Upon which the City chose John Hend Mayor, and John Shadworth and Henry Venner Sheriffs, who were removed the same Year by the King, and Henry Dalingrugs appointed Mayor, to hold during the King's Pleasure.

16 R. 2. pars 1. memb. 36. The Record assigns the Cause, Pro minus discreta & insufficienti gubernatione & regimine civitatis nostræ.

20 R. 2. The King makes full Restitution to them of their Liberties, in Print, and in the Charter pleaded.

22 H. 6. memb. 25. dorso. Elections of Mayor and Sheriffs beginning again to be tumultuous, a Writ in the Nature of that in Edward the II'd's Time issued, command the Choice to be per Aldermannos, necnon discretiores dictæ civitatis, adhuc specialiter summonitos, according to the antient Custom: And after in Edward IV's Time the Choice was settled upon the Liverymen by Act of Common-Council.

So then there can remain no Question, but that the Mayor, Sheriffs, Aldermen, and all the Commons in the Council assembled, may commit Acts for which their Franchise may be seized: And though there may be no real Difference where all the Commons assemble, and where only a certain Number elected by the rest; yet I shall not farther discuss that Point at this Time, because that Question doth not arise upon this Record. For the Offences wherewith they are charged are both laid, in the Replication, to be committed by the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty of LONDON, by which must be intended the whole Body.

The whole Body plead to it; but in the Rejoinder they do not traverse; and deny they did the Facts: So that as to the Actors, it must be intended they are the same Persons, who are sued and defend upon Record, which are all the Members of the Corporation.

There are two Branches of the first Offence laid in the Replication:

1. That the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty in Common-Council assembled, did make and publish a Law for levying of Money.
2. That the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty, by Colour of that illegal By-Law, did exact and levy upon the King's Subjects divers great Sums of Money.

In the Rejoinder they take it by Protestation, that no Act or Fact of the Mayor, Aldermen and Common-Council, is an Act or Fact of the Body Corporate or Politick; which is Protesta- tio Juris, non Facti, and is that Error I have endeavoured to refute, that the Acts of all the Members of the Corporation assembled in Common-Council, are not the Acts of the Corporation. But yet by this Protestation of Matter of Law they would insinuate a Not guilty, as to a making the Law; and seem afraid to own it, and do not bare-facedly own it. But after they have intitled themselves to the Markets, in such a Manner as I afterwards consider, then they proceed to number the People, which surely was not done upon any legal Ground to move your Judgments. Then say they, that Time out of Mind there hath been a Common-Council, not exceeding 250 Persons, elected out of the Freemen; but do not say of what Number it doth consist, nor by whom elected, whether by Citizens or Foreigners, by the Mayor, Aldermen, or by whom chosen, so as the Court may judge of the Matter of Law so strongly protested, whether they were the Representatives of the whole Body, or no. Then they say, Sir William Hooker, Mayor, and the Aldermen of the City, ac communiarii, sive cives de Communi Concilio ejusdem Civitatis; which may as well be intended of Mr. Recorder and the Common-Serjeant, who are de Communi Concilio civitatis, as of any other; for the Persons are not named, nor is it said they were elected, nor by whom, nor any Words of Reference to the Custom alledged; but generally, that they met in Communi Concilio secundum consuetudinem civitatis, not referring to the former Custom alledged. But being met, they made the By-Law for the several Sums of Money, to be received for the Use of the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty. Which Rates, and no other, the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty, exegerunt & perceperunt, according to the By-Law. Qui quidem Actus sive Ordinatio est eadem Lex, supposed by the Replication to be made by them the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty. And Traverse absque hoc, that any Law was made for Monies of Persons coming to the Markets aliter vel alio modo, than they had before set forth. I know those learned Gentlemen who signed this Plea, and the other to the Charge of the Petition, if they could have found sufficient Matter of Justification to either, they would not have suffered them to appear upon Record in such uncouth Dresses; and therefore Deficiency of Matter may excuse the Insufficiency of Pleading; for there is Skill shewed in the Contrivance to have drawn on a Demurrer; for nothing was dreaded more than an open Examination of the Facts upon a publick Trial, which would have fallen very little short in both Cases, as to the Aggravation laid in the Replication.

Upon this Pleading the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty have confessed, that the By-Law was made for them, and the Monies to be levied for their Use. They have also confessed, that by Force of that By-Law they exacted and received the Monies; and their Justification will be considered by and by. But as to the making the Law, they neither confess it made by themselves, nor by any deriving Authority under them; neither do they Traverse or deny it. For the Averment, that it is the same Law, and the Traverse, that any Law was made aliter vel alio modo, is no legal Denial that the whole Corporation (consisting of Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty) did not make that Law upon which an Issue could be taken. Besides, if Mr. Recorder would have the Court intend, that the Common-Council set forth in the Rejoinder, is a distinct Body of Men from the Politick Body of the whole City, the whole Plea amounts but to the General Issue. What the Consequence thereof will be, I will consider upon the the Point of the Crime set forth ; but at present the Court cannot otherwise intend, but that they that made this Law and that Petition, were the same Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty, who are expressly charged therewith, and in their Pleas they do not traverse or deny it. It is just such another Plea, as where an Information is brought against several Persons for killing and taking away of the King's Deer ; the Defendants should plead, that certain Persons (not naming them, nor from whence they come, nor by whom sent) pretended a Custom to kill the King's Deer, and according to that Custom they killed the King's Deer, for the Defendants Use, and the Defendants carried away the Deer. Who (I pray) shall the Court intend killed the Deer, but the Defendants, or some by their Authority ?

I now come to the main Point of the Case :

Whether by any Thing disclosed upon those Pleadings, there appeared a sufficient Title to the King, for the Court to give Judgment of Seizure of the Franchise of the City of LONDON ? The Title I insist upon for the King, is for a Forfeiture by Acts done by the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty, in Breach of their Duty, and the Publick Trust reposed in them upon their first Election. It is my Part to maintain, that the Causes assigned are sufficient in themselves, and sufficiently disclosed to the Court, for the Court to give Judgment upon ; I shall consider them :

First, As they stand upon the Replication, as Crimes laid to their Charge, which will amount to a Forfeiture of the Franchise.

Secondly, How they stand upon the Rejoinder and other Pleadings, whether sufficiently traversed or denied, confessed and voided, or in the least extenuated.

First, The Crimes laid in the Replication, are two in general :

1. Oppression of the King's Subjects, by Colour of Law : And,
2. Stirring up Seditions, and Libelling their Prince and his Government.

These two are only laid in the Replication, but collected out of many sufficient Causes for Seizure of any Franchise. The notorious Riots committed in the Face of Justice, to the comforting and abetting of Criminals, and Terror of the Judges ; and those not only not suppressed or punished by the Magistrates ; but countenanced and encouraged by them. The Tumult of many Thousands, exposing and burning in Effigy several of the King's Protestant Subjects, not suppressed or punished by the Magistrates ; but by some encouraged, and by Contributions supported. The Encouragement of Libels and Libellers of the King and Government, by and within the City. These and many more I could enumerate, are common Offences to the City of LONDON, with other Cities, and populous Corporations ; but these are such as have been in the Cases produced adjudged Causes of Forfeiture of the Franchises for Misgovernment.

And in these LONDON hath but imitated itself in former Times, and other Cities and Boroughs.

But in the Cases insisted upon, LONDON hath outdone itself, and all other Cities and Boroughs too, by assuming a Power to make Laws for levying of Money upon Foreigners for their own Use ; and to deliberate, adjudge, and condemn their Prince's publick Actions, and publickly libelling of them to his Subjects. Never did LONDON before now, or any other City or Borough (in Times of Peace, and not under an actual Rebellion) commit the like Breaches upon the Government, to assume a Power superior to any the King hath in like Cases, to lay Burdens upon this People, and to levy Money, and to invade the King's Prerogative, by deliberating and determining of his publick Actions to the Consequences thereof, and publickly libelling them to the rest of his Subjects. And in Execution of such unjust Power, that the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty, did make and publish a Law for levying of Money upon the King's Subjects, as well Foreigners, as others, coming to the publick Markets with Provisions. And chargeth several Particulars, and divers other Sums imposed upon all Comers to the Markets, whether they sell or no ; and that if any Person refused to pay, he should be put out of the Market.

Again, that the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty, by Pretext of this Law (made by themselves, and for their own private Lucre) did exact and levy yearly of the King's Subjects ; Sums of Money amounting to five thousand Pounds per Annum, and converted and disposed the same to their own Use, in Subversion of the good Government of the City ; in Oppression, and depauperating the King's Subjects coming to the Markets ; in raising the Prices of Provisions in Markets, to the Damage of the King's Subjects ; to the manifest Dishonour of the King and his Crown, contrary to the Trust reposed in them as a Body Politick.

In the first Branch of their levying Money, there is this Crime laid to their Charge : An Abusion of the Liberty of a Body Politick in its highest Point of Trust, viz. of making Laws for the better Government of its Members, and other the King's Subjects repairing to the City. This is no distinct Liberty from the Body Politick, but incident to it, as hath been shewn, and therefore cannot for any Abuse be singly lost, or severed from their Body Politick, no more than the Body Politick can subsist or attain the Ends of good Government without such a Power, which Law raiseth for a better Discharge of that Trust. But the Law entrusteth no Corporation with a Power to levy Money for their private Profit, be the Colour what it will ; nor can such Power be derived from the Crown to any Corporation ; neither can any Authority be produced, that gives the least Countenance to such Authority : The Case of Blackwell-hall is expressly against it ; that was ruled good, because it was pro bono publico, and not pro privato lucro ; it was but a small Reward for the Officer who attended that Business ; the City got nothing thereby. Corporations, as well as other Communities not incorporate, are by Law entrusted with Power to raise Money for Uses publick to the Community ; but such Power is confined to the Precincts of the Community ; they cannot lay their Charge upon Foreigners ; as for Reparation of Churches, Highways, Bridges, and such like publick Charges. These Crimes, at Common Law, came the nearest Treason of any. Sir Thomas Halley, 20 R. 2. for preferring a scandalous Bill, was adjudged to die as a Traitor ; his Life spared at the Instance of the Bishops ; and after 1 H. 4. N. 9. upon his Petition the Judgment was reversed. To lay Impositions upon the King's Subjects was not only an Incroachment on Royal Power, but of the Power of Parliaments. And what Incroachments of Royal Power were Treason, what not, was in the Breast of Judges, as appears by the Petition in Parliament 21 Ed. 3. N. 15. and after settled by the Statute 25 Ed. 3. Certainly that they have an immediate Tendency to a Rebellion, is evident. To alienate the Subjects Affection from their Prince is a great Step that Way ; and for so great a Body of Men (both for Riches and Reputation) to adjudge and publish, that the King, by his Prerogation, hath interrupted the publick Justice Justice of the Kingdom, and the necessary Provisions for his own Safety, and the Preservation of his Protestant Subjects, is, in Effect, to determine and publish the King unfit for the Government, and by necessary Consequence would aliene the Affections of such as should believe them. Add to this the Power they assume, and justly, to levy Money to their own Use, upon Foreigners as well as Citizens, and that to any Sum; which Mr. Recorder pressed as the Force of his Argument, that little or more made no Difference. When those they had persuaded to draw their Affections, shall be assured of such a Legislative Power to assist them with Supplies; what Consequences may be expected, every Man may judge: Especially if one Thing more had been effected, as was contrived and endeavoured to be established; that LONDON should become the Asylum of all Malecontents, as Rome was heretofore, who might there vent their Gall against the Government impune, and without Fear of Conviction.

I shall consider the Offences particularly, as they stand upon the Replication, as to the levying of Money.

1. They are charged, that they in Common-Council assembled, respecting only their private Lucre, and in Breach of the Trust reposed in them for good Government, did assume upon them an illegal and unjust Power and Authority, to levy Money upon the King's Subjects to their own Use, without any lawful Authority: And the City of LONDON have, by several Charters, such express Power given them, but it is confined to their own Members; neither the King nor the Law never gave them any Power over Foreigners, to charge them for the private Profit of this City. Now to assume such a Power is a plain Usurpation to a Body Politick upon the Crown and the Law, and is a manifest Breach of that Trust for good Government, by an open and avowed Oppression of the King's Subjects by Colour of Law, which is the worst of Oppressions; and therefore the Law not only gives a new Name, but layeth heavier Penalties upon Oppressions committed by Persons in publick Trust. It is called Extortion and Oppression, where committed by any Person in publick Offices or Trusts. It is not sufficient that the injured Persons may have their Actions, or that they may be fined at the King's Suit; but the Law gives a Forfeiture of the Places of Trust, and all may be exacted from them, if the King please. The Persons injured may recover their Damages: They may be fined at the King's Suit, and their Offices seized, the Law adjudging all these Penalties but equal to the Crime. The Markets, as they stand upon the Replication, must be intended free Markets, as the Streets of LONDON are for all the King's Subjects to have Recourse to with their Provisions, for Supply of the Inhabitants, without Payment of any Toll. The Sums of Money, for buying whereof the Law is made, as set out in the Replication, cannot be for any Toll of Markets, nor for Piccage or Stallage, which may be annexed to Markets; but Imposition upon the Persons, or Goods, coming and brought thither, whether they sell, or not, and whether they have Stalls, or not. And the Process is admirable, that if the Person refuse to pay, he shall be turned out of the Market; as if the Law were, that every Man that walks in the Streets should pay 6*d.* and if he refuse, he should be turned out of the City. I must confess, the Process is as good as the Law. Thus this Crime stands upon the Replication. How have the Mayor, Citizens and Commonalty varied it in their Rejoinder? Not one Jot; for as to this Point of Charge, that they usurped such a Power, and did execute it by making a Law for levying of Money in Oppression of the King's Subjects, they give no Answer at all, either by traversing or denying, confessing and avoiding. If they have traversed their making of the Law, the special Plea had amounted to the General Issue; but as it is, there is no Answer at all given to it. And therefore, if the making of such a Law in the Manner set forth in the Replication, be an Abusion of the Franchise, Judgment of Seizure must be given for that Abuse.

The Reasons given by Mr. Recorder, that the making of this Law will not forfeit the Franchise, were these:

(1.) That if the King had made such a By-Law in the Charter of Incorporation, that would not have forfeited the Corporation; no more can it, if it be made by the Corporation afterwards.

I do not understand the mystick Inference of this Argument, unless it be to continue the Allegory of resembling Corporations to Kings, that they can do no Wrong, and consequently can forfeit nothing by their Acts, though against Law. Where the King annexeth any Power to any Offices or Corporations, which the Law allows them not to exercise, the Law doth not adjudge the whole Grant void, but only those Powers: But if Officers or Corporations shall resume upon themselves to exercise Powers which the King could not grant, against the End of their Institution, by Execution and Oppression of the King's Subjects, it is not sufficient that the Acts are void, because illegal; but the Offenders shall be punished in such Manner as the Law provides.

(2.) In all the Suits where By-Laws have been adjudged unreasonable and void, it was never held or said, that such By-Laws forfeited the Corporation; and if it should, every little Mistake in the By-Law should forfeit the Corporation, which would render the State of Corporations very unsteady and uncertain.

(1.) I answer, first, That in those Suits between Party and Party, there was no Occasion for the Court to declare how far the By-Law has intrenched upon the Prerogative, by Breach of the Condition in Law annexed to the Liberty. But I remember, in the Case of the Mayor of Wiccomb, Mich. 27 Car. 2. upon Complaint in this Court to my Lord Chief Justice Hales, of his Refusal to sign the Poors Rates, he publicly declared to him, That if he persisted in his Obstinacy, a Quo Warranto might be brought to seize the Franchise.

(2.) There is a plain Difference between By-Laws, for regulating the Actions of the Members, and others within the Corporation, with a Penalty to enforce Obedience, and a Law directly for levying of Money: In the latter Case, the levying of the Money is the principal End of the Law; and to levy it pro privato lucro, and upon Foreigners, can receive no Palliation from being a Mistake against all the Laws and Authorities that are extant. But in the former Cases they have a Semblance for common Benefit, and possibly might be for the Benefit of all the Members, could the Restriction be made by Law; and the Penalty is but collateral, to enforce Obedience, and will stand and fall as the Law determines of the Principal. And the Law no where determines all the Cases, where the Liberty of any Members (as to Trade) may not, or may be restrained, whereby there is Room left for Mistakes; but against so known and universal a Principle, that no Corporation can levy Money for their private Profit, no Excuse of Mistake can be admitted.

(3.) That which shelters all other By-Laws from Oppression, is wanting in this; that as to the Recovery of the Penalty, they refer to a Course of Law, whereby they submit their By-Law to the Judgment of Law for its Validity, that if they have committed any Mistake, it may be corrected by Law. But here the Remedy is plain Force; if the Person do not pay, he shall be turned out of the Market with his Goods: What was settled by Wrong, shall be recovered by Force. Thus Mr. Recorder's arguing makes the Duty a meer voluntary Payment; it is solve, aut abi, he hath his Election to pay, or be gone. I have not met with a more arbitrary Principle asserted, or defended in a Court of Law. Should the King lay an Imposition of 12d. on every one that entered Whitehall, with Order to the Porter to turn him out upon Refusal of Payment, What a Dust would this make, that the Subjects Rights to have Access to their Prince were invaded? Why, it is no more than solve, aut abi. The Right of all the King's Subjects, to come with the Provisions to publick Markets, is far greater, and as great as of the Lord Mayor, or of any of the Citizens to come there; and the putting such Terms upon their Right is absolutely illegal in the worst Sense that Word is at any Time used. And herein Mr. Recorder was in the Right, that more or less are not material, because every Sum imposed in such Case is illegal, and what is illegal, cannot be reasonable; which absolutely precludes the Averment, that the Sums were reasonable; which obtains only in such Cases, where, of common Right, some Sum may be taken.

(4.) In the last Place, the questioning of a Liberty in a Quo Warranto, whether upon the Title; or for a Forfeiture, is upon the Right between the King and the Corporation. In Case of Mistakes and common Errors committed, those are not to be justified upon a Question of Right; and if they be, they are no longer Mistakes, but wilful Crimes. And therefore, in all Times such Mistakes, both in making of Laws and Matters of Fact, have been passed by, and pardoned by the Charter of Confirmation, etiamsi abusi fuerint. And in the Multitudes of Quo Warranto's that have been brought, most ended by Submission before Pleader. But where it shall be insisted upon in Point of Right, though in a smaller Point of Oppression, upon such Grounds as may equally intitle them to commit the greatest Oppressions, Magis & Minus do not affect the Case in Point of the Right of Forfeiture; but the Question is, Whether they have broken their Trust? And if so adjudged, Forfeiture is a necessary Consequence.

(3.) The third Reason Mr. Recorder insisted upon is 19 H. 7. cap. 7. That there had been no Need of that Law, if Corporations By-Laws would be Cause of Seizure.

(1.) I answer, That Statute extends not to the By-Laws of Cities and Boroughs incorporated; but to Guilds and special Fraternities.

(2.) It extends to good By-Laws as well as bad, for greater Caution, that they put no new By-Laws in Ure till allowed; but the Allowance makes them neither better nor worse, only shelters for the 40 l. Penalty, as in the Taylors of Ip-swich's Case, c. 11. b. f. 54. So that the By-Laws are but of the same Force they were before that Statute, &c. If they are good Laws they may be executed without Allowance; and I have before shewn, that the Addition of another Penalty doth not dispense with the Penalty upon Breach of the Condition given by the Common Law. The other Crime of Oppression they are charged with, is, that they did exact and levy, to their own Use, the several Sums, and others, amounting to 5,000 l. per Ann. in Oppression of the King's Subjects, and raising the Prices in the Markets for their own private Lucre.

Secondly, In their Rejoinder, taking by Protestation they are not of that Value, the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty acknowledge the exacting, and receiving the Monies to their own private Use, but say not of what Value they are; but be they of what Value they will, attempt a Justification. It must be admitted, that if the Justification be insufficient, the Court cannot otherwise judge of the Crime than as it is laid in the Replication; where it appears to be as great Extortion and Oppression of the King's Subjects, and continued for many Years together, by Colour of an Authority usurped by them, as ever was practised by any Subjects upon their Fellow Subjects; which cannot be denied to be an apparent Breach of that Trust committed to them, for the better Administration of the Laws and Justice to the King's Subjects.

The Parts of Justification are these:

(1.) A Custom, that, Time out of Mind, there have been publick Markets within the City.

(2.) They make Title to these publick Markets by Prescription, but claim not any Toll of common Right belonging to these Markets.

So that both upon the Custom alledged, and Prescription made, the Court cannot otherwise intend but they were free Markets, as in Truth they were. Then they alledge a Custom, that, Time out of Mind, they used at their Charge to provide Places where the Markets were held, and Stalls and Stations, and other Accommodations for the Market-People, and Surveyors, and other Officers, for the better Government of the Market-People; and did cleanse, and were bound to cleanse the Market-Places. And for defraying of their Charges for all the Time aforesaid, they had, and used to have, diversa rationabilia Tolneta, Ratas, sive denariorum summas, of all Persons coming to the Market, for Stalls, Stations, and other Accommodations for the selling of their Provisions. Although they received Monies, Time out of Mind, and until the By-Laws, they cannot tell what these Sums were, nor what to call them, whether Tolls, Rates, or Sums of Money. Tolls they could not be, that is admitted of all Hands, because against common Right, and to be paid upon Entry into the Market, whether sold or not. They do not intitle themselves so much as to Pickage, or Stallage; for they make no Title to the Land where the Markets have been, or are held. And we all know, that before, the Act of Parliament provided, at the publick Charge, fit Places, and settled them upon a publick Trust for Market-People, what Provision was made of Places by the City, viz. in the publick Streets, where there ever was a free Market for Provisions, as would have been made evident, had the City tendered a sufficient Issue. Besides, the Sums charged in the Replication can neither be of Pickage or Stallage, but laid upon Goods brought within the Market, whether the Vender made Use of any Stall, or Breaking of the Ground, or no. Neither is it averred in this Plea, or by any Words of Reference can it be inferred, that the Sums in the Replication are the same with those they claim; they claim only by Custom, rationabilia Tolneta, Ratas, sive denariorum summa.

(3.) Mr. Recorder would justify this Plea, that such a general Claim, with an Averment that they are reasonable, is a sufficient Justification of particular Charges, which are against common Right; and insisted upon the Claim of the City of LONDON of the Water-Bailiff's Office, with the Fees thereto belonging; and the Case of Maidenhead, in Palmer's Reports, of the Market, with the Toll thereto belonging. These Precedents answer themselves, there was no particular Charge for the Toll or Fees, but what is charged particularly is answered; besides, the Toll and Fees

Fees are claimed of common Right, as belonging to the Market and Office. In Malden-head's Case the Judges agreed, that Toll, according to common Right might be granted by general Words; but Toll against common Right could not, nor be prescribed for but in Certainty. In that Case reported by my Lord Hales, Franchise, Pl. 11. the Difference is expressly taken; and the Authorities cited of 9 H. 6. 45. 11 H. 6. 14. Fit. Avovery 126. That Demands against common Right ought to be prescribed for in Certainty; and the Authorities produced by Mr. Recorder in the Lord Cobham's Case, 1 Len. 218. Flickman's Case, 2 Roll. Abridg. 125. and Roll. 2. Abridg. 265. The Case of Dublin for Keyage or Craneage, so the Case of Hill and Hawks, and the Bellman of Litchfield, prove it. No Man questions but Cities and Boroughs, upon good Consideration, may prescribe for Sums of Money against common Right; and may prescribe for an apt Remedy for Recovery of such Sums; but all the Authorities prove it must be prescribed for Certainty, that the Court may judge of the Reasonableness of it. And whoever claims against common Right, must make out his Demand, both in Certainty, and that it is reasonable; it is otherwise, where according to Right, as in Fines for Copyhold Estates, it is incumbent on the Tenant to shew if unreasonable. Besides, this Custom is void, because they do not intitle themselves to any Remedy for these uncertain Sums.

(4.) The next Part of the Justification is, that Time out of Mind, within the City there hath been a Common-Council; the Imperfection whereof I have already observed.

(5.) They set forth a Custom for this Common-Council to make Laws for the better Government of the Markets, and appointing convenient Places and Times for the Markets. Et ex Assessione & in certitudinem reductione of reasonable Tolls, Rates, or Sums of Money to be paid by Persons coming to the Market, pro Stallis, Stationibus, & aliis Accommodationibus; so as these Laws be profitable to the King and his People, and not contrary to the Laws of the Land. For the first Part of a special Custom, for the better Government of the Markets, and appointing convenient Places and Times, it needed not; for it is incident of common Right to every Lord of a Market, and the Grantee of every Market, without special Clauses, hath the same Power and Trust: And yet it is ushered in with great Solemnity, a Confirmation by Magna Charta, a Charter in Parliament, 1 Ed. 3. & 7 R. 2. to make good a Custom, which is but the Common Law. Unless they set up this Custom to divert themselves, who have pleaded themselves Lords of the Markets, and so to fix it in others who are no Lords of the Markets; and thence to infer that the Custom having intrusted others, than the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty, with the Government of the Market, they the Lords of the Market ought not to suffer for the Misgovernment of those other Members. The second Part of the Custom is insensible. To make Laws and Orders, ex Assessione & in certitudinem reductione of reasonable Tolls, Rates, or Sums of Money, to be paid by all Persons coming to the Markets, for Stalls, Stations, and all other Accommodations. What is meant by Assessione without an Anglice, I cannot imagine; it is no Law Term; in its proper Signification, it signifieth sitting together; whence our Sessions quarterly, and Sessions of Parliament, have their Name. The general Rates set by the Parliament upon the several Counties are sometimes called Assessments, and those intrusted with equally dividing the Rates in the several Parcels upon the Inhabitants, are called Assessors. In which of these Senses, or what Sense, the City's Counsel apply this Word, I cannot resolve; for Mr. Recorder did not resolve it. It seems by the subsequent Words to be explained in certitudinem ponere, and to have some Resemblance to the Parochial Assessments, where the Duty before is imposed by Law, but the ascertaining of every Man's Proportion is done by the Assessors: And this Mr. Recorder inclined to in his Endeavours to support the Custom, generally for reasonable Rates. And in this Sense too the City seems to understand it, by waving of the Assessment in their Re-butter. In our Sur-rejoinder we traverse the Prescription of taking of the Rates mention'd to be by the By-Law assessed, and reduced into Certainty; which Issue they wave, and insist only upon their Prescription generally alledged. Now, if taken in this Sense, the Clause is wholly insensible and uncertain, because the Tolls, Rates, or Sums of Money to be paid, are not referred to any former Law that imposed them; they do not so much as refer to the Prescription, and the Sums claimed thereby; but the Clause is independent and absolute of itself. Neither can the Court now intend it to refer to those Sums claimed, because we would have so intended it; and therefore took an apt Traverse; but the City waved it in their Re-butter; and they do lie under this Dilemma, that either it must be so intended, and then being traversed and waved by them, the Issue must be taken against them; or it cannot be so intended, and then the Custom is uncertain and insensible. And it cannot be intended by the Court for levying of Money by a new Imposition for the private Advantage of the City; that (as I have shewn) would be against Law, and is contrary to the Prescription they have made, and would vitiate their Plea, by claiming the Thing by Prescription, and by a new Law.

(6.) They set forth a By-Law, which imports a new Imposition throughout, of several Sums to be paid to the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty; and they provide a new Remedy, that the Refuser shall be removed out of the Market. They aver, indeed, the Sums are reasonable, but set out no Fact upon which the Court may anyways judge they are so; which are incumbent upon him that will claim any thing against the common Right. They do not so much as aver, that the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty laid out one Penny out of their Revenue for providing the Markets and Stalls, or what other Stations or Accommodations they furnished the Market-People with, so as to give the least Support to this extraordinary By-Law.

And this Averment was industriously left out, lest Issue might be taken upon it; and sufficiently proved, that both the Places, Stalls, and Conveniencies, were provided for out of the publick Monies granted by Parliament, in Trust for all the King's Subjects coming to the Market, as we have set out in our Sur-rejoinder. Then it would have evidently appeared, that this By-Law was not only in Breach of the common Law Trust reposed in them for good Government, but in Breach of that Trust reposed in them by Act of Parliament. For all the King's Subjects, and these publick Monies receiv'd and laid out upon that Trust, are made the Consideration to ground the Subjects Oppressions upon by this By-Law. Though they laid out not one Penny, as appears to the Court, yet they acknowledge to have received all the Money to their own Use; and their Justification failing, it must be intended, they did it in such Manner as is set out in the Replication, which chargeth the highest Oppression that can be possibly committed by Subjects upon Subjects, and is destructive of common Justice and good Government. It is likewise as great an Usurpation upon the Crown to lay Taxes

Taxes upon the King's Subjects without his Authority, and openly and avowedly to justify it. How much superior this Offence is to those, whereupon Instances of Seizure have been given, I leave to the Observation of the Court. Their Reply, that the Toll only can be forfeited, or at most the Markets, can weigh little. That the Markets cannot be forfeited, Mr. Recorder admits upon the Authority of the Case of Maidenhead, that Toll is not incident to a Market. This Imposition is wholly foreign to the Markets, which must be intended Free-Markets, wherein all the King's Subjects have Right to sell and buy, discharged of Toll, which shall be intended to have its Commencement by Erection, not by Grant to any Person, which the King may do in Cases of Fairs and Markets. Or if they be granted to any Person, if without Tolls, such Grants are upon Trust, for Benefit of the King's Subjects to buy and sell in; and the Grantee intrusted with the Rule and good Government thereof, for the Benefit of others. Besides, the Seizing of the Markets is no Punishment of the Corporation, but of all the King's Subjects, who are the Persons oppressed, and whose Rights are invaded by this Imposition. The Oppression is by the Corporation, and by an Authority they claim over the King's Subjects, to lay an Imposition upon their Goods, and to levy it by Force; which is an Abuse of the Power the Law hath intrusted them with, and a Misuser of the Franchise to Oppression. To forfeit the Sums exacted and levied is idle, and no Punishment; for they never had Right to them, and so no Right can be forfeited. In the Case of Maidenhead, where a reasonable Toll was granted, they had a Right to Toll, which may be forfeited by Abuser, in taking an unreasonable Toll; but where there is no Right to take any Thing, there is no Right to be forfeited, but that Right by Colour whereof the Extortion or Oppression is committed. If an Officer, by Colour of his Office, oppresses, the Office is forfeited, or the Officer may be fined; the Cases were cited by Mr. Solicitor. The Levying of two Shillings for the Penalty of breaking the Assize, forfeited the View of Frankpledge. Using of false Weights and Measures forfeited the Franchise of Evesham. And generally, whatever is an apparent Breach of good Government, wherewith every Franchise is intrusted, will in Point of Right between the King and the Franchise amount to a Forfeiture; because it is a Breach of publick Trust reposed in them by Law.

2. I shall conclude with the last Branch of the Crimes laid to their Charge:

For invading the King's Prerogative, and publickly libelling of him, and his Publick Acts to the People.

The Replication chargeth the several Facts thus:

(1.) That the Mayor, Citizens, and Commonalty, in Common-Council assembled, maliciously, advisedly, and seditiously, and without any lawful Authority, took upon them to censure the King, and the Prorogation of Parliament made by the King.

(2.) That they gave their Suffrages, and order'd a Petition should be presented to the King, in the Name of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty, containing the scandalous Matter alleged.

(3.) That they maliciously, advisedly, and seditiously, and to the Intent the said Petition should be dispersed and made publick, to persuade them, that the King, by the Prorogation, had obstructed the publick Justice of the Kingdom, and to stir them up to a Dislike of the King's Person and Government, and to disturb the Peace of the Kingdom, did order the said Petition (containing the said scandalous Matter) to be printed.

(4.) They afterwards maliciously, advisedly, and seditiously, and to the Intent that the Petition should be dispersed and published among the King's Subjects, to alien and withdraw their Affections from the King and his Government, did print, and cause to be printed and published the said Petition, in Contempt and Scandal of the King and his Government, and to the promoting and exciting of Sedition and Disturbance of the Peace within this Kingdom.

These Crimes, at Common Law, were contra Pacem, and punishable by Fine and Imprisonment in particular Subjects, where committed by Persons in publick Office, or intrusted with Government and Preservation of the Peace, they are of a deeper Dye. In the Title of the Statute, 13 Car. 2. cap. 1. for Preservation of the King's Person and Government, they are called Seditious Practices and Attempts; for Prevention whereof that Law provides, "That if any Person or Persons shall maliciously and advisedly (by Writing or Printing) express, publish, or declare any Words, Sentence, or Thing, to incite or stir up the People to Hatred or Dislike of the Person of his Majesty, or the established Government; such Person is made incapable of any Office or Place of Trust, and to be further punished, according to the Common Law and Statutes in such Cases."

This Law takes Notice, they were Crimes at Common Law, and punishable as seditious Practices. Sir James Bagg's Case allows Conspiracies and ignominious Crimes to be Causes of Disfranchisement; much more a Conspiracy of all the Members to libel the Government, and alienate the Affections of the People from their Prince.

Now what Answer do they give to these Charges in either Rejoinder?

To the first and last they give none at all; they shew no Authority for them in Common-Council to debate, deliberate upon, and to determine of Prorogations of Parliaments by the King; or the Consequences thereof; which are, inter ardua Regni, and not to be treated of but by the King's Writ: They are not of the King's and Kingdom's Common-Council, but intrusted to advise in Affairs of the City, and ne futor ultra crepidam. They are charged to have done this advisedly, seditiously, and without any Authority; and it is charged Precedent to the Petition.

To the fourth for printing or publishing of it, to the Intent that it should be dispersed amongst the King's Subjects to alienate and withdraw their Affections from the King, laid to be 13 Jan. 32 Car. 2. they saw it was printed by Samuel Roycroft, by the Mayor's Appointment; Quæ quidem Petitio & Impressio sunt eadem Petitio, Impressio, & Publicatio, in the Replication mention'd; and traverse, Absque hoc quod aliqua Petitio concern' Prorogationem præd' fact', ordinat', publicat' sic impress' fuit aliter, vel alio modo quam; but do not add vel alio tempore. In which Respect this Plea is stronger than the former, to involve the City in the Guilt.

Then they own the Petition was voted and order'd to be preferred and printed Nemine contradicente, to be sure to leave not one Citizen out of the Guilt; but they do aver, the Printing was to undeceive their Fellow Citizens, whereas the Charge is, that it was to deceive them. The whole Plea amounts but to the general Issue, admitting the Petition were justifiable, and the making of the Petition lawful. Many Things in themselves are lawful, yet done with an evil Intent, and for an evil Purpose, become unlawful and and criminal, and upon Not Guilty, Proof must be made of the evil Intent where the Thing itself is unlawful; there needs no other Proof. To lie under an Hedge on Suters Hill is lawful; but to lie there in wait to kill or rob a Man, is unlawful, and imports Scandal. To lay Wooll near the Sea-side is lawful; but laying it there with an Intent to export it, is criminal, and forfeits the Wooll. And it is not good in Pleading to answer such Intent with contrary Averments; but where the Intent is Substance, it must be traversed or denied specially, otherwise the Plea amounts to but the general Issue. This Manner of Defence, or Shadow of Justification, proves one special Ingredient of the Charge; that it was done adviseate. The City say it was done upon weighty Considerations, and many Occurrences deliberated upon, and relate to them, all upon Record, that the Court may judge whether they had not good Reason for what they did. And if they could judge, that their whole History taken together are not sufficient Considerations for any Subjects to agree or order any Petition to be preferred and printed, to stir up the Subjects to a Dislike of the King's Person and Government, which is charged upon them, and not answered; the Court must adjudge the Fact to be done maliciously, and seditiously: But the Words of the Petition are in themselves scandalous to the King and Government. Petitioning is lawful, and the City of LONDON have often petitioned the King with good Acceptation, and observed a good Decorum, becoming Subjects, both in the Matter and Manner of their Petitions; they used not to advise or meddle in Matters of State, but when sent for to advise, they confined themselves to the Affairs of the City. They never before, as I have met with, charged the King's Acts of State as Interruptions of the Prosecution of the publick Justice.

The Words of the Petition are, Your Petitioners were extremely surprized at the late Prorogation, whereby the Prosecution of the Publick Justice of the Kingdom, and the making the Provisions necessary for the Preservation of your Majesty, and your Protestant Subjects, hath raised an Interruption. To delay, interrupt, or deny Justice, spoken of any Person intrusted with the Administration of Justice, and spoken of him in Point of his Trust, always imports Scandal; in the Case of the common Magistrates, they do necessarily import Breach of Duty; neither in common Parlane amongst the Vulgar, nor any History or Author, that I have met with, were they ever used in any Sense of Credit or Reputation to the Person of whom they were spoken or published. Interruption of Justice is a greater Imputation than Delay barely, because the one may be a meer Omission, but Interruption imports some Act, whereby Justice is stopped; but both are temporary Denials of Justice, as Denial is an absolute Stop of Justice. Nulli negabimus aut differemus Justitiam, are not only the Words, but the Duty of every King. To say or publish of, or to a King, in the Point of the Exercise of his Kingly Office, and a Point of as high Trust as any is, that of the Prorogation of Parliaments, that he hath interrupted the Prosecution of the publick Justice of the Kingdom, imports the greatest Scandal imaginable. For it was more of the King's Duty than of either Houses of Parliament, to promote the Prosecution of publick Justice, especially in the Cases set forth, which so nearly concerned his Person; and therefore the charging of the King with the Interruption of that Justice, is of greater Imputation to the King; and the more Instances they give, it is an Aggravation of their Crime, by charging the King with interrupting the publick Justice in all these Instances. And there is as much Venom concealed in as few Words, as ever I met with. Tacitus did never outdo the Penner of that Petition, whereby all the principal Attributes, the Law makes necessary for Princes, are impeached at once, both the Judgment, Mercy, and Wisdom of the King. The Interruption of the publick Justice reflects upon his Justice in a high Manner. The Interruption of the Means of his own Preservation, besides his Justice, reflects upon his Wisdom; that the King should not take Care thereof, or did not foresee the Danger he put himself into, by the Prorogation. The Interruption of the Means for the Preservation of his Protestant Subjects, impeacheth his Mercy too, and chargeth the King with Cruelty to his Subjects, in taking no better Care for their Preservation, when under such imminent Dangers; with a secret Insinuation, that as he had stopped Justice against his Popish Subjects, so he was regardless of the Preservation of his Protestant Subjects. What greater Malice could be inclosed in a Nutshell? If Words were dubious and of a double Signification, and might be taken in a good Sense as well as bad, they ought not to be published by Subjects of their Prince; and when charged to be spoken or published in the worst Sense, to withdraw the Subjects Affections from their Prince, the Court cannot intend them spoken in any other Sense; that must appear upon the Evidence, which cannot be in this Case, because they have not pleaded the General Issue, nor traversed that Point. But here the Words can bear no other Sense, but a direct Scandal to the King and his Government, in the Point of Prorogation of Parliaments. That the City so understood them is evident by the Petition, in that very Clause, where they say, they were extremely surprized at the late Prorogation. Why should they be surprized? If the King had done nothing thereby, but what was just and good for his People, they had often tasted of his Goodness, and could not be surprized at that. It must then be some very ill Thing in the Prorogation, that so extremely surprized them, and filled them with such Terrors, as throughout the Petition they express. And they discover their Minds plainly, that the Effects of the Prorogation were the Causes of their Surprisal, viz. the Interruption of the Prosecution of the publick Justice of the Kingdom, and of making the necessary Provisions for the Preservation of the King and his Protestant Subjects; and in the next Paragraph they explain themselves further, and call that a Delay, which before they called an Interruption; that they were even impatient of the least Delay, of the long hoped for Security, whilst they see the King's Life invaded, and the true Religion undermined, and their Families and innocent Posterity likely to be subjected to Blood, Confusion, and Ruin. The panick Fear, and dismal Consequences, are charged upon the Prorogation. And to what other Purpose do they publish this severe Sentence upon the Prorogation, with their dismal Fears, but to affrighten the King's Subjects, and beget the like Fears in them? The natural Consequence whereof is to withdraw their Affection: Oderunt quem metuerunt Populi.

Mr. Recorder, though he could not produce one Authority, that to interrupt publick Justice, was ever used in a good or justifiable Sense; yet endeavours to evade the Scandal of the Words by proper Answers.

That these Words are not spoken of the King, but of the Prorogation, as Consequences of it. Is not this Quibbling? The Prorogation is only the King's Act of proroguing the High Court of Parliament. And to charge the Acts of a King, or other subordinate Magistrate in Execution of his Office, with Injustice, Folly, or Insanity, is the

the same Thing as to charge the Persons themselves.

No, saith Mr. Recorder, unless the Action had been charged to have been done with such Intention; but they do not charge the King: And that it is so explained in another Part of the Petition, by saying, "But that which supports them against Despair, is the Hopes they derive from your Majesty's Goodness; that your Intention was, by this Prorogation, to make way for your better Concurrence with the Counsel of your Parliament." Evil Intention may make an Act, otherwise good, to be bad and against Law, by Intendment of Law; the Intention is evil, and the Person answerable for all the Consequences thereof. If a Man throw a great Stone over the Wall, and a Person is killed, the Law judgeth it Murder: He cannot justify it by averring he had another Intention. So in the Matter of Scandal, if an unlawful Act or Crime, which purports Scandal, be charged upon a Person, it is no Justification, or Excuse, to aver he did not charge the Person, nor his Acts, with doing it with an evil Intent; but as the Law supplies Malice in the Criminal, where the Act is unlawful, so it intends Malice in the Libeller, in a Matter which in itself imports Scandal. Several Cases may be put to this Purpose: To charge the Wife with poisoning her Husband, is actionable, though not alledged done voluntarily; or with an Intent to kill; the Law intends it. In this Case they charge that the King, by his Prorogation, interrupted the publick Justice of the Kingdom, and with the dismal Consequences, which in their Judgment would follow thereupon, and publish this to affrighten the whole Kingdom; and that they were near despairing of their Safety, but hoped his Majesty did likewise intend by the Prorogation to make way for his better Concurrence with the Counsel of his Parliament. A pretty Compliment for so infamous a Charge; and if it import any thing, it is a further Reflection upon the King; that he had not before concurred with the Counsel of his Parliament. But to fix the Matter home, Mr. Recorder in the last Place justifies this Libel from the Truth of the Fact, that the publick Justice of the Kingdom, and finding out Means for Preservation of the King and his Subjects, had received an Interruption by the Prorogation. This toucheth to the Quick, and is more than the City have averred in all their Pleadings; they have nakedly represented their several Facts, precedent to the Petition, and leave it to the Court to judge, whether there be sufficient to justify them, to make and publish such a Petition. But to aver it to be true, is to equal the Crime of the Petition, in charging the Prorogation with the Interruption of the publick Justice. But I hope, upon better Consideration, he will change his Opinion, and likewise upon the Inference he made, that if true, it is no Scandal to print and publish it to the King's Subjects; for in both Points he is apparently mistaken. It is admitted there was a Plot, and such Proceedings as are set forth against Delinquents; and that the King by his Proclamation, and in his Speech, expressed his Sense of the Plot, and pressed the Parliament to proceed to Trial of the Lords in the Tower committed for the Plot, and that there are many such Bills depending in Parliament. And it shall be admitted, that upon the Prorogation all these Proceedings were stayed, and if Mr. Recorder please, received an Interruption; and to say so is true. But in this Case, if the City had been of an Opinion, that the Parliament, upon the King's Signification of his Pleasure that they should proceed to the Trial of the Lords, did not make such Haste to try them, as the City judged was necessary for the Preservation of their Lives and Fortunes; and thereupon the City should have petitioned the Parliament to proceed to the immediate Trial of the Lords in the Tower, and thereby charge them, that they had delayed them the publick Justice of the Kingdom, by not proceeding sooner to the Trial of them, according to the King's Desire, Mr. Recorder would not have averred the Matter of Justice to be true, and therefore no Scandal to the Parliament; but he would then have found out the Difference between staying of Suits, and Proceedings in Courts by the proper Judges, and the Delays and Interruptions of common Justice; the latter are unlawful and criminal, and against the Duty of the Judges, but the former, upon just Grounds, are lawful, and many Times in Prosecution of common Justice; and many Times to proceed in such Cases would be great Injustice either to the Criminal or the Publick, where the Witnesses on either Side are not ready, or for some other good Cause the Judges put off Causes till another Time; or adjourn a Court before all the Causes be tried. No Lawyer can truly say, that by putting off the Cause the Prosecution of Justice hath been interrupted; or will it be any just Justification for him for such Scandal, that there were Causes depending before the Adjournment. The Acts of inferior Magistrates are not to be examined, censured, and adjudged, much less scandalized by those that are under their Magistracy; that would let in Confusion, and tend to the Overthrow of all Government. To say of a Justice of the Peace, You have perverted Justice, is actionable, Seignior de la Ware and Pawlet, Trin. 37. El. More 409.

Mich. 1. Car. 1. Cro. 14. Sir John Isham versus York; I have been with Sir John Isham for Justice, but could never yet get any at his Hands but Injustice.

Trin. 7. Car. Cro. 223. W. Marsham versus Briggs; Sir William Marsham is but an half-eared Justice; he will hear but one Side.

Mich. 8. Eliz. Rot. 1. Walsh was indicted for scandalizing one Sir Robert Catline, Chief Justice, and this Court, by saying, My Lord Chief Justice is incensed against me, I cannot have Justice, nor can I be heard; for it is made a Court of Conscience. He was afterwards discharged upon the general Pardon, 8. Eliz.

They may be judged by Superiors, but not by Inferiors. Where the Common Law alloweth or authorizeth the Staying of Proceedings by Adjournment, or otherwise; to say the Act is done to delay or interrupt the publick Justice of the Kingdom, or that thereby the publick Justice of the Kingdom hath received Interruption, is not only highly scandalous, but absolutely untrue; for it is according to the Rules of Common Law, and the Publick Justice of the Kingdom, and may be the promoting of common Justice, and for the Benefit of the Publick, and ought to be so intended, when done according to Law. For the Reasons of such Acts, much less the secret Intention of the Judges, or of the Persons, whom the Law hath entrusted with such Powers, are not to be examined, censured, or condemned by any Subjects, by any Corporation, whatsoever Petitions may be rejected by either House of Parliament, and so may Bills too, though they have the greatest Semblance of common Benefit; yet this is no Denial of Justice, nor to be scandalized under any such Notion: They may defer the Consideration thereof, or enter upon other Business, that is no Delay or Interruption of common Justice.

The King may do the like, he may reject the Bills passed by both Houses, or he may advise upon them by these Acts, which the Law allows to be no Interruption of publick Justice: The King may adjourn or prorogue the Court of Parliament. Antiently those Words were used and taken promiscuously, though now from the different Effects they are differently used. And Mr. Recorder owns, that the King is by Law intrusted with this Power; and it is happy for the Subjects he is so intrusted, it being for their Benefit; which is a flat Contradiction to his Position, that it is true that the publick Justice of the Kingdom is interrupted, or hath received an Interruption by the Prorogation: Because what is just and lawful, secundum legem terræ, cannot be unjust or unlawful, which every Interruption of publick Justice is; and if the Act be not unlawful, it is no Delay or Interruption of Justice. And if the Subjects cannot examine into or censure these lawful Actions of their Princes, but must intend them to be upon just Grounds, and for their Benefit; and in order to their common Safety; to charge their Prince's Actions with the interrupting of publick Justice, and of the Means for his own and his People's Preservation; and to publish this to all his Subjects; is, in Judgment of Law, a false, scandalous, and malicious Libel; and if not sufficiently punished, where will it end? To publish a Libel is in no Case lawful, be the Matter never so true, nay, though the Party who is libelled be dead; and the Degrees of the Crime, where against a private Person, and where against a publick Person, appear in the Case cited by Mr. Solicitor in the Reports, fo. 125, and that it is against all Laws both of God and Man, and the Mischiefs there represented. In the Case of all Common Pleas the Offender shall be fined, and by the Statute of 13 Car. 2. all natural Persons are for the future disabled, and incapable of any Office or Place of Trust, where the Libel is against the King. But where the Matter is false, and the Libel published against the King, to withdraw his People's Affections from him, and that by the joint Counsels of a Corporation, there can little Room for a Question remain, but they have broken their original Trust for good Government, and misused their Liberty to Licentiousness. How criminal is it for private Subjects to deliberate of and determine, and publickly to censure the Counsels and Actions of their Princes, will appear by the Case of Stubbs, Mich. 21. & 22 Eliz. Rot. 3. where the Case was, that a Treaty of Marriage being on Foot between the Queen and Duke of Anjou, John Stubbs published a Book called, The Discovery of a gaping Gulph, whereinto England is like to fall by another French Marriage, containing a Dissuasive against the Marriage: And therein amongst other Things chargeth, That this Marriage hath Sin in itself, and of itself only, for being against the Law of God. And in another Place, That it opens all the Ports of foreign Enemies, with several bad Reflections upon the Duke. This Book was delivered by Stubbs to Hugh Singleton, a Stationer, to print, who caused it to be printed and published. They were both indicted for it in this Court, and the Indictment laid to be, with Intent to hinder the lawful Purpose of the Queen and Duke to marry, and to animate and stir up the Queen's Subjects to Rebellion, and to raise Discord between the Queen and her Subjects, and to subvert the good Government of the Kingdom. Upon Not Guilty pleaded (for they had not the Confidence to justify) they were found Guilty, and Judgment given for cutting off their Right Hands upon the Statute 1 Eliz. cap. 6. for libelling the Queen. In this Case the censuring of the Queen's lawful Purposes, in a more private Matter than the Administration of her Regal Office, by common Subjects not called to advise, is a Subversion of good Government within the Kingdom; and the publishing the Effects and Consequences thereof to be sinful and dangerous to the Kingdom, is a libelling of the Queen and her Government within the Statute. The censuring of the Exercise of the King's lawful Prorogation, and charging it with the Interruption of publick Justice, is of a more dangerous Nature. Every natural Person convicted of this Offence, is by the Statute of 13 Car. 2. disabled for any publick Trust; the Proceeding against the natural Person could not be for want of Proof, it being transacted in their Council. In this Process against the Whole, they have confessed it with the Aggravations laid. If the King pass not a Bill which the City of LONDON have a Mind to, this Rejection of such Bill shall in Print be published to all his Subjects, to be a Denial of Justice. If the King reprieve a Malefactor, it shall be a Delay or Interruption of publick Justice. To pardon a Malefactor, shall be a Denial of the publick Justice of the Kingdom. So that the Tenor whereby the City of LONDON hold their Franchise, and all their Liberties, will be quite changed and altered, without the Aid of an Act of Parliament. The City will no longer hold all their Liberties from the Crown quam diu se bene gesserint, which was their antient Tenure, reserved by the Crown and the Laws of the Land upon their first Erection, but will gain absolutum Dominum. And the King shall exercise no just Prerogative, but at their good Pleasure; otherwise they will blast him to the People, and aliene their Affections from him. I have done with the Case. I have nothing more to offer. I have at large proved, that the Corporation of LONDON is a great Franchise and Liberty. I have proved that Point of Forfeiture, and their Demeanors towards the Crown: They stand in the same Level with other Cities and Boroughs, which be forfeited and seized. I have presented to the Court two superlative Offences, both against their Prince and their Fellow Subjects, as well as can be; wherein they have exceeded all other Cities and Boroughs, and themselves too in any former Age. The Manner of their Pleading, and Defence at the Bar, argue the Disease to be dangerous and infectious to other Cities and Boroughs, and of the Nature of the King's Evil, incurable without the King's Hands. I have this Day brought them into Judgment before the Court, in order to their Cure. Nothing remains for effecting of the Cure, but the Judgment of the Court for Seizure of the Franchise of LONDON into the King's Hands, which I demand for the King.

Mr. Attorney-General having taken up so much Time, the Court put off the Hearing the Counsel for the City till another Day, when Mr. Pollexfen argued; and, this being a Matter of such Importance to the City, we shall give his Arguments, as we have done the others, at full Length.

Mr. Pollexfen. In this Case, when I consider the Greatness and Consequence of it, that it affects the King, the Parliament, the Laws, the very Government under which we have lived, this great City of LONDON, and all other Corporations and People of England, and their Posterities for ever, I cannot but be troubled that I should be the Man to whose Lot it should fall to argue it; but that which comforts me is, that your Lordship and the Court, upon whom the Judgment of this great Case depends, will help out my Defects, and according to what is required in the great Places you bear, take Care and provide, that by your Judgment the antient Government and Laws of this Kingdom receive no Damage or Alteration. The King's Counsel have on their Side only some general Words out of old Records of Forfeitures and Seizures of Liberties, which are of uncertain and doubtful Sense; but there is not on their Side produced any one Precedent, Judgment, or Opinion, to maintain the Point in Question, viz. That a Corporation, or Body Politick, ever was determined, or dissolved, or taken away for a Forfeiture: No, not in the maddest of Times, in the Times of Edward the 2d, and Richard the 2d, when the Tumults and Disorders were so great, that they not only seized and took away Liberties and Franchises, but the Lives of Princes, Nobles, Judges, Lawyers, and all that stood in their Way: In those Times, though they have hunted and searched with all Diligence, not one Instance of a Corporation taken away, or dissolved by a Forfeiture, is cited. So that from hence I hope I may safely conclude, that I argue in this Case for the old and known Laws, as they have been ever practised through all Ages, and against that which never hath been practised or known, which is a great Encouragement to me. The Pleadings being very long, I shall only repeat so much of them as I use, when I come in order to speak of them.

I. The first Thing proper to be spoken to, is the Information itself, and therein I make this Question: Whether as to that Part thereof that chargeth the Corporation with usurping upon themselves the Being of a Corporation, whether that be properly brought against the Body Politick, as this is, or ought to have been brought against the particular Persons? I do agree, that as to the other Things mentioned in the Information, the having Sheriffs, Justices, &c. the Information is properly brought against the Corporation: And I do also agree, that it may be good as to those Things, though bad and insufficient as to the charging the Corporation with Usurpation of their Being, without lawful Warrant or Authority. And that I may come singly to this Question, I do put out all the other Franchises in the Information, and take only what concerns this Point, and then the Information, as to this Point, chargeth, That the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of LONDON, by the Space of a Month last past before the Information, did use, and claim to have and use, without any Warrant or Regal Concession, within the City of LONDON, the Liberty and Franchise following, viz. to be a Body Politick, Re, Facto, & Nomine, by Name of Mayor, and Commonalty, and Citizens, and by that Name to plead and be impleaded; which Liberty, Privilege and Franchise, the same Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens, upon the King, by the Time aforesaid, have and yet do usurp. This is the Substance of the Information as to this Point; and, Whether this Information thus brought, as to this Matter, be sufficient in the Law, upon which a Judgment can be given, or ought to have been brought against particular Persons, is the Question. I conceive it ought to have been brought against particular Persons, and is insufficient as it is, and that no Judgment can be given upon it, supposing the Defendants had demurred, or pleaded nothing to it. To make out the Insufficiencies, I desire to consider what it imports.

1. The very bringing the Writ, and exhibiting the Information against the Corporation, imports and admits the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens, to be a Body Politick, capable to be sued and impleaded, respondere, & responderi, otherwise there is no Defendant, no Person in Court against whom the Suit is brought. It is not enough that the Person sued be a Person by Supposition, or a pretended Person, but none in Reality. If a Writ or Information be brought against a Baron and Feme really and truly; and if there be any Thing after in the Writ or Information, that shews that they are not truly and really Baron and Feme, but that they do wrongfully and unduly take upon them to be Baron and Feme, when in Truth they are not, this would be contrariant and repugnant, and abate the Writ or Information. The like is supposed by the bringing the Writ or Information against the Body Politick; it supposeth and affirmeth them really and truly to be such, and the subsequent Affirmation that they usurped so to be, and are not so really, is contrariant and repugnant.

2. When in the Information it is alledged, that the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens, the Liberty, Privilege, and Franchise of being a Body Politick Re, Facto, & Nomine, and to be sued and impleaded, upon the King have and yet do usurp; to usurp or do any Act of Necessity, imports and admits a precedent Existence of the Person that doth usurp, or do the Act, to the Act done. Particular Persons may usurp, and take upon themselves that which they have no Right unto: The Persons that do the Act did before exist, and had a Being. And when a Corporation is said to usurp, it of Necessity must be supposed to have a precedent Being. The Sense of Usurpation in a Quo Warranto is the Subject's taking upon him Franchises without Warrant.

My Lord Coke saith, That Usurpation in the Common Law hath two Significations, Inst. 1. 277. b.

(1.) The one, when a Stranger presents to a Benefice, and his Clerk instituted and inducted, he gains the Advowson by Usurpation.

(2.) The other when any Subject without lawful Warrant doth use any Royal Franchises, he is said then to usurp upon the King.

So that an Usurpation supposeth of Necessity a Subject or a Person precedently in esse, that useth the Franchise, or that doth usurp. That which is not in esse, that hath no Existence, cannot use any Franchise, cannot usurp. The very alledging that they usurp, doth admit of Necessity an Existence precedent in the Corporation, such as can usurp or act, and therefore this Information is inconsistent with itself.

(3.) But another Reason to prove that it ought to be against particular Persons, and cannot be against the Body Politick, is drawn from the Judgment that must be given upon this Information, if Judgment for the King. The Judgment must have two Things in it:

(1.) To damn the Corporation, Quod penitus extinguatur & excludatur from being a Corporation for the future; for being wrongfully usurped, it cannot be continued: A Judgment to continue Wrong and Usurpation can never be a right Judgment.

(2.) A Fine to the King for the usurping it for the Time past. This Judgment may and ought to be given, where the Information is against particular Persons, for usurping upon themselves to be a Corporation, and they shall be fined and imprisoned; but this cannot be where the Information is against the Body Politick; for by the Judgment the Body Politick is extinguished and dissolved, and no Fine can be imposed upon that which is not; so that hereby the King must lose his Fine, which the particular Persons usurping ought to pay, and the Law is agreeable always to itself, and the Means answerable to the End. I suppose no Man will affirm, that where a Suit or Judgment is against a Corporation, that the Fine or Execution shall be against all, or any particular Member.

For the Precedents and Authorities in this Point:

(1.) I

(1.) I do agree that there be Precedents in the Crown-Office of Quo Warranto's brought against Corporations in such Manner as this is brought, for usurping to be a Corporation, and to claim divers other Liberties.

Quo Warranto against the Bailiffs and Burgeses of Stratford, for claiming to be a Corporation, and to have divers Liberties and Franchises; thereupon a Plea put in, and a Confession of their Claim by the King's Attorney, P. 2. El. r. 1.

The like against the Corporation of Reading, the like Plea and Confession, the very next Term after the Information filed, M. 3. & 4. El. r. 4.

Against the Corporation of Horsham, a Plea and Confession by the Attorney, H. 14 Jac. r. 37.

The like against the Corporation of Dover, but nothing done upon it besides Plea put in, H. 19 Jac. r. 26.

The like against Bath, a Claim put in, and confessed, H. 20 Jac.

The like against Brackley, and a Noli prosequi, H. 20 Jac. r. 58.

The like against Boston, a Claim put in, and confessed, T. 3 C. 1. r. 22.

The like against New-Sarum, Imparlance, and nothing more upon it, T. 2 C. 1. r. 47.

The like against Biddesford, a Claim and Noli prosequi, M. 2 C. 1. r. 36.

The like against Wiccomb; they plead themselves a Corporation by another Name, and traverse the Name in the Information; nothing more on the Roll, M. 8 C. 1. r. 42.

And it is probable there may be more like these, but if any Authority, they are for me, and not against me.

(1.) For that they all being for claiming other Liberties, as well as to be a Corporation, and being good and sufficient as to the other Liberties and Privileges that the Corporation claims; though insufficient for this of claiming to be a Corporation, they must be proceeded upon, if the Attorney pleaseth. But is any to be found where only the claiming to be a Body Politick, and nothing else? Or if other Things questioned, yet only proceeded in as to this Particular of claiming to be a Body Politick, as in this Case? That will be like.

(2.) In all these nothing is done; a Claim or Plea put in, and that confessed, or Non prof. or not proceeded upon to Judgment. Perhaps not proceeded in because insufficient, and so are Authorities for me: For there being so many of these, which are neither Non prof. or not proceeded in, perhaps the Reason might be, because insufficient in the Law, as to the Corporation, and so are Authorities for me in this Case. But one there is found.

Quo Warranto vers. Bailiffs and Burgeses of New-Malton in Yorkshire, T. 6 Jac. 1. r. 3. Quo Warranto they claim divers Liberties, as Courts, Markets, and others, and amongst the rest, to be a Body Politick. They put in a Plea, and make their Claim by Prescription; Issue is joined, and tried by Nisi Prius at York, and found against the Corporation, and a Judgment entered, Quod Libertat' & Franchis' predict' in manus Domini Regis capiantur & seisiuntur, & quod Ballivi & Burgeses capiant' ad satisfaciend' Dom' Reg' pro Fine suo pro Usurpacion' Libertat' & Franchis' predict'.

There is no Mention of this Case in any Book or Report, as far as I can learn; so that this passed sub silentio. Next, how can this Judgment be good?

[1.] How can that be a right and lawful Judgment, which shall be given for the continuing a thing that is by the very Judgment adjudged to be unlawfully usurped, and a Fine for it? It is directly oppositum in objecto.

[2.] How can the Corporation be seized into the King's Hands? Extinguatur & excludatur is proper; the Corporation cannot be in the King.

[3.] How could the Bailiffs and Burgeses be fined? when they are vanished and gone, there is no Corporation in Being; that which is laid upon a Corporation cannot be levied upon the particular Members.

I have made Inquiry after this Borough of New Malton: It is a small Borough, within the Manor of the Ancestors of my Lord Eure; it did antiently send Burgeses to Parliament, but from the Time of King Ed. 1. to the Beginning of the Long Parliament, 1640, it sent none then; upon Petition a Writ was order'd, and they then and ever since have chosen Burgeses: My Lord Eure being Lord of the Manor, and offended with them, did prosecute this Quo Warranto, and they having neither Lands, Revenues, or Estates to defend themselves, he easily prevailed; they never in Truth being incorporate, nor having any Charter. But that which I give for Answer to these Precedents is,

[1.] They are all, where not only the Being of the Corporation, but also divers other Liberties were in question; so that the Informations were good in Part, and not worth the while to question whether good, as to that Part of their being a Corporation. The Fine upon them for usurping the other Liberties, would have been more than they could bear or pay.

[2.] That this is but one Judgment, and in a Case of a small Borough, and that Judgment, as enter'd, not agreeable, but inconsistent with the Rules of Law or Reason. The Body Politick could not be seized into the King's Hands; but whenever a Judgment is given for the King, for Liberty which is usurped, or extinct in the Crown, the Judgment must be quod extinguatur, and that the Person that claimed them deinceps Libertat' & Franchis' predict' nullatenus intromittat', sed ab usu earund' amodo omnino cessat; quodque the Person that used them, pro usurpacion' Libertat' & Franch' predict' super Dominum Regem capiat' ad respondendum dict' Dom' Reg' de fine suo pro Usurpacione Libertat' & Franch' predict'. That this is the Form, C. En. 559. a 537. 527. b.

[3.] That this Judgment of New Malton passed sub silentio; for there is no Mention of it in any Book, nor doth it appear that ever the Question was moved or debated. And for Precedents in Matters of Practice and Process, they are of Authority; but in Point of Law, unless they have been upon Debate, are of little Authority to prove what the Law is. Rep. 4 94. Statle's Case, L. 5. E. 4. 110.

But on the contrary, all the Precedents that are in any printed Books of Informations, were brought to question, Whether Body Politick, or not, are against particular Persons by Name?

Against Christopher Helden, and others, C. En. 527. Pal. 9. fo.

Quo Warranto against Cusack, and others, Rot. 2. r. 113, 115.

Quo Warranto against the Virginia Company was brought against Nic' Farder, and others, Quo Warranto they claimed to be a Corporation, Rot. 2. 455. Some of them pleaded insufficiently, upon which there was a Demurr, and a Question, How the Judgment should be enter'd? for that the Master and Chief of the Company were left out of the Quo Warranto. By which it appears, that it ought to be brought against the Master, and particular Members by Name.

Next, for the express Authorities in this Case, to prove it cannot be against the Corporation.

Rot.

Roll. Rep. 2. 15. is express, That if a Quo Warranto be brought to dissolve a Corporation, the Writ ought to be brought against the particular Persons; for the Writ supposeth that it is no Corporation. The Difference there taken, when the Attorney General supposeth the Defendant to be a Corporation, otherwise when he questions them as Inhabitants of a Ville, then they ought to enable themselves, they must then shew themselves a Corporation, also prove it.

My Lord Hales, in his Common-Place-Book in Lincoln's-Inn Library, fol. 168, saith thus: Nota, Sc. Quo Warranto soit port pur usurper de une Corporation serra port vers. particular Persons, quia in disaffirmance del Corporation, & Judgment serra donne que serra ouste; mes si le Quo Warranto soit port pur Liberties claim. per Corporation, serra port vers. le Corporation. This is positive.

This, if it were only my Lord Hales's Judgment, were of no little Authority; but I think it is a Report taken upon the Case of the Quo Warranto against Cusack and others: But Mr. Attorney finding, as I believe, all the Precedents to be against him (for in them all there are either Non prof. or no Proceedings to Judgment, the Causes whereof, or at least some of them, probably might be the Insufficiencies of these Informations) and finding also the Authorities in Print, which have been cited to be all against him, and none for him, endeavoured to maintain the Information as brought not against the Corporation, but against the Citizens or Inhabitants of the City in their natural Capacities, and to that Purpose cited the Case, C. En. 537. of a Quo Warranto against the Inhabitants of a Village. Quo Warranto they claimed to be a Body Politick; and argued, that a Quo Warranto lies against the Cives of such a City, or Burghes or Tenants. This seems to be rather a sudden Conceit, and altogether undigested, and not well considered. But in answer thereunto, and to prove that this Writ is brought against the Defendants as a Corporation, and cannot legally be taken in any other Case; if a Mayor and Commonalty plead that they are seized in Fee, they need not say in Right of their Corporation, the Name shews them to be a Corporation, it need not be alledged, Leo 1. 153. An Action there brought by the Guardians and Fellowship of Weavers; the Book saith, That they need not set themselves out to be incorporate, the Name shews it; so of Cities, saith the Book, Hob. 211. So then, when the Writ is brought against a Mayor and Commonalty, or Mayor, Commonalty and Citizens, the Law takes Notice of them to be a Corporation, and the Writ against them as such; the Name shews it. But against Inhabitants of a Village, a Writ brought by that Name, that cannot be taken to be other than Inhabitants, the Name so shews it; and in such Case, some of the Inhabitants, by Name, (viz.) A. and B. appear in Person, in their own, and Names of the rest of the Inhabitants, and plead, and are Defendants, Co. En. 537. So did they, as appears in that Precedent. No Appearance ever was of Inhabitants in other Manner. But in this Case here are no Persons that do appear by Name, but the Corporation appear, and make an Attorney under their Common Seal. The Corporation, and no particular Persons, are the Defendants before you, or else you have no Defendants before you; for there is none appearing in Person, here is no Defendant, nor none against whom you can give Judgment; but all the whole Proceedings vain, and against no Body. So that if we should admit, as Mr. Attorney argues, That this Information is not brought against the Corporation; then there can be no Judgment for Want of Defendants appearing in their natural Capacities; you must have it against the Corporation, or no Body. A Mayor cannot be, but where there is a Corporation; therefore this Notion is impossible, as I conceive. So that if there were nothing else in the Case, if the Information be ill brought, they can have no Judgment against us.

II. But admit that the Information as to this Point be sufficient, then I proceed to consider in the other Parts of this Case, the Plea: That contains the Defendants Title (viz.) That she is a Corporation, Time out of Mind, and many Confirmations by Acts of Parliament and Charters. It is not denied, but that the Title made by the Plea is good.

But next the Replication; that contains,

1. An Issue upon the Prescription (viz.) That the Citizens of LONDON have not been, Time out of Mind, a Corporation by Name of Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens, &c.

2. A Pleading over, That the Mayor, and Commonalty, and Citizens taking upon them (assumentes super se) to be a Body Politick, and to have Power to make By-Laws.

(1.) Colore inde, but for their private Gain, & contra fiduciam per Dominum Regem & Leges hujus Regni in them reposed, took upon them to levy Money upon the King's Subjects by Colour of an Ordinance by them de facto made; and in Prosecution of this usurped Power, the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens, in their Common-Council assembled, published a Law for levying Money upon the King's Subjects that came to the Markets within the City, 17 Septemb. 26 Car. 2. (viz.) De qualibet Persona, for every Horse Load of Provisions brought into any publick Market within the City to be sold, 2 d. a Day, for every Dorser of Provisions, 1 d. a Day; for every Cart Load drawn with not more than three Horses, 4 d. a Day, if with more, 6 d. a Day: That if any refused to pay, he should be amoved from his Place in the Market: That by Colour of this By-Law, the Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens have extorted great Sums of Money for their own private Gain, amounting to five thousand Pounds per Annum.

(2.) And farther, That whereas there was a Session of Parliament holden 21 Octob. 32 C. 2. and continued till the 10th of Jan. 82, and then by the King prorogued to the 20th of that Instant January; the Mayor, Commonalty and Citizens, Jan. 13, in their Common-Council assembled, malitiose, advisate, & seditiose, absque legali Autoritate, in se assumpserunt ad censendum & judicandum dict' Dom' Regem nunc, & Prorogationem Parliamenti, by the King prorogued; and in the same Common-Council, vota & suffragio sua dederunt & ordinaverunt, That a Petition sub nomine the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons of the City of LONDON, in Common-Council assembled, to the King should be exhibited: In which Petition it was contained, That by that Prorogation the Prosecution of the publick Justice of this Kingdom, and the making necessary Provision for the Preservation of the King, and his Protestant Subjects, had received Interruption: And that the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens in the same Common-Council, did unlawfully, malitiose, advisate, & seditiose, with Intent that the same Petition might be published and dispersed amongst the King's Subjects, to induce in them an Opinion, that the King had by that Prorogation obstructed the publick Justice, and to incite Hatred against the King's Person and Government, and to disturb the Peace, did order that Petition, containing the said scandalous Matter, to be printed, and thereupon to those ill Ends and Purposes they caused it to be printed and published: By which the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens, Citizens, the aforesaid Liberty and Franchise of being a Body. Politick forisfecerunt; and after, by the Time in the Information; have and yet do usurp it.

Before I come to the Matter; I would speak to the Pleading herein, and in the subsequent Surrejoinder: And for the Pleading in it, I think it is as singular and unprecedented as the Matter of it is. This Replication, supposing the Matter had been the Act of the Body Politick, and good and sufficient, yet, as pleaded, is insufficient, and not warrantable by any Law or Practice ever known. It contains,

1. An Issue, viz. no Corporation Time out of Mind.

2. Two Causes of Forfeiture of the Corporation, admitting they once were a Corporation.

So that though the Point in Question be but one, viz. Whether we are lawfully a Corporation or no Corporation, though the Plea is single, that we are a Corporation by Prescription, Time out of Mind, yet here is, to try this Point,

1. An Issue.

2. A double Plea, alledging two Causes to avoid it for a Forfeiture.

This I conceive cannot legally be done, though in the King's Case. I do agree, the King hath great Prerogatives in Pleadings, and as far as ever they have been allowed or enjoyed, let them be so still; but that the King can to the same Matter both take Issue, and also plead over at the same Time, that I deny. It is most reasonable, that the Law should be careful to preserve the King's Rights; but on the other Side, I think it is not reasonable, that the Law should admit or allow as legal, any Way of Proceeding that should destroy or render the Subjects Right indefensible, be his Right as good as it may be. If so be that Mr. Attorney may both take Issue upon the Fact, and also plead over, I would, by your Leave, ask how many Issues, and how many Pleas over the King's Attorney may have? Suppose the King bring a Quare Impedit, or Writ of Right, or any other Action, the Defendant makes his Title, which is usually done, by many Grants and Conveyances from one to another, to bring it to himself: May the King's Attorney now take as many Issues as Facts issuable, plead as many Pleas as he pleaseth, and all this simul & semel? It is true, that in this Case Mr. Attorney hath assigned only two Breaches, or Causes of Forfeiture; but he might, if he had pleased, by the same Reason, have assigned two hundred. If this may be, are we not all at Mr. Attorney's Mercy? If this may not be, then how many Pleas? Is it in Law defined? In favorem Vitæ a Man may plead a special Plea, and plead also Not Guilty, but not several special Pleas; but that there is any such Prerogative for Mr. Attorney, in Suits betwixt the King and his Subjects, I can find no Instance or Authority for it: For though it be true, as I have said, that the King hath great Prerogatives in Pleading, yet it is as true, that this is not boundless; but that if in the King's Writs there be Mistakes, or his Writ or his Action misconceived, he shall be bound by it in like Manner as Subjects are or shall.

Partridge against Strange, Com. 84. a. 236. a. and in the same Book, in my Lord Berkley's Case, it is expressly said, That though the King hath many Prerogatives concerning his Person, Debts, and Duties; yet the Common Law hath so admeasured his Prerogative, that it shall not take away, or prejudice the Inheritance of any.

The King hath a Prerogative that he may wave his Demurrer and take Issue, or wave his Issue and demur upon the Plea: But, saith the same Book, fol. 236, he must do it the same Term, not in any other Term; for then he may do it in infinitum, without End, and the Party hereby may lose his Inheritance; and for that the Common Law will not suffer the King to have such a Prerogative. These are the Words of the Book. And in the Point, that this Prerogative must be made use of the same Term, and that the King's Attorney cannot vary in another Term, and wave his Issue, is 13 E. 4. 8. Bro. Prer. 69. 28 H. 8. 2. So in making Title to a Quare Impedit, he, at the End of the Term, waved his first Title, and made another. But it is true also, that as to the Point of waving Demurrers, and taking Issue in another Term, there is Authority that he may so do, Rex vers. Bagshaw, Cr. 1. 347, but whether it may be done or not in another Term is not material to our Case: But the Use I make of these Cases is to prove that the King's Attorney should not have both together simul & semel, as in this Case he hath done; he must wave one before he can have another Plea. For those Debates about his varying his Plea by waving his Issue and Demurring, or waving his Demurrer and taking Issue, signify nothing, if he may, in one Plea, and at the same Time, take Issue and demur, or plead over to the same Matter or Point, as is done in this Case; therefore those Books strongly prove, that the Prerogative that the King hath, is by waving or relinquishing one, and choosing the other; and therefore not to have or use all together and at once, as is done in this Case.

The King shall be bound by one Issue; he shall not have divers, 9 H. 4. 5. So that as this Replication is at the same Time simul & semel to the same Matter, to take Issue that we were not a Corporation Time out of Mind, and to plead two Matters of Fact for Forfeiture, is the first Attempt that ever was of this Kind, and in its Consequence confounding the Right of the Subject, and leaves him, perhaps, only but a Colour of Law, but most difficult, if not impossible by it to be defended, let his Right be what it will, if Issues and Pleas without Number may be by the King's Attorney joined and pleaded, and the Subject must answer. The very Charge besides will undo the Subject, and wrest him out of his Estate by the Law that should preserve him. This Point, if I mistake not, will deserve Consideration, if it be new, and the first Project (for so I beg Leave to call it) of its Kind; for I know no Book or Instance of the like, unwarrantable by old Laws and Rules of Pleading. The old Laws and Ways are good and safe: Eventos varios res nova semper habet. Perhaps the Consequence and Mischiefs attending this Way of joining Issue, and at the same Time pleading over as many Pleas as Mr. Attorney pleaseth, are as great as any other in this Case, and not less to be minded or regarded. As of the one Side great are the King's Prerogatives, and most necessary to be preserved and maintained; so it cannot be denied but that the Law hath set Limits and Bounds, which must be kept and observed in Pleading, which is the Method and Mean of preserving and determining Rights, without which no Man can be preserved by the Law. But supposing that several Causes of Forfeitures may be assigned, yet they must be all Facts done at the same Time, or they confound one the other; for if the first Fact was a Forfeiture, thereby the Corporation was determined, and at an End, and the Subsequent could not be the Act of the true lawful Corporation; for that was forfeited, determined, and gone, by the precedent Forfeiture: And if so, that it was forfeited and gone by the precedent Act, viz. the making the Ordinance Septemb. 17. 26 C. 2. then how could it act and forfeit itself six Years after, in the Year Thirty-two? This seems impossible. But to avoid this, Mr. Attorney in his Argument doth hold, hold, that though the Act be a Forfeiture, yet till there be a Judgment, or something on Record to determine the Corporation (and in this Case the Judgment to be given shall do that Work); till such Judgment, the Corporation remains. Then taking it as Mr. Attorney will have it, and as the Truth is, supposing a Forfeiture, until that Forfeiture appear on Record, or that there be some Office or Inquisition that finds it, and that returned, and on Record, were it of any Estate in Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, or Offices, it is not determin'd or vested in the King, but continues. This is quite contrary and contradictory to all that you have done, and the very Foundation of this Quo Warranto; for if you admit, as then you do, that the Forfeiture ipso facto did not determine, but that it must be this Quo Warranto, or Judgment upon it, that must determine the Corporation; and that the Corporation, notwithstanding such Act, was or is in being; then they have not usurped upon the King, they are the same Corporation they were; they have the same Power to act as they had; they have the same Warrant and Right they had, only subject to a Judgment against them, that may be given hereafter, for a Fact ready pass'd; for since that an Usurpation is a tortious and wrongful using a Liberty or Franchise upon the King, without lawful Authority. Then, supposing such an Act of Forfeiture doth not ipso facto determine or dissolve, but a Judgment, or some other Act of Record, must first be had before such Dissolution; then till such Judgment, or Act of Record, they are lawfully a Corporation in being, and their lawful Warrant remains, and they did not, nor could so long usurp their Being; and then hereby is your own Information destroyed and abated: For there you say that they did, by the Space of a Month, without any Warrant, use and usurp the Liberty to be a Corporation: But hereby you grant, that it was not used unlawfully, nor usurped; but notwithstanding the Forfeiture; the Corporation lawfully continued, unless there had been some Judgment, or other Act on Record to determine it. This I rest upon as impossible to be avoided. Is it possible that a Corporation or Body Politick can at the same Time be lawfully and rightfully such, and not lawfully and rightfully such? Can Right and Wrong be the same? Can the same Thing rightfully be, or have its Being, and at the same Time not rightfully be, or have its Being? Can we possibly be at the same Time, viz. the Time mention'd in the Information, a lawful Corporation, and yet an usurped or unlawful Corporation? Could we then have a lawful and rightful Authority to be a Corporation, and at the same Time have no lawful or rightful Authority to be so? These seem to be Contradictions; and if so, are the most difficult of all Things to be believed or imposed; therefore, to be plain in this Matter, either tell us that we are yet, till Judgment, a Corporation or Body Politick lawfully and rightfully, or not. If you say we are, then as yet we are no unlawful Corporation, nor have usurped to be one, as in your Information and Replication you have alledged; we have not then unlawfully taken upon us to be a Corporation, and therefore cannot have Judgment against us, or be fined for having or being that which we lawfully have or be, as you now admit we are; consequently you must go some other Way; you have destroyed your own Information, and can have no Judgment upon it. But, perhaps, this Concession of Mr. Attorney, that the old and lawful Corporation and Body Politick is still in being, and shall so continue, till by Judgment or Matter on Record determined, may only be some sudden Thoughts; for not only the Matter, but the whole Proceedings in this Suit, being at least unexperienced, and perhaps much out of Practice, it might easily happen, that in an hasty Proceeding all Things might not be thought on, nor all the Objections or Inconveniencies foreseen, and perhaps the Consequence of the Position, that a Miscarriage, or doing an unlawful Act, should, ipso facto, forfeit the Body Politick or Corporation, might make a Man start and cast about how to avoid it, and flying from one Danger run into another. These are Things ordinarily happening, and perhaps have in this Case happen'd, and were the Cause of this Concession, that the old and lawful Corporation is yet in being, which is contrary to the whole Frame and Scope of both the Information and Replication, and probably never thought on or intended when the Information or Replication was made, being quite contrary and inconsistent with the Frame and Foundation of them both. If it be holden according to this Concession, that the old and lawful Corporation was not by the supposed Acts of Forfeiture dissolved and determined ipso facto, but remained and continued lawfully a Corporation, and yet is so; then we have not usurped, but are a lawful Corporation during the Time in the Information, and not as therein supposed by Usurpation, and without lawful Authority, and thereby the Information confounded and abated.

But supposing, according to what the Information and Replication suppose, that the Acts of Forfeiture did ipso facto dissolve and determine the Corporation, for they will at last, I doubt, come to that again; for this present Thought, that it shall be forfeited, but not dissolved or determined till Judgment, will be subject to almost all the same Inconveniencies; for when Judgment is given, the Forfeiture must relate to the Time of Offence, and to avoid all mean Acts, as in other Cases it doth. But to pass this over,

III. Supposing the Information good, the Replication good, and the Matters alledged for Forfeiture to be as in the Replication alledged: The next Thing I pray Leave to speak unto, is, Whether the Matter alledged in the Rejoinder be not sufficient to justify or excuse the two Facts alledged for Cause of Forfeiture: I conceive they are. The Pleadings here must first be stated.

1. As to the Ordinance or By-Laws for the Toll in the Markets. As to that the Defendants in their Rejoinder have alledged, that the City of LONDON is, and was always the capital and most populous City of the Kingdom. That there are and always have been great publick Markets within the said City. That the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens, are and always have been seized of those Markets in their Demesne as of Fee; and at their own proper Charges provided Market-places, Stalls, Standings, and other Accommodations for Persons coming to those Markets; and Overseers and Officers for better Regulation and keeping good Order, and cleansing the same: That for defraying those Charges, they have, and always had and received divers reasonable Tolls, Rates, or Sums of Money, of all Persons to those Markets coming, for Stalls, Standings, and other Accommodations by them had, for exposing to Sale their Victuals and Provisions in those Markets: That the Freemen of the City of LONDON are numerous, above Fifty Thousand. That there hath been, Time out of Mind, a Common-Council, consisting of the Mayor, Aldermen, and certain Freemen annually elected, not exceeding the Number of two hundred and fifty, called the Commons. That there is a Custom within the City, that the Common-Council make By-Laws and Ordinances for the better Regulation and Government of the publick Markets, and for the appointing convenient Places and Times when and where, within the City, the Markets shall be kept; and for the assessing and reducing to Certainty reasonable Tolls, Rates, or Sums of Money, to be paid by Persons coming to the same Markets, for their Stalls, Stations, and other Accommodations by them had, for exposing to Sale their Victuals as often as and when to them should be thought expedient, so as their Ordinance be useful to the King and his People, consonant to Reason, and not contrary to the Laws of the Land. That this Custom is confirmed by Mag. Char. Stat. 1 E. 3. Stat. 7 R. 2. That after the Burning and Rebuilding LONDON, and the Alterations thereby made, Controversies did arise within the City concerning the Markets and Tolls. That thereupon Sir William Hooker, then Mayor, and the Aldermen, and Commons in Common-Council assembled, did make an Ordinance, intituled, An Act for the Settlement and well ordering the several publick Markets within the City. By which reciting, That whereas for Accommodation of Market-People with Stalls and Necessaries for their Standings, for Cleansing and Paving the same, for defraying incident Charges about the same, reasonable Rates had always been paid: To the End the Rates to be paid might be ascertained, that the Market-People might know what to pay, and the Officers what to take, to avoid Extortion, it was order'd there should be paid by the Market-People for their Stalls, Standings, and Accommodations in the Markets, For every Horse-load of Provision under publick Shelter, 2 d. a Day; for every Dosser 1 d. a Day; for every Cart-load drawn with not above three Horses 3 d. a Day; with more Horses 4 d. a Day; and upon Refusal to pay to be removed. Then they aver that these Rates are reasonable. That they are all the Rates that are paid by such Market-People to the Use of the City. That these Rates they have received since the making these Ordinances. That there is no other Ordinance for raising Monies for such Provisions exposed to Sale in their Markets in any Manner made.

To this Rejoinder Mr. Attorney hath sur-rejoined, and taken it by Protestation, That the City were not seized of the Markets, nor at their own Costs provided Stalls and other Accommodations; and that the Rates by the Ordinance appointed were not reasonable. For Plea sets forth an Act of Parliament made 22 Car. 2. enacting, That to the End apt and convenient Places within the City should be put out for Buildings, and keeping the Markets; and that the Royal-Exchange, Old-Bailey, and common Fairs and Prisons within the City should be made more commodious; for the enabling the City to do these Things, they should have a Duty out of Coals imported betwixt May 1670, and Mich. 1687, into the Port of LONDON, 12 d. per Chaldron; which Duty they have accordingly received, amounting to a great Sum, and notwithstanding that Duty, without Title or Right, the Defendants made by the By-Law for their private Gain, absque hoc, that the Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens have, Time out of Mind had, or accustomed to have Tolneta, Ratas, sive denariorum summas per ipsos Majorem, Communitatem, ac Cives Civitatis predictæ superius suppositæ fore per præfatam legem sive ordinationem predictam assessas & in certitudinem reductas prout per placitum superius rejungendæ supponitur.

The Defendants they rebut, and say, that they have always had reasonable Tolls, Rates, or Sums of Money of all Persons coming to their Markets to sell their Provisions, for their Stalls and Accommodations: Et de hoc ponit se super patriam. The Attorney demurs. Upon his Pleadings the Questions are, Whether the Matters alledged by the Defendants, in Justification of the Ordinance, or By-Law, be a good Justification in Law, or not? If it be, Mr. Attorney in his Sur-rejoinder hath given no Answer to it at all; he hath neither confessed it, nor denied it. The Rejoinder saith, that the Defendants are, and always have been seized of the Markets in Fee. That they, at their Charge, provided Market-Places, Stalls, Standings, and Officers, for the Accommodations of the Markets, and Cleansing them. That for defraying those Charges they have always had divers reasonable Tolls and Rates for Standings, and other Accommodations. That the Common-Council have, as often as expedient, always made Ordinances for regulating those Markets, and for assessing and reducing to Certainty, reasonable Tolls, Rates, and Sums of Money to be paid by the Market-People for their Accommodations. That according to this Custom, they made the Ordinance and By-Law. Mr. Attorney, in his Sur-rejoinder, hath not denied any Part of this, but offers a Traverse to that which is no where alledged or supposed. It is never pretended that the City have had, Time out of Mind, the very Tolls and Sums of Money for Toll assessed by the Ordinance. There is not a Word in the Rejoinder to that Purpose, but to the contrary, (viz. That they in their Rejoinder claim a Power by Ordinance of Common Council to assess and set the Rates of these Tolls and Payments, as often as and when to them shall seem expedient. It is admitted in the Rejoinder, that these Sums were not Time out of Mind, only they had Power to set, assess, and ascertain, as often as expedient. Therefore when Mr. Attorney traverseth our having Time out of Mind the Tolls, Rates, and Sums of Money by the Ordinance assessed, and in certitudinem reductas this is plain, besides any thing claimed or pretended unto, if he had intended to traverse what we have alledged, that we have had, Time out of Mind, divers reasonable Tolls and Sums of Money for Stalls and Accommodations: Or if he would have traversed the Instance alledged for the Common Council assessing those Tolls, as often as expedient, that was plain and easy to do; but that he hath not done: He hath only traversed whether the Tolls, Rates, and Sums of Money, by the Ordinance assessed, and reduced into Certainty, have been Time out of Mind. This is the proper Sense of his Traverse, but if doubtful in its Sense, his Traverse is nought for that Cause; for dubious Words can make no Issue for the Jury to try, else Men should be tricked and ensnared by doubtful Words to pervert Right. So that if the Matter alledged in the Record be sufficient in Law to justify the making this Ordinance or By-Law, then what is done therein by the Act of Common-Council is lawfully and rightfully done, and no Forfeiture. I do agree, that for a Lord of a Market to prescribe to have a Toll uncertain, and as often as expedient, to ascertain it, is no good Prescription. But that is not our Case; I do distinguish betwixt that and his Case: Where there is by Custom, confirmed by Acts of Parliament (for I shall shew that they are Acts of Parliament, notwithstanding what hath been objected against them) a Power and Authority vested in the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council, to regulate and order the People, Trades, and Markets in the City, and the Places, and Conveniencies, and Officers, from Time to Time, and consequently to regulate and ascertain the Tolls or Rates to be paid by the Market-People, to prevent Extortion and Disorders; that such Custom is legal. The Chamberlain of LONDON's Case: An Ordinance that no Broad-Cloth shall be sold in the City, before it be brought to Blackwell-Hall to be searched, and a Penny for every every Cloth to be paid for Hallage, under Pain of forfeiting 6 s. 8 d. a Cloth, to be recovered in the City Courts, Rep. 5. 69. Though objected that this was an Imposition of Payment of Money upon the King's Subjects, yet adjudged good, and a Procedendo granted.

An Ordinance that no Unfreeman shall use a Trade in LONDON, adjudged good, City of LONDON's Case, Rep. 8. fol. 1. A Multitude of Ordinances they have for regulating all Manner of Trades, and of Rates and Prices; and as much Reason there is to object against them, as this Ordinance, or the Custom in this Case: But the City of LONDON have a Government and Power of making Ordinances, for governing and regulating Trades, buying and selling within the City, placed in the Common-Council, and confirmed by Act of Parliament; and therefore not like the Case of any private Lord of a Market. But it is true, their Ordinances must not be unreasonable. The Payments that are imposed by this Ordinance, are only imposed upon those that are under Shelter; it is Reason a Recompence should be paid, and there is no Unreasonableness or Injustice appears in the Ordinance, but a reasonable Recompence. But the Custom or Power of the Common-Council is not denied, as I take it: For they have not denied the Power to regulate and ascertain the Tolls or Sums of Money alledged to be in the Common-Council; if they had, that must have been tried: Nor have they denied the Rates set to be reasonable. So that I think, as to this Matter, we have well intitled ourselves, and justified our making our By-Law, and taking the Tolls or Rates thereby appointed; and nothing in the Sur-rejoinder against us to the contrary is objected.

But for confirming and making good our Customs, in the Plea, there are three Acts of Parliament pleaded;

1. Magna Charta.

2. Stat. 1. E. 3.

3. Stat. 7. R. 2.

The King's Counsel have not denied Magna Charta to be a Statute, but have denied the other two to be Statutes, or Acts of Parliament; and the Reasons given by them are;

Because not in Print, nor Roll of it to be found; or because no Body knows where to find it.

As to the first, private Acts of Parliament do not use to be printed, few are.

As to the second, suppose there were no Roll to be found, doth this after so long a Time conclude there was none such, especially since Mr. Solicitor was pleased to acknowledge that there are no Parliament Rolls of E. 3. till 4 E. 3? It is true that almost all the Parliament Rolls of H. 3. E. 1. E. 2. and till 4 E. 3. are indeed lost. But besides, in those Days publick Acts were not only entered upon the Parliament Rolls, but from thence transcribed, and sent under the Great Seal to be published by the Sheriffs of the Counties, in the Cities and Boroughs, and also by Writ to the Courts in Westminster-hall to be there entered and recorded, of which there are many found, especially in the Exchequer; and hence came the Rule in Law, that Judges, ex Officio, are bound to take Notice of general Acts of Parliament: But for private Acts they were put under the Great Seal, and the Parties interested had the same to produce. But that these in this Case should be questioned to be Acts, is strange.

But to prove them Acts: As to the Act 1 E. 3.

(1.) We have pleaded it under the Great Seal of King E. 3. that made it with a profert hic in Cur' and shewn it with our Plea as we ought; and this is Evidence sufficient of itself. If the same, produced under the Great Seal put to it when made, be not sufficient Evidence to satisfy, what can be?

VOL. II.

(2.) But in this Case it is enrolled upon Record also, Inter placita Corona penes Camerarios in Scaccario; it is enrolled there, Trin. 1. E. 3. r. 61, 62.

But perhaps it may be objected also, That this was no Act of Parliament, but only a Grant or Patent in Parliament; because it is that the King de assensu Prælator' Comit' Baron' ac totius Communitat' regni in præsentì Parlamento.

I answer, That Acts of Parliament observe not any certain Form. In the Case of the Earldom of Oxford expressly, Jones 103, that there was Variety in penning Acts of Parliament in ancient Time, Dominus Rex per Consilium fidelium subditor' suor' statuit, and other Forms there, are yet good Acts. But that they were antiently in Form of Patents, or Grants in Parliament, Magna Charta, c. 1. is in Form of a Charter, or Grant. The Form of the Act of Parliament, 11 E. 3. Prince's Case, R. 8. fol. 8. for creating the Prince, Prince of Wales, begins, Edwardus Dei Gratia, &c. in Form of Patent, and is De communi assensu & consilio Prælator' Comit' Baron' & aliorum de consilio nostro in præsentì Parlamento, and adjudged a good Act of Parliament; and the Authorities and Reasons to prove it an Act of Parliament are fol. 18, 19, 20. so full, that it might be thought that this Objection would never have been made: And that this is in the same Form that all the rest of the Acts of this very Parliament of 1 E. 3. Mem. 17. are, appears by the Patent Roll of the same Parliament. A Charter granted by the King de assensu Prælator' Comit' Baron' Communit' Regni in Parlamento apud Westm' to enable the City to apprehend Felons in Southwark. An Act in the same Form, for the annulling the Conviction of Treason, that was against Roger Mortimer, in the Time of E. 2. Rot. Claus. 1. E. 3. An Exemplification then entered of an Act made in the same Form, in the same Parliament, for the annulling the Attainder of Thomas Earl of Lancaster, attainted tempore E. 2. Rot. Pat. 2 E. 3. P. S. 1. M. 17. Divers other Acts of Parliament in the same Form made 1 E. 3. for annulling divers other Attainders that were tempore E. 2. So that as to this Act of Parliament 1 E. 3. I think the Objections are answered, and that it is an Act, as pleaded, Rot. Pat. 2 E. 3. P. S. 2. M. 11. Inst. 2. 5, 27, 639.

And as to the other Act, 7 R. 2. that that is no Act of Parliament, only a Prayer of the Commons, that there might be a Patent granted to the City, confirming their Liberties, licet usi vel abusi fuerint; and the Answer was, Le Roy le veult.

They object for Reasons against that being an Act of Parliament,

First, That it wants the Assent of the Lords.

Secondly, It is only a Prayer of the Commons to have their Liberties confirmed, and the King's Answer Le Roy le veult, but nothing done to confirm it.

As to the first Objection, supposing it true that there is no Mention made of the Assent of the Lords, yet the Act is a good Act.

(1.) It appears to be in Parliament, ad instantiam & requisitionem Communitat' Regni nostri in præsentì Parlamento.

(2.) The Answer in Parliament, that is given by the King to the making all Laws, is given to this, Le Roy le veult.

(3.) And next, it is admitted to be upon the Parliament Roll, 7 R. 2. Num. 27. I have before said, that Acts of Parliament are not in any certain Form; sometimes entered as Charters or Grants, sometimes as Articles, sometimes, and frequently, as Petitions; the Books I have already cited prove it. But according to the Course of Parliaments, let it be in what Form it will, let it begin in which House it will, yet it must go through both the Houses of Parliament, before it can come to the King for his Royal Assent. If either House rejects or refuseth, there it ends, it comes not to the King; nor is the Royal Assent in these great operative Words, Le Roy le veult, in Parliament given to any Thing, but what the whole Parliament have assented and agreed unto. So that this is an Objection grounded upon a Reason contrary to all the Course of Parliaments, which shews, that the Lords Assent was to it, though not mentioned. Selden's Mare Claus. 249. gives a full Resolution herein: Certissimum est, saith he, that according to Custom no Answer is given, either by the King, or in the King's Name, to any Parliamentary Bills, before that the Bill, whether it be brought in first by the Lords, or by the Commons, hath passed both Houses, as it is known to all that are versed in the Affairs and Records of Parliament. And in the Prince's Case before cited, there the Act is said to be de Assensu & Consilio of the Lords, but doth not name the Commons; And this answers the other Reason also, viz. That it should only be a Prayer and Petition also, to have a Charter of Confirmation granted: For since the Forms are in Manner of Petitions, since the Royal Assent or Words, Le Roy le veult, is never put to any Bills in Parliament, but such as are thereby made and passed into Laws, the giving the Royal Assent is sufficient in this Case to prove it a Law. But for further Evidence, we have it under the Great Seal of King R. 2. thus penned: Ad instantiam & requisitionem Communitatis Regni nostri Ang' in presenti Parlamento nostro, pro majori Quietate & Pace inter Legeos nostros facendis, & pro bono publico de assensu Prælatorum, Dominorum Procerum, & Magnatum nobis in eodem Parlamento assistentium, &c. So that hereby it is fully proved, and shewn, that though the Assent of the Lords be not mentioned in the Copy, yet that it was had, and under the Great Seal of R. 2. it so appears. We have also, in our Book of the Acts of that Time in the City, the Proclamation made upon the first promulging this Act, in the Time of Sir Nicholas Brember, Lord Mayor, Lib. H. f. 169. a & b. and therein it is also entered in the same Words, as before, under the Great Seal of R. 2. de assensu Prælatorum, &c. Next, our Books and continual Practice ever since. It is true, that in 7 H. 6. fol. 1. when it is said, that the Customs of LONDON were confirmed by Statute, Quære what Statute; but it is not there made a Quære whether this were a Statute, Instit. 4. 250. Rep. 5. 63. Rep. 8. 162. All say that the Customs of LONDON are confirmed by Parliament, 7 R. 2. Justice Jones 283, hath it verbatim out of the Parliament Roll. The constant Course of Pleading the Customs of LONDON is to plead a Confirmation of them by this Act of Parliament: So that as to this Point, there is not any one Book or Opinion, before this Day, in Favour of what is affirmed, that these are not Acts of Parliament; and our Plea stands good in Law, and the Ordinance, and By-Law, and Custom is good, and then no Forfeiture thereby.

But suppose, and admit, that this By-Law be the Act of the Corporation, and not good and sufficient in Law, nor in Law justifiable, Quid sequitur? Then it is void in Law. Then if it be void in Law, how can it make a Forfeiture? Suppose a Lessee for Years, or for Life, makes a Feoffment, but it is not duly executed for want of Livery and Seisin, by which it is void in Law; can this make a Forfeiture of the Estate of the Lessee? Suppose a Corporation Tenant pur auter vie makes a Feoffment, which is void for want of Livery duly made, will this forfeit their Estate? A void Act shall not destroy or forfeit a precedent Estate. A Person, that hath a former Benefice, accepts a second Benefice incompatible, was instituted and inducted, but did not read the Articles, his first Benefice was not forfeit or void hereby, because by the Statute the not reading his Articles had made his Institution and Induction void, Dyer 377. b. so that then whether this By-Law or Ordinance were good, or void in Law, perhaps is not much material; it cannot make any Forfeiture of the Corporation, it can have no such Effect; for if it be a good and lawful By-Law, no Forfeiture can be for doing a good and lawful Act. If the Ordinance be not warrantable by Law, then it is void in Law; if void in Law, a void Act can make no Forfeiture.

But you received, say they, and exacted from the King's Subjects Sums of Money by this Ordinance.

I answer, suppose we did, and that we had no Right to have this Money; if an Officer, by Colour of his Office, receive more than his Due, it is Extortion, and the Crime punishable: But if a Person, that is no Officer, take Money that is not due, or more than is due, the Parties injured have their Remedies by Action; but this is no Crime for which any Forfeiture or Penalty is incurred by the Person that so takes or receives the Money. Suppose a Lord of a Manor exact or take greater Fines, or Sums of Money from Copyholders or Tenants, than he ought, they have their Remedies by Actions against those that receive; so if a Corporation receive or take Money, supposed to be due, but in Truth is not, how can this forfeit any Thing?

But you took upon you, say they, a Power and Authority to tax the King's People, and to take and receive the Money so taxed.

I answer, This is but the same Thing, only put into greater Words. It is still but the making of an unlawful By-Law, and thereby appointing Money to be paid which ought not, or more than should be; and as to the turning of it, or expressing it in stately Words, of taking upon you, or usurping to impose upon, and tax the King's People; whosoever doth any Act or Thing he takes upon him, and doth also execute the Power and Authority of doing that Act or Thing, which is comprehended in the Thing done. The making a By-Law, or Ordinance, whereby more is ordered to be paid than ought, or Money appointed to be paid where none is due, is still all the Fact and Thing done; and if that make no Forfeiture of the Corporation, or Crime punishable by Indictment or Information, except only as the Statute 19 H. 7. c. 7. which I shall hereafter mention, hath appointed for Forfeiture of 40 s. the taking or usurping the Power to do it, cannot be more, or effect more, than the doing the Thing which comprehends it.

2. As to the other Cause alledged in the Replication for Forfeiture, the Petition, printing, and publishing it; in the Replication 'tis alledged, That the Parliament the 10th of January was prorogued to the 20th of January. That the 13th of January, the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of LONDON, in their Common-Council assembled, malitiose, advisate, & seditiose, took upon them, ad judicand' & censend', the King, and the Prorogation of the Parliament by the King so made; and that the Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens of LONDON, so in the said Common-Council assembled, did give their Votes and Order, that a Petition, in the Name of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons, mons of the City of LONDON, in Common-Council assembled; should be exhibited to the King. In which Petition it was contained, that by that Prorogation the Prosecution of the publick Justice of the Kingdom, and the making necessary Provisions for the Preservation of the King, and his Protestant Subjects, had received Interruption: And that the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of LONDON, in Common-Council, as aforesaid, assembled, maliciously, and seditiously, to the Intent the same should be dispersed among the King's Subjects; and to cause an Opinion that the King obstructed the publick Justice, and to stir up Hatred and Dislike against the King's Person and Government, did order the said Petition to be printed; and afterwards they did print it, and caused it to be published.

The Defendants, in their Rejoinder to this Breach set forth and alledge, That there was a Plot against the Life of the King, the Government, and the Protestant Religion; and set forth all the Proceedings upon it, the Attainders and Impeachments of the Lords in the Tower in Parliament depending, the Proclamations declaring the Dangers by this Plot, that they could not otherwise in human Reason be prevented, but by the Blessing of God upon the Consultations and Endeavours of that great Council the Parliament, and commanding a General Fast to be kept in LONDON the 22d of December, and that it was kept accordingly. The Proceedings in the Parliament towards the Trial of the Lords, and preparing Bills to be enacted into Laws, for Preservation of the King and his Subjects against these Plots and Conspiracies. That divers of the Citizens, loyal Subjects, being much affrighted, and troubled in their Minds, with the Apprehension of these Dangers, did exhibit their Petition to Sir Patience Ward, then Lord Mayor, and the Aldermen, and Commons in Common-Council then assembled, containing their Fears, and Apprehensions, and Expectations, from the King and that Parliament; did petition, that the Common-Council would petition for the sitting of that Parliament, at that Time prorogued. And thereupon the Mayor and Aldermen (naming them) and Commons in Common-Council assembled, from their Hearts truly loyal to the King, and for the Satisfaction of the Citizens, who had exhibited that Petition, and of Intent to preserve the Person of the King, and his Government, did give their Votes, and order a Petition should be exhibited to the King in the Name of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons in Common-Council assembled, and set forth the Petition in the Name of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons in Common-Council assembled in hæc verba: Wherein among other Things it is contained, That they were extremely surprized at the late Prorogation, whereby the Prosecution of the publick Justice of the Kingdom, and the making Provisions necessary for preserving the King's Person, and his Protestant Subjects, received Interruption. And did farther agree and order, that that Petition, after it had been presented, should be printed, which was so order'd with Intent, that false Reports concerning the Petition might be prevented; the Enemies of the King, and the Conspirators, from proceeding in the Conspiracy, deterred; the Troubles in the Minds of the Citizens alleviated, and the Citizens know what had been done upon their Petition. That the Petition was deliver'd to the King, and afterwards printed. That this is the same Petition and Printing in the Replication mention'd absq; hoc, that any Petition of or concerning the Prorogation of the Parliament was made, ordered, published, or printed in any other Manner than they have alledged, as the Attorney-General supposeth. To this Part of the Rejoinder

Mr. Attorney hath demurred generally by the Demurrer, the Fact alledged in the Replication is admitted to be true: And it is true, that there are no Words, that are written or spoken, but are subject to various Constructions: But I take it that no Words, whether written or spoken, ought to be taken in an ill Sense, if they may reasonably be taken in a better, Nemo præsumitur esse malus; and therefore the Words must stand as they are penn'd. And having first expressed their Fears, and next their Hopes, from the King and Parliament's Proceedings in Trial of those that were impeached; and making Laws for their Security, and how they were surprized at the Prorogation, then they say, That by that Prorogation, the Prosecution of the publick Justice of this Kingdom, and the making necessary Provisions for the Preservation of the King and his Protestant Subjects had received Interruption. It is mention'd only as a Consequence of the Prorogation, it is not said or expressed that the King did interrupt; for I think there is great Difference betwixt the one Sort of Expression and the other: An ill Consequence may attend a good, and commendable, and most necessary Act; but no Consequences can make an ill Act good; and therefore the expressing the Consequence doth not necessarily condemn or declare the Act to be an ill Act. Suppose that in the Time of the great Plague a Man had had a Suit in Westminster-Hall, wherein all his Estate had been concerned, and had said or writ, that by the Adjournment of the Terms by the King, the Proceedings of the Courts of Justice in his Suit had received an Interruption, Had these Words been punishable? The Adjournment was then the most necessary and commendable Act that could be for the Preservation of the King's Subjects in that raging Pestilence; and the Act itself being so good and necessary, though there were such Consequence as to that particular Suit, the writing or saying that it had such a Consequence, such an Interruption did not, I conceive, condemn, judge, declare or express the Act to be ill. Suppose a Man had had a Bill depending in that Parliament, to be enacted for the enabling him to sell his Land to pay his Debts, to free him from a Jail: Or, suppose that some one of the Lords impeached in that Parliament had made a Petition for the Sitting of the Parliament, and had therein expressed as a Reason and Ground of his Petition, the like Words as in this Petition, What would the Court have judged of it? are not the Cases much the same? If they are, there will be no Distinction of Persons in Judgment; I am sure there ought not. Perhaps when this Petition was made, there might be too much Heat in the Minds of Men; and it is true, that Heat increaseth Heat, and Fire kindles Fire; it is Time for all Sorts to grow cool and temperate, and to weigh and consider we are, or should be, considering Men. This Petition was made Nemine contradicente, and undoubtedly among such a Number as the Common-Council, there must be Men of Variety of Tempers and Dispositions: But for the greatest Number of the Aldermen, and Common-Council, think of them; we know the Men, many of them; can we imagine, that they had either the least ill Thought or Meaning towards the King, his Person, or Government, in this Petition, or the printing it? And as for the printing it, that, my Lord, stands upon the same Reasons and Grounds: For if there be nothing ill or unlawful in it contained, then the printing and publishing of that which contains nothing ill or unlawful, is not, as I conceive, ill or unlawful. Printing is but a more expeditious Way of Writing, and is good or bad as the Matter printed is good or bad. The Defendants in their Rejoinder have set forth their whole Case, the Reasons and Grounds of what the Common Council did, and the Manner and Intent of their doing it; all which Fact cannot be denied to be true, but is now confessed by the Demurrer. It hath not, nor can be said, but it is well pleaded, and might have been traversed and denied, if not true: But it is confessed by the Demurrer to be true, and therefore that must be taken to be the Fact, and not as alledged in the Replication, and then so taken, I must submit to your Judgment.

3. But the next thing considerable is, Whether, supposing and admitting, that if done by the Body Politick, it had been a Miscarriage or a Crime, whether not being done by the Body Politick, nor under the Common Seal, but by Common-Council, whether thereby the Being of the Corporation shall be forfeited?

A Common-Council in Corporations is generally a select Number of the Body corporate, constituted to advise and assist the Corporation in their ordinary Affairs and Business. There is no certain Rule nor Measure of their Power, wherein all the Common-Councils agree. In some Corporations the Common-Council have greater Authority; in some less, according to the several Authorities by the respective Charters where the Corporations are by Charters; or by Custom or Usage; where the Corporations are by Prescription. But in all they are a subservient Number of Men, constituted and authorized for particular Ends and Purposes. And in this Case I think the Court can take Notice of the Common Council no otherwise than upon the Record they appear to be. The Replication doth not say what they are, but would go in the Dark, by Intention and Presumption, the best Way and Method to arbitrary Determination. The Rejoinder saith, that the Citizens and Freemen are a great Number, Fifty Thousand, and more. That there hath been, Time out of Mind, a Common-Council, consisting of the Mayor and Aldermen, for the Time being, and of certain Freemen, not exceeding Two Hundred and Fifty, annually elected to serve as Common-Council-Men, and are called Commons of the City. That Time out of Mind there hath been a Custom, that the Mayor, Aldermen, and such Citizens, so elected to be of the Common-Council, according to Custom, have been accustomed to make By-Laws and Ordinances, for the better Regulation of the publick Markets, for appointing Times and Places, and assessing and reducing into Certainty reasonable Tolls, Rates, and Sums of Money, payable for Stalls and Standings in the Market. For any Thing appears upon the Record, this is all they have Power to do: Non constat to the Court that they have other Power or Authority over Lands, Estates, or any thing else. Next, if this which in the Rejoinder is alledged, of the Being and Power, be true, and so admitted, then what they did in making the Ordinance, was done by good and lawful Power and Authority, and then can be no Offence: But if to make the Ordinance be an Offence, and an unlawful Act, you deny the Custom to be good, and say, the Custom is void, and against law, and for that Reason the Ordinance illegal. Then, non constat, that they had any Power at all to do any thing, and then a Common-Council to advise without Power to do any Act: And if so, how can a Parcel or Part of a Corporation, not authorized to do any Act, do an Act that shall forfeit? Suppose a particular Company, as the Mercers, had done this; could this be a Forfeiture? But if to avoid this you will say, that the Court shall take Notice of the Common-Council of LONDON, to have the Management of the Business of the Corporation belonging to them; this, I think, the Court cannot do; and I cannot see how possibly they can, as a Court, judicially take Notice thereof. Suppose our Question had been concerning another Corporation; could the Court then, as a Court, judicially have taken Notice of the Power or Authority of their Common-Council? Mr. Solicitor, in his Argument held, that there was no Difference betwixt LONDON and another Corporation, except that LONDON was the biggest. Then put the Case of any other Corporation, could the Court judicially have taken Notice of their Power or Interest, without having it specially set forth? Is it possible the Court can, since they differ one from the other, as much as their Charters or Constitutions do differ, of which there is hardly to be found two in England that do agree in their Powers? If it had been of another Corporation, of Necessity the Constitution of the Common-Council must have been set forth. If you are upon a By-Law, made by any other than the Body Politick itself, must not the Power and Authority of those that made it be shewn, and set forth in Pleading, in any Case where there is Occasion to use it? How otherwise could the Court judge or determine of it? So that taking the Law to be as the other Side saith, that LONDON differs not from any other Corporation; it is no where alledged in the Pleading, that they have Power to make By-Laws, for the ordering and governing the City, or that they can bind all the Corporation in Sale or Disposition of their Lands, or have the Power of the Common Seal: Therefore, when the King's Counsel argue from these Powers, their Power of forfeiting, they argue quite out of the Record; they have no where alledged or pleaded what they are, or what Power they have, as they should have done, if they had so intended. So as to this Particular, here is nothing before the Court, nothing upon Record, to shew how or which Way the Body Politick should be concerned in these Acts of about Two Hundred and Fifty of their Members, called the Common-Council. Wheresoever any By-Laws or Ordinances are pleaded, the Power to make these By-Laws or Ordinances is pleaded, and so are all particular and derived Authorities, whenever Occasion to plead them, and necessary they should be so: For it is Fact that the other Side may and ought to be at Liberty to deny it, if he see Cause; and therefore if they will have it that the Common-Council have abused some Power or Authority they have, thereby to forfeit the Corporations, they ought to have shewn it; so that Notice shall be taken, or it shall be intended or presumed, is in truth a Presumption upon the Court, as if the Court should take Notice of, intend, or presume, what the King's Counsel would have which the Court cannot, nor will do, more in this than in other Cases. But supposing the Court will take more Notice of LONDON than any other Corporation, and will take Notice of the Common-Council there, and of their Power and Authority; and I will suppose, as the other Side do, that they have the Power of making By-Laws, of leasing, granting, and managing the City Lands and Revenues, and of sealing with the Common Seal, and that this they have by Custom; then surely, say the other Side, they have the same Power of surrendering and forfeiting the Corporation. If I should answer, surely and without doubt they have not, this would not argue they have not; but the Argument should come of the other Side, to prove they have; they have not, nor can produce any Case or Opinion to prove it; and the very Thought that they could is so new, that I believe none can be found like it. But let us consider the Nature of this Thing a little particularly: Tho' general Discourses are most easy, and florid, yet, perhaps, a particular Enquiry may best discover. Admit that that they have the Power the other Side say they have; yet they are not the Corporation, but a Part constituted for these particular Ends and Purposes, for which they are impowered. Corporations had their Creations by Charter; that gives them their Being, and the Form, Method, and Power of Action. Suppose that the first Charter of Incorporation that was granted to LONDON did grant, that the Citizens should be incorporate, and a Body Politick, by the Name of Mayor, and Commonalty, and Citizens; that there should be a Mayor, so many Aldermen, and so many of the Citizens, annually elected, that should be a Common-Council; and that they should have Power to make By-Laws, to demise or grant their Lands, under the Common Seal, in the Name of the Corporation: If they do any Act not within their Commission, is not that void? Suppose a Grant made to the Common-Council, would not that be void? Suppose a Grant made by the Common-Council, in the Name of the Common-Council under Seal, or in the Name of the Corporation, but not under common Seal, is not all this void? This I only instance to shew that their Charter and Authority is their Power and Warrant they are to act by. Did ever any Man hear of, or see a Charter giving the Common-Council Power to surrender the Corporation? Or was it ever thought of before these Days? If then no such Power by the Charter be given, if they cannot do it without Power given them, shew me their Power, or else I think I may conclude sure they cannot surrender the Corporation without Power. But the Common-Council in LONDON, that is by Custom, and their Power is by Custom. Then if the Question be, What is their Power? It is answer'd, what they have used and accustomed to do, that they may do; what they have not used or accustomed to do, that they cannot do; for if Custom and Usage be the Authority, that Authority can go no farther than their Custom and Usage goes. Then put the Question, Have the Common-Council used to surrender or forfeit the Charter? No body can say it. What Reason then is there for any Man to say they can do it? It is probable that the Common-Council in LONDON had first their Institution from some By-Law or Ordinance, though now not to be produced, but consumed by Time. But be it that, or any other imagined Commencement, can it be imagined that those that gave them their original Authority, gave them Power to surrender the Corporation, or forfeit it? Suppose that the Power given them did authorize them not only to make By-Laws and Ordinances for the good Order and Government of the Corporation, to grant or demise their Lands and Revenues, but had some general Words in it to act and manage the Matters of the Corporation: Is it not against all Sense to suppose, that that which is deputed and constituted for the well ordering and managing of the Corporation, should have Power to surrender it? Then as the Counsel of the other Side argue, that because they may surrender, they may forfeit: By the same Reason, I hope, I may argue, if they cannot surrender or dispose of the Corporation, they cannot forfeit. Next, those Acts of the Common-Council are not done neither in the Name, nor as the Acts of the Corporation, nor under any Seal; but do import in themselves only to be the Acts of the Common-Council: The Ordinance, that is made by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons in Common-Council assembled: The Petition is the Petition of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons in Council assembled: Their Leases or Grants are in the Names of the Corporation, and under the Common Seal, and the Common Council only ministerial to the Corporation in ordering, managing, and disposing all for the Benefit and Advantage of the Corporation, to avoid the Inconveniency of assembling the numerous Body. But that any Thing that hath but a ministerial Power, for the Service and Benefit of their Principal, should have Power to dispose of, sell, convey, or surrender, and destroy their Principal, is no Consequence in Law or Reason. No Deputy, Assistant, or Bailiff hath such Power; if he exceed his Authority, his Act is void. Is it not so with all Authorities and derived Powers? What they do beyond their Authority cannot bind those from whom they derive it. It cannot be the Act of the Corporation; for a Corporation cannot make a Petition, no more than they can make a Deed, or subscribe a Writing, except under the Common Seal. Corporations cannot make a Lease at Will, licence a Man to enter upon their Lands, or do any like Act, but under their Common Seal; nor can they commit a Trespass or Disseisin, but by Command precedent, or Assent subsequent, under their Common Seal. How then can this be their Act? There is nothing in it that imports it should be theirs, nor ever intended to be theirs; it is not done by them, nor in their Names, but by the Common-Council, and in the Name of the Common-Council. If we may take Notice of what is out of the Record, we know that they have in LONDON a greater Assembly than the Common-Council, viz. the Common-Hall, wherein the Common-Council are no more than others. Can the Petition of the Mayor, or Mayor and Aldermen, in their Names, be taken to be the Act of the Corporation? If that cannot be, why should the Petition of the Common-Council in their own Names be any other than their own Petition, as their Ordinance and By-Law are theirs, and not the Corporation's? 12 H. 7. 25, 26. 9 E. 4. 39.

The Case of Corporations take Notice of their Power, as Common-Councils, to exclude the Commonalty and the rest of the Corporation. The Act allows the Common-Council's ordering Petitions. But where is it to be found that it was ever said or thought on before, that they could forfeit or dissolve the Corporation? Rep. 4. 77. 13 C. 2. cap. 5.

4. But supposing all that I have said against me; and supposing the Acts of the Common-Council to be the Acts of the Corporation, and supposing those Acts, viz. the making the Ordinance and Petition, not justifiable or excusable; then the great Point will be, whether they or either of them are such Miscarriages or Offences in Law, for which the Charter, that is the very Being of the Corporation, shall be forfeit: This I call the great Point, for I think it to be as great in Consequence as ever any at this Bar, as if Magna Charta were at Stake; for in my Apprehension, not only LONDON, but all the Corporations of England, and the Government of England, will be deeply concerned in the Question. For let us but consider what a vast Part of England is concerned in the Corporations of England:

(1.) Ecclesiastical, or mix'd, as Archbishops, Bishops, Dean and Chapters, Parsons, Vicars, Universities, Colleges, Hospitals of all Sorts.

(2.) All the Cities and considerable Towns and Boroughs in England.

(3.) The very Frame of our Government is concerned; for one of the Estates of the Kingdom, viz. The Commons in Parliament, consists of Knights, Citizens, and Burgesses; the Citizens and Burgesses are usually chosen by them that are free of the respective Cities and Corporations, and where not chosen by them, yet the Elections are generally under their Power and Influence, and the Return made by them.

Perhaps also a Peerage is a Sort of Corporation. Perhaps the World itself, at least this little World, will no longer be able to subsist in Health, than the due Order and just Temperament of the several Parts and Powers therein are preserved, and contain themselves within their own Bounds. The taking away or infeebling any principal Part brings a Lameness and Deformity, Pain and Disorder upon, and at length confounds the Whole. The Laws answer their Ends, whereof the principal is the Preservation of the Government, which preserves the Laws, they cannot subsist one without the other; therefore whatsoever it is that tends to the Subversion, or leaving at Will and Pleasure, that which is so considerable in our Government as Corporations are, ought to be thoroughly considered.

The better to examine and consider this great Point: In the first Place, the Reasons given on the other Side are,

First, That if Corporations be not forfeitable for their Miscarriages, they will attempt and do extravagant Acts, raise Sedition or Rebellion, and there will be no adequate Punishment to their Miscarriages.

In answer to this Reason, I say, that there is no illegal Act that they can attempt or commit, but that they are under the same Severities and Corrections of Law, as any other the King's Subjects not incorporate are. Though it be true, that the Corporation itself is only a Body Politick, an invisible Body; yet the Members of it they are visible. If they as Members of that Corporation commit or do any unlawful Act, they are punishable for it in their own private Capacities: If they make any Ordinance or By-Law to raise Money unlawfully upon any of their Members, or others, the By-Law or Ordinance is void: If they receive or collect any Money by it, the Receivers and Collectors are to answer it, they are to be sued as any other Subject. Suppose a Lord of a Manor or Market, make an unlawful Order to collect or take Money from his Tenants or Copyholders, or unreasonable Tolls in his Markets; this Order is void in Law, and those that collect or receive any Money by it, are answerable for it, and the Parties grieved have their proper Actions and Remedies, and perhaps the Markets, or at least the Tolls, may be seized, or forfeit for this Miscarriage: This is the Provision that by Law is made against such Exactions, and this is just and adequate, and reasonable. And if a Corporation make such Ordinance, By-Law, or Order, and thereby there is the same Receipt or Exaction, the Subject hath the same Remedy, and there is the same Forfeiture of Toll or Market, as in Case of any natural Person, or Lord of a Manor, and the Provisions by Law made are just and reasonable, and adequate, in this Case of the Corporation, as of the other. The like for any Offence that can be committed, it must be done by particular Members, and they must answer for it. And this is no new Opinion; 21 E. 4. 14. is express, that a Mayor and Commonalty, or other Body Politick, cannot commit Treason, although all the Commonalty do commit Treason; every of them is a Traitor in his own Person. I might cite other Authorities to this Purpose, but they have been already cited by Mr. Recorder in his Argument; and though the Counsel for the King would make these Books to be but some slight Opinions, yet unless they could shew some Authority, Book, or Case, to the contrary, their despising or little valuing what they can find no Answer for, will not render the Authority and constant Opinions of our Books of less Esteem than they ought to be. It is no Excuse if they do an unlawful Act, that they are Members of a Corporation, or did it as a Corporation. No Body can say this will excuse them; so that, notwithstanding their being a Corporation, they are as subject to the Law, be the Offence Treason, Sedition, or any other Crime or Offence, as any other the King's Subjects are; every particular Member that acted or committed that Offence, is answerable to the Law for it. The particular Members that commit the unlawful Act, and all that act under their Authority, are subject to the same Law as all other the King's Subjects. And therefore this Reason, that else there will be no Punishment upon them adequate to the Offence, and consequently a Mischief and Inconvenience, is but a Shadow, and nothing proportionable to the Mischiefs and Inconveniencies attending the Position of a Forfeiture of the other Side. But consider the Injustice that that would be of the other Side, if this should be for: We know Assemblies determine their Acts by the Major Vote, and great Struggling there is, as we too frequently see in their Debates and Resolutions, and carried by Majority of one or two Votes, sometimes by Surprizes and undue Management, sometimes by Fear and Terror: Suppose an evil Act so carried or managed, is it Reason that all the whole Corporation should be thereby forfeit; and thereby all other Men, to whom they owe any Debts, must lose them, and the many Interests and Livelihoods depending upon the Corporation, the Customs, Courts, Offices, and Privileges belonging to it, endless to enumerate, shall be undone and destroyed?

Secondly, The next Reason that hath been given is, that it is a general Rule in Law, that the abusing or misusing of a Franchise, is a Forfeiture of the Franchise.

I answer, This is true in the Sense that the Books do say it; for if a Man misuse or abuse a particular Franchise, he shall forfeit that particular Franchise; but he shall not forfeit any other, except it be depending upon, and incident to it. And the Cases cited prove nothing farther: That when a Man hath divers Franchises not depending one upon another, and misuseth one Franchise, he shall not thereby forfeit the rest, but only that which he misuseth, 22 Aff. p. 34. Br. Fran. 34. And therefore the Cases cited, where the Abbot of Crowland and the Abbot of St. Alban's had Franchises of Custodies of Jails; one would not be at the Cost of a Commission of Jail-Delivery, the other did retain in Prison after legal Discharge and Fees paid, 8 H. 4. 18. Rep. 9. 96. b. 24. E. 4. b. Inst. 2. 43. This was a Misuser of those Franchises and Forfeitures. So also, perhaps, if there be a Franchise that hath Incidents to it, as Pypowders to a Fair, Pillory to a Leet. An Abuser of the Incident, as the Court of Pypowders, or the not having a Pillory, may forfeit the Market or the Leet. If the Lord of a Market take outrageous Toll, he shall forfeit the Market, Stat. West. 1. cap. 31. Inst. 2. 219. But doth this prove that if a Corporation have Fairs, Markets, Jails, or Leets, and misuseth any of them, that the Body Politick, the Corporation, shall be forfeited? If this be so, the Abbots, they being Corporations, in the Cases of the Abbots of St. Alban's and Crowland, should have forfeited not only the Liberties of having Jails, but the very Corporations or Bodies Politick, of being Abbots; a Conceit never yet imagined. Can you say the City of LONDON is either dependent or incident to the Markets; or, on the contrary, that the Markets are so incident or dependent upon the Corporation, that they cannot be one without the other? Can this be said? If this cannot be said with Reason, how can then the taking these Tolls, admit they were outrageous, and a Forfeiture of the Market, forfeit feit the Corporation? The making the Ordinance, supposing they made it, is but the Mean by which they took it. Your Books only prove the Abuse of a Franchise, a Forfeiture of that Franchise, or Incidents to it; and no other: But the Inference in this Case is not the Forfeiture of that particular Franchise, but of the Being of the Corporation that owned the Franchise; which is a plain non sequitur, unless you say the Corporation is incident to the Market. Arguments from general Rules are the most fallible, especially in Law; and that this is such, I hope most plainly to shew in the distinguishing the different Nature of Franchises; which I shall do presently, only taking in my Way their next Reason that they offer, and answer both together; which is,

Thirdly, That a Corporation is a Franchise; that it commenceth by Grant, and therefore is forfeitable and surrenderable, as other Franchises are; and if they be surrenderable, then also are they forfeitable.

I do agree, that Franchise is a large Word, it is of the like Sense of Liberty or Privilege. Therefore in Quo Warranto Franchises, Liberties, and Privileges, seem to be of the same Sense. To be a Subject born, and to have Liberty and Privilege of a Freeman, and no Villain, is a great Franchise; and therefore in Law, when a Villain is made free, we say he is enfranchised, he hath the Franchise, Liberty, and Privilege of being a Freeman. An Alien, he is made Denizen by Letters Patents, a Person attainted is pardoned by Letters Patents, and a Restitution in Blood granted, and made a new Creature. By these Grants the Alien and the Person restored have such Franchises, Liberties, and Privileges granted them, that though before they were not capable to take, hold, or enjoy, or act as natural born Subjects or Freeman; yet hereby they have such Capacity granted. Next, I think it will be granted, that this Franchise, Liberty, Privilege, or Capacity, is not surrenderable or forfeitable, except only in Cases of Treason, or Felony, where they forfeit their Lives; by these Instances this is proved, that it is no true Position, That whatsoever is grantable is surrenderable, and if surrenderable forfeitable; which is one of the Reasons given by the King's Counsel, why a Corporation is forfeitable; for these Franchises or Privileges are by Grant, and yet not surrenderable or forfeitable; and this also shews that Arguments general and from general Rules are most fallible, and fit only to take weak Apprehensions. But next, consider what it is to be a Body Politick or Corporation. A Body Politick is framed and constituted in Similitude or Likeness of a natural Body, with Capacity to take, hold, and enjoy, and act as a natural Body, and can no more surrender or forfeit his Being, while the Members of that Body are subsisting, than a natural Body can while alive. It is only a Capacity framed and created in a Multitude to be and act as one Person; they are incorporate and made one Body Politick, that have Power, and Capacity, or Franchise of acting, taking, holding, and granting; this is their Franchise, admit it so, but differs from others. Franchises and Liberties of all other Natures are Estates and Inheritances grantable, and conveyable from one to another, as other Estates are; this is no such Thing, grantable or transferrable; other Franchises and Liberties affect the King's Subjects, and are Privileges claimed, wherein the King and the rest of his Subjects not claiming the Franchise, are more concerned than in this of being a Body Politick; for other Franchises either convey some Profit from the King, as Felons Goods, Waifs, Estrays, Wrecks, or the like; or affect his Subjects, as Courts, Jails, Returns of Writs, Fairs, Markets, and the like: But this of being a Body Politick is only a Capacity to be a Person capable of having and holding what may be granted unto it, and of granting and acting as a natural Body, and affects the King, or other his Subjects, no otherwise than giving Capacity to take, hold, and enjoy what they can get, as other Persons capacitated may. Other Franchises, Liberties, and Privileges are distinct and separate Estates, and if any one be forfeit, as it may for Misuser, the rest are not; except Incidents and Appurtenances. But if the Being of a Corporation be forfeited, all their Estates, Lands, Goods and Chattels are gone at once: So that though you admit and call this a Liberty or Franchise, it is nothing like in its Nature to those Things generally known and understood by the Name of Franchises or Liberties; and general Sayings are generally to be understood of such Things as are generally so taken and called. If then there be such great and apparent Difference betwixt this of the being a Body Politick, supposing it being, in a general and large Sense, a Franchise, Liberty, or Privilege, and other particular Franchises, admitting that which is said, that the Misuser of a Franchise is a Forfeiture, holds generally true, yet it is not in every Particular true; where there is such apparent Difference and Reason to distinguish, as betwixt the Being of a Corporation or a Body Politick, which is only a Capacity, and other particular Franchises, which are Estates; there is also apparent Reason to distinguish betwixt one and the other, they being so much differing one from the other in Nature and Reality. But next, that this was never taken in Law to be such a Franchise, Liberty, or Privilege, as was comprehended under the general Meaning of Franchise or Liberty: By Stat. of Glost' 6 E. 1. Inst. 2. 278. Writs were to go to all Sheriffs forty Days before the Eire, of general Summons, for all to come in at the Eire to claim their Privileges; and the second Day of the Sitting of the Justices in Eire a Proclamation made to the same Purpose. In the Comment upon that Statute it appears, Inst. 2. 281, 282. that if the Party did not appear, his Franchises were seized into the King's Hands, Nomine districtionis, and if not replevied, sitting the Eire, they were forfeit or lost for ever. If the Party did appear, and did not claim, then they were lost for ever. In all the Proceedings in Eire there is no such Thing can be found, that the Corporations did come in and make Claims to their being Corporations or Bodies Politick, or that ever any were seized, if it be seizable, into the King's Hands, or was forfeit for not claiming. Fulcher and Heyward's C. Palm. 491. It appears, that the Dean and Chapter there surrendered their Charter, and all their Manors, Lands, Possessions, Privileges, Franchises, and Hereditaments, Spiritual and Temporal, and this with Intent to surrender; that there might be a new Corporation erected; as is recited in the Letters Patents of new Erection.

In this Case, Rep. 3. 75. And. 2. 120. Jones 168. resolved, That by this Surrender the old Corporation was not surrender'd. This Judgment doth conclude, and must be given, either because by the Word Franchise, and the other general Words, the Franchise of being a Corporation was not comprehended; or if the Word is sufficient, and did comprise it, that it could not by Law be surrender'd. This, I think, sufficiently shews that Corporations were in Law as Persons natural are, and in like Manner claimed, and that the being a Body Politick, or Corporation, was not to be claimed, comprised, or meant within the general Word, Franchises, no more than the Liberty or Franchise of Denizen, of Manumission. Next, no Instance can be given of any Seizure of any Corporation, or Body Politick, for any Forfeiture: Seizure of their Liberties, or putting Officers upon them, is quite another Thing, as I shall shew presently. So that these general Sayings in Law Books, that Misuser of a Franchise forfeits the Franchise, neither in Law or Reason extends to the Being of a Body Politick or Corporation, but is applicable only to particular Franchises of other Natures; and the Reason, that that which is grantable is forfeitable, is as fallacious, as before appears.

3. As for the Records cited to prove that the Corporation or Body Politick may be forfeited, I will state those that are most effective, and do them Right therein.

Johannes Dennis, Mayor of Sandwich, P. 9. E. 1. and three more, were attached to answer Domino Regi de placito transgr' & unde Robertus de Stokko, Sheriff of Kent, qui sequitur pro ipso Rege, complains that he had sent his Bailiffs (naming them) to make Execution of the King's Writ, in villa de Stanore, quæ est Baronia Domini Regis, and that the Defendants, with Swords drawn, took away the King's Writ, and trod it under their Feet, and would not suffer it to be executed; unde dicit quod deterioratus est, & damnum habet ad valentiam 2,000 Marks. The Mayor appears, and pleads to the Jurisdiction, that he ought not to answer this Matter, except in the Court of Shipway. The Sheriff replies, that Stanore is the King's Barony, belonging to the Barony of St. Austin's, and relies upon a Record before Justice in Eyre, where an Amerciament upon that Ville was formerly set. The Mayor refuseth to plead over. Then a Day is given over, then it is enter'd thus: Posteaq; coram Domini Rege & ejus Concil' quia Barones de'l Cinque-Ports nec aliqui alii in Regno nostro possint clamare talem libertatem, quod non responderent Domini Regi de contemptu sibi fact' ubi Dominus Rex eas adjornare voluerit; & quia prædict' Barones non protulerunt aliquas Chartas a Regibus concessas, in quibus non fuit excepta Regia Dignitas consideratum est quod respondeant; & quia le Defendants would not answer any otherwhere than in Shipway; consideratum est quod habeantur in defensionem, pro convictis de prædict' Transgr' & Contempt'. Et quia the said John Dennis is convicted of the said Offence, and the Fact of the Mayor, in those Things, which touch the Commonalty, is the Fact of the Commonalty, consideratum est quod Communitas de Sandwich amittat Libertatem suam, &c. Then follows, Postea, in præsentia of the Bishop of Bath and Wells, then Chancellor, and others, cum Assensu Regis, an Agreement betwixt the Abbot of St. Austin's, the Men of Stanore and Sandwich, de omnibus contentionibus. And then goes a long Agreement betwixt the Abbot and the Men of Sandwich and Stanore, concerning their Jurisdictions and Courts: Et si aliqua pars contra concordantiam illam ire vel facere, alia pars habeat suam recuperare per breve Domini Regis de Judicio exeunt de isto Recordo. Et pro hac prædict' homines vadiant prædict' Abbati 100 Marks, which the Abbot remits for 10 do-lis Vini; pretii 30 Marks, to be paid at the Feast of St. John the Baptist. This is the Record at large; and for the Extract in the Collections at Lincoln's Inn, whether it be of this Record, or any Execution that went out upon it, non constat. But that I think it could not be upon this Record; for the Record is not 30 Marks annuatim, as the Abstract is, and the Entry of the Videtur at the Conclusion; quod Judicium extendit contra Barones quinque Portuum, & eorum Libertates, ut mihi videtur; that is not my Lord Hales's Note, nor doth it appear whose it was.

Out of this Record how can a Man infer, that a Corporation shall be forfeit for the Miscarriage of the Mayor or Officer? How doth it appear from hence, that they should lose or forfeit their being a Corporation? By amittat Libertatem, all that is meant thereby is their Liberty in Stanore, or the Liberty they claimed to be implead in the Court of Shipway; and the Note in the Extract, videtur quod Judicium extendit versus Barones, must be, I think, taken to be as to their Liberty in Stanore, or to be sued only in the Court of Shipway. I have taken the more Notice of this Record; because it hath Countenance of a judicial Proceeding: But as to all the other Records cited,

A Writ to the Sheriff of Glocester, reciting, That the King, for Injuries and Contempts done by the Mayor and Commonalty of Bristol, the Liberty of that Ville by Bartholomew de Badlesmere, Custos of that Ville, into his Hands had seized, 6 E. 2. R. Cl. m. 5. The Writ commands the Sheriff, that the Custos should have the Execution of Writs as the Mayor and Bailiffs used to have. And in the Times of Henry III. Edward I. Edward II. and Richard II. there were frequent Seizures of the Office of Mayor; and the Kings did put in a Custos in the Place of Mayor, or made a Mayor; and these are called Seizures of Liberties.

King Henry III. put in a Custos over LONDON, which continued till the 54th of his Reign, and then was taken off, and the City restored to its Election, 49 H. III.

Edward I. put in a Custos, and continued so to do till the 25th of his Reign, and then was taken off, 15 E. 1.

The 14th of Edward II. a Seizure of the Office of Mayor by Henry de Staunton, and his Fellows, Justices in Eyre in the Tower, and Mayors put in by the King till the 20th of Edward II. and then restored: But for that of Richard II. give me Leave to digress, and give you the State of it out of the City Registers, which are more full than these cited.

A Writ from the King to the Mayor, Sheriffs, and Aldermen, commanding them to come with twenty-four principal Citizens, before the King and his Council at Nottingham, in crastino Sti. Johannis Baptist' tunc prox' fut'; and to bring sufficient Authority from the Commonalty to answer such Things as should be objected, 16 R. 2. July 22. Lib. H. fol. 269. b. City Reg. They appeared, and had a Letter of Attorney, ubi pro diversis defectionibus in Commissionem sua sub communi sigillo, & aliis de causis, the Mayor and Sheriffs were discharged of their Offices, and committed, diversis Prisonis; and afterwards, the first of July, Sir Edward Dallingrigg, made Custos by the King, came to Guildhall, and his Commission being read, he was sworn before the Aldermen, secundum quod Majores ante jurare solebant; the King also made the Sheriffs, and they were also sworn. This is also entered in the City Register, Lib. H. fol. 270. b.

It appears that the King first swore the Custos, and the Sheriffs, to be true to him; and also turned out the Aldermen. And that the Proceedings were before the Duke of Glocester, and other Lords; by a Commission to enquire of all Defaults in the Mayor and Sheriffs, in the well governing of the City, awarded upon the Statute made by the King's Grandfather; and that they were convicted by their own Confession; and thereupon the Liberty of the City seized.

The Pardon and Restitution enter'd, and thereby it is recited, that the Proceedings were upon the Statute, and the Judgment was, That for the first Offence they should forfeit one thousand Marks; for the second, two thousand Marks; and for for the third Offence, that the Liberty should be seized, 19 Sept. 16 R. 2. Lib. H. fol. 272. a. ubi supra.

The Statute 28 E. 3. cap. 10. enacted, That the Mayor, Sheriffs, and Aldermen of LONDON, which have the Governance of the same, shall cause the Errors, Defaults, and Misprisions in and about the same, to be corrected and redressed from Time to Time, upon Pain, that is to say, to forfeit to the King for the first Default, one thousand Marks; for the second Default, two thousand Marks; and for the third Default, the Franchises and Liberties of the City shall be seized into the King's Hands. And that the Trial of these Defaults shall be by Inquests of foreign Countries, and the Pains levied upon the Mayor, Sheriffs, and Aldermen. Upon this Statute were the Proceedings of R. 2. grounded.

The other Side have likewise much relied upon another Seizure made of the Liberties of the City of Cambridge.

A great Riot committed by the Town upon the University, heard in Parliament by Way of Petition, and Form of Articles exhibited by the Scholars against the Mayor and Bailiffs. Upon reading of which it was demanded of them, what they could say, why their Liberties should not be seized? After many Shifts they submitted themselves to the King's Mercy. The King thereupon, by Common Consent in Parliament, seized the same Liberties into his Hands, as aforesaid, and then granted divers Liberties to the Universities; and certain Liberties the King granted to the said Mayor and Bailiffs, and increased their former. These are the most substantial; it would be too tedious to repeat all, for there have been in those Days, but not since, many like Seizures of Liberties, as these; only general, but nothing particular to our Purpose; and though not cited, I shall also mention those in Crook. 5 R. 2. Rot. Par. N. 45. Inst. 4. 228.

Certiorari to the Mayor of Fith; they disobeyed the Writ, and gave scurvey Words, Cr. 1. 252. Tyndal's Case; and thereupon Mr. Noy cited two Cases of Seizures of Liberties: The Bishop of Durham had contemned the King's Process, and imprisoned the Messenger. An Information exhibited against him, the Offence proved; adjudged he should pay a Fine, & quod capiatur, and should lose his Liberties for his Time; because justum est quod in eo quod puniatur, 33 E. 1. Rot. 101. Another in Banco Com' a Prohibition awarded to the Bishop of Norwich; and he excommunicated the Party that brought the Writ, 21 E. 3. Rot. 46. The Party brought his Action, adjudged against the Bishop, that his Temporalities should be seized till he absolved the Party, and satisfied the King for his Contempt; and that the Party should recover 10,000 l. Damages. I answer to them,

(1.) That they were all above three hundred Years ago, except that of 16 R. 2. which is above two hundred and ninety, and no such Thing ever was done since; What Strefs or Weight can be given to such Proceedings? To what Rules or Law, since known or practised, can we bring these Proceedings? Are they now legal Precedents for the like Things to be done? The Writs out of old Records for the Ship-Money, and the Knighthood-Money, had as good Records to warrant them, and much more plain to the Purpose than these. The Precedents of Edward II. and Richard II. either of their Lives, or of their Deaths, or of the Lives or Deaths of some of the Judges of those Days, ought, as I conceive, to be no Examples. And for H. 3. E. 1. E. 2. and R. 2. and those Times, they were Times of great Troubles and Disorders; and what was then done is no Rule or Precedent for this Court, or any other Court of Justice, to go by, unless by later Times allowed or approved. No Law-Book or Report of any judicial Proceedings, either of E. 2. or of E. 3. or any later Book of Law, that I have yet heard of, or met with (and I doubt not but if there had been any, the King's Counsel would have made use of them) hath ever given so much Credit or Countenance to these Proceedings, as to take any Notice of them. To make use of old Records or Precedents, the Grounds or Reasons whereof cannot now be known, to subvert any Law or Government established, is neither adviseable nor commendable. But for further Answer to them:

(2.) As to that of 16 R. 2. that you see is grounded upon the Statute 28 E. 3. cap. 10. and can signify nothing to the present Purpose; for there, according to that Statute, they condemn the Mayor, Sheriffs, and Aldermen, upon their Confession, that they had misgoverned the City. The Mayor and Sheriffs being committed to Prisons, and this done before Dukes and Earls, by special Commission to that Purpose appointed, and convicted by their Confession, for the first, second, third Offence, all at once, is this of good Authority in Law? And for the others, that of E. 2. was before Justices in Eyre at the Tower, the Office of Mayoralty seized into the King's Hands, and replevied from Year to Year. And that Seizure that was made by King E. 1. for what Reasons or Grounds, or by what Sort of Proceedings, doth not appear; all that doth appear of it is, that de facto Custodes and Mayors were put upon the City, but quo jure, who can tell? We know these Times were Times of Trouble, in the Barons Wars. The Barons, Simon Mountford, Earl of Leicester, being their General, fought a Battle with the King at Lewes, and took the King and Prince Edward I. both Prisoners, 48 H. 3. The Barons differing among themselves, and the Earl of Glocester joined with the Prince, who got out of Prison, another Battle was fought at Evesham, and the great Earl Mountford slain, 49 H. 3. and then at Winchester, by Parliament, all his Party, and the Liberties of the City of LONDON, seized; and in such Times as these, and which followed in E. 1. E. 2. and R. 2. it is not to be marvelled if there were many Seizures and Custodes put on the City; it is more a Marvel they were not destroyed. The Statutes made in these Times shew not only the Disorders, but that the Liberties were greatly infringed, or else there would not have been Statutes to confirm them: Whether the infringing or seizing were the Cause or Effect, is hard to know; but just before, in those Times, there were undoubtedly many extravagant Acts of all Sides, which produced Magna Charta, made 9 H. 3. for confirming of the Liberties and Privileges not only of LONDON, but of all other Towns; and after these Times, in the three Reigns of the three succeeding Kings, How many other Statutes for confirming the Liberties and Privileges of the Cities and Towns were made, 1 H. 4. cap. 15? The Penalties and Forfeitures imposed by the Statute 28 E. 3. cap. 10. upon the City of LONDON put into the same Condition with other Cities and Boroughs as to Penalties and Seizures. A Statute confirming to all the Cities and Boroughs the Liberties and Franchises, which they by former Grants or Confirmations had, viz. 4 H. 4. cap. 1. confirmed in like Manner by 7 H. 4. cap. 1. Again confirmed in like Manner by 3 H. 5. cap. 1. Again confirmed by Statute of 2 H. 6. cap. 1. By which it appears, what a Sense and Memory they had of the Seizures that had been of their Liberties and Privileges, that they never thought them sufficiently confirmed; but they were sufficiently confirmed; for from the Time of R. 2. to this Day, we do not find any Seizure of any Liberties or Franchises, chises, or Custos made or, put upon them. That which was in those Days of Violence done, shew them the worst of Times, but are no Precedents for the best. But next,

Supposing and admitting these Records of these Times of good Authority, and as authentick Precedents as can be, they are so far from proving against me, that I hope to make it most plainly to appear, that they are strong and plain Authorities and Evidence against them, and for me. It is ordinary in disputing or arguing to lose the Point disputed or argued. That I may not commit so great an Error, but may evince and make plain what I have affirmed, give me Leave to look back to the Information and Replication, and from thence to make the Points that we argue, single, clear, and open. The Information, that saith, that we usurped upon the King to be a Corporation and Body Politick, but, in truth, are none. The Bar sets forth the Title to be a Corporation by Prescription, Time out of Mind. The Replication, that endeavours to avoid the Bar, by allowing that we were once a Corporation lawfully; but that by our Miscarriages we have forfeited our being a Corporation, and thereby became none, and after that usurp'd to be one. So that, that which the other Side maintains, is, That by our Misseasances we have committed a Forfeiture of our old lawful and rightful Corporation: These I deny; the Affirmation is upon them to prove, and they producing no Record that expresses any such Forfeiture of a Corporation, but only Records generally saying, that the Liberties should be forfeited or seized, the Question is, What the Meaning is in these old Records of forfeiting and seizing Liberties? Mr. Attorney was pleased to take it, and so did Mr. Solicitor, as I think, that forfeiting and seizing were much one; I shall not dispute that; but whether in any of those Records the Corporation or Body Politick were by these Words taken to be forfeited? Mr. Attorney was so careful to avoid the Consequences of a Forfeiture of a Corporation, which are so great and destructive, that he would not, by a Judgment in a Quo Warranto against a Corporation, have the Corporation determined, no more than he would by the Forfeiture, ipso facto, have it determined, but that there should be some Seizure into the King's Hands; but what that is, or how to be understood, I cannot imagine. For if the Corporation be not to be dissolved and determined, in whom should it rest or remain after such Forfeitures, or during such Seizure? Shall it after Forfeiture remain in the same Persons that it was in? Shall it subsist, live, and act as before? or shall it be in Limbo Patrum, or in Nubibus? Is a Corporation transferrable to any other Person or Persons? Can a Corporation be conveyed or transferred? that is impossible; and so it appears in the Dean and Chapter of Norwich's Case, and Fulcher and Heyward, and 1st Inst. in the Case of the Homage Ancestral before cited, That a Corporation is not transferrable from one Body of Men to another; therefore the King cannot possibly have it, nor can he grant it. Ay, But saith Mr. Attorney, it shall be seized, and in the King's Hands: What is meant by these Words? How can it be in the King's Hands, if not transferrable? Next, What shall the King do with it? Shall he grant to others? No, that is impossible; by the Cases cited, it so appears the King may make a new, but he cannot grant an old Corporation, because not transferrable. Then if he cannot grant, if it be not transferrable, if a Corporation or Body Politick be by Law framed in Similitude of a natural Body, then it is no more transferrable than a natural Body is. The Body cannot be taken out of the Hands of the Persons incorporate. From hence then, if this be so, it will follow of Necessity that the Corporation, if it cannot be transferred to the King, or by the King's Grant, out of the Persons in whom it is, to others, it must remain where it is, or be dissolved. Next, that which I shall shew is,

That by the Words forfeiting and seizing Liberties in those old Records, it cannot be meant forfeiting and seizing a Corporation or Body Politick; they still continued. But that which is the true Sense of these Words, forfeiting and seizing Liberties in those Records was, if the Abuse or Misuse were of a particular Franchise, as of Courts, Prisons, Markets, or the like, the King had them forfeited to him. If the Abuse were by a Corporation, they acted by their active Parts, by their Mayors, Bailiffs, Sheriffs, Coroners, or the like; the King seized these Offices, turned the Corporation Officers out, and put others into their Places. This was the Course in the Eires, where these Seizures in those Days usually were: But for seizing Corporations as forfeit, there hath been no Instance of it in any Time; but the contrary is most evident: For the Corporations, notwithstanding the supposed Forfeitures or Seizures remained still in being; and this is evident even to Sense. The Seizures that have been mentioned, have been of LONDON, Bristol, Gloucester, Cambridge, and Cinque Ports, Ipswich, and Winchester.

I offer to your Consideration, whether these Cities of LONDON and Bristol, Gloucester, Cambridge, and also the Cinque Ports, ever since, have not continually in all Pleadings, Claims, and Titles, made themselves a Title by Prescription? Are they not by Prescription to this Day? Do they not claim their Markets, Tolls, and all their Privileges by Prescription? Do not the Acts of Parliament that immediately follow these Seizures made by H. 4. H. 5. H. 6. in the Times succeeding, all confirm their Privileges? Not a Word of granting new Privileges, but confirming the old; which shews plainly, that in those Days the Corporations were not thought or imagined to be determined or dissolved. By these Seizures, or supposed Forfeitures, the Enjoyment or Possession, for the Space of three hundred Years, is Evidence sufficient of their remaining and being Bodies Politick by Prescription, which they could not be, if they were forfeited, as pretended. For by Forfeiture they must mean the losing their Corporation, or being divested; no other Sense can be, or ever was of Forfeiture. Could they forfeit them, and yet keep them? Could they lose them, and yet have them? If they could not, then it is plain that since they always have had them, they never forfeited or lost them. But for farther Evidence hereof, I shall make it most plainly to appear, that during the very Times of these Seizures the Corporations remained and acted as Corporations; and that at that Time it was never thought or imagined that during the Seizures the Corporations were forfeit; all that was done was, that the Election of their Mayor, or of their Sheriff, was de facto taken from them, and either a Custos, or a Mayor, by the King put over them, and continued till those King's Displeasures were over, and then they chose their own Officers again: But no thought then of forfeiting the Corporation. By the City Books, as well as Records, this is most evident. The putting a Custos by King E. 1. continued for the Space of eleven Years, from 15 E. 1. to 26 E. 1. and then they chose their Mayor again. By the City Books it appears, that their Court of Hustings all along continued, as at other Times, Aldermen all along, Lib. A. fol. 50, 51, 135.

Radulphus de Sandwyco Custos Civitat' LONDON. Henricus le Walleys, and others, Aldermen (naming them) & universalis Communitas ejusdem

With the King's Remembrancer in the Exchequer, Cives LONDON. venerunt coram Baronibus, & præsentaverunt Johannem de Canluar' & Willielmum de Betoyn ad respondend' pro Civitat' prædict' & Com' Middlesex, de his quæ ad Officium Vicecomitis pertinent, & ad hoc faciend' præstiterunt Sacramentum, 16 E. 1. A Writ of Right in the Hustings, brought by the Corporation. Communitas Civitat' LONDON. per Radulphum Pecocks Attornatum suum petit versus Hugonem Episcopum de Bedlam unum Messuagium, &c. 22 E. 1.

All the Aldermen, and twelve Citizens were called before the King and his Council, and the King restored them the Election of their Mayor, and they chose *Henry de Gabey*s Mayor. And on Monday following comes the King's Writ, whereby the King, for good Services, reddidimus & restituimus Civibus LONDON. Civitatem, una cum Majoritate & Libertatibus suis, quas certis de causis dudum capi fecimus in manum nostram. So that hereby it most evidently appears the Corporation was not forfeit, lost or dissolved, only a Custos put over them, which acted in the Place of Mayor; and when removed, they chose their Mayor again, 26 E. 1. Lib. B. fol. 38.

The Liberties not forfeit, only seized into the King's Hands; so saith the Writ dudum capi fecimus in manum nostram. The Record of Cambridge I have looked upon; it plainly appears in it, that the Corporation was not forfeited and dissolved, as you suppose: For it appears, that when they submitted to the King to do with their Franchises what he pleased; yet it was salvo to the Mayor and Bailiffs, their Response to all other Matters. And afterwards, at the same Time, the King grants to the same Mayor and Bailiffs divers Liberties, by which it appears that the Corporation was not forfeit, but still in Being, notwithstanding the Seizure and Forfeiture.

The Seizure that was by King Edward 2. was in no Sort any Forfeiture or Determination of their Corporation; but either under a Custos, or under a Mayor put in by the King.

The Custos, Aldermen, and Commonalty appeared, and turned out some of their Aldermen, Lib. E. fol. 11. b.

They chose and swore their Sheriffs, and by this Time they had a Mayor again; but the Office of Mayoralty, granted them by the King, Lib. D. fol. 6.

The King grants to Nicholas de Farrington the Office of Mayor, quam diu nobis placuerit, 16 E. 2. Lib. E. fol. 146.

They had a Writ restoring to them the Office of their Mayor again, 20 E. 2.

Then for the Seizure of 16 R. 2. that continued but from the 22d of July unto the 19th of September following; and the Form or Colour of Law that they had for that, was the Statute of 28 E. 3. and the Custos put in sworn at Guildhall, and took the Oath of the Mayor, as appears in the Book which I cited; where it is mentioned to be upon that Statute, Lib. H. 269. b. 16 R. 2.

But for further Evidence; in the Treasurer's Remembrancer's Office in the Exchequer, 4 E. 3. Rot. 2. in Bagode Quo Warranto in Itinere Northampton & Bedford, Quo Warranto versus Villam de Bedford; in that Record are these Things: First, that the Village of Bedford had not at the last preceding Eire made Claim of divers Liberties, and thereupon in that Eire adjudged, quod omnes Libertates non clamat' capi' fuissent in manus Domini Regis, and had not been replevied, but the Corporation not seized. Thereupon the Corporation offer a Fine of eight Marks to the King, pro licentia clamandi, their Liberties, and admitted to fine: But then it appeared, that the Mayor, and the Coroners had sat in Judgment, and condemned Men for Felonies committed out of the Jurisdiction; and thereupon Consideratum est, quod prædict' Libertas de Infangtheife, & Officia Major', Ballivorum, & Coronatorum ejusdem Villæ capiant' in manus Domini Regis. Sed quia cætera Libertates & Consuetud' Villæ prædict' absque Ministris pro communi utilitate Populi ibidem nequeant conservari, the Court puts Johannem de Tound, Custos, Johannem Wymound and Richardum Rounds, Bailiffs, and Nicholas Astwood and William de Knight, Coroners, who are all sworn to execute those Offices; and to answer the King the Profits. Hereby it appears, that the Course was not to forfeit or dissolve the Corporation; they never were so unreasonable; for hereby all their Lands and Goods, and all the Debts owing by them, or to them, would all be lost: All they did was, they put in Officers to preserve Corporations. So that I think there is nothing more plain, that though the Liberties were seized, and that Officers, Custodes or Mayors, were put upon them; yet the Corporations, or Bodies Politick, or their Liberties, were not forfeit, or determined. If they had been either forfeited or determined, could the Writs of Restitution have set them up again? The old could never be restored or set up again, but by Act of Parliament; they might have had new Charters, and have been made new Corporations, but the old could never have been restored, if once forfeited, as now imagined. So that the Point betwixt us is, Whether the Records of E. 1. E. 2. and R. 2. of Forfeitures and Seizures of Liberties, supposing the Causes or Offences for which they were seized, were very great and provoking; as in all Probability they were, do prove that thereby the Corporations were forfeit, dissolved, or determined: It appears they were not forfeit, you can never void it. If abusing the Franchise or Liberty of being a Corporation be a Forfeiture, as you affirm, and that they were seized for being forfeit; then the Offences that were committed by these Corporations in those Princes Times, were Forfeitures, and consequently the Seizures dissolved the Corporations. They could not forfeit and lose their Corporations, and yet keep them. And that they still had their Being is most evident by the Records of those Times, shewing, that they acted, and enjoyed their Corporations under those Seizures, only a Custos instead of a Mayor, all other Things the same. That they have in all Ages ever since been allowed to be Corporations by Prescription, never denied or questioned. That the Acts of Parliament immediately following, confirming their Privileges, never questioned their having them. Never any Thoughts of making void any Forfeitures by these Acts, or any new Grant, but always pleaded by Prescription. These Things plainly shew, that the Offences committed in those Times did not forfeit the Corporation; and all that dark Authority they have out of those Records is directly against them, proves only that these Abuses gave only Cause of Seizure of some Offices, but no Forfeiture of the Corporation, that still continued.

Having thus answered those old Records, and shewn that they are of Authority for me against them; and since it hath been stirred in this Case, whether a Corporation or Body Politick be surrenderable, or not, and insisted upon by the other Side that it is, and from thence an Argument drawn to prove, that if surrenderable, it is forfeitable: Whether it be surrenderable or not, perhaps is also doubtful, so that I think a Man cannot argue from it any Thing. First, I am sure there is no great Reason why it should be; for since that Men that are of the Corporation take, upon their coming to be made Free, an Oath to preserve the Rights, Liberties, and Privileges of it; and since the active Members are intrusted for all the other Members that elect and choose them, and also for their Successors, I cannot see how a Man can satisfy himself in so doing.

Sir James Bagg's Case, Rep. 11. 98, they forfeit their Freedom by doing contrary to their Oath and Trust. If every Freeman by his Oath and Trust be obliged to seek the Benefit of the Corporation, to surrender is against the Oath. The Law seems to have a Care of preserving Corporations; and therefore provides that the taking any new Charter, though there be many Alterations in Offices and Names, yet doth not surrender the old. But were it of any other Franchise, the taking a-new of the same Thing is a Surrender of the Old.

Dean and Chapter of Norwich's Case, Rep. 3. 73.

Fulcher and Heyward's Case seems a strong one to prove it not surrenderable, Jones 266. And though the Bishop did not in that Case join in the Surrender, that cannot hinder; because the Bishop is no Part of the Corporation, and therefore cannot hinder them to surrender, if they will.

A Ville incorporate by the Name of Bailiffs, 4 H. 26. 22. b. The King, de novo, incorporates them by the Name of Sheriffs; Are their Privileges, that they before had, gone? No, Dieu defend, saith the Book. But this being not my Question, I intend not to debate it thoroughly, but to keep to the Point of a Forfeiture of a Body Politick or Corporation, and farther, to examine the Reasonableness and Justice of this Doctrine of Forfeiture, and see how adequate and just it is; for that is the Thing, I perceive, desired.

First, Their Position is, That a Corporation, or Being of a Body Politick, is a Liberty or Franchise, and if abused or misused, is forfeited, determined, and dissolved.

That I may a little understand this Position, and consider of Abuse and Misuse, and of the Extents and Consequences of it: By Abuse or Misuse, every Act that a Corporation doth, that is not justifiable by Law, is, as I take it, an Abuser or Misuser. If a Corporation receive any Money, that is not due to them, if it be by Virtue of any By-Law, that is a Forfeiture, though it be but a Groat. What if they, by their Common Seal, command their Servant to enter into such Lands, or distrain such a Man's Cattle for Rent not due; Is not this a taking upon them to oppress the King's Subjects, and to extort from them their Lands or Monies where not due? This is a Misuser. A Body Politick, as I have said, is but a Person created in Resemblance of a natural Person, to have Capacity to take, hold, and enjoy, to particular Ends and Purposes. And hold or enjoy is not possible, without acting; and all that act must of Necessity be subject to Errors sometimes, in their Actions, as natural Persons are. And must it be so penal to them, that every Error, Misuser, or Abuser, must be a Forfeiture? Can it be reasonable or just in Law that this can be? Laws are made for Preservation, not for Destruction; if every Abuser or Misuser forfeit, be it a small Transgression, is it either reasonable or probable, that any Law shall punish it with Destruction of the Body? The greatest Offence, be it Treason or Rebellion, or the least illegal Act, Offence, or Misdemeanor, must have the same Measure of Punishment by this Rule; and the Law then doth not distinguish. If a natural Body or Person hath a Market, and orders his Servants to take such Tolls, and he takes them, what would this Crime be, besides Forfeiture of his Market? Why should a Corporation then not only in such a Case, or for any Offence or Miscarriage to the Value of a Penny, forfeit and lose, as in the Case of High Treason, his Life or Being, Lands, Goods, and all? This cannot be agreeable to any Rules or Reason of our Law; and therefore I take it, it cannot be Law. The next Thing I design to insist upon is,

Secondly, The Mischiefs and Inconveniencies that must attend this Doctrine or Law of forfeiting or surrendering, if the Law be so.

Let us then consider, whether this, at one Stroke, does not make all the Corporations in England, of all Sorts, forfeit at once, and perhaps many Years since. Is there any Corporation in England that hath not offended or transgressed? All Manner of Corporations fall under this Rule. If they have transgressed, or done any such Act as makes a Forfeiture (as every Miscarriage, for any Thing I can see to the contrary, doth) whether the Corporation be, ipso facto, dissolved by the Offence committed, or else by the Judgment, which must relate to the Offence, to avoid all mean Acts done by the Corporation; all that they have done since such Miscarriage, they have done without Right; and all that they think they have a Title to, as a Corporation, they are mistaken in, they have none. Perhaps if a Parliament should be called, those forfeited Corporations can lawfully send no Burgesses. I do not know whether I am mistaken or not: I only offer this to Consideration amongst others: As (give me Leave to venture a little farther upon these Considerations of Surrenders and Forfeitures of Corporations) Can a Bishop, Dean and Chapter, Prebendary, Parson, &c. surrender his Corporation or Body Politick? If they can, most of them, perhaps, are of the Foundation of the Crown, and had their Lands from thence. We have many Statutes made to restrain their Alienations: Those of Queen Elizabeth did not extend to hinder their Alienations to the Crown; but, perhaps, out of Hope of Preferment, they aliened to the Crown till the Statute of 1 Jac. cap. 3. took away that Power also of conveying to the Crown: Can these forfeit the Corporations? Perhaps we are Sinners all, or at least, as the Balance at some Time or other may be holden, may be found too light: We are upon a Point that goes to Posterity: Fear, and Favour, what may it do, and what may it not do? If they may surrender or forfeit, what Effects may this have upon the whole Ecclesiastical Estate? If this had been known in the Days of King Henry VIII. perhaps there would have been no great Need of Acts of Parliament to make him Head of the Church, or to have dissolved the Monasteries. Suppose that Colleges, Hospitals, and other Corporations founded for Charity, can surrender or forfeit, the present Masters and Fellows, and the Heirs of the Donors may truck; what Effect may this have upon them? What Ways may they find out? Also Cities and Boroughs; what Divisions and Contentions hath it already produced, some for furthering, others for defending, what Animosities are about it? The End of the Law is to preserve Peace and Quiet. Divisions and Dissentions frequently end in the Destruction of both Parties. The Citizens and Burgeses are, I think, three Parts of four of the House of Commons. It is considerable what Effects this may have in Parliaments, our Laws and Posterity perhaps not a little concerned herein; and if so, surely this is a great Case: But if only the City of LONDON, give me Leave to see what the ill Consequences and Mischiefs will be. Arguments from Mischiefs and Inconveniencies are forcible Arguments in Law. So saith Littleton, and my Lord Coke upon Littleton; and Men must be desperate and sensual that despise future Mischiefs and Inconveniencies, and many other Places there cited. Inst. 1. 11. 60.

1. All their Lands will be gone and revert to the Donors, and their Heirs. By Dissolutions of Corporations, all their Privileges are gone, and their Lands revert to their Donors, or Lords, of whom they were holden. Jones 190. F. N. B. 33. k. Inst. 113. b.

2. All their Markets, Tolls and Duties, that they claim by Prescription; whereby the Government, and the Honour of the City, the Publick Halls, Gates, Prisons, Bridges, and other Edifices, are in a great Measure maintained.

3. All the Debts owing to the City, and all their personal Estate, by the Death or Dissolution of the Corporation, will be gone; but who shall have them? Perhaps; non definitur in jure.

4. All the Liberties and customary Privileges that the Freemen of the City, their Wives and Children claim, viz. to have customary Shares in their Husbands or Fathers Estates; to be exempt from Tolls in other Towns, Ports, and Markets; to exclude Foreigners and Unfreemen from using their Trades in LONDON, and many others.

5. All the Acts of Parliament that give particular Powers and Authorities to the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, or Common-Council, or Corporation, respecting either the Government or Justice of the City; as about Ministers, and Payment of their Dues, Buildings, Paving of Streets, Sewers, Insurance-Office, and many others.

6. What shall become of the Orphans, and all the Monies and Debts the City owes, and all the Charities in the City? We have seen the City burnt, and may remember what a Swarm were unhived thereby; but we never yet saw it dissolved, nor are the Consequences measurable. And though it please his Majesty upon the Dissolution of this, to grant a new Charter, yet it will be impossible any of these Things can be preserved: Their Lands, Estates, Debts, Privileges, Customs, are all Personal, and annexed to the Corporation, and must live and die with it; the said Acts of Parliament are all fixed to this Corporation, and so are the Charities, and cannot, as I conceive, be ever transferred to another to be new created. A new Corporation can be in no Succession or Privity with the old. If a Body Politick be once dissolved, though a new one be founded of the same Name, that can have no Succession to the old, nor come in Privity to it: Therefore is it that in the Dean and Chapter of Norwich's Case, and in Fulcher and Heyward's Case, the Preservation of the old Corporation is insisted on, Inst. 1. 102. b. If every Abuser committed by a Corporation be a Forfeiture, Determination, or Dissolution, is there any one in England not forfeited and dissolved? Abuse is a Word of wonderful large Sense: When the Law speaks of a Franchise abused or misused, it is applicable to a particular Franchise, as to a Market, Court, or the like; and if that Franchise be misused, or abused, in Oppression or Misuse, contrary to the Ends of it, some Certainty there is in it: But the Abuse of a Corporation extends to all its Acts, and all Estates of the Corporation; and all the Privileges of all the particular Persons, and all that are concerned in them, are Sufferers for every Abuse, or Misuse, or Misact, or Trespass, how small soever. Who can tell in the Actions of a Person what may be taken to be ill, or illegally done, or an Abuse? Who will trust a Corporation, if its Duration and Existence be so fickle and infirm, that every Abuser or Misuser shall forfeit it? There will be no Need of Officers to be amoved, thereby to determine this Corporation at Will and Pleasure, this Position contains enough to do all. These great Consequences, attending this Doctrine of Forfeiture, are Reasons to prove the Law otherwise.

But, saith Mr. Attorney (if I understand him) We do not intend to destroy the Corporation, though we say in our Pleading, that you have forfeited your old Corporation, that you have, without any lawful Authority, usurped upon the King, and pray in our Replication, that de Libertate, Privilegio, & Franchesia illa (viz. the being a Corporation) abinducantur & excludantur. These are but Words of Form, we only will lay the King's Hands gently upon it, and seize it, but the Corporation shall not be destroyed or dissolved.

I answer, This is wonderful, and a great Compliment to the City, as I take it; let us not flatter or deceive one another. We are not now in the irregular Days in the Records mentioned, nor in such Sort of Proceedings as in those distracted Times. Let us not go by blind Conjectures, out of old Records, and bring in unknown Ways. We are now in a Quo Warranto, which Mr. Attorney truly saith, is in the Nature of a Writ of Right; and a Writ of Right is the highest Writ that is in the Law; and the Judgment therein, and in this Quo Warranto must be conclusive to all Parties. If given against the Defendants, it must exclude them for ever, and dissolve their Corporation; and if given against the King, he shall never hereafter bring it in Question for any Cause precedent, Rep. 9. 28. Inst. 2. 282. 495. Cook's Entries 527. D. hath a Precedent of it, Consideratum est, quod the Defendant de & in Libertatibus, Privilegiis, & Franchesiis præd' in Informatione prædict' specificat' nullo modo se intromittat, sed ab iisdem penitus excludatur. The like against Ferrers, and the Virginia Company, and many others may be found, M. 21 Fac. 1. r. 9. The Court cannot alter the Judgment, it will be erroneous if they do. And to talk of a Judgment of a Seizure, what is the Meaning of it, or such Judgment? Is it final, or not final? The Court must give a final Judgment, that the Party, if he think fit, may have his Writ of Error. The Court will not take any of your old Records to go by, if any such are to be found, that would warrant any other Judgment: Therefore a Seizure, without a Judgment, that determines the Corporation, cannot be any Way brought to pass, as I believe, nor can I understand in whom, by your Seizure, you would have the old Corporation to subsist. Transferred from the Persons, in whom it now subsists, I think is impossible, but dissolved by your Judgment it may be: And, I hope, your Lordship will not be induced by singular unwarrantable Things, that a Judgment should be given that neither dissolve the Corporation, nor continue it, that shall neither be for Plaintiff or Defendant, that shall leave the Corporation Corporation neither alive nor dead, but in Transitu, or Limbo Patrum: A Judgment, quod capiuntur, or quod Libertates & Franchisæ prædictæ seſſantur in manus Domini Regis. Was there ever any the like? What ſhall be underſtood by it? Shall we be afterwards a Corporation? Shall our Magiſtrates continue? Shall we have our Lands, Markets, Tolls, Customs, or Franchiſes, or not? Or ſhall we be none, and yet not diſſolved? I muſt confeſs, I am confounded in theſe Notions.

Next, as to the Authorities in Law for me:

1. I take it to be a great Authority for me, that there is no Precedent, or Judgment, or Book Caſe, produced or found, that ever a Corporation was forfeited. It lies upon the other Side to produce it, or ſhew it; and no doubt they would, if there had been any, but there is none by the Authorities they cite; you may eaſily perceive any Sort would not be omitted.

2. The Nature of a Corporation, as our Books do deſcribe it, ſhews it not forfeitable. I take it plain out of the Caſe of Sutton's Hoſpital, and the other Books there cited, Rep. 10. 92. b. 21. E. 4. 72. A Corporation aggregate is inviſible, immortal, and reſts only in Intendment and Conſideration of Law, cannot commit Treason or Felony, be out-lawed, excommunicate, hath no Soul, cannot appear in Perſon, cannot do Fealty, cannot be imprifoned, not ſubject to Imbecillity or Death, Br. Corp. 24. 34. They cannot commit any actual Treſpaſs or Diſſeiſin, except under their Common Seal, by Command, Precedent, or Aſſent ſubſequent: When our Books ſay, that they are a Body Politick, and reſt or have their Being in Intendment or Conſideration of Law, thereby is meant, that they are by Law enabled to act to particular Ends and Intents answerable to their Ends and Creations. Their Ends or Creations are only to be ſubſervient to the publick Good, and Government, and Preſervation of the City or Town incorporate, and of the Members thereof. And if there be any Act done by the Members that are the active Part of ſuch Corporation, to any other Intent, End, or Purpose, this is not the Act of the Corporation, but of the particular Members, and they only are answerable for it. And as to particular Offences and Miſcarriages in this Caſe alledged, it cannot be denied but that the particular Members are answerable for it; and if they, then according to all Books they ought not to be doubly chargeable or answerable in both Capacities. And the Argument cited out of Bagg's Caſe, of a Freeman convicted of Perjury, and thereupon diſfranchiſed, doth not prove that they ſhall be puniſhed in a double Capacity; for the Corporation is not thereby puniſhed, but preſerved. The Being of a Body Politick is only a Capacity, and in Reſemblance of a natural Body, and no more forfeitable than a natural Body. It is ſeizing and forfeiting of Liberties that we meet with, that is, ſuch as are generally ſpoken of, as Markets, Courts, Jurifdictions, and the like: And in the old Records, by ſeizing the Liberties of a Corporation is meant the taking from them their Officers, and putting in others upon them for a Time. But a forfeiting, diſſolving, and determining the Body Politick, never was yet done or known, nor, as reaſonable to believe, ever entered into any Man's Thoughts till now; for I have already ſhewn that Offences and Miſcarriages, that were committed by the Corporations in thoſe troubleſome Times of E. 1. E. 2. and R. 2. for which their Liberties were ſeized, were not Forfeitures and Determinations of thoſe Corporations, they all remain Corporations by Preſcription to this Day: And I have alſo taken Notice, that the Acts of Parliament that were made in the ſucceeding Kings Reigns, of H. 4. H. 5. and H. 6. are only Acts of Confirmation to the Cities and Boroughs of their Liberties and Privileges. From that Time till within theſe three Years, I believe it never entered into any Man's Thoughts, that a Corporation was forfeitable; for farther Proof whereof divers other Statutes, and the whole Series of Matter is Argument.

The Statute 15 H. 6. cap. 6. that provides againſt Abuses and Exactions made by Societies incorporate, by their By-Laws and Ordinances, and appoints a Forfeiture of ten Pounds, and of their Power to make By-Laws: To what End ſhould this be, if the Corporations themſelves were forfeited, or thought ſo to be?

The Statute of 19 H. 7. cap. 7. recites the Statute of H. 6. and the Exactions and Abuses by Fellowſhips, by their By-Laws and Ordinances, and appoints a Penalty of forty Pounds if they exact Money by an unlawful and unwarranted By-Law, not examined and ſigned by the Chancellor and Chief Juſtice.

The Statute of 12 H. 7. cap. 6. ſets forth grievous Exactions by the Fellowſhip of Merchant Adventurers, by their By-Laws, and impoſeth a Penalty for the future.

The Statutes 22 H. 8. 4. 28 H. 8. 5. ſhew like Exactions by Corporations upon Apprentices by their Ordinances and By-Laws, provides Remedy, and enacts Penalty. If in thoſe Times it had been thought or imagined that a Corporation had been forfeitable, every of theſe Offences forfeited it, what Need farther Remedy? In the Caſe of Hoddy and Wheehouſe, of exceſſive Toll by the Town of Northampton, Moore 474. 39 Eliz. In the Quo Warranto againſt a Corporation, though the Queſtion was concerning their taking Toll, and whether they had forfeited their Market, or only their Tolls; no Thought of forfeiting their Corporation was ever mentioned. So that, I think, I may conclude with the tumultuous Times of E. 1. E. 2. and R. 2. what was then done, doth plainly ſhew the Corporations were not forfeited or diſſolved: That by all the Acts of Parliament, and Proceedings in almoſt all the Reigns of any Length or Duration, from that Time to this very Caſe, the Opinions and Thoughts of Men were otherwiſe; as by the Statutes and Tranſactions appears: Not one Opinion, Book, or Authority, produced, or to be found. The great Concern not only of this great City, but of all other Cities, Towns, and Corporations, Eccleſiaſtical and Temporal, all depend upon it. And which is more than all, the very Government by Law eſtabliſhed will be in great Danger of Alteration by it.

I have argued long, and tried your Lordſhip's Patience; the Weight and Length of the Caſe, and Rareneſs of the Matter, there never having been the like before in any Age, will, I hope, excuſe me. But beſides the whole Frame and Foundation, that the other Side have laid, being all built upon general undigeſted Notions, as I take it, viz. that Abuser and Miſurer of Liberties forfeits them, without diſtinguiſhing betwixt one Thing and another; that the Words forfeiting and ſeizing Liberties, found in old Records, ſhould be Authorities to prove forfeiting Corporations or Beings of the Body Politick, tho' no ſuch Thing then, or at any Time ſince, till very lately, was never thought on, or imagined: It was neceſſary for me to open and ſet forth theſe general Notions, and to explain and diſtinguiſh; which, I hope, I have done, that it may appear what the Senſe of them is, how far they agree with Law and Juſtice, and how far not. And if, in the doing hereof, or the ſetting out the repugnant or inconfiſtent Matters or Opinions arising in this Case to maintain this Quo Warranto, I have expressed myself in any other Manner than became me, I humbly beg Pardon for it; and that it may not reflect upon the Cause, nor prejudice it.

Upon the whole Matter, if this Information brought against the Body Politick for usurping to be a Body Politick, ought to have been brought against the particular Persons; if it be repugnant or contradictory, that a Corporation can usurp to be a Corporation; that a Body Politick or Being can usurp to be a Body Politick or Being, before it had a Being, or to be that same Body Politick or Being, which it was when it did usurp; if forfeiting a Franchise, or Liberty, or other Estate, cannot determine or vest that Franchise or Estate in the King, till the Forfeiture appear on Record; then the old Corporation supposed to be forfeited, if it were so, did notwithstanding, and yet doth continue in Being, there being no Record to determine it; and consequently that which is pretended a new one by Usurpation is impossible. If by Seizure into the King's Hands (as pretended) the Continuance of the Corporation be intended, how inconsistent is it with Law or Justice to continue any thing in the King, that is wrongfully usurped, and the Parties to be punished, fined, and committed for usurping? If Mr. Attorney's Replication, taking Issue upon our Prescription to be a Corporation, and going over, and alledging several distinct Causes of Forfeitures, cannot by Law be maintained, and in the Example doth introduce a Way to bring all Mens Estates subject to Mr. Attorney's Will and Pleasure (for, let any Man's Right be as good as can be, it will be scarce possible to defend it, if such Pleadings as in his Replication be allowable by Law); then be the Matter in Law as much against us as possible, yet Mr. Attorney can have no Judgment for him upon this Information. Next, supposing the Information all good in Law, yet, if the Judgments, Records, and Authority, that have been cited by them for Seizures, do plainly shew that Seizures and Forfeitures are very different in their Natures; that the Corporations all continued notwithstanding the Seizures; and the Seizures was only the King's putting in Mayors and Officers to act in them instead of the others elected or constituted by the Corporation, and they remain Corporations by Prescription to this Day, and never were forfeited, dissolved, or determined by such Seizures; if the general Authorities in Books, that the misusing or abusing a Franchise be truly applicable to Franchises, (that are Estates and Interests grantable or conveyable from Man to Man) and never were intended of such a Thing, as is rather a Capacity or Being, than a Franchise; if there be no Case or Precedent, or Opinion to be found for it; if, on the contrary, the particular Cases cited prove, that where the Corporation have by Miscarriages forfeited particular Franchises, they do not forfeit their Corporations; if there be scarce any Corporations in England, that have not, at some Time or other, done something they should not, or omitted to do something they should, and thereby forfeited their Corporation, and consequently all are Usurpers, and their corporate Acts since done, all void: If the Corporation here hath done nothing, but that the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council, are only Delegates, Deputies, or Ministers of the Corporation for particular Purposes; if Servants, Deputies, or Delegates, do that which they have no Authority to do, they must answer for it in their own Persons; but their Masters, or those that deputed or delegated them for another Purpose, they are innocent; they shall not suffer by it, though no Acts of Parliament had been in the Case. If the Acts of Parliament against seizing the Liberties of the City, for or by Reason of any Miscarriage of their Officers or Ministers, extend to these Acts of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council; if so be that these Acts were the Acts of the Corporation, yet, with Submission, if they have shewn a good and legal Right, by their Custom and Title, to make By-Laws for regulating and settling the Markets and Tolls, and that which they have done be, as pleaded, reasonable, and that there was reasonable Ground at that Time for their Petition which they have set forth: If all these Particulars, that I have now summed up, be against me, then Judgment must be against me; though I know not what that Judgment can be. But if any one of these Particulars, thus repeated, be for me, against Mr. Attorney, then Mr. Attorney can have no Judgment against the City, but Judgment must be for them; which I humbly pray.

The next Term, viz. Trin. 35 Car. 2. (the Lord Chief Justice Saunders dying the Day of the Judgment given, or the next Day after) Mr. Justice Jones, Justice Raymond, and Justice Withens, being in Court, Justice Jones pronounced the Judgment of the Court, and Justice Raymond and Justice Withens affirmed, that Chief Justice Saunders was of the same Opinion with them, and that they all agreed, Judgment given for the King against the City.

1. That a Corporation aggregate might be seized. That the Statute 28 E. 3. c. 10. is express, that the Franchises and Liberties of the City, upon such Defaults, shall be taken into the King's Hands; and that Bodies Politick may offend and be pardoned, appears by the general Article of Pardon, 12 Car. 2. whereby Corporations are pardoned all Crimes and Offences. And the Act for Regulating Corporations, 13 C. 2. which provides that no Corporation shall be avoided for any Thing by them misdone or omitted to be done, shews also that their Charters may be avoided for Things by them misdone, or omitted to be done.

2. That exacting and taking Money by the pretended By-Law, was Extortion, and a Forfeiture of the Franchise of being a Corporation.

3. That the Petition was scandalous and libellous, and the making and publishing it, a Forfeiture.

4. That the Act of the Common-Council was the Act of the Corporation.

5. That the Matter set forth in the Record did not excuse or avoid those Forfeitures set forth in the Replication.

6. That the Information was well founded. And gave Judgment that the Franchise should be seized into the King's Hands, but the Entry thereof respited till the King's Pleasure was known in it. Justice Raymond and Justice Withens declare, that they were of the same Opinion in omnibus.

And accordingly, after Entry made by Mr. Attorney, That as to the Issue joined to be tried by the Country; as to the claiming to have and constitute Sheriffs; as to the having the Mayor and Aldermen to be Justices of the Peace, and to hold Sessions, quod ipse pro Domino Rege ulterius non vult proseguere; Judgment is enter'd:

Ideo consideratum est, quod præfat' Major & Communitas ac Cives Civitat' Lond' as to the Issue aforesaid, betwixt our Lord the King and them joined; and as to the Liberties and Franchises aforesaid by them claimed, to have and elect Sheriffs, and to have their Mayor and Aldermen to be Justices of the Peace, and hold Sessions, eant inde sine die, salvo jure Dom. Regis, &c. Et quoad dictas separales materias in lege unde tam præd' Att' Gen' quam præd' Major

The City petition the King when their Liberties were seized.

The City's Liberties being thus seized by King Charles II. the Citizens found it necessary to present a Petition to him in Council at Windsor, upon Monday the 18th of June, 1683. when the Lord Keeper made a Speech concerning this Affair. The Petition was to the following Effect :

“ SHEWING, That his Majesty's Petitioners were most heartily sorry for the Misgovernment of this his City of late Years, whereby the Citizens had fallen under his Majesty's Displeasure: Which occasion'd a Quo Warranto to be brought against them; upon which Judgment had been pronounced for Seizure of their Liberties and Franchises into his Majesty's Hands. They acknowledg'd the great Favour of this Opportunity of Application to his Royal Grace vouchsafed them, by Reason of his Majesty's not requiring Judgment to be immediately enter'd thereupon. That considering their distressed Condition, they humbly cast themselves at his Feet, imploring his Princely Compassion and Grace to be extended towards this his antient City, and begging his Majesty's Pardon for all Offences that they did, in the Name of themselves and all the Citizens humbly tender'd: And prayed his Majesty to accept their most solemn Promises and Assurance of constant Loyalty and Obedience to him, his Heirs and Successors; and of their regular and dutiful Administration of the Government of the City for the future; submitting to his good Pleasure, and begging his Commands and Directions.

Upon the Reading of which Petition, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Citizens, were commanded to withdraw. And after a while being called in again, the Lord Keeper spake to this Purpose :

“ That for the Sake of so many of the present Magistrates and other eminent Citizens of undoubted Loyalty and Affection to his Majesty and his Service, the King would shew the City all the Favour they could reasonably desire, &c. That it was not for Punishment, but meerly for the Good of the City, that he took this Course. That it was not his Intention to “ prejudice them, either in their Properties or Customs. Nay, lest entering a Judgment upon Record might have Consequences fatal to them, he had caused his Attorney to forbear the same at present, that the City might have some Time to consider with their own Condition. That the City had not been well advised to defer their Application to his Majesty thus long, till even the Court had pronounced Judgment. That his Majesty's Affection was too great to reject their Suit for that Cause. That he had resolved to make the Alterations as few and as easy as might be consistent with the good Government of the City, and Peace of the Kingdom; and they to be these following :

That no Lord Mayor, Sheriff, Recorder, Common Serjeant, Town Clerk, or Coroner of the City, should be capable of, or admitted to, the Exercise of their respective Offices, before his Majesty shall have approved them under his Sign Manual.

That if his Majesty shall disapprove the Choice of any Person to be Lord Mayor, and signify the same under his Sign Manual to the Lord Mayor; or, in Default of a Mayor, to the Recorder, or senior Aldermen, the Citizens shall within one Week proceed to a new Choice. And if his Majesty shall disapprove the second Choice, he may, if he please, nominate a Person to be Lord Mayor.

That if his Majesty shall in like Manner disapprove the Persons chosen to be Sheriffs, or either of them, he may appoint Persons to be Sheriffs.

But this Election of Officers may be according to the antient Usage of the City.

That the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen may, with Leave of his Majesty, displace any Alderman, Recorder, Common Serjeant, Town Clerk, Coroner of the said City, and Steward of the Borough.

Upon the Election of any Alderman, if any presented by the Ward to the Court shall be judged unfit; upon such Declaration by the said Court, the Ward shall proceed to the Choice of other Persons in their Room: And if the Court shall disapprove such second Choice, then the Court may appoint others in their Room.

The Justices of Peace to be by the King's Commission: Which his Majesty will grant according to the usual Method, unless upon extraordinary Occasion, when his Majesty shall think it necessary.

Then the Lord Keeper went on thus :

My Lord Mayor,

“ These Regulations being thus made, his Majesty will not only pardon this Prosecution, but confirm your Charter in such Manner as may be consistent with them. That the City ought to look upon this as a great Condescension on his Majesty's Part, it being but the Name of a Reservation of a small Part of what is already in his Power by the Judgment. That if the City should look upon it with another Eye, and neglect a speedy Compliance, yet his Majesty hath done his Part. And if there should be any heavy Consequence of this Judgment, (which would behove them well to consider) the Fault would lie at their own Door. That it was his Majesty's Pleasure, that the Mayor should return to the City, and consult with the Common-Council, that he might speedily know their Resolution hereupon, and give his Direction. And that they might see the King was in earnest, he (the Lord Keeper) was commanded to let them “ know, that the King had given Order to the “ Attorney-General to enter upon Judgment on “ Saturday next, unless prevented by their Com“ pliance.

And in this Condition stood the City from thence, viz. from 35 Car. 2. and all along King James II's Reign, the Mayors and Sheriffs being appointed by Commission from those Kings, till the Year 1688, when King James, terrified at the News of the Prince of Orange's intended Invasion, thought fit to restore their Charter, October the 6th, and order'd the Lord Chancellor Jefferies (who had been very instrumental in getting Sentence pronounced against it) to carry it back in great Formality to Guildhall; whereupon Sir George Treby was restored to his Place of Recorder, and the rest of the Magistrates, according to the antient Constitution of the City.

The City restored to its Franchises, by Act of Parliament in the Reign of
W. and M.

And thus it remained, till by a Statute of the 2d of William and Mary, the Proceedings were declared illegal and arbitrary, and that Judgment, and every other Judgment given and recorded in the said Court, for seizing the Franchises of the said City, were reversed and made void, and Vacats enter'd upon the Rolls; and that the Mayor, Commonalty and Citizens of the City of LONDON did remain a Body Politick, by the Name of Mayor, and Commonalty, and Citizens of the City of LONDON; and to have and enjoy all their Rights and Charters: And that all Charters, Letters Patents, &c. concerning any of the Liberties, Lands and Teneiments, Rights, Titles, &c. made since the said Judgment by the late Kings Charles and James, were thereby declared void. Also, the Officers, Companies, and Corporations were restored.

After this Act was passed, Anno 1690, a great many Members of the Common-Council, to the Number of 117, subscribed a Petition to the Parliament to this Purport:

“ That they hoped the late Act of Parlia“ ment for reversing the Judgment in the Quo
“ Warranto against the City would have restored
“ it to its antient Rights and Privileges: But “ that the contrary happened. For notwith“ standing the said Act, several Aldermen made,
“ or elected by Virtue of Commissions or Char“ ters from the late King James under the Great “ Seal, acted as Aldermen by that Authority;
“ under Pretence, that by some doubtful Ex“ pressions in the said Act, they were continued
“ as well as ministerial Officers. That by Co“ lour of the assumed Authority and illegal Pro“ ceedings, Sir Tho. Pilkington was by them, on “ the Day of Election appointed by the said Act, “ declared and made Mayor, though not duly “ returned by the Common Hall, according to “ the Usage of the City. That by the Contri“ vance of the said Mayor, Leonard Robinson
“ was imposed upon the Citizens as Chamberlain
“ of the City, notwithstanding another Person
“ was duly elected into that Office, and decla“ red so to be by the Sheriffs, and the Hall “ thereupon dissolved. That divers Members of “ the Common-Council were illegally excluded,
“ and others, duly elected, were refused Ad“ mittance. That the Place of Town-Clerk
“ having been vacant three Months and upwards,
“ and only eligible by and in Common-Council,
“ the Mayor and Aldermen had, of their own “ Authority, appointed several Persons to the “ Execution thereof, without the Consent of the “ Common-Council, against their constant known “ Rights. That the Petitioners had not been suf“ fered to meet and consult about the necessary “ Affairs of the City, according to their antient “ Rights and Customs. That a Common-Coun-
VOL. II.

“ cil being summoned, and assembled about the “ 3d of October, many Debates arising concern“ ing the Premises; and several Motions being “ made, and the Majority of the Common-“ Council agreeing that for settling the Rights “ of the City, an humble Address should be “ made to the Honourable House, to explain
“ the said Act; and the Question being there“ upon desired to be put, the Mayor refused it,
“ and, to prevent any Application, immediately “ dissolved the Court, and went away.

The first Names to this Petition were:

William Dodson, Ralph Box, Robert Ayle, William Withers, Richard Holder, Robert Bedingfield, John Midgely, John Alexander, John Wright, John Genew, — Thomas Blackmore, — Robert Bearcroft, — Thomas Gardiner,
— Benjamin Aloff; John Johnson; Francis
Brerewood; William Lewen, Peter Floyer; Robert Littlebury, Samuel Gerard, Richard Hoare; Samuel Ongley, Thomas Short, &c.

And here it seems not improper to subjoin Great Sums the vast Sums of Money that have been paid to parted with by the Crown by the City, for their several Grants the City, for and Confirmations, as they are taken out of the their Privi-Rolls and other authentick Records. Some of leges.

In the 9th of Richard I. the Citizens gave 1500 Marks, for the preserving of their Liberties.

The Citizens of LONDON gave 3000 Marks for the Confirmation of their Liberties granted them by King John, in the first of his Reign; as appears by the Oblata Roll, which ran thus: Cives LONDON. Domino Regi tria Millia Marcar' pro habend' Confirmatione Domini Regis de Libertatibus suis. Et liberabitur Galfrido Filio-Petri, &c. i. e. The Citizens of LONDON give to the Lord the King 3000 Marks for having the King's Confirmation of their Liberties. And it shall be delivered to Jeffrey Fitz-Peter on these Terms, that if they will give those 3000 Marks, they shall have the Charter; but if not, they shall not have it.

In the 2d of Henry III. they paid the 15th Part of their moveable Goods, that the City might have all its antient Liberties and free Customs.

In the 9th of Henry III. they paid another 15th of their Moveables, that LONDON might have all the old Liberties and Customs which it had been used to have.

In the 36th of Henry III. the King granted to all the Citizens of LONDON, all their Liberties, Laws, and Customs; and which they also had in the Time of King Henry I. used and not used. And the King granted the Sheriffs 7 l. yearly for certain Privileges or Ground belonging to St. Paul's Church. Which was long after allowed by the Barons of the Exchequer to every Sheriff, when he made up his Accounts in the Office of the Pipe: And they then paid the King 500 Marks for having that Charter.

In the 38th or 39th of King Henry III. Ann. 1254, the King seized the Liberties of the City, because the Mayor had not done Execution upon the Bakers, for lacking of their Assizes; but restoring it soon again, that is, within four Days following the Feast of Edmund the Bishop, or by the 19th of November; the Citizens agreeing with the Earl of Cornwall, and giving him 600 Marks.

Again, Anno 1255 (but a Year after) the King seized the Liberties again. And the Cause pre- tended tended was, for certain Monies which the Queen claimed as her Right. And now, for a Time, the King made his Under-Treasurer Custos of the City. But giving the King 4000 Marks, they were restored to their Liberties, and the King's Under-Treasurer discharged.

Yet it is remarkable what a Regard King Henry III. had to the Citizens of LONDON in the Barons Discontents, when he was jealous of the City's joining with them; being minded to call a Parliament there without him. There is extant in the Records of the Tower, a common Letter of that King, writ in the 44th of his Reign, from St. Audoens in France, to the Barons of the Five Ports, to the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, and to the Mayors and Commonalty of LONDON and York, concerning this Rising of his Subjects, and their Meeting in LONDON; exhorting them to Obedience, and to obey H. de Bygod, his Justiciary, till his coming into England. He observed to them how they of his Kingdom did accompany together with Horses and Arms, in Disturbance of his Peace, and against his Command, as unmindful of their Fealty; and so intended to rush into a Parliament to be called in his City of LONDON: Whence, he added, any one might clearly see, that this Meeting sounded more to draw the Sword, than to further Peace. And were it granted, that the Intention of each of them were good, yet the Manner was very bad, and the Example pernicious to all Kings and Kingdoms of the Earth, &c. And thus by the Address of a Letter, and Arguments used therein, did that King think it worth his Time to secure the City's Loyalty.

But yet in the 50th of the same King were 20000 Marks paid, for a further Confirmation of their Liberties.

King Edward I. in the 26th of his Reign, restored the City their Liberties and Franchises that had been kept from it 12 Years and more. But these were not redeemed, saith Fabian, without great Sums of Money. And some say, the Citizens paid 3000 Marks.

The City, in the 6th of Edward II. to defer his laying a Tallage upon their Rents and Chattels, on Pretence the City was the King's Demesnes, and to forbear it till next Parliament, lent him 1000 l. and two Years after 400 l. more, on the same Account.

Anno 1392, King Richard II. took ill Will to the Citizens, because they would not lend him 1000 l. Finding therefore somewhat to charge them with, he imprisoned the Mayor; with the Aldermen, and took from them their Privileges: Which afterwards they redeemed at 10,000 l. and besides gave him another 10,000 l. for his Entrance into the City, with many other Jewels, as a Crown, then presented to him, and another to his Queen.

The Citizens have, at all Times, insisted on their Charters, knowing that the good Order and Government of the City depended thereon; and they have, besides the late Contest on the Quo Warranto, had several other Contests with the Prince, and sometimes with others concerning them: Whereof the following Passages are collected out of the Records of the Chamber, the Tower, and elsewhere:

“Ewardus Henrici Filius existens in Scotia, &c.
 “Edward (the First) Son of Henry, being in “Scotland at Lanercost, directed his Brief to the “Mayor and Sheriffs of LONDON, in the “35th Year of his Reign, that they should ob“serve the Articles and Statutes set forth at “Wynton. And this was the Return of the City
 “to the said Brief:

Adhuc respondemus, &c. We answer further, That at the Eves, as it is fit, in Wards, and also at taking Inquisitions of Transgressions and Felonies, when Need requires in the City, in each Ward, about Malefactors and Receivers; we were always ready; and will be, for the keeping of the King's Peace. But to keep the Statute of Winchester, in all its Articles in the said City, as it is contained in that Brief, onerari non possumus, i. e. We cannot be charged in the aforesaid City, by Reason of divers Customs in the said City hitherto used. Yet Vagrants, Wanderers up and down, and such as are suspected of Evil in the said City, being found, we have arrested; and always, when there shall be Need, will cause to be arrested, and will have them forth-coming before the Justices of the Lord King, as it hath been appointed before, and after hath been accustomed to be done in the same City.

Concerning the Inquisitions, as to returning under Seals the Articles contained in the Brief before you, without the City, it never was accustomed to be done, and therefore we have returned none thence.

In the Reign of King Edward II. there was an Order made by the King's Council to lay a Tax upon the Estates of those that held Demesne Lands of the King. And under that Denomination it was concluded upon to tax the City also. Upon which the City had a notable Struggle with the Court. The Particulars are set down in one of the City Records, and are there to be seen in the Book Horn, under this Title, Memoranda de Allegationibus, i. e. some memorable Things concerning the Allegations that were made by the Mayor and Citizens of LONDON, before Lord King Edward, Son of King Edward, viz. that they ought not to be taxed of their Rents and Chattels, as they who are of the Demesnes of the Lord the King.

Memorandum, That on Saturday next before the Feast of the Circumcision of the Lord Christ, in the 6th Year of King Edward, Son of King Edward, John de Gisors, Mayor of LONDON, the Aldermen and Sheriffs were called before the Council of the Lord King, viz. Lord Walter, Bishop of Worcester, then Chancellor of the King, the Lord Adomar de Valentia, Earl of Pembroke, Lord John de Sendale, the said King's Treasurer, and others of his Council, met together at the Friars Carmelites, (i. e. White-fryars.) To which Mayor and Aldermen on the King's Part, it was intimated, That it was provided by the King's Council, that he should lay a Tax upon his Demesnes, Cities, and Boroughs throughout England, as he might well by the Right of his Crown; by whom it was asked of the aforesaid Mayor and Citizens, if they would make a Fine for their Tallage, or that they be assessed by their Heads, as well of their Rents as Chattels. And when the said Mayor and Aldermen had spoken together upon the Premises, they sued, that they might from hence have Conference with the Commonalty of the City; and it was granted them. Afterwards Conference being had with the Commonalty, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Citizens came and said, that although the said Lord King at his Will might tax his Demesnes, Cities and Boroughs, yet they understood, that they of the City of LONDON were not talliable. For, they say, that they and their Predecessors were free, and ought to be so, and by this Charter of the Kings of England, the Progenitors of the Lord the King, and of the King now. Wherein it was contained, that the Citizens of LONDON have all their Liberties and free Customs, which they have had in the the Time of King Henry, Grandfather of King Henry, Great Grandfather of King Edward, the King's Father now. From which Time hitherto, as they understood, they had been quit of such Tallages.

That moreover, it was contained in the Great Charter of the Liberties of England, that the City of LONDON might have all her antient Liberties and free Customs. Whence, from the Time that they antiently were so free, that in the before-noted Form they had not been accustomed to be taxed, they sue, that now, if it please the King, they may not be taxed.

Besides, they say, that because as well the Prelates, Earls, Barons, and the rest of the Nobles of the Realm, as the Citizens themselves, do possess some Rents and Tenements in the said City, the Citizens themselves, without the Counsel of the said Nobles, cannot grant such Tallage. Because this would be to the disinheriting of the said Nobles, and the too heavy burdening of their Tenements.

In like Manner they say, that the Citizens themselves hold the aforesaid City of the Donation and Grant of the now Lord King, his Progenitors, heretofore Kings of England, for a certain Fee-Farm per Ann. to be paid to the Lord King's Treasury for all Services. By which it seems to them, that they ought not to be taxed in the aforesaid Form.

And they sue, if it please the Lord King, that this Tallage be deferred till the next Parliament, that then they, together with others the Nobles of the Kingdom of England, who possess Tenements and Rents in the said City, may obtain that which is just in this Behalf.

The aforesaid Reasons, and many others, being propounded, at length it was granted to the said Citizens by the aforesaid Council of the Lord King, that if they would lend the said Lord King, for the present, 2000 Marks, they would cease to assess the aforesaid Tallage till the next Parliament.

And because the Citizens would not presently yield this, there came Lord William Jagge, Gilbert de Ronberi, Mr. John de Everdon, and John Abel, Justices appointed to assess the said Tallage at Guildhall: And they caused their Commission to be read, &c. And by Reason of the Shortness of the Day, they prefixed to the said Citizens a Day to begin the Assize of the said Tallage to Friday next following, &c.

Afterwards, on Wednesday next after the Epiphany of our Lord, the said Mayor and Citizens came before the Lord King's Council, and granted to the Lord King 1000 l. by Loan for the present. And sued from thence Letters of the Lord King to be made to them, that any Tallage singly by Poll, or in common upon their Goods, Chattles, Rents or Tenements, be not assessed before the next Parliament.

And hereupon the King made to them certain his Letters Patents; the Tenor whereof is such:

" Edwardus Dei Gratia, &c. Edward by the Grace of God, &c. To all to whom the present Letters shall come, Greeting. Know ye, that whereas our Beloved, the Maior and Aldermen, and the rest of the Citizens of our City of LONDON, have lately caused to be lent to us a thousand Pounds Sterling, we, willing to satisfy them, the Maior, Aldermen and Citizens of the same Sum of Money, as we are bound, have granted unto them, that in the next Aid to be granted unto us in our foresaid City, or in the County of Middlesex, or in levying Money in the said City and County for our Need, for whatever Cause next to be levied, we will cause the foresaid thousand Pounds to be allowed them.

" We have granted also to the same Maior, Aldermen and Citizens, that we will by no Means cause to be assessed any Tallage singly by Poll, or in common upon them, their Goods, Chattles, Lands and Tenements, or Rents, in the said City, or Suburbs of the same, before our next Parliament, or to be levied upon them, saving always to the Maior, Aldermen and Citizens of the said City, the Assignments before made by us to them for Debt, concerning which they undertook to satisfy us; as in our Letters Patents made to them thereupon, more fully is contained. In witness whereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patents. Witness Myself at Windefore, the 13th Day of February, Anno Regni nostri Sexto.

And accordingly the said 1000 l. was paid to the Lord Ingelande de Warlee, then Keeper of the King's Wardrobe, by a Brief of the King, in these Words:

" Edwardus Dei Gratia, &c. Edward by the Grace of God, &c. To the Maior, Aldermen and Citizens of the City of LONDON, Greeting. Whereas ye lately freely lent us a thousand Pounds Sterling, under certain Conditions, as in our Letters Patents made to you thereupon, more fully is specified; we command you that you deliver in our Name the said Sum of Money to our beloved Clerk Ingelarde de Warlee, Keeper of our Wardrobe, without Delay; receiving from him his Letters Patents, testifying the Receipt of the said Money. Witness myself at Windefore, the 15th Day of February, in the 6th Year of our Reign.

And accordingly the said thousand Pounds were paid to Lord Ingelarde, by five his Letters Patents; which remain here [saith the Book Horn] in the Chamber, among the Acquittances of the Account of John Mayeliner, then Chamberlain.

Afterward, notwithstanding the King's Grant, for that the Lord King had held his Parliament at York, on the next Lord's Day after the Feast of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary, the 8th Year of his Reign, about executing some certain Causes, then relating to his Affairs in the Premises, as well for arduous Businesses touching the King's Crown, by Reason of his Wars in Scotland, which were only handled in the said Parliament; as also for that the said Parliament was held in Parts so remote, the Mayor and Citizens did not at all prosecute, whether they were liable or not; the aforesaid Lord King notwithstanding sent his Justices to tax the said City, viz. the Lord Henry de Staunton, Henry Scrop, John de Marsfeld, and Ralph de Stoke. And thereupon commanded the Sheriffs of LONDON, by his Brief, in these Words:

Rex Vicecomitibus LONDON. salutem, &c. The King to the Sheriffs of LONDON, Greeting. Whereas we have constituted our beloved and faithful Henry de Staunton, Henry de Scrop, &c. three or two of them, to assess our Tallage within the foresaid City, and in the Suburbs thereof, separately by Poll, or in common, as they shall see to be more expedient for our Profit; as in our Letters Patents made, more fully is contained; we command you, that when ye shall be warned by them, three or two of them, ye cause to come before “ fore them, &c. all those of the City and Sub“ urbs aforesaid, whom ye shall see necessary “ for the said Tallage. And that ye be aiding

 “ and attending for this, to the said Henry, Henry, “ John and Ralph, three or two of them, as they “ shall enjoin you on our Part. Witness Myself
 “ at Spalding, the 24th of October, the eighth “ Year of Our Reign.

There was also another Letter to the Sheriffs of LONDON in these Words :

Edwardus, &c. “ Edward by the Grace of “ God, &c. to the Sheriffs of LONDON,
 “ Greeting. We command you, that ye cause
 “ to come before our beloved and faithful Henry
 “ de Staunton, &c. at Gybold, LONDON, “ on this Instant Sunday, next after the Feast of “ St. Leonard's, twelve of the honestest, richer, “ and loyaller Sort of Men of every Ward of the “ said City, according as the same Wards shall “ be greater or less, to hear, do, and receive “ what shall be there enjoined them on Our “ Behalf. And that ye have there then their “ Names, whom ye shall so cause to come there,
 “ &c. Witness, Henry de Staunton at Westmin- “ ster, the 6th Day of November, the eighth “ Year of Our Reign.

And the said Justices came to Guildhall, to begin the aforesaid Taxation. And upon this the Mayor and Citizens repaired to the King's Council, and prayed Respite, until the next Parliament, as before. And they granted to the King 600 Marks in Loan : So that the said Tallage should be put off to the next Parliament. And the Lord King granted them Respite of the said Tallage. And thereupon made to them his Letters Patents under this Form :

“ Edward by the Grace of God, King of “ England, &c. to all to whom these present Let“ ters shall come, Greeting. Know ye, that “ whereas the Mayor, Aldermen, and the rest
 “ of our Citizens of LONDON, have lent us
 “ 400 l. by the Hands of our beloved and faith“ ful Walter of Norwich, our Treasurer, to dis“ patch certain our Affairs therewith, we willing “ to satisfy the same, the Mayor, Aldermen,
 “ and other Citizens, as we are bound, of the “ said Sum of Money, have granted to them, “ that in the next Aid to be levied for Us in our “ foresaid City, or to be granted in the County “ of Middlesex, or in Money to be next raised in “ the said City and County for our Need, on “ what Cause soever, We shall cause the said
 “ 400 l. to be allowed them. We have granted “ also to the same, the Mayor, &c. as in the “ foresaid Letter on the former Loan. Witness “ Myself at Langele, the 16th of December, the “ eighth Year of Our Reign.

What became of this Business between the King, (who was an extravagant Prince, and wanted Money) and the Citizens, I cannot tell. But by this it appears, how the Princes would sometimes encroach upon the Liberties of the City, to squeeze Money out of them ; and how the Citizens insisted upon their Charters and Privileges : However, this Tallage upon Cities, Boroughs, and Demesne Lands of the King, seemed in the aforesaid sixth Year of this King, to go through the Realm ; as may be conjectured by this Brief that follows ;
 wherein also may be observed, the King's Care of the Privileges of LONDON, and doing Justice to them.

A Brief of the King, directed to the Assessor of the County of Oxon, that they cefs not the Citizens of LONDON among them to the Tallage.

“ The King, to his beloved and faithful Ser“ vants, William Merre, Adam de Shobenhange, “ and Galfride de Padenham, appointed to cefs
 “ the Tallage in our Cities, Boroughs, and De-“ mesns in the County of Oxon, greeting. The “ Citizens and Merchants of our City of LON-“ DON, have shewn to us, that whereas some “ of them cause to be brought divers their Things
 “ and Merchandizes from LONDON as far
 “ as Henly in the County aforesaid, to sell them
 “ there on Market-Days, and to trade in them
 “ from Week to Week ; and whatsoever their “ divers Things and Merchandizes they buy
 “ there, and in the adjacent Parts, to bring to “ LONDON, to make their Profit of ; and “ cause to be hired small Houses and Places in “ the said Town of Henly, from Term to Term,
 “ as well for to lay up the said Things and Mer-“ chandizes there brought, till they can con“ veniently sell them, as to the said Things and “ Merchandizes there and in the said Parts “ bought to be laid up, until they may con“ veniently carry them thence ; and have not “ certain Houses or Lands or Tenements there,
 “ nor make Abode there ; nor are in Lot and Scot
 “ with the Men of that Town ; you notwith“ standing do not make the said Citizens and “ Merchants, upon occasion of such their Houses

Upon another Infringement of their Privileges in the Time of King Edward II. by Reason of a Cause brought before the King's Bench, which should have been tried within the City, the City Jury (however cited) would not appear there.
 And the Mayor, &c. came before the Justices of that Bench, and asserted their Liberties ; which accordingly were allowed. The Case and Issue is thus recorded in the Chamber of LONDON.

Galfrid Fitz-William de Say, was summoned to answer to Johane, that was the Wife of Gal- frid de Parys, and to certain others, viz. Roger le Graunt and William Lovechild, Executors of the Testament of the said Geffery de Parys, on Plea that he render to them 18 l. which he unjustly detained from them. After some Proceedings, the said Parties appear by their Attornies, but no Juryman comes. But the Mayor and Bailiffs of the City of LONDON come and say, That an Oath among them ought not to be taken in the Court here, (in King's Bench) but within their City, where the Contract was made.
 And they sue Allowance of their Liberty ; and that the Justices come within the foresaid City to take the foresaid Oath. And because by Inspection of the Rolls of Justice here, this same Thing is found, as to the Allowance of the foresaid Liberty, in the like Case and others : Therefore let

let them have their Liberty. And, moreover, the Justices have prefixed a Day to the Parties at St. Martin's the Great, LONDON, within the City; to wit, the next Sunday after the Feast of St. Valentine next coming: And then let the Oath be taken. And it was told the Mayor and Bailiffs, that then they cause to come there the Jurats of the aforesaid Oath; and in like Manner it was told the Party Complainant, that he produce the Record and the Brief with the Pannel.

Afterward, on the Sunday aforesaid, there at St. Martin's, the Parties came, and in like Manner the Jurymen of the aforesaid City, of the Neighbourhood of the Parish of St. Michael at Corne in Cheap, with the Consent of each Party, before H. de Stanton, one of the Judges, who say upon their Oath, &c.

The like Contention happen'd in the same King's Reign, about Pleas held before the Lord Steward, or Marshal of the King's Household, wherein any Citizen was concerned; and of drawing them into Plea out of the City; which it seems sometimes the said Steward or Marshal would do, contrary to the City Charter: Which caused the City to petition. To which, this favourable Answer was given:

Ad Petitionem, &c. i. e. "To the Petition of the Citizens of LONDON asking Remedy, in that the Steward and Marshal of the King's Household draw them into a Plea without the said City, against the Form of the Liberty, and against the Tenor of the Charters made to them upon this by the King and his Progenitors; it was thus answered: That the King willeth, that if a Transgression be made to any of the King's Household within the Liberty of the City of LONDON, and within the Verge of the King, the Plea of such Transgressions be held before the Steward and Marshal of the King's Household. And if Inquisition must be made, let that Inquisition be taken within the said City. And it is enrolled in the Rolls of John de Kirkeby, of the Parliament of the King held in quindena Sti. Johannis Baptiste, Anno Regni sui 30." And further, Memorandum quod ad Parliament, &c. "Be it remember'd, that at the Parliament of our Lord King Edward, in the 30th Year of his Reign, by the said King it was granted and commanded, that this Concession be firmly observed; namely, that whereas before the Steward of the same Lord the King, and his Marshal, the King being at LONDON, or at Westminster, or elsewhere near the foresaid City, certain Inquisitions ought to be made upon Transgressions, or other Facts within the foresaid City, between any of the said City, or between them and other Foreigners, or between some of the King's Household, and another of the City, or any Foreigner whatsoever: And of which Transgression the Cognizance belongs to the same Steward and Marshal by Right: That all those Inquisitions be taken within the City, and not elsewhere, altho' the Parties of those Inquisitions have pleaded without the City before the Steward and Marshal, and have put themselves in the former Inquisition, whilst some Jurors of that Inquisition were of the said City, and remained within the same. And this the Lord King granted in Favour of the poor Workmen of the said City, who lived of the Work of their own Hands; that they want not their Food, or be more impoverished. And it was enrolled in the Rolls of Lord Gilbert Fitz-Robert, the King's Justice.

Nor would the Citizens bear a Practice of the Court, sometime done in the latter End of King Henry III. his Reign; which was, to grant a Freedom to some of the Aldermen, and great rich Men of the City, from paying their Shares in the Taxes; when the Burden must thereby lie heavier upon the rest of the Commonalty and meaner Rank. Which Favour, it is likely, was obtained by some Services or Gratifications done to the King, or some of his Great Men about him. Hence it was, that in an Inquisition made 3 E. 1. by the King's Justices, the Jury of some of the Wards presented this Grievance as an Infringement of their Liberties. The Inquisition ran to this Tenor: Dicunt, quod cum Communitas LONDON. sessata sit libertatib. &c. i. e. "They say, that since the Commonalty of LONDON hath been seized of Liberties, and the Liberties confirmed from King to King, and the same Liberties ought to be used and enjoyed communiter, indifferently by all in common; certain of the City coming against themselves, viz. Thomas Fitz Adam de Basing, Henry de Waleis, and others, shewed Charters of King Henry; whereby they are quitted of Tallage, and are not taxed with their Fellow Citizens. Whereupon the whole Burden of the Tallage falls upon the ordinary Sort, and not upon the Rich: Which is altogether ad exheredationem [Regis] & destructionem totius Communitatis, i. e. to the disinheriting [of the King] and Destruction of the whole Commonalty.

This was thus complained of and presented by the sworn Men of another Ward: "That Stephen de Cornhill, Gregory de Rokeshly, and others, [chiefly Aldermen] have used, and do use certain Charters from the Lord Henry, Father of the Lord Edward the King; which were granted against the Crown and Dignity of the Lord King, and against the Liberties of the City, as it seemed to them; because by Occasion of the said Charters, they were acquitted of Tallages, Quarterages, and from all other Aids which belong to the City of LONDON. By Reason whereof, the greater Part of the City, viz. the middling Sort, and the Poor, are beyond Measure burdened, and worsted, and not a few who were rich before, now are Beggars.

It was customary in former Times, that to what Places soever the King came with his Court to reside for any Time, an Officer of the Master of the Household took up Harbours in any Man's House thereabouts, for the King's Retinue: A Thing sometime very burdensome to the Subject: A Freedom from this the City obtained by their Charter. Notwithstanding, sometimes on this Occasion the King's Officer would take up Lodgings in the Houses of the Citizens. A stout Sheriff of LONDON once withstood this with Force, as we meet with the Passage in one of the Books of the Chamber, relating the Pleas of the Court of the Lord the King at the Tower of LONDON, before Tho' le Blunt, Steward and Master of the King's Household, 19 Edw. fil. Reg. Edw.

John de Causton, one of the Sheriffs of LONDON, was attached to answer to the King for Contempt within the Verge of the Tower, as Alan de Lek, Serjeant Steward of the Household, who sues for the King, saith, That when the said Lord the King with his Family was come to the Tower of LONDON, on Monday next after the Translation of St. Thomas the Martyr, the 10th Year of the said King, there to abide for his Pleasure; and the same Alan had taken up Harbour for Richard de Ayermyne, the King's Secretary, at the House of the aforesaid John de Causton Causlon, situate in the City of LONDON at Billingsgate, as was incumbent upon him [Alan] to do, according to his Office: And for the Knowledge of such Livery, had made the accustomed Sign with a Cup upon the Doors of the said House, as was customary, and had likewise placed Men and Serjeants with the Horses and Harnesses of the said Richard, within the said Livery: The said Sheriff, the foresaid Day and Year, in the King's Presence, and within the Verge, &c. permitted not the said Alan to make this Livery, and pulled down maliciously the said Sign, and drove away thence the said Men and Servants, in Contempt of the King.

John de Causlon came and defended the Force and Injury, &c. and all the Contempt, and faith, that he is guilty in nothing; and upon this he puts himself upon his Country. In the Process, the Mayor and Citizens come and say, that in the Charter of King Henry, Grandfather of the present King, made to the Citizens concerning divers Liberties, it is contained that none should take Harbour by Force, or by Livery of the said Master of the Household within the Walls of the City, nor in the Portfoken. Which Charter the present King granted and confirmed to his own Charter; which they produced. And they produced also the said King's Writ, directed to the Steward and Marshal, by which he commanded them, that they permit the said Citizens to use and enjoy their foresaid Liberties without Impediment, according to the Tenor of the Charter of Confirmation; and that they molest not, nor grieve them in any Thing, contrary to the Tenor of the same. And they say, that by Virtue of the foresaid Grant, that such Liveries [i. e. assigning of Harbour] in the City, were wont to be done at any coming of the King, by the Mayor, Sheriffs, and Officers of the City, in the Presence of the Master of the Household, and not by others. Whereupon they desired their foresaid Liberty to be allowed them.

A Day was given to hear Judgment. In the mean Time they [the Steward and Master of the Household] speak with the King. And at the Day the foresaid John was brought in faulty in nothing. And formerly it was testified before the King and his Council by John de Weston, late Master of the Household, that in the Times preceding, such Assignations of Harbours were wont to be made by the Mayor, Sheriffs, and Officers of the City, in the Presence of the Master of the Household, and not by others. And it was consider'd, that the said Mayor, &c. should for the future use this Liberty of Livery of Entertainment within the City, as he and his Predecessors hitherto had used. Salvo jure Regis.

Upon the Charters also depended the good Order and Government of the City, and the Power the Magistrates of it had from Time to Time, of rectifying Abuses, and changing and abrogating Customs and Practices found inconvenient, and of constituting Rules and Laws for Trade and Traffic, and of ordering and settling Matters for the Benefit and common Good of the Whole. And for the doing these Things, sometimes the King called upon the Mayor and Aldermen; and sometimes the Commoners complained and petitioned. And many good Articles and Laws have hereupon been made. Which also the King now and then gave his own Consent to, for the better Confirmation of.

And first, To mention some Articles, which the City, Anno 1318, upon mature Deliberation, drew up, for the reforming divers Things: Which they held of such Weight and Moment for the Good of the Citizens, that they preferred them to the King to establish by his Authority; which he did by Letters Patents, yet making some Alterations and Corrections as he thought good, and they were as follow:

For the Citizens of LONDON, concerning new ARTICLES there made to be observed.

" The King to all whom, &c. Greeting.
" Know ye, that whereas our beloved and faithful the Mayor and Aldermen, and other Citizens of our City of LONDON, had lately ordained and appointed among themselves, for the bettering of the same City, and for the common Benefit of such as dwell in that City, and resort to the same, certain Things to be in the same City perpetually observed and had, instantly beseeched, that we would take Care to accept and confirm them.

" We, having seen certain Letters, Patent-wise, signed with the Common Seal of the City, and the Seal of the Office of the Mayoralty of that City upon the Premises, and to us exhibited; have caused certain Articles to be chosen out of the foresaid Letters, and caused them in some Things to be corrected, as they are underneath inserted, viz.

I. That the Mayor and Sheriffs of the same City be elected by the Citizens of the said City, according to the Tenor of the Charters of our Progenitors, heretofore Kings of England, made to them thence, and no otherwise.

II. That the Mayor remain only one Year together in his Mayoralty.

III. That the Sheriffs have but two Clerks and two Serjeants; and that they take such for which they will answer.

IV. That the Mayor have no other Office belonging to the City, but the Office of the Mayoralty; nor to draw to himself the Sheriffs Plea in the Chamber of LONDON; nor hold other Pleas than those the Mayor, according to antient Custom, ought to hold.

V. That the Aldermen be removed from Year to Year, on St. Gregory's Day, and not re-elected; and others chosen by the same Wards.

VI. That Tallages or Aids henceforth to be assessed for the King's Business, or for the State and Benefit of the City, after they shall be assessed by the Men of the Wards elected, and deputed for this, be not increased or heightened but by the common Consent of the Mayor and Commonalty. And the Monies coming from these Tallages and Aids, be delivered into the Custody of four honest Men, Commoners of the City, to be chosen by the Commonalty, to be further delivered by the Testimony of the said four Men; so that they may inform the Commonalty to what Profit, and for what Uses, those Monies go.

VII. That no Stranger be admitted into the Freedom of the City in the Husting; and that no Inhabitant, and especially English Merchant, of some Mystery or Trade, be admitted into the Freedom of the City, unless by Surety of six honest and sufficient Men of that Mystery or Trade of which he shall be of, who is so to be admitted into the Freedom: Which six Men may undertake for him, of keeping the City indemnified in that Behalf. And that the same Form of Surety be observed of Strangers to be admitted into the Freedom in the Husting, if they be of any certain Mystery or Trade. And if they are not of some certain Mystery, then that they be not admitted into the Freedom without the Assent of the Commonalty. And that they who have been taken into Freedom of the City, (since we undertook the Government of our Realm) contrary to the Forms prescribed, and they who have gone contrary to their Oath in this Behalf, or contrary to the State of the City, and are thereof lawfully convicted, lose the Freedom of the said City.

Saving always, that concerning Apprentices the antient Manner and Form of the said City be observed.

VIII. That each Year in the same City, as often as Need shall be, Inquiry be made, if any of the Freedom of the same City, exercise Merchandizes in the City, of the Goods of others not of the same Freedom, by calling those Goods their own, contrary to their Oath, and contrary to the Freedom of the said City. And they that are lawfully convicted thereof, to lose the Freedom of the said City.

IX. That all and every one being in the Liberty of the said City, and that would enjoy the Liberties and free Customs of the said City, be in Lot and Scot; and partake of all Burdens for maintaining the State of the said City, and the Freedom thereof, according to the Oath they have taken, when they were admitted to their Freedom, and who so will not, to lose his Freedom.

X. And that all and every one being of the Freedom of the City, and living without the City, and that either by themselves, or by their Servants, exercise their Merchandizes within the City, be in Lot and Scot, with the Commoners of the said City, for their said Merchandizes, or else be removed from their Freedom.

XI. And that the Common Seal of the City remain in the Custody of two Aldermen, and two others, Commoners, to be chosen for this Purpose by the Commoners. And that that Seal be not denied, neither to the poor nor rich Commoners, when they shall need it; yet so that they reasonably prove the Cause of their Demand. And that for the putting to of the Seal nothing be taken. And that the giving of Judgments in the Courts of the City, and especially after the Verdicts of Inquisitions taken, in Cases where Inquisitions have been taken, be not deferred, unless Difficulty intervene; and if Difficulty shall intervene by Reason of this, giving Judgment shall not be put off beyond the third Court.

XII. That Weights and Scales of Merchandizes to be weighed between Merchants and Merchants, the Issues coming of which belonging to the Commonalty of the said City, remain in the Custody of the honest and sufficient Men of the same City, expert in that Office, and as yet to be chosen by the Commonalty, to be kept at the Will of the same Commonalty; and that they be, by no Means, committed to others than those so to be chosen.

XIII. That the Sheriffs for the Time being, commit Toll, and other Customs belonging to their Farm, and other Publick Offices belonging to them, and to be exercised by others, to sufficient Men, for whom they will answer, and not commit them to others. And if any deputed by the said Sheriffs to any of the foresaid Offices, take undue Custom, or carry himself otherwise in that Office than he ought, and is thereupon convicted at the Suit of the Complainant, let him be removed from that Office, and punished according to his Demerits.

XIV. Merchants, who are not of the Freedom of the City, not to sell by Retail Wines or other Wares within the City or Suburbs.

XV. That there be no Brokers hereafter in the City of any Merchandizes, unless elected to this by Merchants of the Mysteries, in which the Brokers themselves may have to exercise their Offices: And at least upon this to make Oath before the Mayor.

XVI. That the common Harbourers in the City and Suburbs, altho' they are not of the Freedom of the same, be Partakers of the contingent Burdens for maintaining the said City, according to the State of it, as long as they shall be so common Harbourers, as other like Dwellers in the City and Suburbs shall partake, on the Account of those Dwellings.

Saving always, that the Merchants of Gascoign, and other Foreigners, may, one with another, inhabit and be haroured in the said City, as hitherto they have accustomed to do.

XVII. That the keeping of the Bridge of the said City, and the Rents and Profits belonging to that Bridge, be committed to be kept, to two honest and sufficient Men of the City, other than the Aldermen, to be chosen to this by the Commonalty, at the Will of the said Commonalty, and not to others; and who may answer thereupon to the said Commonalty.

XVIII. That no Serjeant of the Chamber of Guildhall, take Fee of the Commonalty of the City, or do Execution, unless one chosen for this by the Commonalty of the City: And that the Chamberlain, Common Clerk, and Common Serjeant be chosen by the Commonalty of the City, and be removed according to the Will of the same City.

XIX. And that the Mayor and Recorder, and the foresaid Chamberlain and Common Clerk be content with their Fees, antiently appointed and paid, on Account of their Offices, and take not other Fees for the abovesaid Offices.

XX. That the Goods of the Aldermen, in Aids, Tallages, and other Contributions, concerning the said City, be taxed by the Men of the Wards in which those Aldermen abide, as the Goods of other Citizens, by the said Wards.

“ Which Articles, as they are above expressed,
“ and the Matters contained in the same, we accept, approve and ratify; and we yield and “ grant them, for us and our Heirs, as much as “ in us is, to the foresaid Citizens, their Heirs
“ and Successors in the foresaid City and Suburbs,
“ for the common Profit of those that inhabit “ therein, and resort thither to obtain the same;
“ and to be observed perpetually.

“ Moreover, we willing to shew ampler Grace
“ to the Maior, Aldermen and Citizens, at their “ Request, have granted to them, for us and our “ Heirs, that the Maior, Aldermen, Citizens and “ Commonalty, of the Commoners of the City,
“ and their Heirs and Successors, for the Necessities and Profits of the same City, may, among “ themselves, of their common Assent, assess Tallages upon their own Goods within that City;
“ as well upon the Rents as other Things, and as “ well upon the Mysteries as any other Way as “ they shall see expedient, and levy them without incurring the Danger of us or our Heirs, “ and our Ministers whomsoever. And that the “ Money coming from such Tallages remain in “ the Custody of four honest and lawful Men of “ the said City, to be chosen to this by the “ Commonalty, and be laid out, of their Custody, for the Necessities and Profits of the “ said City, and not otherwise. In witness whereof, &c. Witness the King at York, the 8th “ Day of June.

By the KING.

These Articles were drawn up and agreed to, upon a great Discontent in the Commoners against the Magistrates, who in these Times had assumed too much Power and Authority to themselves in appointing Officers, abiding divers Years in the Mayoralty, laying arbitrary Taxes upon the Citizens, and sparing or favouring themselves in such Impositions, and the like. Which occasioned King Edward I. Father of Edward II. to send his Justices into the City to make Inquisition into into these and such like Disorders. And upon certain Articles given to select sworn Men in every Ward, Presentments were made. And it may appear by those Articles abovementioned, corrected and confirmed by the King, that he favoured the Commons, and restored to them such Privileges as seem to have been wrested from them by Mayors, Sheriffs and Aldermen.

King Edward I. interposed his Authority for the keeping of Peace and Safety in the City, prescribing divers Orders to prevent Ruffians that revelled at Taverns, and walked in the Streets with drawn Weapons at unreasonable Times of the Night, and made Uproars, and did much Mischief. And this was when the King had assumed the City Privileges into his own Hand, and had appointed Custodes or Guardians over it. Now there are in the Book Horn, several Articles in French; confirmed by the said King, touching the State of the City, and for firmly keeping the Peace, which were signed under the King's Seal, and they are such as follow :

Ces sont les, &c. These are the Articles which our Lord the King commandeth to be well kept in the City of LONDON, for to observe and maintain his Peace.

First, For that many Mischiefs and Murders, Robberies and Manlaughters have been done heretofore, within the City both by Night and by Day; and People beaten and ill treated, and other ill Adventures happening against his Peace; it is forbidden, that none be so hardy to be found going nor wandering within the Streets of the City after Coverseu sounds at St. Martin's le Graund; nor to have Sword, nor Buckler, or other Arms, to do Harm, nor whence ill Suspicion might happen, nor in no other Manner: If it be no great Lord, or other discreet Man, well known, or their certain Messager; which shall be warranted by them. Otherwise to be taken by the Guardians of the Peace, and put in the Tonnel, appointed for such Ill-doers. And on the Morrow to be brought and presented before the Guardian [i. e. the Custos], or the Maior, or the Aldermen. And according to what they shall find he hath trespassed, let him be punished, as hath been accustomed.

No Taverner to keep open his Tavern, or to sell Wine or Beer after Coverseu sounds; but to shut up his Tavern close after such Hour, as he will answer to the Peace of the King: And being found guilty, to forfeit 40 d. the first Time; and found again, to be amerced half a Mark; and the third Time, 10 s. and the fourth Time to pay the whole Pain double, that is, 20 s.

And for that those that delight themselves to do ill, will learn to skirmish with Bucklers, and so much the more boast themselves to do their Follies; it is provided and forbidden, that none keep School, nor learn to skirmish with Bucklers within the City, by Night or by Day: And if any do it, to forfeit 40 Marks.

None in such Manner imprisoned to be delivered by the Sheriff, or Officer under him, or of the Agent of the Guardian, or of the Mayor, or of the Aldermen, if the Trespass be not small; nor unless good Mainprize be taken, to appear at a certain Day to receive Judgment according to his Fault.

Lastly, It is required, that every Alderman in his Wardmote intently enquire of such Ill-doers, repairing and dwelling in his Ward. And if any shall, by Presentment or Indictment of the good People of the Ward, or of ill Suspicion, presently let them be attached of their Body, and come before the Guardian, or the Mayor, or Aldermen; and let them be arrested for it, until they be indicted and presented by them. And those that cannot acquit themselves, let them be punished by Imprisonment, or other Punishment, according to their Discretion, and according to that the Fault requires.

And because any People have come and dwelt in the City, some from beyond Sea, and some without Habitation seek Umbrage and Refuge here, being banished out of their own Countries, or for great Trespass, or other Forfeit are sent away from their own Country; and of all these, some become Brokers, Hostilers, and Harbourners within the City of private Persons and Strangers, so openly as if they were good and loyal Men of the Franchise of the City; and each of these do nothing by Night or by Day, and are well attired, and feed of costly Viands; nor do they use Trade or Merchandize, nor have Lands nor Tenements, nor have whereof to live, nor Friend to find them. From such come many Dangers in the City oftentimes, and many Robberies, Breakings of Houses by Night, Murders and other Evils. It is provided therefore, that none of a strange Land, nor others be received, harboured, nor hosted within the City, unless he be a Freeman of the City, received or affirmed before the Guardian, or the Mayor and Aldermen, as a good Man and loyal; and there be good Testimony of him whence he came, and, that he find safe Pledges, justifiable to the Bailiffs of the City, to be responsible to the King's Peace. And that no Broker be within the City, unless they be received and sworn before the Guardian, the Mayor and Aldermen.

So that, besides Charters and Acts of Grace made to the City, it was not unusual for the Kings of this Land to send their Letters Mandatory in any Emergence, for the well-governing and ordering thereof. Such a Letter, besides those before, was that of King Edward II. upon the great Rising of the Prices of Provisions in the Year 1314, setting reasonable Rates upon Flesh and Fowl.

Edwardus Dei Gratia, &c. Edward by the Grace of God King of England, Lord of Ireland, Duke of Aquitain, to the Sheriffs of LONDON, greeting. We have heard the Complaint of the Archbishops, Bishops, Earls, Barons, and others of the Commonalty of our Kingdom, by their Petition exhibited before us and our Council; containing, that there is a great and as it were intolerable Dearth in these Days, of Oxen, Cows, Sheep, Hogs, Geese, Capons, Hens, Chickens, Pigeons, and Eggs, to the no little Loss and Grievance of them, and all others dwelling within the same Kingdom. For which they have besought us instantly, that we would take Care to provide upon this concerning some suitable Remedy:

We therefore yielding to the aforesaid Supplication, for the common Profit of the People of the said Kingdom, as it seemed expedient to us, have ordained, with the Counsel and Assent of the Prelates, Earls, Barons, and others being of our Council, in our last Parliament held at Westminster;

That a better Sort of Ox, alive, saleable, fat, not fed of Grain, be sold for the Time to come for 16 s. and not above.

Or, if it be fed with Grain, and be fat, then to be sold for 24 s. at most.

And that a better Sort of Cow alive, and fat, be sold for 12 s.

A Hog of two Years old and fat, for 40 d.

A Shear'd Mutton, fat, for 14 d.

A fat Goose for 2 d. ob. in our City aforesaid, for 3 d.

A Capon good and fat, for 2 d. and 2 d. ob.

A fat Hen for 1 d. and 1 d. ob.

Two Chickens for 1 d. and 1 d. ob.

Three (four over-written) young Pigeons for one Penny.

And that if it happen to be found, that any Persons, or any one Person will not sell these saleable Things for the Price appointed, as is before set forth, then the said saleable Things shall remain forfeited to us. And we will, that the aforesaid Ordinance from this Time be firmly and inviolably observed in our said City.

We command, firmly enjoining you, that in our City aforesaid, and Suburb of the same, where yee shall see it to be expedient, that the aforesaid Ordinance be publickly and distinctly proclaimed; and that ye cause the same from Time to Time to be inviolably observed in all and each its Articles, under the aforesaid Forfeiture, throughout the whole Bailiwick; and this omit by no Means, as you will avoid our Indignation, and preserve yourselves without Blame. Witness myself at Westminster this 14th of March, in the 8th Year of our Reign.

But the King was fain, the next Year, to send a Brief of Reclamation of his former Ordinance, finding it did more Harm than Good. It was as follows:

The King to the Sheriffs of LONDON, Greeting.

ALthough we lately commanded you, that in each Place in the aforesaid City, where it should seem to you to be best expedient, yee should cause it to be publickly proclaimed, that Oxen, Cows, Hogs, Sheep, Geese, Capons, Hens, Chickens, Pigeons, and Eggs, should be sold at a certain Price: Because, nevertheless, we have understood, that such a Proclamation, which at that Time we believed would be for the Profit of the People of our Realm, redounds to their greater Damage than Profit; we command you, that in the said several Places ye cause publickly to be proclaimed, that Oxen, Cows, Hogs, Sheep, Geese, Capons, Hens, Chickens, young Pigeons and Eggs, be sold for a reasonable Price, as was accustomed to be done before the said former Proclamation, certifying all and singular, that the former Proclamation was not made by Vertue of the Ordinances late made by the Prelates, Earls and Barons, and Nobles of the same Realm, and by us accepted, nor was contained in them. Witness myself at Lincoln the 20th of February, in the 9th Year of our Reign.

And this setting Prices upon Victuals in the City, was no more than what Kings had interposed in before. King Edward I. in the Beginning of his Reign, Anno 1274, commanded the Mayor and Aldermen to make Statutes for governing the Hucksters of Fish and Fowl; and accordingly remarkable Statutes were made appointing also Prices for all Sorts of Fowl and Fish, which remain still in one of the Books of the Chamber of LONDON, and have this Title, Statuta de Poletria & Pisce facta tempore Maioratus Henr. de Waleys, viz.

TEmpore Henrici de Waleys, &c. i. e. In the Time of Henry de Waleys, Maior of LONDON, Nicholas de Winton, Henry de Coventree, Sheriffs, by the Command of our Lord the King, with the Assent and Consent of the Great Men of the Kingdom and Citizens aforesaid, it was ordained, that no Huckster of Fowle [or Poulter] go out of the City to meet them that bring Poultry into the City, to make any buying from them; but buy in the City, after the Buyers of the Lord the King, of the Barons, and the Citizens have bought and had what shall be needful for them, namely, after Three a Clock, and not before. Because by such Partnership they who are of the City, and have known the State of the City, and the Defect of Victuals, will hold the Fish at a greater Dearness than Foreigners who shall not have known it. And also, that they who are of the City, when they cannot sell as they will, lay it up in Cellars, and sell dearer than the Strangers would do, if they came without Partnership, and knew [not] where they might be harboured.

Nor let them buy any Thing in the City until the King's Servants, &c. have bought, and not before Three o'Clock. And if they who have brought Fish shall come after Three o'Clock, let them not sell that Day, but let them sell on the Morrow Morning. And if they expect more, let the Fish be taken into the Lord King's Hand; and let them keep no Fish, except Salt Fish, beyond the second Day of their coming; which if it shall happen to be found, let them lose their Fish, and be at the Mercy of the Lord the King [to fine them.]

For Provision of Bread, and for a standing Supply of Corn, within the City, against dear Years, the Magistrates were especially concerned, that Care might be taken for the poorer and laborious Sort, which were the greater Number; for a Proof or two of the commendable Care.

In the Year 1586, a scarce Year, it seems, for Corn, a Stay was made of the LONDON Bakers Provision of Grain; the Bringers in of Grain being stoppt by the Country Justices. The News of this coming to LONDON, the Mayor and Aldermen forthwith jointly applied to the Court, and directed their Suit particularly to the Great Statesman their Friend: "That he would please to take it in good Part, that in

" these their more necessary and important Suits
" for the Behoof of their City, they were bold
" to make their special Repair to his Lordship, " for their better Assistance, and Furtherance of " their Suits with the rest of their Honours of " the Privy-Council. That his Lordship best
" knew how great Proportion of Corn was ne" cessary for the Year's Provision of that City;
" which could not be supplied by any other " Means, especially at that Time, in the Win" ter, the Number of People being so great as it " was, if the ordinary Provisions made by their " Bakers in the Markets about them, in no
" other Sort than the Laws of the Realm did " permit, or brought in by Badgers and Sel" lers of Grain, were stayed and intercepted
" from coming to them; which by certain Jus" tices of Peace, and other Officers of late, had " been done. Of this they had already advertised
" their Honours, and also had made their hum" ble Petition for their favourable Aid and Assist" ance for Redress of the same. And that herein
" if it should please his good Lordship to vouch-
" safe them [the Mayor and Aldermen] his Fa" vour, for the furthering of their reasonable and " necessary Suit, so far forth as to his Wisdom
" and Equity should seem meet, all of that City,
" especially those of the poorer Sort, should be " very much bound to his good Lordship; being " otherwise like to be sore distressed with great " Extremities within very short Time, if their " necessary Provision should be thus intercepted,
" and cut off still from them.

And so concluded with their humble Duties and Thanks to his Lordship for his continual Favours toward their City, and Readiness to procure the Good of the same. This was dated from LONDON, Feb. 1, 1586. The Subscription was, Your Honour's most humbly to be commanded, the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of LONDON.

And further, this that follows may deserve to be related also in this Matter, that to provide against a Dearth in the City, the Companies were by the Lord Mayor's Means, to buy each of them such a Quantity of Corn, and to lay it up in a Garner [or Granary] in the Bridge-house. And such a dear Year was that of 1594, Sir John Spencer, Mayor; who therefore (it being now Winter Time) called upon the Companies, viz. those of them that had not laid in their Proportion, to do it within so many Days; Corn being then brought in from foreign Parts. But such an Obstacle just in this Interval happened, that caused the Mayor to send an earnest Message to the Lord Burghley, the great Patron of the City. For Sir John Hawkins, that great Seaman, to whom the Care of the Queen's Fleet then belonged, required now the Bridge-house himself, for the bringing in and laying up there his Provisions for the Use of the Navy, and the Ovens likewise there for baking their Ship-Bread. In this Streight thus that Mayor addressed the said Lord.

" That according to the Care that his Place re" quired at his Entrance therein, by his Means,
" it was ordered that the several Companies of " the City should presently make Provisions, and " furnish themselves of Wheat and Rye brought " from foreign Parts, according to their several " Portions allotted to them. Wherein they had " not been so forward as they ought to have " been, and were yet unprovided of the greatest " Part thereof. That he had therefore ten Days " past enjoined them to furnish their Wants of " these, that were then brought in from foreign " Parts, and to have the same laid up in the " Bridge-house, in their several Garnets [Garners]
" and before the 8th Day of January next coming
" [it being then, at this Writing, within a Day " or two of Christmas.]

" But

“ But that hereupon Sir John Hawkins, by “ his Men desired, or rather commanded, Room
 “ in the Bridge-House to lay in Wheat, and also “ the Ovens for baking. But that he [the Mayor] “ answered; That they could with no Conveni“ ence spare the same: Alledging truly to him,
 “ That if the same should be yielded unto, that “ the Companies would thereby take Occasion to “ neglect their Provision, and alledge that they “ could not do the same, for that he [the Mayor]
 “ had lent away their Garnets. And that so “ thereby the City, which in that Time of Dearth “ was furnished only from foreign Parts, should “ be unprovided, and the Fault wholly laid upon “ him. And that then, either that which should “ be brought for the Provision of the City, of “ force must have been tolerated to be brought “ up by the Badgers, and carried from the City,
 “ as it had been; or else the Merchants discour“ aged from bringing any more. The which he “ hoped his Lordship would well consider.

“ AND that for the Ovens, it was told them,
 “ the same were used for baking Bread for the “ Poor, that they might have the more for their “ Money; and that therefore they could not be “ spared. And also the Mayor said, that as he “ was informed, her Majesty had Garnets about “ Tower-hill, and Whitehall, and Westminster.

 “ And also, that if they would not serve, her “ Majesty had in her Hands Winchester-House, “ wherein great Quantity might be laid.

But upon this stout Answer of the Mayor;
 they told him, “ That he should hear more to “ his further Dislike. And he bade them, that “ if they did procure any Letters for the same,
 “ he doubted not but to answer them to their “ Lordships [of the Privy Council’s] good Ac“ ceptance. And that now having received Let“ ters for the same from some of the Council,
 “ he humbly prayed the Lord Treasurer’s good “ Favour, that the same Garnets being the City’s, “ might be employed for the Use of the same.
 “ That there might be no Want; nor Outcry of “ the Poor for Bread. Or else, that if there fell “ out a greater Want and Dearth of Grain than “ yet there was, and that the City were unpro-“ vided, his Lordship would be pleased to hold “ him excused. And so most humbly submitted “ himself to his Honour’s good Pleasure.

This good Magistrate’s Letter was dated the 23^d of December, from LONDON, the Year above-mention’d.

CHAP. V.

Of Laws, Customs and Usages, Antient and Modern. Of Paving, the Streets. Laws of the Market, &c.

LAUDABLE Customs are the principal Joints and very Sinews of all good Corporations and Fellowships; and also the Maintainers of a Sacred Unity and natural Amity between the Husband and his Wife, the Parents and their Children; which (as the Wife Philosopher termed it) is the Beginning of a City. For what is a City, but a manifold and joint Society, consisting of many Households, and living under the same Laws, Freedoms and Franchises? And so the said Customs must needs be the Procurers and Causes of sundry good Effects to the general Estate of the City, wherein they be observed, &c.

AND to come nearer to the Matter, this famous and renowned City of LONDON hath many laudable and antient Customs; which tho’ they derogate and differ from the Rules of the Common Law, yet have they been not only approved by inviolable Experience of sundry Ages, but also have been of old ratified and confirmed by sundry Acts of Parliaments, and Charters of Princes: And namely, by Statute of Magna Charta, by these Words following, Quod Civitas LONDON. habeat omnes Libertates suas antiquas, & Consuetudines, quas habere consuevit. i. e. That the City of LONDON have all their antient Liberties and Customs, which they have used to have. The Words following for other Cities be, Quod habeant omnes Liber-tates & liberas Consuetudines suas. Which signifies, that they shall still retain their Liberties and free Customs; that is to say, their Freedoms and Immunities, as to be discharged of Toll,

Pontage, and such like; whereas the City of LONDON hath Provision made by that Statute for all Usages and Customs whatsoever. Verily as the City of LONDON beareth Odds and Prerogative over other Cities in England, being the Metropolis, or Mother City thereof, so are the Inhabitants of it no less necessary, than profitable Members of the Commonwealth, in transporting our Commodities into other Lands, and enriching us with the Benefits and Fruits of other Countries, &c.

LONDON, being worthy of the Title,
Epitome totius Angliæ, in Respect of the necessary Repair and frequent Assembly of all Estates therein, whether it be for Justice by the Laws of this Land, which are here administer’d, or by Trade of Merchandize, which is here so great, that it may be termed Totius Occidentis Emporium; and chiefly because of the favourable and often Sojourn of our most Royal and Gracious Sovereign, whose Majesty’s Chamber this is, the same is no less of sundry Pre-eminences, which by Custom and Charter it enjoyeth above other Cities of this Land: And,

THAT concerning the Prerogative given this City above other Cities in this Realm, (in Respect of her Customs) we read in the 7th Year of Henry VI. that in a Nativo habendo, brought by the Lord to recover his Villain, it was adjudged a good Return made by the Sheriff of LONDON, that such was the Custom of LONDON, that a Villain having remained there the Space of one whole Year and a Day, could not be fetched or removed out thence. For so

so great is the Prerogative of that Place, that it gives Protection to the Villain, or Bondman, against his Lord, while the said Bondman shall be resiant there.

LIKEWISE it was taken for a good Custom in the City of LONDON, that no Attaint should be maintained for a supposed false Verdict given in that City. In the which Case, the Sheriff of LONDON made Return upon a Writ of Attaint, sued against a Londoner; that such was and had been always the Custom of the City, that no Attaint should be allowed against a Commoner, or other Citizen of the same; for which Cause he might not, Salvis Libertatibus, without Impeachment of their Liberties, serve or execute the Writ. Then was there a Writ directed out of the Chancery to the Justices of the King's Bench, with express Commandment, To allow to the Mayor, Sheriffs, and Citizens, all their Liberties, Immunities, and Customs. And further, out of that Writ was a Venire facias, directed to the Mayor and Sheriffs, whereby was a Day given them to come and make Declaration of their Custom. At which Day the Parties, Plaintiff and Defendant, being present, the Mayor and Sheriffs had full Allowance of their Customs; the Sheriffs were holden excused for their Return; and the Parties Writ was abated, and himself punished by Imprisonment for his Vexation.

I have here (saith the Writer, from whom this is taken) at large remember'd this Case, to the end it may appear, both what Credit and Opinion of Conscience and Truth the Law ascribed to the Citizens of LONDON; and also how careful and vigilant the Mayor and Sheriffs have always been to preserve and uphold their Custom. Altho' since thence that Custom was, for special Causes, abrogated by the Statute of 11 H. 7. and an Attaint given in LONDON.

MOREOVER, we find it recorded in M. 2. E. 3. that whereas a Citizen of LONDON brought an Appeal of Robbery, and the Defendant would have tried his Innocency by Battle, as he may in semblable Case against another Man, Wilby, then Justice, answer'd him, That he was not to have Allowance of Battle in an Appeal commenced by a Citizen of LONDON. For that by Custom of their City they were exempted from it. The like Appeal was sued, P. 20. E. 3. wherein the Defendant made Offer of the same Trial. And although he that sued the Appeal would have joined Battle without Regard of this Franchise, the Lord Mayor, with the rest of the Corporation, sued a Writ out of the Chancery, reciting their Custom of Franchise, and prayed Allowance of it, in Disturbance of the Battle.

WHAT the Laws and Customs of this City were in the Times of the Saxons, we might have known, if the old Record called Doomsday, writ in Saxon, sometime kept in the Guildhall, were extant. This Book was a Register of the Laws and Customs of the City, and also of the Names of the Portgreves, or Rulers and Guardians of LONDON from William the Conqueror. But after, when the Laws and Customs were changed, it was laid aside, and less regarded; especially, it being writ in a small Hand, and worn with Age: Sore defaced, saith Fabian, it was at last embezzled and lost. And hence it comes to pass, that as we have no Footsteps of the Saxon Customs and Usages of LONDON, so no Remembrance of such Rulers as were before King Richard I. except two or three retrieved by Stow.

BUT here we shall first set down some few of the Laws and Customs (however imperfect) transcribed by Munday out of a little Book printed 1562, for the Citizens Use; with various and large Improvements and Additions to them, to the present Time, to render them more useful and beneficial to the Freemen and Inhabitants.

AND first, we begin with the Statutes for keeping Cleanliness and good Order in the Streets.

THERE were formerly held in the City Affiza Nocumentorum, which were appointed for avoiding Annoyances or Nufances in the City, and for the keeping of all Lanes and Passages open: Wherein Informations were to be made of the Stoppages or Incroachments into the Streets by any jetty Buildings by Shops, Cellars, &c. And for these Affizes of Annoyances there were Carpenters and Bricklayers sworn. Cementarii & Carpentarii jurat. pro Affiz. Nocumentor. And an Order was made another Time, that Hurds and Grees, and other Annoyances in the Streets be removed. And a Wall being built up once that stopp'd up a Passage from Pater-noster-row to Blow-bladder-street, at the Gate of St. Michael ad Bladum, i. e. St. Michael the Quern, (or rather at Corn) a Judgment was given to pull it down.

Now follow such Statutes for keeping the Streets clean, as are still in Force.

Veneris 6 die Auguſti, 1697. Annoque Regni Regis Wilhelmi Tertii, Angl', &c. Nono.
At a Committee of Common-Council, held for the Publick Markets of the City of LONDON.

At a Committee of Common-Council 1697.

WHEREAS the Company of Butchers, by a Committee for that Purpoſe appointed, hath made Complaint to Us, That divers Perſons, contrary to the Laws and Statutes of this Realm, and the Customs and By-Laws of this City, daily Foreſtall, Ingroſs and Regrate, all Manner of Viſtuals and other Proviſions, coming to and ſold in the publick Markets of this City, and ſell unwholsome and corrupt Viſtuals therein, whereby the ſaid Markets are not ſo well ſupplied, and the Price of Proviſions enhanced, to the great Prejudice of the Inhabitants of this CITY, and Places adjacent ;

And We having by our Order, dated the 13th Day of July laſt, required the Serjeant and Yeoman of the Channel to aſſiſt the ſaid Committee, or any of them, with the Beadle of the ſaid Company, in bringing the Offenders aforeſaid to due Punishment, according to Law, upon Pain of Suspension of their Salaries, for Neglect of their Duty therein ;

Now to the Intent that the ſaid Laws ſhould be perceived and known, that all Perſons concerned might better govern themſelves without offending therein, and the ſaid Officers be inſtructed in Performance of their Duty ; We have thought fit, and do hereby order the Printing and Publiſhing in the ſeveral Publick Markets of this City, this following Abſtract of the ſeveral Laws and Statutes of this Realm, and Customs and By-Laws of this City touching the Premises.

Foreſtallers are they that buy any Thing before the Hour due and appointed in the Town, againſt the Ordinance of the Town and Market ; or, who go out of Town, obviating Market-Wares and buy them out of Town, that they may ſell them in Town dearer to Regrators than thoſe that did bring them would do, if they had come to the Town or Market.

No Foreſtaller ſhall be ſuffered to dwell in any Town, which is an open Oppreſſor of poor People and of all the Commonalty, and a publick Enemy of the Country ; who, thiſtling after unjuſt Gain, doth prevent others in buying Grain, Fiſh, Herring, or any other Thing to be ſold, coming by Land or Water, oppreſſing the Poor and deceiving the Rich, and thus unjuſtly contrives to ſell them much dearer than he who brought them : Who circumvents Market-Strangers coming with their Merchandize, offering to buy them ; and ſuggeſts, that they may ſell their Goods dearer than they propoſed to ſell them ; and ſo by their Craft and Subtilty deceive the Town and Country. He that is convicted thereof, for the firſt Time ſhall be grievouſly amerced, and loſe the Thing ſo bought, according to the Custom and Ordinance of the Town. The ſecond Time ſhall have Judgment of the Pillory. The third Time ſhall be imprifoned and make Fine : And the fourth Time ſhall abjure the Town. This Judgment ſhall be given upon all Foreſtallers, and thoſe that give them Counſel, Help or Favour.

Foreſtallers of Wines, or other Viſtuals, Wares and Merchandizes, that come to the Towns of England by Land or Water, attainted at the Suit of the King or Party, before Mayor, Bailiff, or Juſtices thereto aſſigned, or elſewhere in the King's Court, or at the King's Suit, by Indictment or other Manner, ſhall forfeit, if the Buyer hath made Gree to the Seller, the Things foreſtalled to the King ; if he made not Gree, but by Earneſt, the Value of the foreſtalled Goods computed as he bought them ; and in Default thereof, two Years Imprifonment and more, at the King's Will, without Mainprize or other Deliverance. If attainted at the Suit of the Party, the Party to have a Moiety.

Every Perſon or Perſons that ſhall buy, or cauſe to be bought, any Merchandize, Viſtuals or other Thing, coming by Land or Water toward any Market or Fair to be ſold therein, or toward any City to be ſold ; or bargain, contract or promiſe, for having or buying of them or any Part of them, before they be in the Market, &c. to be ſold ; or make any Motion by Word, Letter, Meſſage or otherwiſe, for enhancing the Price, or diſſwade any Perſon coming to the Market or Fair, not to convey them to any Market, &c. ſhall be adjudged a Foreſtaller.

Any Perſon that by any Means, in any Fair or Market, ſhall get into his Hands or Poſſeſſion, any Corn, Wine, Fiſh, Butter, Cheeſe, Candles, Tallow, Sheep, Lambs, Calves, Swine, Pigs, Geefe, Capons, Hens, Chickens, Pidgeons, Conies, or any other dead Viſtuals brought into any Fair or Market, and ſell the ſame in any Fair or Market kept in the ſame Place, or within four Miles thereof, ſhall be taken for a Regrator.

Any Perſon that by Buying, Contracting, or Promiſe taking, (other than demife, Grant or Leaſe of Land or Tythe) ſhall ingroſs or get into his Hands, Corn growing, or any other Corn or Grain, Butter, Cheeſe, Fiſh, or any other dead Viſtuals, to ſell them again, ſhall be taken an unlawful Ingroſſer.

This Act ſhall not reſtrain any Fiſhmonger, Butcher, Poulterer, Innholder, or Viſtualler, from buying any Thing concerning their ſeveral Myſteries or Tradings, (otherwiſe than by Foreſtalling) they retailing the ſame at reaſonable Prices.

PUNISHMENT of theſe Offenders.

For the firſt Offence, Imprifonment for two Months without Bail or Mainprize, and Forfeiture of the Value of the Goods : Second Offence, Imprifonment for half a Year without Bail or Mainprize, and Forfeiture of double the Value of the Goods : Third Offence, Pillory in the Place of his Abode, Forfeiture of all his Chattels, and Imprifonment during the King's Pleaſure. One Moiety of theſe Forfeitures to the King, the other to the Proſecutor, in any Court of Record, by Bill, Plaint, Action of Debt or Information, ſued within two Years next after the Offence committed, where no Wager of Law, Eſſoin, or Protection ſhall be admitted.

Juſtices of Peace in Sessions may hear and determine the aforeſaid Offences by Inquiſition, Preſentment, Bill or Information, or Examination of two Witneſſes ; and exact the one Half of the Forfeitures to the Uſe of the King, and cauſe the other Half to be levied to the Uſe of the Proſecutor, by Fieri facias, or Capias ; and when the Proſecution ſhall be at the King's Suit only, to exact the Whole to the King's Uſe.

No Man ſhall foreſtall any Viſtuals, as to buy in any Inn or other private Place, or coming to the Market, under the Pain of Forfeiture of the ſame, whether it be found in the Hands of Buyer or the Seller; and no Innholder shall suffer any Thing to be sold in his House under Pain of Forty Shillings.

No Man shall regrate any Victuals in the Markets, such as be known to be Hucksters, or other People getting their Living by such Victuals as they would so regrate, under Pain of Forfeiture of the Victuals so regrated.

Every Country-Butcher, Poulterer, Country-Farmer, Victular, Lader or Kidder, (except Butchers and Poulterers that keep Shops in the City or Liberties, or within two Miles distant of the same) may use Standings, Stalls or Places, in each respective Market, as shall be provided for them, and there sell and put to open Sale their Beef, Mutton, Veal, Lamb, Pork, Bacon, and other Butchery and Poultry Wares, or other Country Provisions, on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, Weekly, from Six in the Morning to Eight in the Evening; and on Saturday from Six in the Morning till Ten at Night, and not otherwise; and so long only as they shall furnish the said Markets, &c. with wholesome Flesh Victuals and Provisions in his and their own Right, and not as Servant or Servants, or otherwise, in Behalf of any others.

No Butcher or Poulterer, residing in LONDON or Liberties, or within two Miles of the same, shall sell or expose to Sale any Butchery or Poultry Wares, or any other Provisions whatsoever in any of the said Markets, on any Friday throughout the Year, on Pain of Forfeiture of Ten Shillings for every Offence.

The Market-Bell in each Market shall ring every Market-Day at Six in the Morning, for Housekeepers and others, that are not Retailers of Victuals, to buy their Provisions; and at Ten in the Forenoon for Retailers, then; and not before, upon Penalty of Forfeiture of Forty Shillings, to buy and carry away what Provisions they need, and at Eight in the Evening, (except Saturday) and then at Ten at Night, for raising the Market: And those that sell or expose to open Sale before ringing at the Hour of Six, shall be proceeded against as Forefallers of the Market, or after ringing at the said Hours in the Evening, for every Offence shall forfeit Twenty Shillings. The Markets being principally instituted, that Housekeepers and others, who buy for their own Use, to be spent in their Families, may provide in the Morning at best Hand, and pay moderate Rates for Provisions.

The better to prevent the vending of unwholesome Victuals, no Person shall bring into any the said Markets after Three in the Afternoon, of any Saturday, any Flesh Meat, or other Victuals or Provisions, upon Penalty of Forfeiture of 20 s.

No Person shall sell or expose to Sale, by way of Hawking, or otherwise, Beef, Mutton, Lamb, Veal, Bacon, Pork, Poultry, Butter, Cheese, Fish, Meal, Bread, or any other Victuals or Provisions under any private Stall, or at any Tavern Door, or in any private House, Lane, Alley, Inn, Warehouse, Street, Stall, Common Passage, or any other Place, in LONDON or Liberties thereof, but only in his open Shop, or in the publick Market-Place, in Market-Time only, as before appointed, upon Penalty of Forfeiture of the Goods so exposed to Sale, according to the antient Custom of LONDON, to the Use of the poor Prisoners, in such Prisons in LONDON as the Mayor shall direct.

No Person shall buy, or cause to be bought, Victuals or other Things coming to LONDON or Liberties, or to any the Common Markets of this City, to be sold; or bargain, contract; or agree for them, before they be brought into one of the said Markets, and there, bona fide, in Market Hours, be exposed to publick Sale. Nor no Retailer that shall obtain Victuals, Provisions, or other Things, in any of the said Markets brought to be sold before ringing at Ten a Clock aforesaid, shall sell them again in his Shop, or any the Markets, or other Place in this City or Liberties, upon Penalty of Forfeiture of Forty Shillings.

All Forfeitures by Virtue of this Act, are to be recovered by Action of Debt, Bill, or Plaint, in the Chamberlain's Name, in the Mayor's Court; whereof one Moiety (Costs of Suit deducted) to Christ's Hospital, the other to the Prosecutor; and the Chamberlain shall not have Power to take less for every Offence, than herein is limited to be forfeited.

Which Custom is saved by Hooker's Act of Common-Council above-mentioned, and the Hours for raising the Markets limited, as is above set forth.

By a late Award, between the Market People and the Farmers of the Markets, grounded on a Rule of Court of King's Bench, the said Farmers are ordered, to hold their Markets only on such Days, and at such Hours in the Day, as by the Laws and Customs of LONDON are appointed.

hereunto annexed, are referred to the Arbitrament and final Determination of us the said Sir Nathan Wright and Sir Bartholomew Shower, as by the said Rule may more fully appear :

Now know ye, That we the said Sir Nathan Wright and Sir Bartholomew Shower having taken the said Matters in Difference into our Consideration, and being assisted herein by Sir William Hedges, Kt, one of the Aldermen of the said City of LONDON, and others the Committee, appointed by the Common-Council of the said City for the better Regulating of the said Publick Markets, do adjudge, award, order and determine concerning the said Premises as follows :

1. We do order and appoint, That the said Farmers shall, within two Months now next coming, deliver up all Bonds and Notes, given to the said Farmers, or any of them, or any other in Trust for them, or any of them, by any Butchers or other Persons resorting to the said Markets, either by themselves, or by any other Persons with or for them, for Payment of any Sum or Sums of Money for Fines for Incomes, or advanced Rents, or for Admittance or Leave to use or occupy any Stall, Standing or Room in the said Markets, or any of them ; and that no Proceeding shall hereafter be had or prosecuted upon any of the said Bonds and Notes for the Recovery of Sum or Sums of Money thereupon pretended to be due and payable.

WE have already exhibited a Table of the Rates, Tolls, and Duties, as settled and appointed to be taken by an Act of Common-Council, passed Sept. 17, 1674; which the Farmers in the Covenants of their Leases were obliged not to exceed, under the Penalty of 10 l. Joseph Lane, Comptroller.

Note, This Table of Rates was to regulate and explain the Rates settled by an Act of Common-Council made in the Year 1674, and was the Rule of Mr. Toby Humfry, (in his Demands and Receptions of the Market-People) who took a Lease of the City Markets in the Year 1677, unto which the present Farmers, Mr. Kilner, and others, are expressly referred in their Lease from the City, as to the Rates and Duties to be taken by them.

But the Farmers of the Market, notwithstanding these Rates, had found out Ways to exact upon the poor Market People, and to make them pay more than those Duties appointed by the said Act; whereof they complained to the Common-Council. The Court, upon this, appointed a Committee of four Aldermen, and eight Commoners, or any one of the said Aldermen, and two of the said Commoners, to consider the Abuses complained of, and of the Methods to reduce the same. And they did on the 29th of July, Anno Dom. 1696, make their Report, viz. "That they found the Rates received by the Farmers of the several Markets, viz. those of Newgate, Honey-lane, Stocks, and Leadenhall, as they then stood lett by them, amounted to 6379 l. 19 s. 10 d. and for Provisions, Fruits, and other Wares, brought to and sold in the said Markets, and in the Streets, 4516 l. 10 s. In all 10,896 l. 1 s. 6 d. which said Sums, they were of Opinion, the said Farmers did Yearly receive: Besides which they found, that they had received of the present Tenants 2194 l. 1 s. 6 d. by Way of Fines for Admittances. The said Committee were of Opinion, that the present Farmers had forfeited their Lease by Non-payment of their Rents, and by converting the Markets to other Uses than they ought to be, by the Covenants contained therein." This was signed by Sir William Gore, Knt. Samuel Westal, Daniel Dorvil, John Sherbrook, Robert Rowland, Roger Thompson, Peter Parker, and Thomas Aungor.

The said Committee did, the 5th of August, the same Year 1696, publish in Print the Table of Rates above-mentioned; for the Information of the Market-People: But notwithstanding the Endeavour

Besides these Markets before-mentioned, there are also three other notable Markets held in the City, the one for Fish, another for Cloth, and the third for live Cattle; viz. Billingsgate-Market, Blackwell-Hall, and Smithfield; all settled by Statute.

Smithfield.

First, for Smithfield-Market, by a Statute 22 and 23 Car. II. No Cattle bought there to be brought again into the said Market to be sold alive; but if brought, to be seized by the Bailiff, Toll-keeper, or other Officer having Oversight of the Market, to the Use of the Mayor and Aldermen; two Inches of the further Horn of all Cattle sold, to be cut off, for Discovery hereof. In this Market Foreigners as well as Freemen may buy and sell any Cattle, by a Statute 11 and 12 W. 3. The Act made 22 and 23 Car. 2. for preventing Frauds in buying and selling of Cattle in Smithfield, and elsewhere, was revived by 1 Jac. 2. and continued still.

Billingsgate.

Billingsgate-Market, by Statute 10 & 11 W. 3. to be every Day (except Sunday) a free Market for all Sorts of Fish, and that any Persons may buy and sell there. All buying any Fish there, may sell again in any other Market or Place in LONDON or elsewhere, by Retail. And no Person shall employ or be employed in buying at Billingsgate any Quantity of Fish, to be divided by Lots or in Shares amongst any Fishmongers or others, to be afterwards sold by Retail or otherwise. Nor any Fishmonger to engross or buy any Quantity of Fish, but what shall be for his own Sale or Use, under Penalty of 20 l. for each Offence. The one Moiety to the Poor of the Parish, the other to the Prosecutors.

Blackwell-hall.

THE Market at Blackwell-hall for selling Woollen Cloth, by Statute 8 & 9 Will. 3. to be holden every Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, from Eight till Twelve in the Forenoon, and from Two till Five in the Afternoon, except Days of Humiliation or Thanksgiving. And the Keepers to admit no buying or selling any other Days, upon the Penalty of 100 l. And no Factor, nor any Person whatsoever, other than the Owner of the Cloth, shall sell or expose to Sale out of the said Market, any Cloth directed to be brought to the said Market, or any Factor there, upon Penalty of 5 l. for every Cloth so sold; with several other Penalties upon the Hall-keepers, Clerks, and Master-Porters neglecting their Duties, and upon Factors not giving true Accounts to the Clothiers.

ALL Cloths made or mixed with Wool, Worsted, Jerseys and Crewel, wrought within England, when brought to LONDON to be bought and sold, must be brought to Blackwell-hall, formerly the Mansion-House of Sir Robert Dudley, as the common Market-place; where they are carefully laid, and exposed to Sale. For these very good Ends, viz. to prevent corrupt and deceitful Bargains and Contracts; which might happen, if they should be sold in Inns, or some private Warehouses; and that good Wares might be bought and sold: And to prevent foreign buying and selling in other Markets, contrary to the Custom of the City, and divers Acts of Parliament. And for the Hallage of these Cloths brought hither, certain Payment and Duties are to be paid. For the full ascertaining and confirming all this, a good Act of Common-Council was made for The Hallage of Woollen Cloths, Drapery Wares, and for pitching, safe-keeping, and safe Delivery thereof; and for appointing and settling of Market-places for these Cloths. It was made Anno 1665, Sir John Laurence, Mayor, and was in the Tenor following:

VOL. II.

Commune Concilium tentum in Camera Guildhall, Civitatis LONDON. die Martis quarto die Julii, Anno Regni Domini nostri CAROLI Secundi, Dei Gratia, Angliæ, Scotiæ, Franciæ & Hiberniæ, Regis, Fidei Defensoris, &c. decimo septimo, coram Johanne Laurence, Milite, Majore Civitatis LONDON. Thoma Adams, Richardo Brown & Thoma Aleyn, Mil' & Baronet' Aldermannis, Johanne Frederick, Thoma Bludworth, Willielmo Turner, & Francisco Meynel, Mil' Aldermannis, Samuele Starling & Willielmo Hooker, Aldermannis, & Georgio Waterman & Carolo Doe, Militibus & Aldermannis, Vicecomitibus ejusdem Civitatis, necnon majore parte Communiariorum de Communi Concilio ejusdem Civitatis tunc & ibidem assemblat'.

WHEREAS by antient Custom heretofore and now used within this Honourable City, and also by the old Laws and Ordinances made and now in Force within the same City, all Cloth, Cloths, and other Commodities made or mixt with Wool, Worsted, Jersey or Crewel, made or wrought within the Kingdom of England and Dominions of the same, brought and to be brought unto the City of LONDON and Liberties thereof, were and ought to be brought unto such common Market-place or Places, as to that Purpose within the same City and Liberties thereof, was and should from Time to Time be appointed, and there only, and not elsewhere, ought to be bought and sold, and the Owners of the said Cloth, Cloths, and other Commodities, made or mixt with Wool, Worsted, Jersey, or Crewel, did there pay Hallage and other Duties; which was so done, as well that good and lawful Wares should be bought and sold, and corrupt and unlawful Bargains and Contracts, made in Inns, Warehouses, and other private Places, tending to the Deceit of the People, and contrary to the Laws of the Realm and the Custom of this City, might be avoided: As also, that there might be no foreign buying and selling in those Markets, or within any other Part of the City of LONDON, in Fraud of the Liberties, and contrary to the Customs within this City, (Time out of Mind used) prohibiting foreign buying and foreign selling within the City; which Custom hath had the Confirmation of several Acts of Parliament, and is a great Support of their Government, enabling them to undergo those publick Charges, which others, not free of that City, are not liable unto, and which otherwise they could not bear.

And whereas by an Act of Common-Council made at a Common-Council held at Guildhall, LONDON, upon the Twenty-sixth Day of February, in the fourteenth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord the King that now is, the some Time Mansion-House of Sir Robert Dudley, Knt. and Bart. with the Appurtenances, in the Parish of St. Michael Bassishaw, LONDON, is appointed and set apart for the pitching and harbouring of such Cloth, Cloths, and other Commodities made or mix'd with Wool, Worsted, Jersey and Crewel, which (in Pursuance of an Act of Common-Council made at a Common-Council held at Guildhall, LONDON, upon the fourth Day of December, in the thirteenth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord the King that now is, intituled, An Act for the better Regulating of the Old and New Drapery in Blackwell-hall) cannot be pitched, received and harboured at Old Blackwell-hall, Leaden-hall, and the Welsb-hall, or any of them.

And whereas it was one of the principal Ends of the said mention'd Act of Common-Council made the fourth Day of December, in the said thirteenth thirteenth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord the King, to contract and reduce into one Act the Substance of all, or of the most necessary Acts of Common-Council in Force, touching the bringing of all Woollen Cloths, Drapery Wares, and other Commodities of like Kind, brought unto this City to be sold or transported unto the publick Markets in Blackwell-hall, Leaden-hall, and the Welsh-hall.

And whereas there are some Penalties and Provisions in that Act, which since have been conceived not fit to be put in Execution, and are yet so intermixed with the Body of the said Act, that they cannot well be rectified without repealing of the said Act, and framing of a new Act of Common-Council.

And whereas the said other before-mentioned Act of Common-Council, bearing Date the said twenty-sixth Day of February, in the fourteenth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord the King, hath such Dependence upon the said other before-mentioned Act made the said fourth Day of December, that in Case the same should be repealed, it might be questioned whether the said Act made the said twenty-sixth Day of February was still in Force.

Now to the Intent that all Ambiguities and Doubts touching the Duties for Stallage and for Pitching, safe Keeping, and safe Delivery of all Woollen Cloths, Drapery Wares, and other Commodities of the like Kind brought to this City to be sold or transported, may be certainly known, and the Duties for such Pitching, safe Keeping, and safe Delivery, be duly paid and received, and no other demanded; and that the said Market-Places be certainly appointed and settled; be it enacted and established by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, the Aldermen his Brethren, and the Commons in this Common-Council assembled, and by the Authority of the same, That the said Act of Common-Council, made the said fourth Day of December, entituled, An Act for the better regulating of the old and new Drapery in Blackwell-hall and Leaden-hall, and every Part thereof, be from henceforth repealed and made void, and the same, and every Part thereof, is hereby repealed and made void.

And be it hereby further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That the said House, some Time the Mansion-House of the said Sir Robert Duncy, with the Appurtenances, shall be from henceforth a Place for the Pitching and Harboursing of any such Cloths and other Commodities, as by this present Act, or any other Act now in Force, are appointed to be brought, pitched and harboured at Blackwell-hall aforesaid; and that the said Mansion-House be from henceforth called New Blackwell-hall, and is hereby made and appointed a common Cloth Market-Place, to all Intents and Purposes that Blackwell-hall, Leaden-hall, and the Welsh-hall, have been heretofore used; and the said Mansion-House is hereby annexed and made Part of Blackwell-hall aforesaid; and that Rules, Orders, and Directions shall be observed and practised in the said New Blackwell-hall as are hereby, or by any other Act of Common-Council now in Force, appointed to be observed in Blackwell-hall aforesaid; and that such Rates as are by this present Act appointed to be paid and received for such Cloth and other Commodities as shall be brought to Blackwell-hall, shall be paid and received for such Cloth and other Commodities as shall be brought to New Blackwell-hall aforesaid, in such Manner as the same are, either by this Act, or any other Act of Common-Council in Force, appointed and directed to be paid and received for those that shall be brought to Blackwell-hall; and that all Clauses, Articles and Things mentioned in this present Act, or by any other Act of Common-Council now in Force, to be done, observed, or put in Execution at Blackwell-hall aforesaid, be done, observed, or put in Execution at New Blackwell-hall, as fully and effectually to all Intents and Purposes, as if the said New Blackwell-hall had been antiently Part of, or heretofore annexed to Blackwell-hall aforesaid.

And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That all strained Essex or Suffolk Cloths, and all Cloths commonly called Cowen-try Cloths, Blue and White, and other mixed Hampshire and Surrey Kerfies, all Sorts of Norfolk, Suffolk and Essex Flanions, Bays, Perpetuanies, Rasches, Serges and Sayes, and all other Commodities that go under the Name of the New Drapery, for mixed with Wool, Worsted, Jersey, Crewel, or with Cotton-Wool, or with either or any of them, brought or shall be brought to the City of LONDON and Liberties thereof, either by Land or Water be brought unto, pitched and harboured in Leaden-hall, there to remain until they be entered, and the Duties of Hallage, herein after-mentioned, paid for the same, and not to be thence removed by the Space of ten Days, unless sold in the mean Time, and the same be first entered, and the said Duties of Hallage paid and satisfied (except the Western and Colchester Stuffs) which being brought to the Hall and entered, and the Duty of Hallage paid, may be taken thence by the Owners as soon as they please.

And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That all Sorts of broad and narrow Cloths, by what Name soever called, distinguished, or known, or in what Place soever made, and all other Kerfies, Bays, Tammies, Sayes, Rasches, Perpetuanies, Serges, Rugs, Blankets, Motlys of what Sort or Nature soever, Pennistones, Half-Thicks, Planis, Friezes, Cottons, Fustians, Linsey-Woolsey, Stockings of all Sorts, and all other Commodities and Manufactures made or mixed with Wool, Worsted, Jersey, or Crewel, with Cotton-Wool, or either or any of them, and brought or which shall be brought to the City, or the Liberties thereof, either by Land or Water, be brought unto, pitched and harboured in the Old and New Blackwell-hall or Welsh-hall, or one of them, there to remain till they be entered, and the Duties of Hallage herein after-mentioned, also paid for the same, and not be thence removed by the Space of ten Days, unless sold in the mean Time, except the Cloth, Cloths, or other Commodities made or mixed with Wool, Worsted, Jersey, or Crewel, bought in the Country by any Merchant, Draper, or any other Freeman of the said City by Precontract of the Clothier; which Cloth, Cloths, and other Woollen Manufactures, shall be brought to the Hall appointed by this Act to receive the same, there to be entered, and pay the Duty of Hallage hereby appointed to be paid for the same. Which being done, the said Commodities may be taken thence by the Owners as soon as they please; and except such small Parcels as being contracted for in the Country, by Persons that have bought or shall buy the same for their own private Use, and not to sell again; and also except Norwich Stuffs, and Monmouth Caps, Bewdly Caps, and other Woollen Caps, which Commodities are not to be brought to the said Hall, nor at present to pay Hallage.

And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That no Innholders, or any other Person or Persons, free or not free of this City, and inhabiting or dwelling within the same, or the Liberties thereof, shall permit or suffer any of the said Cloth, or Cloths, or other Woollen Manufactures, nufactures, which ought to be pitched at the aforesaid Blackwell-halls, Leaden-hall, or Welsh-hall, or any of them, at any Time or Times hereafter, whilst the said Commodities or any of them shall remain in their said Inns, to be bought or sold at or within any their Houses, Chambers or Warehouses, upon Pain that every such Innholder or other Person, shall forfeit for his first Offence twenty Shillings, for the second Offence forty Shillings, and for every other Offence four Pounds.

And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That no Person or Persons, not being free of this City, shall by himself, or any other for him, or by his Means or Practice, bargain, sell or barter, in any Place or Places within this City, or within the Liberties thereof, any of the said Cloth, Cloths, or other Woollen Manufacture aforesaid, save only in some of the Halls aforesaid, nor shall buy any of the same within the said Market-Place or Places, on Pain to forfeit and lose for the first Offence fifty Shillings, for the second Offence four Pounds, and for every other Offence the Sum of five Pounds.

And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That all Persons, as well Carriers as Clothmen and others, shall, at the bringing of their Cloth, Cloths, and other Woollen Manufactures, appointed by this Act to be brought either by Land or by Water to this City as aforesaid, bring or cause them to be brought to one of the said Blackwell-halls, Leaden-hall and the Welsh-hall respectively, to the End they may be entered, and the Duties paid for the same, upon Pain of twenty Shillings for every Pack of Cloth, Cloths, or other Commodities, to be forfeited and paid by every such Carrier, Cloth-Man or others, for every Offence to the contrary; and for every single Cloth, or other Woollen Commodity, the Piece ten Shillings.

And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That the Markets, as the aforesaid Blackwell-halls, Leaden-hall and the Welsh-hall aforesaid, shall be and begin weekly on every Thursday between the twenty fifth Day of March and the twenty ninth Day of September, at Seven o'Clock in the Forenoon, and continue till Eleven o'Clock in the Forenoon, and between the twenty ninth Day of September and the twenty fifth Day of March, at Eight o'Clock in the Forenoon, and continue till Eleven o'Clock in the same Forenoon; and on every Thursday at One o'Clock in the Afternoon, and continue till Four o'Clock in the same Afternoon; and on every Friday at Eight o'Clock in the Forenoon, and continue till Eleven o'Clock in the same Forenoon, and shall begin in the Afternoon of the same Friday at One o'Clock, and shall continue until Four o'Clock in the same Afternoon; and shall begin every Saturday at Eight o'Clock in the Forenoon, and shall continue till Eleven o'Clock in the same Forenoon; and that the said Hours for the Beginning and Ending of the said Market-Times shall be known by the Ringing of the Market-Bells in the Halls aforesaid, appointed for that Use and Purpose, and the same to be held and continued weekly throughout the whole Year, and from Year to Year; and that every Person or Persons that shall sell or put to Sale any Cloth, or Cloths, or other Commodities before-mentioned, at any other Time or Times than aforesaid limited, shall for every Offence forfeit and pay the Sum of forty Shillings; and that the respective Hall-Keepers shall not permit or suffer any buying or selling of any of the aforesaid Woollen Cloths, or Commodities aforesaid, in or at either of the said Halls, in or upon any other Days or Hours than on the Market-Days and Hours appointed. And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That the respective Hall-Keepers of every of the Halls aforesaid, shall diligently and faithfully keep their Books and weekly Registers of all the Woollen Cloths and Commodities aforesaid, bought and sold in any of the said Halls, or brought and pitched there; in which Books and Registers they, and every of them, shall truly enter the Names of Baptism, Surnames, Places of Habitation, and Addition both of the Buyer and Seller of every of the said Commodities.

And whereas there are many Freemen of this City, who in Shew and Pretence are the immediate Buyers of the said Woollen Cloths, and other Commodities before-mentioned, in the said Markets of Blackwell-hall, Leaden-hall, and the Welsh-hall, yet are in Reality but Instruments, Agents, and Brokers for Strangers and Foreigners, to the great Abuse and Wrong of this City, and Freemen thereof; it is declared and adjudged, and be it by this Common-Council, and the Authority thereof declared, That all such Practices are contrary to the Custom and Privileges of this City, and that all such buying of any of the aforesaid Commodities by any Freeman of this City, in any of the said Blackwell-halls, Leaden-hall, or the Welsh-hall Markets, for the Use of any Stranger or Foreigner, either in Copartnership or otherwise, is colouring of the Foreigner's Goods, and is contrary to the Oath of every Freeman of this City.

Therefore be it enacted, and it is hereby enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That every Freeman of this City which shall buy in any of the said Halls any of the said Woollen Cloths or Commodities for the Use of any Foreigner, or Stranger or Strangers as aforesaid, contrary to the true Meaning of this Act, shall for his or their first Offence, forfeit and pay the Sum of five Pounds, and for his or their second Offence the Sum of ten Pounds, and for his or their third Offence the Sum of twenty Pounds; and if any such Person or Persons shall again offend in the like Manner, then upon his or their Conviction thereof in the King's Majesty's Court holden within the Guilhall of this City before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the same City (for the Time being) he or they shall stand and be utterly disfranchised, as unworthy Members of this City.

And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That if the Owner or Owners of any of the aforesaid Commodities, or his or their Servant, cannot within the Time and Space of ten Days next after the bringing of them to the said respective Markets, sell all the Cloth, Cloths, or other Woollen Manufactures brought to the Blackwell-halls, Leaden-hall, or the aforesaid Welsh-hall, that then it shall be lawful for the said Owner or Owners, or his or their Servant, by his Appointment, to remove any of the said Commodities which shall remain unsold after the Market-Days are over, to any other Market or Markets forth of this City and Liberties thereof, or otherwise to dispose of them as they shall think fit, so as they do not sell the same Commodities out of the said Markets within the said City of LONDON, or the Liberties thereof.

And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That if the Owner of any Cloth, Cloths or other Woollen Manufactures, their Factor or Servant shall desire to have any of the Commodities aforesaid to be lodged in any of the Warehouses belonging to any of the aforesaid Halls or Markets, when they cannot sell them within within the ten Days Space appointed by this Act for Sale of them, then the said Owner or Owners, their Factor or Servant of any Cloth, Cloths, or other Woollen Manufacture aforesaid, shall pay for their Lodging and safe Keeping of the said Commodities, such reasonable Rates weekly, as shall be agreed between the said Owner and such Person or Persons as shall be appointed by the Governors of Christ's Hospital, who are hereby authorised to put in Execution this Act, as to all the Parts thereof. And whereas the regulating of all Markets in LONDON and the Liberties thereof, by the antient Custom of this City hath, and now doth of Right belong to the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Commons in Common-Council assembled, and by the like antient Custom of this City, all common Factors, Brokers and Makers of Bargains within LONDON and the Liberties thereof, before their Exercise of such their Employments, have used to be allowed and admitted to exercise that Employment, by such Persons, and in such Manner as the said Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Commons in Common-Council assembled, have used to direct and appoint, and ought not in any other Manner to exercise the same, which was so done, for that Factory or Brokery are no Trades, and so are not subject to any Rules or Regulations as Trades are: And whereas it is found by Experience, that the said Markets of the said Blackwell-halls, Leaden-hall, and the Welsh-hall, are not to be kept indifferent between Clothier and Citizen, but may be either huckstered or forestalled, and that it will be in the Power of the common Factor or Broker to undo the Clothier, by taking which of the Cloths he shall think fit to his own Use, or by keeping them unfold at his Pleasure, or by putting the worst Pay-masters upon the Clothier, and taking the best to himself, or by making the Clothier pay Factorage for those he buys himself, or in the Name of some other Person for his own Use, unless the said common Factors and Brokers may be stinted, and they regulated in their Actings; to the End therefore that all those Mischiefs may be prevented, and the said Markets of the said Blackwell-halls, Leaden-hall and the Welsh-hall regulated, Be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That no Person or Persons whatsoever, that now useth, or hereafter shall use the Employment of a common Factor or Broker, or Maker of Bargains in any of the said Markets, shall from and after the Twenty-Ninth of September now next coming, deal or intermeddle in the said Markets, or in any of them, as a common Broker, or a common Factor for or concerning the Sale of any of the Commodities aforesaid, unless he or they shall be first adjudged by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of LONDON in their Court called or known by the Name of the Court of Aldermen, held within the Guildhall of this City of LONDON, fit to exercise that Employment, and be by them also thereinto admitted: And that every Person which shall do contrary thereunto, shall for the first Offence forfeit forty Shillings; and for the second, and all other Offences, five Pounds for each Offence.

And be it further enacted, by the Authority aforesaid, That no common Factor or Broker shall at any Time hereafter buy in any of the said Markets in his own Name, or in the Name of any other to his own Use, any of the Commodities aforesaid, nor shall sell any of the Commodities out of the said Markets within the said City, and the Liberties thereof, to any Person or Persons whatsoever: And that if any common Factor or Broker shall do the contrary hereunto, the Party so offending, for every such Offence, shall forfeit and pay for every such his first Offence fifty Shillings, and for his or their second Offence the Sum of four Pounds. Provided, That all Clothiers, or other Proprietors of Woollen Manufactures may have Liberty to employ their own Household Servants, or any Person who is not Factor to more than one Clothier; and that such Household Servant or Person shall not incur the Penalties in this Act mention'd, for not being admitted as aforesaid, by the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen.

And whereas it is found that by the Increase of Factors in the said Markets, the Clothier who comes up to LONDON to make Sale of his Cloth, Cloths, or other Woollen Manufactures, many Times wants Room to pitch and sell the same Commodities in, which is a great Grievance to the said Clothier, and no ways allowed by this City; for Remedy whereof, Be it further enacted, by the Authority aforesaid, That it shall and be lawful to and for the said Governors of Christ's Hospital, or any three of them, from Time to Time to regulate the aforesaid Markets of the said Blackwell-halls, Leaden-hall, and the Welsh-hall, as to the standing of the Clothier and Factor in the said Markets, having always regard to the Clothier who sells in his own Person or by his Household Servant, that he or they have always convenient Room reserved in the said Markets for the Sale of the aforesaid Commodities.

And it is further enacted and ordained, by the Authority aforesaid, That all and singular the Pains, Penalties, Sum and Sums of Money, Forfeitures, and other Things whatsoever, which shall be forfeited or incurred by Virtue of this Act, or by Reason of any Clause, Branch or Article of the same, shall be obtained, levied and recovered as the Case shall require, either by Action of Debt, Bill, Plaint or Information, in the Name of the Chamberlain of the City for the Time being, in the King's Majesty's Court holden in the Chamber of the Guildhall before the Lord Mayor of the City of LONDON, and Aldermen of the same City for the Time being. In which no Essoin or Wager of Law shall be admitted or allowed for the Defendant, and the Chamberlain of the said City for the Time being, in all Matters or Things to be prosecuted by Virtue of this present Act, against the Offender or Offenders, shall recover the ordinary Costs of Suit to be expended in and about the Prosecution of them, or any of them.

And be it further enacted, by the Authority aforesaid, That all Pains, Penalties and Forfeitures to be had and recovered by Virtue of this or any former Act or Acts for the Regulating of Blackwell-halls, Leaden-hall, and the Welsh-hall as aforesaid, (the Charges of Suit for the Recovery thereof being first deduced) the Remainder shall be divided into two Parts, the one Moiety thereof, together with all the Duties of Hallage, to be paid unto the Treasurer of Christ's Hospital, (for the Time being) to be employed towards the Maintenance of the poor Children harboured boured and kept in the said Hospital, and the other Moiety to him or them that will sue for the same, any other Act or Ordinance to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

Of MARKETS OVERT, &c.

EVERY Shop is a Market Overt in LONDON, for those Things which are used to be sold and bought in the Shop, and not for other Things, 5 Rep: 85.

AND therefore selling of stolen Plate in a Scrivener's Shop does not alter the Property, but the Owner shall have a Writ of Restitution; so a Sale of Goods in an inner Room of a Shop, behind a Curtain, or where the Shop Windows are shut, is no good Sale: Sale of Horses in Cheapside alters not the Property, nor of Cloaths in Smithfield Market, which is not a Market Overt for Cloaths, but for Horses and Cattle.

A Defendant pleaded that the City of LONDON is an antient City, and that within the same is a Market every Day, for all Goods to be sold in every Part of the City, in every open Shop, every Day besides Sundays and Holidays, betwixt Sun-rising and Sun-setting, so as one of the Contractors be a Freeman; and that he being a Freeman of the Company of Mercers, such a Day, not being Sunday or Holiday, bought such Things in his open Shop, wherein he had for a long Time used to buy such Wares, and justified the Conversion.

Per Car the Plea is not good, for it's laid too general, that every Freeman might buy all Manner of Wares in every Shop, for then a Scrivener might buy Plate in his Shop, &c.

No Person, not being a Freeman of LONDON, may keep any Shop to put Goods and Wares to Sale by Retail, or shall use any Handicraft Trade for Hire or Gain, &c. within the City, on Pain of forfeiting 5 l. 8 Rep. 124.

By the Custom of the City, if any Person make and expose to Sale ill and unwarrantable Goods, the Chief Officers of the Company may seize and carry them to Guildhall, where a Jury shall be impannelled; and if they find the Goods ill made, they may be broke, &c. Skinner's Rep. 55, 56. So much for Markets.

Of the WATCH of LONDON.

The Watch of LONDON.

BECAUSE in the Night-Time many loose People wander abroad in the Streets, to rob and do Mischief to such as have Occasion to come home late; and because Accidents of Fire, or other Violences may happen to Houses, especially at the dead Hours of the Night, when People are asleep in their Beds; therefore special Provision is made in the City against these Dangers, by the Appointment of fit Persons, with suitable Strength, to walk about and watch every Night.

FOR, by antient Custom, all Persons, Inhabitants of the City, being House-Keepers, whether Freemen or not, were bound to keep Watch within their own Ward by Night, or to get a fit Person to do it for them; for the Preservation of the King's Peace, and for arresting and apprehending Night-Walkers, or suspected Persons.

EVERY Constable is the Head of the Watch, and he, with a Beadle, is bound to be present; and every Constable of any Precinct, is a Constable, not only in his own Precinct and Ward where he dwells, but in every other Precinct and Ward within the City.

AND to this Government of the Night by Watches, there is belonging to each Ward a Bell-Man, who, especially in the long Nights, goes through the Streets and Lanes, ringing a Bell; and when his Bell ceases, he salutes his Masters and Mistresses with some Rhimes, suitable to the Festivals and Seasons of the Year; and bids them look to their Lights. The Beginning of which Custom seems to be in the Reign of Queen Mary, in the Month of January, 1556; and set up first in Cordwainer-street Ward, by Alderman Draper, Alderman of that Ward. Then and there, one began to go all Night with a Bell, and at every Lane's End, and at the Ward's End, gave Warning of Fire and Candle, and to help the Poor, and pray for the Dead.

By antient Order, and by an Act of Common-Council, the precise Number of Men to watch every Night in each Ward, was assigned according to the Bigness of it, and was as follows:

Ward or Precinct.	Men.	Ward or Precinct.	Men.
Aldgate	34	Castle-Baynard	40
Duke's Place	10	Dowgate	36
Aldersgate	44	Farringdon within	50
St. Martin's le Grand	12	Munkwell-Street	4
Bishopsgate	80	Black-Friars	14
Broad-Street	30	Farringdon without	130
Billingsgate	30	White-Friars	8
Bridge within	25	Bridewel	8
Bassishaw	12	Bartholomew Great	10
Bread-Street	26	Bartholomew Less	4
Cornhill	16	Lime-Street	11

Cheap	25	Queenhith	40
Cripplegate within	40	Tower	40
Cripplegate without	90	Vintry	34
Coleman-Street	32	Walbrook	20

BUT these Numbers of Watchmen allotted to each Ward were lessened afterwards, in the Year 1705, as shall be related hereafter.

IN the Year 1663, 15 Car. II. Sir John Robinson, Mayor, divers Orders were made by the Common-Council, for the better Service of these Watches, as, that the Watch, with a Constable and Beadle, should watch every Night in every Ward, from Nine o'Clock in the Night to Seven in the Morning, from Michaelmas till April 1, and from April 1 till Michaelmas, from Ten o'Clock in the Evening till Five in the Morning.

THE Alderman in each Ward to appoint one Constable, and the full Number of the Inhabitants, according to the Proportion before-mentioned, to watch in his respective Ward; and from thence to proceed and go forward, in an orderly Way; and to appoint the next Night another Constable of the Ward, and the like Number of Inhabitants, adjoining unto those who watched the Night before.

EVERY Constable making Default in executing his Duty, to forfeit 5 l. Every Person not watching, being warned; to forfeit 1 l.

Two or more Supervisors, to be appointed by the Alderman, Deputy, and Common-Council-Men of every Ward, to take Care and oversee that the Watches be duly kept, and to present the Names of any, whether Constable or others, that make Default, to the Lord Mayor, or Alderman of the Ward.

By the Act of Common-Council for settling the Watch, Robinson, Mayor, they were allowed to go off at Five in the Morning: At the Quarter Sessions in the Year 1702, Sir William Gore, Mayor, the Watch was enjoined to stay till Six, as appears by this Order.

G O R E Mayor.

LONDON. Ad General' Quarterial' Session' Pacis Domine Regine tent' pro Civit' LONDON. apud Guildhald' ejusdem Civit' die Lunæ scil' duodecimo die Octobris, Anno Regni Regine ANNÆ, nunc Angliæ, &c. primo.

An Order of the Quarter-Sessions for the Watch.

WHEREAS many Felonies, Robberies and Burglaries are frequently committed within this City of LONDON, and the Liberties thereof, in the Winter Season, after the breaking up of the Watches kept within the same, (being commonly at Five o'Clock in the Morning, or before,) to the Loss and Damage of many of the Inhabitants within the said City, and the Liberties thereof: For Prevention of which said Evils and Mischiefs, it is ordered by her Majesty's Justices of the Peace in this General Quarter Sessions assembled, That the several and respective Constables within this City, and the Liberties thereof, do from henceforth, between the first Day of November, and the first Day of February, yearly, keep good Watch in their several Wards and Precincts within this City, and the Liberties thereof, in a due Manner from Ten o'Clock at Night till Six o'Clock in the Morning of every Day within the Time limited as aforesaid: And that none of the Constables within this City, and the Liberties, do presume to break up their Watch before Six o'Clock in every Morning, as they will answer the contrary at their Perils. And it is further ordered, That this Order be printed and published, and delivered to the several Aldermen, their Deputies, and the several Common-Council-Men and Constables of the several Wards, for the better Observation thereof.

A S H U R S T.

THE Watch is a very good Means for the Security of the City by Night, if it were performed as it is appointed by Law; but there are great Neglects in the Attendances of the Watchmen. Some of them frequently leave their Stands, and go to Alehouses, or light People home. So that many Times there are not above five or six Watchmen in some Places (as in the Watch at Bishops-gate) instead of 16. So that if any Fire, or other Accident should happen in the Night, little or no Help can be expected from them.

THERE is a late Settlement made of the Watch, (yet not founded upon any Law) wherein the Watchmen have little or no Dependence upon the Constables, but the Beadle provides them; and he makes a Roll of a yearly Rate upon the Inhabitants, in effect at his own Discretion. By which Settlement, there attends 30 at Bishops-gate, and their Pay said to be six Pence a Night; whereas by the aforesaid Act there were appointed 80. Which being put in strict Execution in the Mayoralty of Sir Patience Ward, and every House-Keeper being then obliged to watch in their respective Turns, or to send an able and fit Person to do it, the said Duty came round the said Ward but once in 21 Nights, at 80 Men per Night. But the Number of Watchmen is since reduced from 80 to 30. So that were the Inhabitants now obliged to watch in their Turns, or send fit Persons so to do, the whole Charge would be but six Pence once in about 56 Nights, for any one House-Keeper in the said Ward, according to the present Number of Watchmen, and the Pay they receive. Which is not one half of what is now paid. And those who found themselves aggrieved at this small Charge, would then be at their Liberty to watch in their own Persons, or to send their Servants: As a Common-Council-Man in that Ward complained a few Years ago, to the Government of the City.

But it is further to be known, that the forementioned Act for the Night Watches, Robinson, Mayor, was repealed, under the Mayoralty of Sir Owen Buckingham, when this following Act of Common-Council was made and printed.

Commune Concilium tent' in Camera Guihald' Civit' LONDON, Die Sabbati, decimo sexto die Junij, Anno Regni Domine nostre ANNÆ, nunc Regine Angliæ, &c. quarto, Annoq; Dom' 1705, coram Owen Buckingham Mil', Major' dictæ Civitat', Thoma Stamp, Mil', Johanne Parsons, Mil', Thoma Rawlinson, Mil', & Josepho Woolfe, Mil', ac ejusdem Civit' Aldermannis; necnon majore parte Communiar' in eodem Communi Concilio tunc & ibidem assemblat'.

An ACT for Regulating the Night-Watches within the City of LONDON, and Liberties thereof.

WHEREAS by the antient Charters, Customs, and Liberties of the City of LONDON, ratified and confirmed by several Acts of Parliament, the Mayor, Commonalty and Citizens of LONDON, in Common-Council assembled, may, and are to make By-Laws and Orders for the better and more quiet and safe Government of the said City and Liberties, and the Inhabitants of the same, and for the preventing of all Things which may from Time to Time happen or arise within the same City, tending to the Prejudice of the Citizens and Inhabitants thereof, or of the People resorting thereunto: And whereas by the antient good and laudable Custom of this City, all and every Person and Persons which do dwell, inhabit, or occupy any House, Shop, or Warehouse within the said City and Liberties thereof, as well such as are not free of the said City, as others the Freemen of the same City, being Persons able and fit to watch, or to find an able and fit Person to watch for him, her, or them, or in his, her, and their Stead, ought, by Reason of their Habitation, Occupation, or Dwelling aforesaid, to keep Watch within the Ward or Place wherein he, she, or they do dwell, inhabit, or occupy as aforesaid, for the Preservation of the Queen's Peace, the Safety of the Queen's Subjects, and, of all other the People resorting to the said City, as also for the arresting and apprehending of all Night-walkers, Malefactors, and suspected Persons, which shall be found wandering or misbehaving him, her, or themselves: And whereas every Constable in every Ward within the same City, is a Constable not only in the Ward where he dwelleth, but in all and every other Ward and Place within the said City and Liberties thereof: And whereas for the Preservation of the Peace and Safety of the same City, there is a great Necessity of a strong and sufficient Watch to be kept every Night within all and every the Wards of the said City, and Liberties thereof, with Men of strong and able Bodies, provided with Candles and Lanterns, and well and sufficiently armed with Halberts.

Be it therefore enacted by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons of this City in Common-Council assembled, and by Authority of the same, That from henceforth the Number of Men of strong and able Bodies to watch every Night in every Ward and Place throughout the said City and Liberties thereof, shall be as hereafter followeth; (that is to say.

ASHURST.

Of CARS and CARTS in the Streets of LONDON.

FOR the disposing of Cars, Carts, &c. there was an Act of Common-Council, Anno 1665, ^{An Act for governing and ordering Cars and Carts.} Sir John Laurence, Mayor: The Import whereof was, That the Right of ordering and disposing of Cars, Carts, Carroons, Carters, and Carmen, and all other Persons working any Carts or Cars within the City of LONDON and Liberties, is and hath been in the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens: And accordingly the Government of the said Cars, Carts, &c. hath been from Time to Time, by several Acts of Common-Council, disposed and committed, some Time to the President and Governor of Christ's Hospital; and at other Times to the Master, Wardens and Fellowship of Woodmongers, LONDON: And in the Year 1658, the late President and Governors of the Poor of the said City: And last of all, it was committed again to the Master and Wardens of the Fellowship of Woodmongers, by Act of Common-Council made 1661, in the Mayoralty of Sir Richard Brown, (who was a Woodmonger). But hereupon divers Complaints were made of many Inconveniencies and Grievances brought upon the Citizens and Inhabitants of LONDON and the Liberties; as in raising the Price, and using Deceit in the Weight and Measure of Coals, by Means and Pretence of the Privileges and Power granted by this Act of Common-Council. Therefore that Act made to the Woodmongers was repealed.

And it was enacted, That the President and Governors of Christ's Hospital should, for the Time to come, have the Rule, Oversight and Government of the said Cars, Carts, &c. during the Pleasure of the Court, and according to the Rules, Directions and Provisions in this Act mentioned, viz.

No more than 240 Carts to be allowed to work within the City and Liberties; and that 7s. and 4d. per Annum, and no more, shall be received or paid for a Carroon; and 20s. and no more, or greater Fine upon any Admittance or Alienation of a Carroon.

Any Person presuming to work any Car, Cart, &c. not being allowed, for every Time so offending to forfeit 40s.

Not any Car, Cart, &c. to be permitted to a Wharf, Wharfinger, or Woodmonger, or to be kept by them, after the first Day of August next, but by Licence of Christ's Hospital, upon Penalty of 40s.

Such as have Carroons not to let them out for Hire, without the Approbation and Allowance of the President and Governors of Christ's Hospital.

None to be admitted to work any Car, but such as shall be found of civil Carriage, and able and meet for that Employment, upon Pain of 10s. a Day.

That the Prices of Carriages may be moderate, as well for the People as for the Carmen, hereafter from Year to Year, in the Month of September, the Rates and Prices of Carriage shall be set and appointed by the Court of Aldermen, and such of the Commons and others as they shall think fit to call before them for their Information; and the said Prices to be printed and set upon the Posts in publick Places; and if any Carman demand or take more, to forfeit for every such Offence 10s.

To be lawful for one of the Marshals of the City, and their Men (who are hereby appointed to assist the President and Governors of Christ's Hospital) to take and seize all supernumerary Cars, not allowed, that shall be found working in this City; and, according to antient Custom, to impound them in the new Store-Yard at the Postern belonging to this City, there to remain till the respective Owner shall conform himself to the Government of the said President and Governors.

That if the yearly Rent of 17 s. 4 d. a-piece be not paid to the said President and Governors, the Carroon, that is, the Licence of such Person so wanting or refusing, shall be forthwith suspended, and his Person disabled to work any longer.

The President and Governors of Christ's Hospital, from Time to Time, to observe, perform and execute such Acts or Orders as have, or shall be further made by the Common-Council, or by the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, for and concerning the Regulation of Cars, Carts, &c. and touching the Price, Measure and Assize of Coal-Sacks, Coals, or other Fuel.

In this Act were contained also certain Orders concerning Sea-Coal, and the Woodmongers, which may be seen under the Woodmongers Company.

Rates appointed to be taken by Carmen.

Now for ascertaining the Prices to be taken by Carmen for the Carriage of Goods and Merchandizes from the Wharfs to the several Places of the City and Liberties, an Act of Common-Council was made, Sir William Bolton, Mayor, Anno 1666, occasioned from daily Complaints of Merchants and Citizens, of the excessive Rates demanded and taken by Carmen, above what is reasonable, and had been limited, having been so appointed and set by the Justices of the Peace. And whereas the Rule, Government, and Oversight of the Cars, Carmen, and all Persons working any Cars or Carts within LONDON and the Liberties, by Act of Common-Council of June 21, 1665, was in the President and Governors of Christ's Hospital, the said President and Governors were desired by this Court, that they cause every Car which shall be licensed to work, to be numbered with Figures upon a Piece of Brass, to be fixed upon every Car and Cart, and the Carman's Names; and such Figures to be fairly registered in a Book to be kept in Christ's Hospital, there at any Time to be seen, to the End that if any Carmen shall not conform to the Rates aforesaid, or refuse to carry Goods at such Rates, the Merchant, knowing what Figure is upon the Cart, may more readily find out who is the Worker thereof. And the President or Governors, upon the Certificate or Testimony of the Party grieved, are hereby authorized to suspend such Person from working such Car, until he shall make Restitution.

The President and Governors to meet every Thursday in Christ's Hospital, at Two in the Afternoon, to hear and determine of Complaints that shall be made by any Merchant or Citizen against the Carmen.

And it is ordered by this Court, the said President and Governors to have Power, and are authorized to nominate and appoint Street-Men, such as they shall think fit, to be Overseers of the said Carmen, to see and take Care that Merchants and other Citizens Goods be well and faithfully delivered at the Rates and Prices, without any Exactions, Hindrance, or Disturbance.

Of PORTERS in the City of LONDON.

About the Year 1700, contrary to the Laws of this Kingdom, and By-Laws of the City of LONDON, great Numbers of Porters within the said City and Liberties, entered into Combinations, Covenants and Confederacies, and took upon them to set up, keep and exercise common Beams, Scales, Weights and Tackle, for the weighing of Goods and Merchandizes between Buyers and Sellers; by which Means Merchants and others were imposed upon in the Prices of Labour and otherwise; and great Numbers of Ticket-Porters, who could not raise forty or fifty Pounds each, to pay for their Admission into some Confederate Gang, were kept out of Work, and reduced to extream Poverty; and the said City was defeated thereby of its antient Rights and Franchises in the Office of Tonnage: One of these Gangs of about twenty Men, having set up and exercised above thirty Beams, as appears by their own shewing. Now, for the better Information of all whom it may concern, to know what the Laws are in this Case, the following Abstract of some few of them is here printed, with the Copy of a Petition, subscribed by great Numbers of Ticket-Porters, who were not in Combination as aforesaid: Which Petition was delivered unto a Committee of Common-Council, held at Guildhall, LONDON, March 28, 1700.

An ABSTRACT of divers LAWS and STATUTES for the Regulation of LABOURERS and PORTERS, &c.

BY an Act of Parliament made in the 2d and 3d of Edward VI. cap. 15. it is amongst other Things enacted, That if any Artificers, Workmen, or Labourers do conspire, covenant, or promise together, that they shall not make or do their Work, but at a certain Price or Rate, or shall not enterprize, or take upon them to finish that Work another hath begun, or shall do but a certain Work in a Day, or shall not work but at certain Hours and Times; that then every Person so conspiring, covenanting or offending, being thereof convicted by Witnesses, Confession, or otherwise, shall forfeit for the first Offence 10 l. to the King; and if he pay not the same within six Days next after his Conviction, he shall suffer twenty Days Imprisonment. And for the second Offence shall forfeit 20 l. to the King; and if he pay not the same in six Days next after his Conviction, he shall suffer the Punishment of the Pillory: And Laws for regulating the Wages of Artificers, Labourers, &c.

And shall for the third Offence forfeit 40 l. to the King; and if he pay not within six Days next after his Conviction, he shall sit on the Pillory, and lose one of his Ears, and shall be at all Times after infamous, and his Oath in any Matter not to be credited.

Justices of Assize, Justices of the Peace, Mayors, Bailiffs, &c. in their Sessions, Leets and Courts, shall have full Power and Authority to inquire, hear and determine all and singular the Offences committed against this Statute, and to cause to be punished the Offenders, according to the Tenour thereof.

Note, This Act includes Butchers, Bakers, Brewers, Poulterers, Cooks, &c.

BY an Act made the 5th of Elizabeth, cap. 4. Justices of the Peace, Mayors, Bailiffs, &c. in their general Sessions to be kept within six Weeks after every Easter, have Power to limit, rate and appoint the Wages to be taken of all Artificers, Handicrafts Men, or any other Labourers, Servants or Workmen; which being published by Proclamation, in the City or Market-Town within the Limits of such Justices, Mayors, Bailiffs, &c. if any Person shall after such Proclamation, take Wages contrary to the Statute, or any Branch thereof, or the said Proclamation, and shall be thereof convicted before the said Justices, Mayor, Bailiffs, or any two of them, he shall for every such Offence suffer Imprisonment by the Space of one and twenty Days, without Bail or Mainprize. See the Statute.

In the 39th of Elizabeth, cap. 4. it is Enacted, That common Labourers, being Persons able in Body, refusing to work for such reasonable Wages as is taxed in the Places where they dwell, not having Living otherwise to maintain themselves, shall be taken, adjudged, and deemed Rogues and Vagabonds, and shall suffer all Pains and Punishments, as by that Act is in that Behalf made and appointed. See the Statute.

By an Act of Common-Council made the 26th Day of March, 1607, Sir John Watts, Mayor, it is amongst other Things Enacted, That no Person or Persons whatsoever, using the Feat of a Porter, or being a Foreigner, Innholder, Wharfinger, or Key-keeper, where any Merchants Goods are to be landed, laid, or such like, shall at any Time after the making of this Act, have, keep, or use within the said City or Liberties thereof, any Manner of Triangle with Beams, Scales and Weights, or any other Ballance, in any Sort to weigh any of the Goods, Wares or Merchandizes of any Merchant or Merchants, Person or Persons whatsoever, within the said City or the Liberties thereof, whereby the Profits coming or growing by weighing at the Iron-Beam, or the Great Beam at the Weigh-house, or the Profits of the Master-Weigher may in any wise be impeached, hinder'd, or diminished, upon Pain that every one that shall offend contrary to any Article, Clause or Sentence herein contained, shall forfeit 5 l. of lawful English Money for every Offence.

The Pay of Ticket-Porters.

By an Act of Common-Council made the 16th Day of October, 1646, Sir Thomas Adams, Mayor, it is Enacted, That Ticket-Porters shall have two Shillings per Day in the Summer, and twenty Pence per Day in the Winter; the said Winter-Work to be taken and accounted from the Beginning of November to the End of February; and the said Summer-Work from the End of February to the End of October. But in case any of the said Ticket-Porters shall work by the Hour, then to be paid four Pence for every Hour, provided the Hours exceed not two Hours in any one Day, and if more, and not exceeding five Hours, then to be paid for half a Day's Work, according to the Rates aforesaid, and the Season of the Year.

Note, Some of these very Laws are ingrossed in Parchment in the Porters Books, kept at the Hall they use, and are the Rules they obliged themselves to be conformable to, upon their Admittance.

A Copy of a PETITION deliver'd the 28th of March 1700, subscribed by great Numbers of the TICKET-PORTERS of the City of LONDON.

To the Worshipful the Committee of COMMON-COUNCIL, appointed for the better executing the Act for regulating the City Beams.

The Humble PETITION of the TICKET-PORTERS, whose Names are hereto subscribed, on Behalf of themselves and many others.

Sheweth,

THAT your Petitioners being Freemen of LONDON, were (upon giving Security for their honest Behaviour), admitted Ticket-Porters, and as such, by the Laws and Customs of this City, they have a Right, in common with all other Ticket-Porters, to be employed in any Work or Labour by any Merchants or others.

But for Want of a due Observance and Execution of the said Laws, some of your Petitioners Brethren, minding their own private Gain, have of late Years enter'd into Combinations, Covenants and Confederacies, and divided themselves into divers Gangs or Fellowships at the Water-side, and other Parts of the City; by which Means they raise great Sums of Money upon every one they admit into any Gang or Fellowship, as 20 l. 30 l. 40 l. and of some 50 l. under Pretence of buying and maintaining Beams, Scales, Weights, and other Tackle for weighing of Goods and Merchandizes between Buyers and Sellers, and other Uses.

And such of your Petitioners as are not able to raise Money to be admitted into Fellowship as aforesaid, are not suffered to labour (so far as they can hinder them) except it be under some of the said Gangs, at very low and under Rates, and sometimes when your Petitioners Work is done, they find Ways and Means to defraud them of Part of the Money they have laboured for; and they do very often employ great Numbers of Unfreemen under them, whilst your Petitioners, with other Ticket-Porters, stand idle, and are not permitted to work.

Which Practices are not only injurious to the Publick; by advancing the Prices of Labour, but a great Oppression upon your Petitioners and their Families, who are ready to starve by Reason thereof.

All which your Petitioners humbly lay before this Worshipful Committee, desiring that they may be admitted to manifest the Truth of their Complaints, and may have such Relief in the Premises as to your Worships shall seem reasonable.

And your Petitioners shall ever pray, &c.

AND for the further Knowledge concerning the Tackle-House, and Ticket-Porters, and publick Beams, these Acts of Common-Council, one made Anno 1607, another Anno 1646, and the Third Anno 1712, were set forth the same Year, viz.

Commune

Commune Concilium tentum in Camera Guild-hald' Civitat' LONDON. vicesimo sexto die Martii 1607, Annoq; Regni Regis Jacobi, Angliæ, &c. quinto, coram Johanne Watts, Mil', Majore Civitatis LONDON. Johanne Garrard, Mil', Thoma Bennet, Mil', Leonardo Halliday, Mil', Henrico Rowe, Mil', Johanne Swinerton, Mil', ac Thoma Hayes, Mil', ac Aldermannis, Galfrido Ellwayes, Aldermanno, & Willielmo Walthall, ac Johanne Leman, Aldermannis & Vicecom' ac majore parte Communiarior' de Communi Concilio ejusdem Civitat' adhuc & ibidem præsen' existen'.

WHERE divers Complaints have at sundry Times heretofore been made to the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen of this City, by Freemen, Porters of the Tackle-Houses of the said City, against other Street-Porters working in the said City, for interdealing with Work and Business, touching shipping and unshipping of Goods and Merchandizes, as well of Merchants free of this City, as of others not free, with which Business the said Street-Porters have not presumed to deal, until late Time.

And where the said Street-Porters have likewise complained of the said Tackle-House-Porters, for that by antient Laws and Orders procured, as they alledge, by the said Tackle-House-Porters, the Street-Porters are restrained to interdeal in the Labour of lading and unlading, shipping and unshipping of sundry Sorts and Kinds of Goods and Merchandizes, which they pretend heretofore to have done.

And where the Freemen Tackle-House-Porters, and the Street-Porters, vehemently complained against the Porters under the Packer of the said City, for that they of late Time have, contrary to Usage, intruded into the Labour and Business of Packing, Shipping and Unshipping, Lading and Taking up, as well of the Goods of English Merchants as of Strangers, where they have been accustomed to deal only in the Labour of Packing, Shipping, Unshipping, Lading and Taking up the Goods and Merchandizes of Merchant Strangers only.

And where there hath also Complaint been made to the said Court, that the Packers of the Goods of English Merchants are most of them no Freemen of the said City.

And where the Street-Porters and others, as well Freemen as Foreigners, have many Times used, and yet daily use in the said City and Liberties thereof, a Triangle with Beam, Scales and Weights, as well at the Water-side as at Inns, Warehouses, and at other Places of the said City, for weighing of Woad, and other Goods and Merchandizes of sundry Merchants and others, to the very great Hinderance of the Benefit growing to the Hospitals in the said City, by weighing at the great Beam at the Weigh-house, commonly called the King's Beam.

And where by Toleration of Foreigners without Restraint or Order, as well to work under the Packer for the said City in the Business of Merchant Strangers, as to the Street Porters, as also to be Porters-Packers of the Goods of English Merchants in the said City, many People of bad and lewd Condition daily resort from most Part of this Realm to the said City, Suburbs and Places adjoining, procuring themselves small Habitations, namely, one Chamber-Room for a poor Foreigner and his Family, in a small Cottage with some other as poor as himself, in the City, Suburbs or Places adjacent, to the great Increase and pestering of this City with poor People; many of them proving Shifters, living by cozening, stealing and imbezzeling of Mens Goods, as Opportunity may serve them, removing from Place to Place accordingly; many Times running away, forsaking their Wives and Children, leaving them to the Charge of the said City, and the Hospitals of the same.

For Redress of all which Complaints and Enormities, it is enacted, ordained and established by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, the Aldermen his Brethren, and the Commons in this Common-Council assembled, and by the Authority of the same, That no Person or Persons whatsoever shall at any Time hereafter be admitted or allowed in any of the Tackle-Houses in the said City, as a Master or Fellow Porter, unless he be a Freeman of the said City, and shall be thereunto admitted and allowed by the Master, Wardens, and Court of Assistants of such Worshipful Company of this City as shall have a Tackle-House, or hath had usual Porters appertaining to a Tackle-House in the said City.

And that no Person or Persons be henceforth admitted or allowed to be a Porter or Packer of the Goods of English Merchants, or Street-Porters to work and labour within this City and Liberties thereof, unless he be, or shall be free of the said City, and allowed and thought fit to be such a Porter-Packer of the Goods of English Merchants, or such a Street-Porter, by the Alderman or four of the Common-Council at the least, of the Ward where such Porter-Packer of the Goods of English Merchants, or such a Street-Porter, shall reside and dwell.

And if such Person or Persons so to be admitted to use the Feat either of a Porter-Packer or Street-Porter, shall not be dwelling in any Ward of this City, then he or they to receive his or their Allowance to use the Feat of a Porter-Packer of the Goods of English Merchants, or to be a Street-Porter within the said City and Liberties thereof, from Time to Time, by the Alderman, or his Deputy, and four of the Common-Council at the least, of the Ward whereof such Porter-Packer, or Street-Porter, shall happen to be found most employed in Work, four of the Master-Porters of the said Tackle-Houses being always called to the presenting Allowance, and Admittance of every such Porter-Packer of the Goods of English Merchants, or Street-Porter.

Provided always, that every Person so to be admitted to be a Porter-Packer of the Goods of English Merchants, or Street-Porter, shall from Time to Time bring good Certificate in Writing to the said Alderman or his Deputy, and four Commoners, under the Hands of his honest Neighbours, of his good Behaviour, and of his certain Place of Abode, to the End that every Person, so as aforesaid to be admitted a Porter, his Name and Place of abiding may be register'd in a Book from Time to Time, to remain with one whom the Lord Mayor of the said City for the Time being shall appoint, of the most antient Porters of the said Tackle-houses to keep such Register-Book.

Provided that the said Tackle-House-Porters take not above Three-pence for such Entry or Registering of the Admittance of such Person or Persons whatsoever, upon Pain of Disfranchisement and Loss of his Office.

And be it further enacted and decreed by Authority aforesaid, That every Porter-Packer of the Goods of English Merchants, and Street-Porter, upon his Remove from any his Dwelling-place or House, shall, upon his Remove, give Notice thereof within seven Days after his Remove, to the antient Master-Porter, of his new Place of Residence, to the End the same may be known and register'd accordingly, upon Pain of Disfranchisement.

And be it enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the Street-Porters, and every of them, so as aforesaid, by a former Act accordingly in the Mayoralty of Sir Richard Pyke, Kt. to be admitted and allowed at all Times hereafter, to take up, unship, lade, carry and house, so often and when as Occasion shall require, all Goods and Merchandizes of Quality hereafter specified, viz. Pitch, Tar, Soap-ashes, Clap-boards, Wainscot, Fir-poles, Mafts, Deals, Oars, Chests, Tables, Flax and Hemp coming from Danske or Melvyn, or out of any Part of the East Countries; and all Manner of Iron, Ropes, Cables; all Kind of Cordage, and Green Woad; and not to deal with weighing of Woad, either at Landing, or from any House, Place or Warehouse of any English Merchant, or of any other Person or Persons English born, free or not free, nor in any wise to intermeddle in the Labour of shipping, unshipping, lading, unlading, taking up, carriage, or housing of any other Goods or Merchandizes whatsoever belonging to any English Merchant or Merchants, free of the said City or not free, to be shipped or unshipped by Cocket or Certificate, unless the Overplus of Work, or Necessity of preserving of the Goods of Merchants, do require further and more present Service than the Tackle-House-Porters and their Company can conveniently perform.

And it is likewise ordained, enacted and established by Authority aforesaid, That the Porters, commonly called the Porters to the Packer of the Goods of Merchant Strangers in the said City, or any of them, shall not at any Time or Times hereafter in any wise intermeddle or deal with the shipping, unshipping, lading, unlading, packing, taking up, carriage, or housing of any Manner of Goods, Wares or Merchandizes of any Merchant or Merchants, or of any other Person or Persons whatsoever English born, that is or shall be free of the said City or not free; but shall content themselves with the Labour of packing, shipping, unshipping, lading, unlading, taking up, portage, and housing of the Goods, Wares and Merchandizes of Merchant Strangers only.

And that the Packer for the said City, that is or that hereafter shall be, shall henceforth allow or admit no Porter to work under him for or in the packing and shipping of Strangers Goods, but such as be or shall be free of the said City.

And that the Packer for the said City for the Time being shall not directly or indirectly take any Sum or Sums of Money, or other Reward or Consideration, for the Allowance or Admittance of any Porter to serve under him in the Business and Labour aforesaid.

And it is likewise enacted, ordained and established by the Authority aforesaid, That no Person or Persons using the Feat of a Porter, or being a Foreigner, Innholder, Wharfinger or Key-keeper, where any Merchants Goods are to be landed or laid, or such like, shall at any Time after the making and publishing of this Act, have, keep or use within the said City or Liberties thereof, any Manner of Triangle with Beams, Scales and Weights, or any other Ballance in any Sort, to weigh any the Goods, Wares or Merchandizes of any Merchant or Merchants, Person or Persons whatsoever within the said City or Liberties thereof, whereby the Profits coming and growing to the Hospitals of the said City, by weighing at the Iron Beam, or at the great Beam at the Weigh-house, or the Profits of the Master-weigher and Porters of the same Weigh-house may in any wise be impeached, hinder'd or diminished.

And it is further enacted, ordained, established and decreed by the Authority aforesaid, That no Person or Persons whatsoever, shall at any

Time or Times henceforth intermeddle or deal in any wise within the said City and Liberties thereof, as a Tackle-House-Porter, Porter-Packer of the Goods of English Merchants, Street-Porter, or Porter to the Packer for the said City for Strangers Goods, unless such Porter or Porters be or shall be free of the said City, and be or shall be admitted and allowed to use the Feat of a Porter in Manner and Form above specified, upon Pain that every one that shall offend, or do in any Respect contrary to any Article, Clause or Sentence therein contained, shall forfeit Five Pounds of lawful English Money for every Offence, the same to be sued for in the Name of the Chamberlain of the said City for the Time being, by Action of Debt, Bill, Complaint, or Information, in his Majesty's Court holden before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen in the Chamber in the Guildhall in LONDON; the one Half of which Forfeiture shall be to the Chamberlain of the said City, to the Use of the Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of the same; and the other Half shall be to the Use of him or them that shall or will prosecute Suit for the same, in which Suit no Essoin, Protection or Wager of Law shall be admitted for the Defendant.

Provided always, that every foreign Porter not free of this City, using the Feat of a Porter-Packer of the Goods of English Merchants or the Feat of a Street-Porter at the Time of the making of this Act, and which at this present is commorant in the same City or Suburbs thereof, charged with Family, or being a single Man, bringing a good Certificate in Writing, under the Hands of the Church-wardens of the Parish where he is resident, or other substantial Neighbours, to the Number of four, of his good Conversation and Demeanour, certifying also his Name and Dwelling-place; and thereupon by the good Discretion of the Alderman, or the Deputy of the Ward where he shall be found most working, if he dwell not within the Freedom and Liberties of the said City, four of the Common-Council of the said Ward, and four of the Master-Porters of the said Tackle-House being called thereunto, as aforesaid, shall be allowed or admitted to be a Porter, such Foreign Porter shall use and exercise the Feat of a Porter in this City and Liberties thereof, in the same Sort he shall be found to do and use at the Time of the making of this Law, so long as he shall well and honestly use and demean himself in such Labour and Business as he shall take in Hand in this City and Liberties thereof, this Act, or any Thing therein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Provided also, That the said Porters, nor any of them, shall take for their Work or Labour doing, of any of the Business aforesaid, above the old and ancient usual Rates heretofore accustomedly taken, or that shall be limited or rated unto them to be taken, by any Order of the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, or by any Act of Common-Council; those Rates be set up in a Table in Guildhall, or other convenient Places of the said City, upon Pain aforesaid, to be sued for and recovered in Manner and Form as before in this Act is specified and declared.

Provided likewise, That the Weigh-Master at the great Beams shall weigh all Foreigns and Strangers Goods coming to this City, by Land or by Water, before they be sold, if he shall be hereunto required, taking for his Pains the usual Duties for weighing, and no more; and the Weigher to keep a true Book of his doing, touching the same Business, to the End the Poor of the Hospitals in this City may have their Rights and Duties accordingly.

Provided also, That any Street-Porter, or other Porter whatsoever, admitted in form aforesaid said to use the Feat of a Porter within this City or Liberties thereof, may lawfully and freely, at the Commandment of any Merchant whatsoever, free of this City, take, carry and bear away any notable Burthen of any Manner of Wares or Merchandizes whatsoever, to or from any Place within this City and Liberties thereof; this Act, or any Article, Clause, or Sentence therein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

And it is further enacted, granted, and agreed by like Authority, That one Act of Common-Council agreed upon by this Court on the seven and twentieth Day of June last past, touching the Porters, shall be from henceforth repealed and made void, to all Intents and Purposes, any Thing in the said Act to the contrary notwithstanding.

For settling Controversies between the LONDON
Porters.

WHEREAS divers Controversies and Differences have heretofore been between the Tackle-House-Porters of this City, and the Ticket-Porters, otherwise called the Street-Porters of this City, in and about several Things concerning the Government of their Company, and their several Works, insomuch that their Government heretofore established hath of late been discontinued, to the great Disadvantage of the said Porters.

And whereas much Difference hath of late arisen between the said Porters, concerning the Clause of a late Act of Common-Council made the six and twentieth Day of March, 1607, in the Mayoralty of Sir John Watts, Knt. which Clause is touching the Overplus of certain Work, and is herein after expressed.

For the avoiding therefore of all Differences that may hereafter arise between the said Parties, in their several and respective Works, and for the better Establishment of their said Government and Labours in their several Employments; and for the better settling of the said Controversies concerning the said Overplus of Work, and for the settling of several other Ordinances fit and requisite to be observed and kept in and by the said Company:

Be it therefore enacted, ordained and established by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, the Aldermen his Brethren, and the Commons in this Common-Council assembled, and by the Authority thereof, That the Government by Acts of this Honourable Court, enacted and ordained to be established, concerning the said Porters and their Works in all Things (which are not hereby altered) shall be in all Points for the Time to come settled and continued by the said Parties.

Be it also further enacted, ordained and established for the better regulating the said Company in Manner following, viz. That whereas heretofore there have been, yearly, twelve Rulers of the said Porters, six of the Tackle-House-Porters, and six of the Ticket-Porters; out of which six Rulers on the Behalf the Tackle-House-Porters, one of them was, yearly, chosen to be Register, for the keeping of the Accounts belonging to the whole Company: For the Time to come it is hereby ordained and established, That there be likewise chosen, yearly, out of the six Rulers, on the Behalf of the Ticket-Porters, one of them to be yearly Register with the other, on Behalf of the Tackle-House-Porters; and such Register so chosen of the said Ticket-Porters, to have like Authority with the other of the Tackle-House-Porters in every Respect, and that all Receipts, Payments and Disbursements belonging to the said Company, be from Time to Time, and at all Times hereafter, made and done in the Presence and with the Approbation of both the said Registers.

And further, That the said two Registers, once in every Year, while they shall remain in their said Office, or at the Determination of the same, or oftner, if their Governor or Governors for the Time being shall think fit, shall make and yield up unto their said Governor or Governors for the Time being, a just and true Account of all their Receipts, Payments and Disbursements whatsoever belonging to their said Company, and by them the said Registers during their said Office received and paid, the said Account being first surveyed and allowed under the Hands of the said Rulers, or the major Part of them, for the Time being; but if it shall happen that either of the said Registers be sick, and unable to be present, as aforesaid, that then what belongs to such Register (so sick and not present) to be discharged, shall and may be done by one of the said Rulers, by him the said Register to be substituted, the said Ruler being of his own Feat and Faculty.

Be it also further enacted, established and ordained by the Authority aforesaid, That all and every Person and Persons whatsoever, that is and shall be allowed to be a Porter, as well of the Tackle-House-Porters as of the Ticket, shall from henceforth, according to the usual Custom, duly pay his and their Quarteridge, and other Duties belonging and heretofore used to be paid in the said Company, except such as are and shall be, for the Time being, chosen Rulers of the said Company, and such their Exemption to be only during the Time that they or either of them shall stand and be Ruler in the said Company, and no longer.

And further, whereas by the aforesaid Act of Common-Council made the six and twentieth Day of March, 1607, in the Mayoralty of Sir John Watts, Knt. as aforesaid, it is enacted and established, That at such Time as the said Tackle-House-Porters shall have an Overplus of Work, or that the Necessity of preserving the Merchants Goods require, then shall the said Ticket-Porters discharge the same, as in and by said Act appeareth.

And whereas in and about the said Clause, much Difference hath been between the said Tackle-House-Porters and Ticket-Porters, for that the said Ticket-Porters sometimes do enjoy the said Overplus of Work, yet are paid for such their Work, either by the Day, half Day, or Hour as they work, and after the Rate of 18 d. a Day in Summer, and 16 d. in Winter, by which their Work, they being paid after the Rate aforesaid, the Tackle-House-Porter probably earns much more.

For the Reconciliation of which Difference, for that it is conceived that the said Proviso or Clause of the said Act was made in Favour of the said Merchants, and for Safety and preserving their Goods, and not in Favour of the Ticket-Porters, in Regard that by the said Act it is in other Places set forth at large, the particular Commodities whereof the said Ticket-Porters shall have and enjoy the sole managing and working working what Commodities the said Tackle-House-Porters shall by themselves discharge, and how and in what Manner it shall be so done; and wherein they the said Ticket-Porters shall not intermeddle, unless there be such Overplus, or the Necessity of preserving the Goods require; and also in Regard the said Tackle-House-Porters give Security to their several Companies under whom they are to make Restitution, if in Case any Parcel of the Merchant's Goods, by Reason of themselves or Servants, shall be spoiled or wanting; and for that also the said Tackle-House-Porters are at the sole Charge of providing Engines and Tackle for the Discharge of the said Work.

Be it therefore, by the Authority aforesaid, enacted and established, That the said Tackle-House-Porters shall enjoy their said Work as heretofore they have done, and shall by themselves (if they are able) discharge the Work belonging to the several Commodities in the aforesaid Act of Common-Council mentioned; and if any Overplus of Work happen to be, and that the said Ticket-Porters be employed for Discharge thereof, that then whereas heretofore they had for such their Work 18 d. the Day in Summer, and 16 d. in Winter, now for Time to come it is hereby enacted, granted and agreed, That they shall have 2 s. the Day in Summer, and 20 d. the Day in Winter; the said Winter Work to be taken and accounted from the Beginning of November to the End of February; and the said Summer-Work from the End of February to the End of October. But if any of the said Ticket-Porters shall work by the Hour, then to be paid 4 d. for every Hour, provided the Hours exceed not two Hours in one Day; and if more, and not exceeding five, then to be paid for half a Day's Work, according to the Rates aforesaid, and the Season of the Year.

Furthermore, whereas by the said Act before-mentioned it is provided, That for the discharging of such Overplus of Work, when it happeneth that the said Tackle-House-Porters shall not employ or set on work any Foreigner or Foreigners whatsoever, but such as are Freemen of this City, and Ticket-Porters, yet the said Tackle-House-Porters have and do (as is alledged) for the most Part at such Times employ Foreigners, and not Freemen, contrary to the said Act;

For Remedy whereof, and for the better preventing of Foreigners who come to this City, and here depend upon such Labour for the Livelihood of themselves, their Wives and Children, to the Prejudice of the Freemen, and Cumber of the Streets of this City; be it therefore enacted, ordained, and established by the Authority aforesaid, That if in Case any of the said Tackle-House-Porters shall henceforth set on work any Foreigner or Foreigners whatsoever, that is not admitted a Ticket-Porter (saving their and either of their respective Servants allowed him or either of them; which said Servant so allowed to either of them shall be taken out of the said Servants which the said Tackle-House-Porters now employ, and their Names shall be registered as is hereafter expressed) when there are Freemen and Porters sufficient to be had to Discharge such Overplus of Work, that then and in such Case the said Tackle-House-Porters so offending, for every such Offence shall pay the Sum of five Shillings:

And whereas also, That at such Time when such an Overplus of Work happens, the Ticket-Porters who are Freemen, or else if not free, have nevertheless been heretofore authorized and admitted thereunto, and who are many Times requested to help in the Discharge of such Overplus of Work, do nevertheless refuse to do the same, by Means whereof, (there being an urgent Necessity for Dispatch of their said Work) the said Tackle-House-Porters are thereby compelled to make Use of Foreigners, not at all lawfully admitted;

Be it therefore also enacted, ordained, and established by the Authority aforesaid, for the avoiding such Abuses, That every such Ticket-Porter as shall at any Time by the Tackle-House-Porters be required to help in Dispatch of such Overplus of Work, and shall refuse to do the same, shall likewise forfeit the Sum of five Shillings; which said Offences, if committed, shall speedily be complained of to the Governor or Governors for the Time being, and afterwards be proved by the Oaths of two Witnesses, to be taken before the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor for the Time being; and being so proved, or confessed by the Offender or Offenders, then the said several Forfeitures to be paid by the Offender or Offenders (within seven Days after such Proof or Confession made) unto one or both of the Registers of the said Porters, for the Use of the said Society; and if the said Forfeiture be not paid accordingly within the said Time, then every such Offender, by the Direction of the said Governor or Governors for the Time being, to be suspended of his Place of being a Porter, either as a Tackle-House-Porter, or a Ticket-Porter. And if he be a Ticket-Porter, then his Ticket to be taken from him; and so both the one and the other, as the Case shall be, to stand suspended during the Pleasure of the said Governor or Governors for the Time being; and every such Person so suspended, not to exercise the Feat of a Porter whilst his said Suspension continueth, under Pain and Penalty of forfeiting the like Sum of five Shillings for every Time he shall so exercise the same; and if any Person in Contempt hereof, and contrary thereunto, shall so offend during his said Suspension, then the said Offence to be proved in Manner aforesaid, and the like Penalty to be paid in Manner aforesaid, and for Non-Payment thereof accordingly, the said Suspension to be continued according to the Discretion of the said Governor or Governors for the Time being: But if the said Person shall notwithstanding again offend in the like Nature, during the Time of his said Suspension, and the same Offence being proved as aforesaid, then the Governor or Governors for the Time being, shall and may deprive the said Person and Persons so offending, of his and their said Place and Office; and every such Person so deprived, shall afterwards be held and accounted as a Person unfit to be employed in the said Feat of a Porter, and shall be left to the Judgment and Discretion of the said Governor or Governors for the Time being, whether such Person shall at all be admitted afterwards thereunto; and if by the said Governor or Governors for the Time being, it shall be thought fit to admit such Person again, yet such his Admission shall be upon good Testimony of his Honesty and good Behaviour, and besides the usual Security, shall give other Security for his future Carriage and better Obedience, in and to the Orders of the said Company.

And further, if such Person so deprived shall nevertheless exercise the Feat of a Porter during such his Deprivation, that then every such Person so offending and doing contrary to the true Meaning of this Act, shall forfeit the Sum of five Pounds of lawful Money of England, for every Offence so by him committed during his Deprivation, the Sum of five Pounds, to be sued for in the Name of the Chamberlain of the said City for the Time being, by Action of Debt, Bill, Plaint, or Information in his Majesty's Court holden before the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, in the Chamber of the

Guildhall

Guildhall in LONDON; one third Part of which Forfeiture of five Pounds, shall be and come to the Chamberlain of the said City, to the Use of the Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of the said City, and one third Part to come to the common Box of the said Company of Porters, to be for the Use of the said Company, and the other third Part to the Use of him or them that shall or will prosecute Suit for the same; in which Suit no Essoign, Protection, or Wager of Law shall be admitted for the Defendant.

And further be it enacted, that all and every of the said several Sum and Sums of five Shillings so as aforesaid forfeited and paid, shall come to the common Box of the said Company, for the Relief of the Poor of the said Company.

But if the said Ticket-Porters shall, at the Time of such Request made, as aforesaid, by the said Tackle-House-Porters, be otherwise employed, or lawfully hindered, that then, and in such Case, the Refusal of the said Ticket-Porter to be just and allowable, without incurring the aforesaid Penalty in that Behalf appointed.

And whereas there are divers Foreigners in and about this City, who have heretofore, contrary to former Acts and Ordinances, intruded to work as Porters within this City and Liberties thereof, both with the Tackle-House-Porters, as also as Ticket-Porters, to the great Prejudice of the poor Freemen of this City, and others, who are admitted to use the Feat of a Tackle-House and Ticket-Porter, many of the same Foreign Porters having fallen upon the same Employments, by Reason that the Government of the said Porters hath, for a Time, been neglected, which Abuses require a speedy Redress, by restraining the said Foreign Porters, for the Relief of the said poor Freemen; yet notwithstanding, in as much as many of the said Foreign Porters have been of long Continuance, and by Reason thereof have now made it their Livelihood for the Maintenance of themselves, their Wives and Family, and have no other Course to live by;

It is therefore thought fit, and by the Authority aforesaid hereby enacted, That such of the said Foreign Porters as are not admitted, and have used the Feat of a Porter within this City of LONDON and Liberties thereof, by the Space of one Year now last past, and shall within three Months now next ensuing, bring such Certificate to the said Governor or Governors for the Time being, (as they the said Governor or Governors shall allow) of the same their Continuance in the said Feat of a Porter by the said Space of one Year now last past, that then every such Person and Persons shall and may be admitted into the said Feat, and be continued Porters during their Lives; so as they and every of them do demean him and themselves as others (that are already admitted) are enjoined to do.

And further, it is ordained, enacted, and established by the Authority aforesaid, That the Name and Names of every of the said Servants, so as aforesaid to be allowed to every of the said Tackle-House-Porters, shall be registered and kept in Books belonging to the said Company, to the End it may appear who they are; and that the said Tackle-House-Porters employ none others as their Servants, but such other Person and Persons as the said Tackle-House-Porters shall have Occasion to employ or make use of, shall, from Time to Time hereafter be taken of and among the said Ticket-Porters, as is herein expressed.

Be it also further enacted, ordained, and established by the Authority aforesaid, That no Person or Persons whatsoever, being a Foreigner from the Liberty of the City of LONDON (other than such as have been a Porter by the Space of one Year now last past, as aforesaid, and shall bring a Certificate to be allowed, as aforesaid, and is thereupon admitted; and except also the said several Servants to be allowed to the said Tackle-House-Porters, which is to every Tackle-House-Porter one Servant, as aforesaid) shall after the Feast of the Annuntiation of the Virgin Mary, now next ensuing, use the Feat of a Tackle-House-Porter, Ticket or Street-Porter, within this City of LONDON, or Liberty thereof, nor as a Servant to any of the said Tackle-House-Porters, (saving the said Servants so allowed the said Tackle-House-Porters, as aforesaid) upon the Pain and Penalty of the Forfeitures of the Sum of five Pounds of lawful Money of England; the said Sum of five Pounds to be sued for and recovered as aforesaid, and to come to the several Uses afore appointed.

And further, be it enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That for the Time to come, for the Prevention of the Entertainment or employing of any Foreigner or Foreigners whatsoever, to be exercised or to be set on Work in the aforesaid Feat of a Porter, that when and as often as it shall happen that any or either of the said Tackle-House-Porters (after the said Servants or either of them now allowed them and registered, shall be either dead or gone from their Service, shall want his or either of their said Servants to be allowed as aforesaid, which is to every of the said Tackle-House-Porters, one Servant and no more, as aforesaid) that then the said Tackle-House-Porters, and every of them so wanting his Servant, shall, by Authority of this Act, be compelled to take the same his Servant, then afterwards to serve him in his or their Tackle-Houses, from among the said Ticket-Porters, being a Freeman, or admitted as a Ticket-Porter, and not otherwise. But if in Case any of the said Tackle-House-Porters shall at any Time hereafter, after the Death or Dependance of the said Servant so allowed him, as aforesaid, take any Person into his Service, to be his Servant in his Tackle-House, who is a Foreigner, and not first admitted to be a Ticket-Porter, that then every Tackle-House-Porter so offending therein, shall for every Servant so by him to be entertained, being a Foreigner from the Freedom of the City of LONDON, and not admitted as a Ticket-Porter, forfeit the Sum of five Pounds of lawful Money of England, to be sued for, and recovered and disposed of, as aforesaid.

Be it also further enacted, ordained and established by the Authority aforesaid, in Respect of the great Company of Ticket-Porters (who are three thousand Persons and upwards, as is related, and who continually attend for that Purpose) that for the Time to come, no Person or Persons whatsoever, he or they be, shall be permitted to exercise the Feat of a Porter within this City and Liberties of the same; unless that Person or Persons so to be admitted, be free of this City and Liberties of the same, and be approved of by their Governor or Governors for the Time being, and afterwards allowed by the Rulers of the said Company for the Time being, as hath been heretofore used.

An ACT concerning the TACKLE-HOUSE and TICKET-PORTERS, and touching the publick Beams belonging to the City of LONDON.

For ascertaining the Work and Labour of Porters; and for appointing a Governor of the Fellowship of Porters.

WHEREAS several Controversies and Quarrels have lately arisen between the Tackle-House-Porters and the Ticket-Porters belonging to this City, touching the Labour or Work to them respectively belonging, notwithstanding the several Acts of this Court heretofore made, for settling and ascertaining the same, to the Obstruction and Delay of the Business of Merchants and other Persons trading to and from this City; for preventing the like for the future, be it enacted, ordained, and established by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, the Aldermen his Brethren, and the Commons of this City in Common-Council assembled, That the several Laws and Ordinances heretofore made, for the Government of the said Porters, and for ascertaining and settling the Work and Labour belonging to them respectively, and not by this present Act altered or repealed, shall be and remain in full Force, and shall be duly observed and put in Execution, under the several Pains and Penalties in the said Laws and Ordinances mentioned and contained.

And be it further enacted and ordained by the Authority aforesaid, That the Ticket-Porters belonging to this City, and no other Person or Persons whatsoever, have and enjoy the Work or Labour of unshipping, landing, carrying and housing of Pitch, Tar, Soap-Ashes, Clap-Boards, Wain-scot, Fir-Poles, Mats, Deals, Oars, Chests, Tables, Flax, and Hemp, brought hither from Dantzick, Melvin, or any other Port or Place of the Countries, commonly called the East-Countries; as also of all Iron, Ropes, Cables, and of all other Kind of Cordage, and of all Wood, commonly called Green-Wood, and also of all Manner of Goods of the Growth, Produce or Manufacture of the Kingdom of Ireland, and coming directly from any Port or Place within that Kingdom, to the Port of LONDON, and also of all Manner of Goods and Merchandizes coming to the said Port, being of the Growth, Product, or Manufacture of any of the Plantations belonging to Great Britain; and also of all Manner of Coast-Goods (except Lead) that is to say, of all such Goods originally exported from, or imported into, and after exported again from any Port or Place within the Kingdom of Great Britain to the Port of LONDON aforesaid.

And be it further enacted, ordained and established by the Authority aforesaid, that the Porters, called the Tackle-House-Porters, and no other Person or Persons whatsoever, (except such Persons as shall be employed by them in Manner herein after mentioned) shall have and enjoy the Work or Labour of unshipping, landing, carrying and housing of all Goods imported by, and belonging to the South-Sea Company, or the Company of Merchants trading to the East-Indies, and of all other Goods and Merchandizes, coming from any other Ports or Places, and imported into the Port of LONDON, and not herein before particularly mentioned and described, and also of all Lead coming from any Port or Place into the said Port.

Provided always, and be it further enacted and ordained, That it shall and may be lawful to and for either; or any of the said Tackle-House-Porters or Ticket-Porters, being required or im-ployed by any Merchant, Factor, or Proprietor, or their Agents so to do, to work and labour in the carrying, shipping off, and relading of any Goods imported from any of the Plantations belonging to Great Britain, upon the Exportation of the same, to any Ports or Places whatsoever, and also in like Manner to work or labour in the unshipping, landing, carrying and housing, or in the carrying Lading or Shipping of any Tin that shall be imported or exported at the said Port of LONDON, and also of all Goods coming from Guernsey or Jersey, or exported thither, any Thing in this present Act contained, or any former Law or Usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That when there shall be at any Time a great Glut of Work, or that it shall be necessary for the Preservation of the Goods of any Merchant or other Person, the Tackle-House or Ticket-Porters shall happen to employ in their respective Labours under them, any Person not having his Ticket to produce, to testify his being a Freeman-Porter, and any Freeman-Porter having and producing his Ticket testifying such Freedom, shall demand and require of such Person or Persons so employing such Person or Persons, not having and producing his or their Tickets, testifying such their Freedom, to employ him or them being Freeman, and producing their Tickets respectively, in such Labour and Work, if such Person so employing such Person or Persons not producing their Tickets as aforesaid, shall refuse or neglect to employ and set on work such Freeman-Porters producing his or their Tickets as aforesaid, respectively in the said Work or Labour, such Person or Persons so refusing or neglecting to employ such Freeman-Porters, producing his or their Tickets as aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay to every such Freeman-Porter, for every Hour that he shall attend in order to be employed in the said Work, the Sum of one Shilling.

And if such Freeman-Porter who shall be taken in and employed in any such Work, shall leave or desert the same, before the same be completely finished, he shall forfeit and pay to the Party by whom he was set on work and employed, the Sum of Five Shillings; the said Penalties to be recovered by Action of Debt, to be commenced in any of her Majesty's Courts of Record within this City, at the Suit of the Party grieved.

Provided nevertheless, that nothing herein contained shall extend or be deemed, construed or taken to extend to take away, alter or abridge the Work or Labour of the Porters, commonly call'd the Packers-Porters of this City, but that they shall or may enjoy and exercise the Work and Labour of Right belonging to them, before the making of this Act, any thing herein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

And whereas by antient Usage and Custom, the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen of this City, have nominated and appointed two of the Aldermen of this City, to be Governors of the Fellowship or Society of Porters of this City, to hear and determine all Differences between any of the Members of the same Society, or between the Members of the same Society, and any other Person employing or setting such Members on work in the Feat of a Porter.

And whereas several Inconveniencies have happen'd, by Reason of Difference of Opinion between such Governors, or by the Absence of one of them, whereby the Determination of such Differences have been greatly delayed:

Be it enacted and ordained, That from henceforth there shall be only one Governor of the said Society or Fellowship; and that from and after the

the Death or Resignation of Sir William Withers, Kt. and Alderman, the present sole Governor of the same, the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen shall nominate and appoint one Alderman to be sole Governor of the said Society or Fellowship; which Governor so appointed, shall have full Power and Authority, to hear and finally determine all Differences and Controversies between any of the Members of the said Fellowship, touching their Labour or Work, or between the Registers and Rulers of the said Society, and any Members of the same, touching their Quarteridge, or concerning the Breach of any Acts, Ordinances or Rules, made or to be made, for the better Government of the said Society or the Members of the same, or between any Member of the said Society, and any other Person who shall set on work or employ such Member in the Work or Labour of a Porter; and if any Member of the said Society shall refuse or neglect to submit to, and perform the Order and Determination of the Governor of the same, every such Member shall forfeit and pay to the Registers and Rulers of the said Society for every such Offence, the Sum of Thirteen Shillings and Four Pence; and in Case of Non-payment of the same on Demand, the same shall and may be recovered by Action of Debt, to be commenced and prosecuted in the Name of the Governor of the said Society for the Time being, in any of her Majesty's Courts of Record within the City of LONDON, and (the Costs of recovering the same being first deducted) shall be paid to the said Registers and Rulers for the Benefit of the Poor of the said Society or Fellowship.

And whereas several Persons do, contrary to the antient Laws and Customs of this City, take upon them to keep Triangles, Beams, Scales and Weights, and do thereby weigh Hops, brought to this City or Liberties of the same, or the Borough of Southwark, and there sold, and also Iron and other Goods and Merchandizes of, or belonging to Aliens, imported or brought into this City or Liberties of the same, and there sold, which by the said Laws and Customs ought to be weighed at one of the publick Beams, kept by, and belonging to the said City, to the great Prejudice of the Rights of this City, and of the Master-weigher or Keeper of the said Beams, and of the sick and maimed Persons harboured in the Hospital of St. Bartholomew;

Be it enacted, ordained and established, That no Person whatsoever shall from henceforth keep any Triangle, Beams, Scales and Weights, for the Weighing, or shall weigh at the same any Hops brought to this City or Liberties of the same, or the Borough of Southwark, and there sold; or any Iron, or other Goods and Merchandizes, of, or belonging to Aliens, imported or brought into this City or Liberties of the same, and there sold, and which ought to be weighed at one of the publick Beams belonging to this City; every Person offending herein shall forfeit and pay for every Offence the Sum of twenty Shillings: And if any Porter or Porters belonging to this City, shall be aiding and assisting in the weighing of any such Goods as aforesaid, that ought to be weighed at one of the publick Beams belonging to this City (not being authorized by the Master-weigher or the Supervisor of the same Beams so to do), at any other Beam than one of the said publick Beams, every such Porter offending herein, shall forfeit and pay for every such Offence the Sum of Twenty Shillings: Which last mention'd Penalties shall be recover'd by Action of Debt, to be brought in one of her Majesty's Courts of Record in this City, in the Name of the Chamberlain of this City; and after Recovery, shall be applied (the Costs and Charges in recovering the same being deducted) in Manner following, viz. one Moiety thereof to be paid to the Treasurer of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, for the Use of the Poor therein harboured, and the other Moiety to him or them that will first prosecute Suit for the same.

And be it further enacted and ordained, That if any Action shall be brought for any Penalty inflicted by this Act, and Judgment be given for the Plaintiff in such Action, the Plaintiff shall recover his Costs of Suit; and if Judgment shall be given for the Defendant in such Action, or the Plaintiff shall become Nonsuit, or discontinue his Action, in any of the said Cases, the Defendant shall have Judgment to recover his Costs of Suit.

GIBSON.

And further for weighing of Goods at the City Beams, there was divers Years before,

An ACT of COMMON-COUNCIL, made the second Day of February 1658, Ireton, Mayor, To enforce the Observation of the antient Custom of the City of LONDON, touching weighing Goods and Merchandizes at the City Beams, commonly called, The King's Beams.

WHEREAS for the more indifferent and just weighing of Goods and Merchandizes, which use to be bought and sold by Weight, within the City of LONDON, and Liberties thereof, there are, and from the Time whereof the Memory of Men is not to the contrary, have been certain Common Beams within the same City and Liberties, commonly called The King's Beams; at which there are, and have been, during all the Time aforesaid, certain sworn Officers attending; and who, by the Duty of their Places, have used and ought to attend, for the weighing of such Goods and Merchandizes: And whereas all such Goods and Merchandizes of all Foreigners, not being free of the City aforesaid, which have been sold or bartered within the said City or Liberties, to any Person or Persons whatsoever, as well Freemen as others, ought, and during all the Time aforesaid, have been accustomed to be weighed at one of the said Beams, at, or before Sale or Delivery thereof: And whereas divers Foreigners of late Times, not minding or regarding the good and wholesome Customs of the same City, but out of a covetous Desire, by sinister Ways and Means to promote their own Interest, have oftentimes sold and deliver'd such their Goods and Merchandizes within the said City, as well to Freemen of the said City, as others, by other false and unjust Weights and Beams, without weighing the same at any of the said Common Beams; and the better to palliate their Offences, and avoid Suspicion, do some Time, by Confederacy and Practice, with some Freemen of the said City, cause fraudulent Sales to be made of such their Goods and Merchandizes, to Freemen of the said City, before the same Goods or Merchandizes do come to the said City or Liberties, contrary to the Oaths of such Freemen, and sometimes do mix their Goods with the Goods of other Persons that are free of the said City, that so the distinct Property of the Foreigners may not be known from that of the Freemen; and at other Times to procure Freemen to be Partners with them in such Goods and Merchandizes, who many Times have but a small and inconsiderable Share therein with such Foreigners: And upon such, and other like groundless Pretences, hold themselves discharged from the Duty of weighing any such Goods at any of the said Beams; whereas in truth they are not, nor ought by any such Pretences to be at all discharged from the said Duty: For Remedy hereof, it is hereby enacted, ordained and declared, by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Commons of the said City of LONDON in Common-Council assembled, and by the Authority of the same, as follows :

by

1. That all Goods, Wares and Merchandizes, of any Person or Persons, being a Foreigner or Foreigners, and not free of this City, of what kind soever, which use to be bought and sold by Weight, which at any Time after the Tenth Day of February now next ensuing, being within the said City or Liberties thereof, shall be sold or bartered to any Freeman, or Freeman of the said City, or to any other Person or Persons whatsoever, within the said City or Liberties thereof, shall at, or before the Delivery thereof, to such Freeman or Freeman, or other Person or Persons, be weighed at the said common Beams, called the King's Beams, or one of them, upon Pain of Forfeiture of 13 s. 4 d. for every 500 Weight of such Wares and Merchandizes, by the Seller or Barterer thereof, and so after that Rate for a greater or less Quantity.

2. Item, That if any covetous or fraudulent Sale shall be made, by any such Foreigner or Foreigners, or any Freeman or Freeman of this City, of any such Goods or Merchandizes, before the same Goods or Merchandizes come into this City or the Liberties thereof, to the Intent, to avoid the Duty of weighing such Goods or Merchandizes at one of the said Beams; and such Goods or Merchandizes shall afterwards come to this City or the Liberties thereof; and shall after the said tenth Day of February be sold or bartered, and delivered by such Foreigner or Foreigners, Freeman, or Freeman, to any other Person or Persons whatsoever, within the said City or Liberties thereof; then such Goods or Merchandizes shall at, or before the Delivery thereof to such Person or Persons, be weighed at the said common Beams, call'd the King's Beams, or one of them, upon Pain of the Forfeiture of 13 s. 4 d. for every 500 Weight of such Wares and Merchandizes by the Seller or Barterer thereof; and so after that Rate for a greater or less Quantity, as aforesaid, notwithstanding any such covetous or fraudulent Sale, as aforesaid.

3. Item, That if any Freeman or Freeman of this City, to whom such fraudulent Sale of such Goods or Merchandizes shall be made, as aforesaid, knowing the same, shall wittingly and willingly, after the said tenth Day of February, put in ure, justify, or maintain such fraudulent Sale, as true, and made bona fide, to the Intent to avoid the said Duty of weighing such Goods and Merchandizes; then all, and every such Freeman and Freeman, shall forfeit for every such Offence, the Sum of five Pounds a-piece.

4. Item, If any such Goods or Merchandizes of any Freeman or Freeman of this City, shall be mixed with the Goods and Merchandizes of any Foreigner or Foreigners, from the Liberties of the same City, being of the same Kind, so that the distinct Property and Proportion of such Freeman or Freeman, in such Goods or Merchandizes, from the Property and Proportion of such Foreigner or Foreigners, in such Goods and Merchandizes, cannot be known, and such Goods and Merchandizes being within the said City or Liberties, shall at any Time, after the said tenth Day of February, be sold or bartered by such Freeman or Freeman, and such Foreigner or Foreigners, to any other Person or Persons, before any Partition, Division, or Separation be made of such Goods or Merchandizes of such Freeman or Freeman, from such Goods or Merchandizes of such Foreigner or Foreigners; then all such Goods and Merchandizes, as well of such Freeman or Freeman, as of such Foreigner or Foreigners, shall at, or before the Delivery thereof, to any Person or Persons, be weighed at the said common Beams, called the King's Beams, or one of them, upon Pain of Forfeiture of 13 s. 4 d. for every 500 Weight of such Wares and Merchandizes, by the Seller or Barterer thereof, and so after that Rate for a greater or less Quantity, as aforesaid.

5. Item, If any such Goods or Merchandizes of such Freeman or Freeman, shall be mixed, as aforesaid, with such Goods or Merchandizes, of such Foreigner or Foreigners; and such Goods or Merchandizes of such Foreigner or Foreigners, shall at any Time, after the said 10th Day of February, be sold or bartered within the said City or Liberties, to any Person or Persons before any Partition, Division, or Separation thereof; shall be made, as aforesaid; then such Goods and Merchandizes of such Foreigner or Foreigners, so sold as aforesaid, shall, after Partition, Division, or Separation thereof to be made, as aforesaid, from such Goods of such Freeman or Freeman, (in case such Separation or Division shall be thereof made, before any Sale or Barter shall be made by such Freeman or Freeman of such Goods or Merchandizes, of such Freeman or Freeman) be weighed at the said common Beams, or one of them, upon Pain of Forfeiture of 13 s. 4 d. for every 500 Weight of such Wares and Merchandizes, by the Seller or Barterer thereof, and so after that Rate for a greater or less Quantity, as aforesaid: But in case such Wares or Merchandizes of such Freeman or Freeman, so mixed as aforesaid, shall be likewise sold within the said City or Liberties thereof, to any Person or Persons; before any Separation or Division thereof shall be made, as aforesaid; then all such Goods and Merchandizes, so mixed and sold, as aforesaid, as well of such Freeman or Freeman, as of such Foreigner or Foreigners, shall, at, or before the Delivery thereof to any Person or Persons, be weighed at the said common Beams, or one of them, upon Pain of Forfeiture of 13 s. 4 d. for every 500 Weight of such Wares and Merchandizes, by the last Seller or Barterer thereof, and so after that Rate for a greater or less Quantity, as aforesaid.

6. Item. That all such Goods and Merchandizes usually sold by Weight, whereof any Freeman or Freeman, or any Foreigner or Foreigners, shall be possessed in Copartnership, or in common by equal Moieties, or by any other Share or Shares, which at any Time after the said 10th Day of February, shall be sold or bartered to any Person or Persons whatsoever, within the said City or Liberties thereof, shall, at, or before the Delivery thereof, be weighed at the said common Beams, or one of them, upon Pain of Forfeiture of 13 s. 4 d. for every 500 Weight of such Wares and Merchandizes, by the Seller or Barterer thereof, and so after that Rate for a greater or less Quantity, as aforesaid.

7. Item, It is hereby further enacted, that the Buyer or Buyers, whether he or they be Foreigners or Freeman, of the Ware or Merchandizes aforesaid, which shall be sold, and not weighed according to the respective Provisions aforesaid, shall forfeit and incur the like Penalties and Forfeitures, as by the Seller or Sellers thereof are before ordained to be forfeited.

8. Item, It is hereby further enacted, that all and singular the Penalties and Forfeitures aforesaid, shall, and may be recovered by Action of Debt, to be commenced in the Name of the Chamberlain of the City of LONDON, for the Time being.

9. Item, It is hereby further enacted, that such Action of Debt, shall, and may be commenced in any of the Courts of Record, within the City of LONDON: And that no Essoign or Wager of Law shall be admitted or allowed

And

And that the Plaintiff, if he recover in such Action, shall recover his ordinary Costs of Suit.

10. Item, It is hereby further enacted, That the several Forfeitures to be recovered, (Charges of Suit being deducted) shall be paid to the Treasurer of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, near West-smithfield, LONDON; for the Time being, for the Poor, Sick, Sore, and Diseased People there harboured.

11. Item, To the Intent the Officer or Officers, who shall weigh such Goods or Merchandizes at the said common Beams, may be paid or satisfied the Duties due and accustomed for weighing thereof, without being put to the Charges of Suit for the same; it is hereby enacted and declared, That it shall and may be lawful to and for such Officer or Officers, his or their Deputy or Deputies, Servant or Servants, to detain such Goods and Merchandizes, so to be weighed by them, or any of them, in his or their Hands or Custody, until the respective Duties for weighing thereof, of right Due and accustomed, shall be paid or satisfied.

12. Provided, That nothing contained in this Act shall extend to charge any Person or Persons whatsoever, unless the Action thereupon to be brought, shall be commenced within the Space of one Year next after the Offence aforesaid committed.

SADLER.

Note, These Laws have been allowed to be good and reasonable by the Court of King's-Bench, in a Case there solemnly argued between the Chamberlain of the City of LONDON, and Barnadiston. See Sinderfield's and Keeble's Reports.

THE Office and Duties of Tronage is one of the most antient Franchises of the City of LONDON. Henry III. grants to the said City, That no Merchant Stranger, or other, buy or sell any Wares which ought to be weighed or troned, but by our Beam, under Forfeiture of the said Wares; and it is accorded, the King shall have his Beam in one, two, three, or four certain Places if Occasion be, within the said City; and that all Merchandizes which shall be sold by Weight, which are above 25 lb. shall be weighed with the King's Weight, paying the Customs, &c. and if any be found to weigh Merchandizes of Weight beyond 25 lb. otherwise than at the King's Beam, and shall be therefore attainted, his Merchandizes shall be forfeited to the King, in whosoever's Hands it shall be found, and the other Party shall be in grievous Mercy to the King; and that the Weigher shall be sworn to the King, lawfully to weigh between Buyer and Seller; and if the Weigher be attainted of Injustice, he shall be imprisoned a Year and a Day, and lose his Office.

In the 22d of Edward I. a Weigher of the King's Beam was admitted by the Court of Aldermen.

By an Act of Parliament in Richard II.'s Time, all these and many more Grants and Charters touching the Beam, were confirmed to the said City, as also by several subsequent Acts of Parliament: And in an Act made in the 22d Henry VIII. cap. 8: it is enacted and ordained, That all Aliens made Denizens, shall pay to the said City all such Subsidies, Customs, Tolls, Duties and other Sums of Money, as they should or ought to have paid, before they were Denizens, any Grant or Grants to them made, or hereafter to be made, or any Act or Acts, Statute or Ordinance to the contrary made or had notwithstanding; and the Officers or Ministers of the said City, are to set up in an open Place or Places, a Table or Tables of such Tolls or Duties as they claim.

Which Table of Rates for Tronage was then, and long before that Time, as above.

AND whereas Trade has been greatly increased since that Time, the Government of the said City have thought it reasonable to reduce the antient Rates for the Accommodation and Ease of Merchants, which is the only Thing that was new in the Act of Common-Council made in the Mayoralty of Sir Francis Child, Father of the present Sir Francis Child.

THIS said Act of Common-Council made in the Mayoralty of Sir Francis Child, bore Date November the 10th, in 10 W. III. Ann. 1698, intituled, An Act for the better Regulation of the weighing of Goods and Merchandizes at the King's Beam; which confirmed this Right of the City weighing Foreigners Goods to be sold, and the Penalties thereof in the Act aforesaid: And also appointed certain Rates and Duties to be paid to the Master-Weigher, or Supervisor of the said common Beams, to the Use of the Mayor, Commonalty and Citizens, or their Assigns; that is,

From all Goods and Merchandizes whatsoever, sold by Weight.

THE Master-Weigher, or Supervisor, to be authorized and licensed by this Court, or a Committee thereof; or that if any other keep or use any Beam or Beams for weighing of Goods, that Person for every such Offence to forfeit 4 l. 19 s. yet this is not to be construed or expounded to debar any Freeman from using his own Beam, in weighing of his own proper Goods, being not in Copartnership with a Foreigner.

THAT every Master-Weigher, or other Officer appointed by the Master-Weigher, shall once in three Months carefully examine all Weights and Beams with the Standard kept for that Purpose, and shall constantly keep them true and agreeing with the same.

No Weigher or Supervisor, or other Officer hereafter to be appointed to attend the said Beam, to use the Art and Mystery of a Factor or Agent, for buying or selling any Goods, or employ himself as a Broker, to make any Bargain, Contract Contract or Agreement between Merchant and Merchant, or Buyer and Seller.

ONE or more exact Registers to be kept by the Master-Weigher of all Goods and Merchandizes weighed, and of the true Weight thereof.

THAT every Master-Weigher shall set on work and employ such Porters as are of the Fellowship of Ticket-Porters, and they to submit to such Rates as this Court shall think fit and reasonable.

THAT they who have the Government of these Porters provide competent Numbers of them, as may by Turns attend at the Weigh-House every Morning upon the said Master-Weigher.

THE Master-Weigher upon Request, for weighing any Draught of Goods (the Persons so requiring, undertaking to pay the Charge of carrying and re-carrying the Beams, Triangles, Weights and Scales) to apply himself to the weighing thereof.

THE Weigh-House situate in Little Eastcheap, in Billingsgate Ward, to be deemed the common Office for Tronage, and weighing of all Goods and Merchandizes that shall be sold within the City and Liberties thereof; and to be the only Market for buying and selling of Hops.

ALL Penalties and Forfeitures in this Act mentioned, shall be sued for and recovered in the Name of the Chamberlain of the City. And one Moiety of all such Forfeitures to be paid to the Treasurer of the Corporation for the Poor within this City, for their Use. And the other Moiety to the Persons who shall sue for the same. The Suit or Action to be commenced within six Months.

THERE were two Master-Weighers and Supervisors of all the common Beams in the City and Borough, sworn Anno 1699. And because many Porters, Labourers, and others, had set up and kept common Beams and Weights, contrary to the antient Customs and Laws of the City; an Advertisement was set forth the same Year by those Master-Weighers, for the better regulating that Abuse, and Information of all Persons concerned, which was as follows:

ADVERTISEMENT.

WHEREAS the Office of Tronage hath been vested in the Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens of the City of LONDON, Time out of Mind, and is confirmed unto them by sundry Acts of Parliament.

And whereas John Dunmoll and Charles Booth were, the 19th Day of December 1699, constituted and appointed, under the Common Seal of the said City, Master-Weighers and Supervisors of all the common Beams within this City and the Liberties thereof, and Borough of Southwark: And were then sworn for the due executing of the said Office of Tronage, in the just weighing of Goods and Merchandizes between Buyers and Sellers;

And whereas great Numbers of Porters, Labourers, and others, free of this City; have, contrary to the Laws and Statutes of this Kingdom, and to the antient Customs and By-Laws of this City, taken upon them to set up, keep, and exercise common Beams and Weights, for the weighing of Goods and Merchandizes between Buyers and Sellers; which said Practice is not only inconsistent with, but destructive of the said Office of Tronage, and is a manifest Violation of the Faith and Oath they gave when admitted into the Freedom of the said City.

Now the said John Dunmoll and Charles Booth do hereby give Notice to all whom it may concern, That if any Person or Persons shall set up, keep, or exercise any common Beam or Beams; for the weighing of Goods or Merchandizes within this City or the Liberties thereof; or in the Borough of Southwark, (except Freemen, for the weighing of their own proper Goods in their own Houses or Warehouses) they will be prosecuted according to the Laws in that Case made and provided.

And to the End that no Merchant or others may be imposed upon, they, the said John Dunmoll and Charles Booth, do hereby give farther Notice, That constant Attendance is, and will be, daily given at their Office at the Weigh-House in Little Eastcheap: Where all Merchants and others shall be furnished with Triangles, Beams, Scales, Weights, and Ticket-Porters, for the speedy Dispatch of their Business. And that no Merchant or others, free of this City, shall pay more or greater Rates, for the weighing of any Goods or Merchandizes, than they have heretofore done to such Porters or others whom they employed about the same, or suffer any Delay, or other Inconveniency, by Reason of their Application unto them the said John Dunmoll and Charles Booth, who are appointed and sworn for the Keeping and Governing of all Common Beams, as aforesaid: And are oblig'd to employ Ticket-Porters, being Freemen of this City, in the Use and Exercise of the said Beams. So that the Ticket-Porters will have no less Employment than before the said John Dunmoll and Charles Booth were admitted to the said Office of Tronage.

Of the PENNY-POST.

ANOTHER great Convenience to the People of LONDON, is the Penny-Post; this is of especial Service to Persons in Trade and Business, and indeed to almost every one: For by this a Man may send a Letter or Packet, not exceeding a Pound Weight, for one Penny, to any Part of the City or Suburbs, or to any of the Towns and Villages round, where only one Penny more is paid on the Delivery.

THIS useful Undertaking was at first set up by private Persons; but being of such great Account and general Concern, it is now taken into the Hands of the Government, by whom are appointed proper Officers for the Management of it: These are, at present, Richard Frankland, Comptroller, Esq; with a Salary of 200 l. per Ann.

Mr. Robert Cruttenden, Accomptant, Salary 70 l. per Ann.

Edward Parsons, Esq; Collector, Salary 70 l. per Ann.

UNDER whom are six Sorters, at 26 l. per Ann. each.

AND eight Sub-Sorters, at 26 l. per Ann. each.

BESIDES these, there are above 100 Messengers, who have an Allowance of 20 l. per Ann. each, for collecting and delivering Letters, and above 600 Houses that receive for the Penny-Post, there being one in most great Streets; at the Door or Window of which is commonly hung up a printed Paper in a Frame, with these Words in large Letters, Penny-Post Letters and Parcels are taken in here. At these Houses the Letter-Carriers call every Hour to carry such Letters and Parcels as are there, to the General-Office within their Circuit. And after the said Letters and Parcels are duly entered in their Books, they are forthwith sent by others to be delivered as directed: So that all the Day they are employed, some in going their Walks to bring in, and others to carry out.

THERE is another great Convenience by this Office, and that is, that what Letters come from beyond Seas, or from any Part of England, Scotland, or Ireland, by the General-Post, and are directed to Persons in any of the Towns to which the Penny-Post goes, they are delivered by the Messenger without farther Trouble, upon paying the Postage.

The Names of, and Places where, the six PRINCIPAL OFFICES are kept, are as follow:

1. The General-Office in St. Christopher's Church-Yard, in Threadneedle-Street.

2. St. Paul's-Office in Queen's-Head-Court, in Pater-Noster-Row.

3. The Temple-Office in Chichester-Rents, in Chancery-Lane.

5. The Southwark-Office in Green-Dragon-Court, near St. Mary Overy's Church.

6. The Hermitage-Office at the Entrance into East-Smithfield, upon Little Tower-Hill.

THE Persons by whom this useful Undertaking was first began, were Mr. Murray and Mr. Dockwra, a Merchant, who were at great Pains and Expence before they could make it answer their End: And then, after a Trial at the King's-Bench Bar, in the Reign of King Charles II. it was adjudged to belong to the Duke of York, as being a Branch of the General-Post-Office, and was therefore annexed to the Revenue of the Crown in that Reign, as it still continues.

The OFFICE of INSURANCE.

ANOTHER very useful Undertaking for the Inhabitants of LONDON, is the Insurance of Houses from Fire, in which any Man for a small Sum may insure both his House and Goods from from any Losses by Fire: The Chief of these are the Sun-Fire-Office; in Tbreadneedle-Street; the Royal-Exchange-Assurance, kept in a Part of the Royal-Exchange, the London-Assurance, likewise in Cornhill, the Hand-in-Hand on Snow-Hill, and the Union in Gutter-lane.

THESE Offices do not only justly pay the Claims that are made upon them, where there is no Appearance of Fraud; but by the great Number of Persons they employ, who wear their Livery and Badge, and other Methods, they likewise prevent the spreading of Fires that are once began; and to do Justice to their Servants, called Firemen, they are so diligent in their Business, and run such Hazards in pulling down some Houses, and extinguishing the Flames in others, that there is scarce any Accident of this Kind happens, but some of them are destroyed in it.

CHAP. VI.

Of the COURTS of LONDON.

The COURT of HUSTINGS:

The Court of Hustings.

THIS Court is the most antient, and the highest Court of Justice in the City of LONDON. It is called the Hustings from two Saxon Words, hup, Hus, signifying a House, and sing, Dbing or Thing, a Cause or Plea; so that Husthing meant a House of Causes or Pleadings: From whence Thingere signified an Advocate or Lawyer.

THE Antiquity of this famous Court of Hustings is much magnified by the Compiler of King Edward's Laws, cap. 35. who says, — Debet enim in LONDON. quæ Caput Regni est & Legum, & semper Curia Domini Regis singulis septimanis die Lunæ Hustings sedere & teneri. Fundata enim erat olim, & edificata ad instar magne Troje, & admodum & in memoria in se continet. &c. That is,

“ This Court of our Lord the King ought to sit, and be held every Week on * Monday, at the Hustings in LONDON, which was founded of old after the Manner and Fashion, and even in the Memory of the great City of Troy; &c.

THIS smells very rank of that fabulous Writer Jeffrey of Monmouth.

AND yet something there is in the Hustings, which might give Countenance to this Comparison of Old Troy, namely, the well known Weight used for Gold and Silver, called Troy Weight, which was in the Time of the Saxons called, The Hustings Weight of LONDON, and kept there in the Hustings. So an antient Record in the Book of Ramsay, Sett. 32. and 127. “ I Æthelgina, Countess, &c. bequeath two Silver Cups of twelve Marks of the Hustings Weight of LONDON.

THE former Law of the said King Edward the Confessor, commands the Hustings Court to be held every Monday, tho' at this Day it be held upon the Tuesday: Which, that it may be not perceived by the Monuments and Rolls of the Court, to have differ'd too much from the first Institution, is yet said and written to be holden upon the Monday. It is as it were distinguished into two Courts; for one Week the Judges sit upon Pleas meerly real, and the next Week upon Actions mix'd, or of any other Nature whatsoever.

IN the same Book of Ramsay Abbey, Sett. 268. is set down the antient Form of purchasing and giving of Possession, used in the Hustings; which is far different from the Fashion used at this Day. “ Be it known unto all the Sons of Holy Church, that Wlfnob of Walbroc, LONDON, have sold unto Reynold, Abbot of Ramsay, a certain Piece of Land which he had in Walbroc, whence he was called Wlfnob of Walbroc. As also a certain House of Stone, and a Shop which he had built upon that Land, with Doors of Iron, and Windows above and beneath, &c. Which said Wlfnob hath sold that Land unto the Abbot of Ramsay, and hath given him Seisin of it, by Delivery of a certain Staff, and hath quite claimed unto it to be free and quiet, and void of all Incumbrance; both he, and Mahald his Wife, and his first Wife's Daughter; and Mahald his second Wife, and Henry his Son by his second Wife, and Christine her Daughter, before the whole Husting of LONDON, in the House of Alwine, Son of Leofstan, to be held from this Day forth for ever by the Church of Ramsay, in Consideration of Ten Pounds of Pence, which he gave unto him in Presence of the whole Court of Hustings. Of which Ten Pounds, he the said Wlfnob gave Forty Shillings unto Maud his Daughter for her good Will, because he had the Land by her Mother. And the Abbot for his Part gave her half a Mark of Silver; and unto Wlfnob's Wife, and other two Children, for their good Wills, he gave five Shillings. Of this Bargain and Sale, be on the Part of the Hustings these Witnesses, William of Einesford, Sheriff of LONDON, and John his Under-Sheriff, and Gervase his Clerk; Andrew Buccint, and Ralph his Son, and Ralph his Cousin; Gilbert Proudfoot, William Bukerell, and many others.

THE Deed hath no Date mention'd; but this Reynold was made Abbot of Ramsay by King Henry I. as his Charter shews. The Successor to Reynold was one Walter, who flourished An. 1149, that is, the Fourteenth of King Stephen; by which may be judged the Antiquity of the Deed, tho' the precise Day be not dated.

By this Passage it clearly appears, that LONDON was honour'd with her Sheriffs Office, even in the Age of King Henry I. although some of our Chronicles affirm the Sheriffs to be made first by King Richard I. at his coming to the Crown: From whose Time our said Chronicles begin to reckon the first Mayor and Sheriffs, that is, from the Year of our Lord 1189. But that the Sheriffs were granted unto the City, together with the County of Middlesex, plainly appears by the said King's Charter concerning the Liberties of LONDON, given in the Beginning of his Reign:

The Court of Hustings an antient Court of Record.

Reign: Nor do the Mayor and Sheriffs much differ from those former Magistrates of the City, the Portreve and Provost, as might be proved.

MOREOVER, the Cities of York, Winchester, Lincoln, the Isle of Shepey, with other Boroughs and Cities, are also said to have had their Hustings. See Fleta, Lib. 2. Cap. 55. [De differentiis Curiarum. Habet Rex curiam suam, &c. Et in Civitatibus & Burgis & in HUSTINGIS LONDON. Lincoln. Winton. & Eborum, & alibi in Libertatibus, &c. Wherefore the Lord Coke concludes, that neither the Name, nor the Court is appropriated to LONDON.

THIS Court of Hustings is a very antient Court of Record, and of the greatest Concern; For it preserves the Laws, Rights, Customs, Franchises, and Dignities of the City, and hath for many Ages preserved its own Customs and Prerogatives.

THIS Court is held at the Guildhall, before the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of LONDON for the Time being: And when any Matter is to be argued or tried in this Court, the Recorder sits as Judge with the said Mayor and Sheriffs, and directs them in the Point of Law, and gives Rules and Judgments.

Two Sorts of Causes are pleadable in this Court; Pleas of Land, and Common Pleas; which are commonly called, Husting of Pleas of Land, and Husting of Common Pleas. And these Hustings are held distinctly; for one Week the Judges sit upon Pleas meerly real, and the next Week upon Actions mix'd, as is before said.

In this Court, Deeds may be enrolled, Recoveries may be passed, Wills may be proved, and Replevins, Writs of Error, Writs of Right, Parent, Writs of Waste, Writs of Partition, and Writs of Dower, may be determined, for any Matters within the City of LONDON and Liberties.

THE Attornies of the Lord Mayor's Court are Attorneys also in this: And the second Attorney is always Clerk of the Enrollments; and enrolls all Deeds that are brought for that Purpose.

THE Method of enrolling a Deed is thus: First, The Parties that sealed the Deed must go before the Lord Mayor, or the Recorder, and one Alderman, and acknowledge it to be their Act and Deed; and if a Wife be a Party, she is examined by them, whether it was done by her freely, and without Compulsion; and then his Lordship and the Alderman set their Hands in Testimony thereof; for which 4*d.* is paid to each of them, and to the Attorney, for the Indorsement, 2*s.* Then the Deed must be deliver'd to the Clerk of the Enrollments, who, at the next Hustings then following, causes Proclamation to be made: If any Person can any thing say why the same Deed should not be enrolled; and then proceeds to enroll the same.

The FEES for Enrollment of a DEED are as follow:

	s.	d.
To Mr. Recorder	6	8
To the Chamberlain	1	8
To the Town-Clerk	0	10
To the Attorney for every Prefs	6	0
To his Clerk	0	8

A Deed enrolled in the Hustings is accounted as good as a Fine at Common Law, for that it bars the Wife from claiming her Dower.

When a Will is to be proved in the Hustings, the Witnesses thereto must be sworn at some Court of Hustings; and if their Evidence be full, the Clerk of the Enrollments will enter it upon Record, which is the best Way of proving Wills touching Estates in LONDON.

THE Manner of passing a Recovery in this Court is thus: First, a Writ of right Patent must be obtained from the Curfitor for LONDON, which must be deliver'd to one of the Attorneys of this Court, who will thereupon prepare the Record, and procure the Recovery to pass: The Charge whereof is as follows:

For drawing the Writ	6	1	0
For the Writ of Right	0	5	6

For drawing and ingrossing the Record	0	13	4
For exemplifying it	0	6	8
For the Seal	0	6	8
The Clerk	0	0	8
	4	7	0

It is usual to have a Deed sealed to lead the Uses of the Recovery, and to cause such Deed to be enrolled.

If the Vouchees cannot attend at Court, they may sign a Warrant, and acknowledge it before Mr. Recorder, and that will be allowed as good as their personal Attendance; which Warrant must be in these Words:

J B. & A. ux' ejus quos B. R. vocat ad warrantizand' &c. po. lo. suis W. L. & T. M. conjunctim & divisim versus L. B. in pl'to terre &c. viz. de quatuor Messuagiis & quatuor gardinis cum pertinen' scituat' jacen' & existen' in Parochia Sci' Botolphi extra Aldgate in Warda de Portsoaken London. ad lucrand' & perdend' &c. secundum consuetud' Civitatis London.

For which Warrant the Fee to Mr. Recorder is 6*s.* 8*d.*

WHEN any Person would replevy Goods in LONDON, he must go to the Clerk of the Papers belonging to one of the Compters, and give in the Particulars, and Security to restore the Goods or the Value, in case upon a Trial it shall appear the same did not belong to him: And then the Clerk will give a Warrant to one of the Sheriff's Officers to cause the Goods to be appraised, and to deliver them to the Plaintiff. After the Appraisement is made, and the Goods deliver'd, the Officer must make Return thereof to the Clerk of the Papers, who will immediately ately thereupon certify the Record thereof into this Court, where the same must be decided: And if Issue shall be joined to try in whom the Property of the Goods was when the same were taken, a Jury must be summoned to try the Issue: And in Order thereunto, Precepts must be issued to the Beadles of the six adjacent Wards, to return the Names of six substantial Freeholders and Inhabitants in each Ward; which Precepts must be as follow:

By the M A Y O R.

To the Beadle of the Ward of

THESE are to require you, with the Advice of your Alderman and Deputy, to return to me in Writing, under your Hand, the Names and Surnames of six Freeholders, Inhabitants within your Ward, to be of a Jury at the next Hustings of Common Pleas in the Guildhall, LONDON, for Trial of an Issue joined between R. G. and W. B. in a Plea of Replevin, and hereof not to fail.

Dated the Day of

WHEN the Names are so returned, a Precept must be sent to the Sheriffs, to require them to summon the Jury to appear at the next Hustings of Common-Pleas, to try the Issue. A Writ of Error may be brought in this Court to reverse any Judgment given in the Sheriffs Court. The Writ must be made by the Curfitor for LONDON, and directed to the Mayor and Sheriffs of LONDON; and, when sealed, must be delivered to Mr. Town-Clerk to allow the same; and at the same Time must enter into Bond with two sufficient Sureties to pay the Debt, or Damages, and Costs recovered, and which shall be assessed in Case the Judgment should happen to be affirmed, or in Case the Plaintiff in the Writ of Error should not prosecute the Writ of Error with Effect: And when Security shall be so given, Mr. Town-Clerk will make a Supersedeas, directed to the Sheriffs, to stay further Proceedings upon the Judgment. And it is usual to move the Court at the next Hustings of Common-Pleas, after the Allowance of the Writ, that the Proceedings in the Sheriffs Court may be certified within 14 Days then following, into this Court, where Errors may be assigned and argued; and if Judgment shall be affirmed, the Plaintiff in the Writ of Error, may bring another Writ of Error before the Judges to examine the former Judgment.

FOR the Proceedings and Forms of correcting and reversing erroneous Judgments given in this Court of Hustings, Mr. Prinn, who was well acquainted with the Records of the Tower, refers us to the following Records, viz. to the Patents and Clause Rolls of King Henry III. of Edward I, II, III. of Richard II. of Henry IV. V. VI. and Edward IV. where, he says, he met with many Precedents in this Kind, over-numerous to insert.

It must not be omitted that in this Court of Hustings, the Citizens, who are to be Representatives for the City in Parliament, have their Elections. But at the Common Hall, which is an Assembly of the Mayor, Aldermen and Liverymen, are chosen by the Livery, the Mayor, Sheriffs, Chamberlain, Bridge-Masters, Auditors of the Chamber and Bridge-house, Accomptants and Aleconners.

FIRST, The Citizens to serve for the City of LONDON in Parliament, are here elected by the Liverymen of the Companies.

HERE, at a Common Hall, upon every Michaelmas-day, the Lord Mayor for the Year following is chosen. And the Usage is, to put up all the Aldermen under the Chair, and which have held the Office of Sheriff. Of these the Commoners chuse two, and return their Names to the Lord Mayor and Aldermen. Of which two they elect him whom they think most fit, and signify their Choice to the Commons: And the Person so chosen, must be presented to the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper; and afterwards is sworn at Guildhall on St. Simon and St. Jude's Day; and the Day after at the Exchequer.

HERE likewise, at a Common Hall, upon Midsummer-day, the Liverymen of the respective Companies do chuse Sheriffs. But it hath been said, that the Lord Mayor, by his Prerogative, may, some Time before that Day, drink to any Citizens whom he thinks qualified, and nominate him to be one of the Sheriffs; and the Usage hath been (till of late Years) for the Commons to confirm such Person; and then to elect another to serve with him.

AFTER the Sheriffs are elected, the Commoners here chuse two Auditors for the Chamber and Bridge-house Accompts, a Chamberlain, two Wardens (or Masters, as they are called) for the Bridge-house, and four Aleconners.

THE Sheriffs are Judges of these Elections, and do declare, by the Common-Serjeant, who are the Persons elected.

AFTER the Sheriffs are so elected, they take an Oath in this Court, on Michaelmas Eve; and the Day after Michaelmas-day, must be presented to the Barons of the Exchequer; and when they are sworn, it is not in the Power of the Commons to remove them.

THE Chamberlain and Bridge-Masters, after Election, take the usual Oath before the Mayor and Court of Aldermen.

THE Aldermen of LONDON are summoned to this Court of Hustings; and, according to the antient Usage of the City, they ought to be summoned by an Officer of the Sheriffs, sitting upon a Horse of 100 s. Price at least.

The COURT of the LORD MAYOR and ALDERMEN.

THIS Court is commonly called the Mayor's Court. It is a Court of Record, and is held in the Chamber of the Guildhall: The Recorder of the City of LONDON for the Time being is Judge of this Court; but the Lord Mayor and Aldermen may sit as Judges with him if they please: This Court being held by Custom, all the Proceedings are said to be before the Mayor and Aldermen. The Sheriffs of LONDON may in like Manner sit with the Judges of the Sheriffs Court: The Proceedings in that Court being also said to be held before the Sheriffs respectively.

IN this Court all Manner of Actions may be entered and tried by a Jury as in other Courts, for any Debt, Trespass, or other Matter whatsoever arising within the Liberties of LONDON, and to any Value whatsoever.

THERE are only four Attorneys belonging to this Court, who, upon their Admission by the Court of Aldermen, take the following Oath:

The OATH of an ATTORNEY of the MAYOR'S COURT.

YOU shall swear that you shall well and lawfully do your Office of Attorney, and well and lawfully examine your Clients and their Quarrels, without Champerty and without procuring of any Juries or any Inquests embracing. And that you shall change on Quarrel out of its Nature after your Understanding. Also you shall plead ne ley, nor suffer to be pleaded or leyd, by by your Assent, nor foreign Release, Acquittance, Payment or Arbitration, plain Accompt whatsoever it be to put the Court out of its Jurisdiction, nor none other Matter, but it be such as you shall find rightful and true by the Information of your Clients, whose Information and saying upon your Oath and Conscience you shall believe to be true. And you shall not inform ne inforce any Man to sue falsely again any Persons by false or forged Actions. Attendant ye shall be upon the Mayor of the said City for the Time being, and ready ye shall be at all Times to come at the Warning of the said Mayor, but if ye be letted about the Business of the said City, or by some other reasonable cause. Ye shall not deliver any Book, or any Manner of Copy to any Person of any Thing that toucheth the Liberty of this City, without Licence and Oversight of the Mayor, Recorder, and Town-Clerk of this City for the Time being, or of two of them, or shew to any Person any Book concerning the Customs of the said City, nor suffer any Person to look upon any such Book of Customs at any Time, saving only the Counsel of this City, but ye shall keep the same Books secret among yourselves. The Secrets of this Court ye shall keep, and not disclose any Thing there spoken for the Commonweal of the said City that might hurt any Person or Brother of the said Court, unless it be spoken to his said Brother, or to other which in his said Conscience or Discretion he shall think it to be for the Commonweal of this City. And that well and lawfully ye shall do all such Things that to the Office of Attorney pertaineth to do, as God you help.

THE Manner of entering Actions in this Court is different from the Sheriffs Court; for you cannot enter an Action in this Court at either of the Compters, but must go to the publick Office belonging to that Court upon the Royal Exchange, and enter your Action with one of the four Attorneys there; whether the Action be of the Case, of Trespas, for Accounts, for Covenants broken, for Debt at the Chamberlain's Suit, or for Debt upon a penal Statute.

WHEN your Action is thus entered by the Attorney or his Clerk, you must not imploy any of the Sheriffs Officers to Arrest the Defendant, but give your Action, or a Note thereof, to one of the Serjeants at Mace belonging to the Mayor and Aldermen.

THERE are six Serjeants belonging to this Court, who are Men of good Estates, and do not belong to either of the Sheriffs. Most of them attend daily at the Attorney's Offices, and one of them is constantly attending at the Lord Mayor's House. If you give any of them a Note of your Action, he will Arrest the Defendant, and in Case such Defendant cannot find Bail, the Officer will carry him to one of the Compters, that being the Prison as well for this Court as the Sheriffs Court; which Imprisonment and the Cause thereof is constantly recorded in a publick Book, called the Book of Imprisonment, by the Attorney that entered the Action: But if the Party arrested find Bail, the eldest of the four Attorneys must take the same, he being Clerk of the Bails; and in Case he shall take insufficient Bail, and the Defendant do abscond, the Plaintiff may, after he has a Judgment for his Debt or Damages, compel the Clerk of the Bails to pay the same Debt or Damages, by Petition to the Court of Aldermen, or to Mr. Recorder.

AN Action entered in this Court will remain in Force for ever, although no Proceedings be had thereupon; whereas an Action entered at either of the Compters dies, and may be crossed after 16 Weeks. And the Charge of entering an Action in this Court is but 4 d. besides the King's Duty.

AN Action commenced in this Court may be brought to a Trial for 30 s. Charge, and in 14 Days Time, whereas in the Sheriffs Court they require more Time, and much more Money, as those that have had Occasion know by Experience.

If there happen to be six Weeks Time between the putting in Bail to an Action in this Court, and the Time of the Defendant's Plea, in such Case the Defendant cannot remove the same Action or Suit into any other Court.

AN Action commenced in this Court, cannot be removed into the Sheriffs Court; but an Action commenced in the Sheriffs Court may be removed into this Court, either by the Plaintiff or Defendant, at any Time before a Jury is sworn to try the Cause.

THE Juries for the trying Causes in this Court and the Sheriffs, are returned by the several Wards, at their Wardmote Inquests; which they do by an Indenture under their Hands and Seals; in which Indenture they return also the Names of the Common-Council-Men, Constables and Scavengers. The particular Wards appointed to serve as Jurymen for every Month are divided as follows:

THE Wards of Aldgate, Portoken, and Cornhill, serve for the Month of January.

THE Ward of Cheap serves for the Month of February.

THE Wards of Bassishaw, Cripplegate within, and Cripplegate without, for March.

THE Wards of Vintry and Bread-street, for April.

THE Wards of Tower and Billingsgate, for May.

THE Ward of Faringdon without, for June.

THE Ward of Bridge for July.

THE Wards of Aldersgate, Coleman-street, and Broad-street, for August.

THE Wards of Faringdon within and Castle-Baynard, for September.

THE Wards of Queenhithe, Dowgate, and Walbrook, for October.

THE Wards of Langborn and Lime-street, for November.

THE Wards of Candlewick, Cordwainer, and Bishopsgate, for December.

A Copy of the Names of the Jurymen returned by the several Wards, is given by the Town-Clerk to the Officers of this Court, and to the Officers of the Sheriffs Court. And none other Persons must serve as Jurymen in these Courts, unless in some special Cases, as sometimes there is a Jury of Merchants.

THIS Mayor's Court is also a Court of Equity or Chancery, for all Matters within LONDON and the Liberties; but not a Court of Equity only, as many Citizens suppose. The Recorder usually sits as Chancellor or Judge, to determine such Matters; and Causes are managed here much after the Manner as in the High Court of Chancery.

ATTACHMENTS grounded upon Actions of Debt are tried in this Court, or in the Sheriffs Court; when either Money or Goods of the Defendants are attached, either in the Plaintiff's own Hands, or in the Custody of a third Person: But Attachments made in this Court of the Mayor have Advantages over those made in the Sheriffs Courts, both in Respect of the Charges, and Quickness of Dispatch. Concerning the Laws and Customs and Pleadings of Attachments, consult the Law Book of LONDON.

THE Day for Trials in this Court is every Tuesday: But every Day is a Court for entering Proceedings, as Appearances, Rules, Pleas and Judgment, except Holidays, the Week before Easter, the first three Weeks in August, and from the 15th of December till the Monday after Twelfth-Day.

The ORPHANS COURT.

The Orphans Court.

THIS Court is held before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the City, who are Guardians to the Children of all Freemen, that are or shall be under the Age of one and twenty Years, at the Decease of their Fathers; and have the Ordering and Management of all the Goods and Chattels of such Orphans. And the Chamberlain is a sole Corporation, to him and his Successors, for the Orphans; and a Recognizance taken to him and his Successors, relating to Orphans, shall, by the Custom of LONDON, go to his Successor.

THE Mayor and Aldermen may, by the Custom, imprison such as presume to convey away their Orphans.

UPON a Writ of Habeas Corpus, 14 H. 4. directed to the Mayor and Sheriffs of LONDON, to have the Body of John Hartwel, Citizen of LONDON, in Chancery, together with the Cause of the taking and detaining of the said John; William Waldron, Mayor, William Sevenoke, and Ralph Lovanburn, Sheriffs, return, Quod a toto tempore cujus contrarium memoria non existit, &c. "That from all Time, the "contrary to which there is no Memory of, the "Custody of all Orphans, together with all "Lands, Tenements, Goods and Chattels de"mised to them, or by hereditary Right belong"ing to them, and being within the Liberty of "the City, belonged, and ought to belong to "the Mayor and Aldermen of the said City for "the Time being, to keep for the Use and Pro"fit of the same Orphans, until they should "come to their mature Age, to be approved by "the Discretion of the Mayor and Aldermen for "the Time being, or be married by them, ac"cording to the Custom of the City aforesaid,
"hitherto obtained and used. And for that "John Hartwel had confessed before them, that "he had taken and carried out of the Liberty
"of the City, Elen, the Daughter of Thomas
"Disfer, late Citizen and Mercer of LON-"DON, within the Age of ten Years, with "divers Sums of Money, against the Will of the "Mayor and Aldermen of the same, and the "aforesaid Custom, they had committed the said
"John Hartwel to the Prison of our Lord the "King.

THERE was an old Act of Parliament, 1 R. 2. That the Mayor and Chamberlain of LONDON, for the Time being, should have the keeping of all the Lands and Goods of such Orphans as happen'd within the City; saving to the King, and other Lords, the Rights of such as held of them out of the same Liberty. But it is a Customary Court, Time out of Mind; and the Custom of Orphanage, one of the most considerable Customs of LONDON.

THE Common Serjeant is the only Person intrusted by the Court of Aldermen, to take all Inventories and Accounts of Freemen's Estates. And the Common Crier is intrusted to summon all Executors and Administrators of Freemen, to appear before the Court of Aldermen, to give Inventories and Accounts of the Personal Estate of such Freemen. The youngest Attorney in the Lord Mayor's Court is always Clerk of the Orphans, and is appointed to take all Securities for Orphans Portions. Which Securities are constantly taken in the Name of the Chamberlain of LONDON for the Time being. And the Custom is, that in case the Security live out of LONDON, they are bound by Bond; but if they live within LONDON, they are constantly bound by Recognizances.

WHEN a Freeman of LONDON dies, leaving Children under Age, the Clerks of the respective Parishes within the Bill of Mortality, ought to give the Name of such Freeman to the Common Crier of this City, who is thereupon to summon the Widow or Executor of such Freeman to appear before the Court of Aldermen, there to be bound to bring in an Inventory of the Testator's Estate.

AND note, that the Court of Aldermen always allow two Months Time for the bringing and exhibiting such Inventories.

IF the Party summon'd do not appear, the Lord Mayor may, if he please, send his Warrant and force an Appearance: And if any Executor refuse to become bound to bring in an Inventory, the Court of Aldermen may, by their Power, send such Executor to Newgate, there to remain till he submit; and the Courts at Westminster will not release such Person.

The Condition of a BOND for exhibiting an IN-VENTORY.

THE Condition of this Obligation is such, That if the above bound A. B. do, and shall within two Months now next ensuing bring and exhibit into the Court of our Sovereign Lord the King, holden before the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of LONDON for the Time being, in the Chamber of the Guildhall of the same City, a true and perfect Inventory in Writing upon his Corporal Oath, of all and singular the Goods, Chattels, Rights and Credits, Plate, Jewels, ready Money and Debts, which were due and belonging unto the said R. R. deceased, at the Time of his Death; and also if the said A. B. do not in the mean time purloin or convey the same, or any Part thereof, out of the Freedom or Liberties of the same City, without the Licence and Consent of the same Court first had and obtained in Writing; then &c. or else, &c.

AFTER such Bond given, the Executor must procure four Freemen to appraise the Testator's Goods, and must cause them to appear before a Justice of the Peace in LONDON, and take the Oath following before they appraise the Goods.

The OATH.

YOU and every of you shall swear that the Appraisement you shall make of the Goods and Chattels of A. B. late Citizen and Mercer of LONDON, deceased, shall be a just and true Valuation and Appraisement of the same Goods and Chattels, according to the best of your Judgment and Skills.

FOR which Oath the Fee is only 1 s. 4 d.

THE Common Crier must have Notice when the Appraisement is to be made; for he is appointed by the Court of Aldermen to be present when all such Appraisements are taken, that he may see the same be fairly done to the best Advantage of the Orphans: And unless the Common Crier or his Deputy be present, and the Inventory shall be signed by the Common Crier, the Court of Aldermen will not allow thereof.

THE Common Crier's Fee for signing every Inventory is 10 s. and for his Attendance, during the Time of the Appraisement, at least 10 s. per Day.

WHEN the Appraisement is made as aforesaid, and signed by the Common Crier and the Appraisers, praisers, it must be given to Mr. Common Serjeant, or one of his Clerks, at his Office in Guildhall-yard; and if he approves thereof, he will cause it to be ingrossed, and a Duplicate thereof to be made for the Executor or Administrator: And when the same is examin'd by him, and his Hand is set thereto in Testimony thereof, the Executor or Administrator must in the Court of Aldermen swear the same Inventory is a true Inventory of the Goods and Chattels of the Party deceased, according to the best of his Knowledge.

WHEN the Inventory is so exhibited, the Executor must become bound in a considerable Penalty, either to bring in the Money that shall appear due to the Orphans by such Inventory, within two Months, or, within that Time, to give good Security to pay the same into the Chamber of LONDON, for the Use of the Orphans, when they shall come to Age, or be married.

The Condition of a BOND to bring in Money, or to give Security, is as follows:

THE Condition of this Obligation is such, That if the above bound A. M. do and shall, within two Months now next ensuing, bring, or cause to be brought, into the Court of our Sovereign Lord the King, holden before the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of LONDON for the Time being, in the Chamber of the Guildhall of the same City, good and sufficient Sureties to be bound for the true and sure Payment of the Orphanage and Legatory Portions due and belonging unto the Children and Orphans of the said E. M. deceased, at the Time of his Death, by the Laws and Customs of the City of LONDON, or by the Last Will and Testament of the said Testator, or else do or shall pay, or cause the same to be paid into the Chamber of LONDON, to the Use of the same Orphans, and do and shall from Time to Time, and at all Times hereafter, within one Month next after Warning or Notice to her given, or for her left in Writing, at the now dwelling House of J. W. situate in Cornhill, LONDON, bring or exhibit into the Court aforesaid, a true and perfect Account in Writing upon her Corporal Oath, of all and singular the separate, doubtful and desperate Debts whatsoever, that were due and belonging unto the said E. M. at the Time of his Death, as shall come to her Hands, or to the Hands or Custody of any other Person or Persons to her Use, or by her Appointment: And upon like Notice to her to be given, or for her to be left in Writing as aforesaid, bring or cause to be brought into the Court aforesaid, good and sufficient Sureties to be bound for the true and sure Payment of so much Money as upon every such Account shall appear, or be found due or belonging to the same Orphans, or else do and shall pay, or cause the same to be paid, into the Chamber of LONDON, to the Use of the same Orphans, without Fraud or Covin; then &c. or else &c.

IF the Executor pay the Money into the Chamber of LONDON, the Court of Aldermen usually allow 5 l. per Cent. Interest for so much of the Testator's Estate as is due to the Orphans by the Custom of LONDON, so as the same exceed not 500 l. and for Legacy Money 3 l. 6 s. 8 d. per Cent.

IF the Executor shall not think fit to pay the Money into the Chamber, he must become bound with three Sureties to the Chamberlain of LONDON for the Time being, in one or more Recognizances, or else by Bond, to pay the Money due to Orphans; and in Case the Security live within the Liberties of LONDON, they must be bound by Bond. Note, that if the Sum be 900 l. the Security must become bound by three Recognizances, each for the Payment of 300 l. the Custom being never to make any Recognizance touching Orphans of greater Penalty than 400 l. and not for the Payment of above 300 l.

The Condition of every BOND that is for Security of ORPHANS PORTIONS, is as follows:

THE Condition of this Obligation is such, That if the within bound S. D. T. G. W. G. and J. Y. or any of them, their, or any of their Executors or Administrators, do, and shall well and truly pay, or cause to be paid, in the Court to be holden before the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of LONDON for the Time being, in the Chamber of the Guildhall of the same City, to the within named Sir T. P. Chamberlain of the City of LONDON, or his Successors of the same City for the Time being, 100 l. of lawful Money of England, to and for the Use and Behoof of K. the Daughter and sole Orphan of W. D. late Citizen and Mercer of LONDON, deceased, at such Time as the said Orphan shall attain to her full Age of twenty-one Years, or be married, to the said Orphan belonging out of the Goods, Chattels, Rights and Credits of her said Father, by the Laws and Customs of the City of LONDON, or by his last Will and Testament, or otherwise: And if it shall happen in the mean Time before the said Money shall be fully paid as aforesaid, that the said Orphan shall die and depart this mortal Life; then if the said S. D. T. G. W. G. and J. Y. or any of them, their, or any of their Executors or Administrators, do, and shall within one Month next after the Death of the said Orphan, pay, or cause to be paid unto the Court aforesaid, to the Chamberlain of the City aforesaid, for the Time being, the Sum of One Hundred Pounds so due, and belonging to the said Orphan, to the Intent the same may be disposed where of Right the same shall appertain. And further, if the said S. D. T. G. W. G. and J. Y. or any of them, their, or any of their Executors or Administrators, do and shall, until the said Money shall be fully paid as aforesaid, find and provide, or cause to be found and provided unto the said Orphan, Meat, Drink, Apparel, Linen and Woollen, and all other Necessaries to the said Orphan meet and belonging, and do not in the mean Time willingly permit or suffer the said Orphan to be married, eloyed, bound Apprentice, or by any other Ways or Means to become bound, without the special Licence and Consent of the Mayor and Aldermen of the City aforesaid for the Time being first obtained: And if it shall happen that the said S. D. T. G. W. G. and J. Y. or any of them, shall die and depart this mortal Life, or grow into Poverty or Insufficiency in their, or any of their Estate or Estates, before the said Money shall be paid as aforesaid, Then if the said S. D. T. G. W. G. and J. Y. or any of them, their or any of their Executors or Administrators, do, and shall within one Month next after such dying, decaying, growing into Poverty or Insufficiency in their or any of their Estate or Estates, as aforesaid, bring, or cause to be brought into the Court aforesaid, to be holden before the Mayor and Aldermen of the City aforesaid for the Time being, such and so many other good and sufficient Surety and Sureties as the same Court, for the Time being, shall accept and allow of, who shall and will then and there become bound to the Chamberlain of the City aforesaid, for the Time being, in Manner and Form and every Condition (Mutatis Mutandis) as in these Presents contained in the Stead or Place of him or them so dying or decaying, growing ing into Poverty or Insufficiency in Estate or Estates, as aforesaid. And lastly, if the said S. D. &c. or any of them do yearly appear before the Mayor and Aldermen of the City aforesaid, for the Time being, in the Chamber of the Guildhall of the same City, on Monday next after Midlent Sunday, that then, &c. or else, &c.

THE Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen do meet at Guildhall, and sit in the Orphans Court there, once in every Year, viz. on the Monday Morning after Midlent Sunday, purposely to hear the Names of all the Securities that stand bound for Orphans Portions called over, and therefore that Day is termed Call-day; upon which Day one of every of the Sureties ought to appear to give an Account whether the other Securities are living, and in good Condition, and whether the Orphans are living and married.

If none of the Security appear upon that Day, they forfeit their Recognizances and Bonds, and the Clerk of the Orphans in such Case must make out Process against the Security, and force them to give the Account above required, and pay the Charges of the Process.

THE Security must take particular Care that none of the Orphans marry, or be put Apprentice with their Consents without the Leave of the Court of Aldermen first obtained for that Purpose. And as the Orphans come to be of the Age of 21 Years, or shall be married with the Consent of the Court of Aldermen, they must take Care to bring them to Guildhall, with a Person to prove the Age of such Orphan; and then the Orphan must acknowledge Satisfaction for the Money due to him, or her, of the Testator's Estate, which must be done in the Court of Aldermen, but one of Mr. Common Sergeant's Clerks must first draw up a Note to this, or the like Effect:

" J. B. Parish-Clerk and Register of Albanelows, Lombard-street, LONDON, is come to prove unto this Honourable Court, upon his corporal Oath, That R. B. one of the Sons and late Orphans of R. B. late Citizen and Mercer of LONDON, deceased, is of the full Age of 21 Years. And the said R. B. the Son, is come to acknowledge Satisfaction to this Honourable Court, for 500 l. growing due unto him for his own Part and Portion of the Goods, Chattels, Rights and Credits of the said R. B. his late Father, deceased, by the Laws and Customs of the City of LONDON.

If a Freeman leaves Lands and Tenements to his Children, the Executor must become bound with Sureties to account for the Rents and Profits of such Lands with Condition, as follows:

The CONDITION of a BOND to Account for RENTS, &c.

THE Condition of this Obligation is such, That whereas A. W. Executor of the last Will and Testament of J. W. late Citizen and Skinner of LONDON, deceased, is, by Order of the Court of Orphans, holden before the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of LONDON, appointed to receive the Rents, Issues, and Profits of certain Lands, Messuages, and Tenements in the Parish of B. in the County of M. which are bequeathed to R. the Son and Orphan of the said J. W. in and by the last Will of the said J. W. when the said Orphan shall attain the Age of 21 Years: If therefore the said A. W. her Executors or Administrators, do and shall from Time to Time, and at all Times hereafter, until the said Orphan shall attain the Age of 21 Years, well and truly pay, or cause to be paid, the yearly Rent of 10 l. reserved in the Grants or Leases of the same Lands and Messuages, according to the Covenants of the same Leases: And also do, until the said Orphan shall attain the aforesaid Age, keep and maintain the said Messuages, and every of them, in good Repair; and do and shall convey, assign, and assure unto the said Orphan, when he shall attain the full Age of 21 Years, the same Lands and Messuages, and every of them, discharged and freed from all Rent or Rents in the said Leases or Grants reserved, and from all and all Manner of Forfeitures and Rentries, and well and sufficiently repaired and sustained: And if the said A. W. her Executors or Administrators, shall not do any Act or Acts, Thing or Things, whereby the said Orphan shall not enjoy the said Land and Messuages at the said Age of 21 Years, without Incumbrances, from her, them, or any of them, that then, &c. or else, &c.

WHEN any Orphan is of full Age, and shall acknowledge Satisfaction in the Court of Aldermen for all Moneys due to him or her; the same Court, upon Motion made by Mr. Common Sergeant, does constantly order, that all Bonds entered into for the Payment of such Orphans Portion shall be delivered up and cancelled, and if the Security became bound by Recognizances, the Clerk of the Orphans will cross and discharge such Recognizances, for which his Fee is 2 s. upon each Recognizance.

THE Chamber of LONDON is accounted the safest and best Security in or about LONDON; for the Moneys paid therein to the Use of the City, or any Orphan, is constantly repaid upon Demand, without any Trouble. And when Orphans come to Age, or be married, with the Consent and Approbation of the Court of Aldermen, they may receive their Portions (if paid into the Chamber) at an Hour's Notice, although the Sum shall be 10,000 l. more; Mr. Chamberlain or his Clerks attending daily for that Purpose.

THE Interest of finding Money is constantly paid as it becomes due, and the Court has always taken great Care that every Orphan shall receive his and her Portions out of the Chamber of LONDON, without paying any other or greater Fees than hath been antiently taken; and if any Officer exact or take any other Fees, the Parties will, upon their Application and Evidence of the Fact, to the Court of Aldermen, have Remedy, and all just Relief against the Offenders.

THE Widow of every Freeman, if she shall be Executrix, or Administratrix, of her Husband's Estate, ought, by the Custom of LONDON, to exhibit a true Inventory of her Husband's Estate into this Court, before she contract Marriage to another, otherwise the Court may impose a reasonable Fine upon her, to the Use of the Orphans.

To prevent Abuses that sometimes happen to Freemans Estates, in Prejudice of Orphans, by Executrices and Administratrices not giving an Inventory in due Time after the Testator's Decease; the Court of Aldermen made an Order not to allow any finding Money or Interest for any Money that should be paid into the Chamber of LONDON by any Executor or Administrator belonging to any Freeman's Estate, until such Time as the Executor or Administrator of such Freeman do bring in and exhibit upon Oath, a true and perfect Inventory, to his Knowledge, of all the Goods, Chattels, Plate, Jewels, ready Money, and Debts, which did belong to such Freeman at the Time of his Death.

IT is the Interest and Advantage of all Executors and Administrators of Freemen; to exhibit Inventories of the Estates of such Freeman within the Time limited and appointed by the Court of Aldermen, for the doing thereof; especially such as shall leave no greater Estate than to pay their Debts: For if upon the bringing any Inventory into the Court of Aldermen, it shall appear to the Court, that the Testator did not leave more Estate than to pay his just Debts; in such Case the Court will discharge such Executor or Administrator of the Recognizance he gave for exhibiting an Inventory, without paying any Fee to any Officer whatsoever: Provided such Executor or Administrator bring in such Inventory, when he shall have Notice from Mr. Common Crier so to do.

THE Court of Aldermen do commit the Custody of Orphans to such Person or Persons as they shall think fit; and if any Person whatsoever do inter-marry with any Orphan, without the Consent of the same Court first obtained, such Person may be fined by the said Court, according to the Quality and Portion of the Orphan; and unless such Person do pay the Fine, or give Bond to pay the same in some reasonable Time, the Court of Aldermen may commit him to Newgate, there to remain until he submit to their Order: And although such Person shall have ten times a better Estate than the Orphan he inter-marries, yet he must submit to pay such Fine as the Court shall impose upon him: But if he settle an Estate upon the Orphan as the Court shall direct, and make Application to the same Court by Petition to have the Fine remitted, they will, in Probability, shew Favour to such Person, as they have done in the like Cases.

THE Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons of the City of LONDON in Common-Council have made several good Acts and Orders to prevent Freemens Children from marrying without the Consent of their Parents and Guardians, and to keep them from vicious Courses; more particularly by an Act of Common-Council in the Mayoralty of Sir Andrew Judd, Knt. in the 5th Year of King Edward VI. it is enacted and established for a Law perpetual to be observed and kept within the said City, as follows, viz.

FIRST, If any Man-child or Woman-child shall maliciously go about, or attempt to do or cause to be done, any bodily Harm, Death, or Destruction to his or their Father or Mother; or if any Mankind do hereafter marry or contract Marriage in the Life of his Father or Mother, by whom he will claim any Portion under the Age of one and twenty Years, without the Consent of his said Father or Mother, by whom he will claim any Portion; or if any Woman-child do hereafter marry or contract Marriage in the Life-Time of her Father or Mother, or other Parents, by whom she shall claim any Portion before the Age of eighteen Years, without the Consent of her Father, or such other Parent, by whom she shall or may claim any Portion; or if any Man-child be a Thief; or a Felon, or common Whore-hunter, or common Dicer, common Player at unlawful Games notoriously known; or if any Woman-child shall hereafter commit any Whoredom, or be a common Picker, that then every of the Persons so offending shall be barred and excluded to have or demand any Portion: Provided always, that it shall be lawful for the Father or Mother of any such Child or Children, to give and bequeath in Legacy to such Child or Children as much as the Portion of such Child so offending shall amount unto by the Custom of the said City, and then such Child thereby to be enabled to have and demand the same as Portion, this Act notwithstanding; so that the same Legacy be contained in his or their Testament in Writing, and not otherwise; and that then and from thenceforth his said Child or Children to be admitted and restored to claim such Legacy or Legacies; in such Sort, Manner, and Form, as if there had been never such Offence done or committed by any such Child.

Item, It is further ordained; enacted, authorized and established by the Authority aforesaid, That if any Woman-child, being an Orphan, and under the Age of one and twenty Years, at any Time hereafter, after the Death of her Father, do censure or contract herself in Marriage, or else according to the Ecclesiastical Laws of this Realm, do perfectly solemnize or consummate Marriage with any Freeman of this City, the Consent and Agreement of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the said City of LONDON for the Time being not obtained and had, that then for every such Default and Offence committed or done by any Orphan or Orphans of the said City, the same being confessed or sufficiently proved by two Witnesses, or otherwise, before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the said City of LONDON for the Time being, at and in a Court of Aldermen, she or they that so happens to be have her or themselves, as is aforesaid, shall forfeit and forego and lose 12 d. of and for every Pound so due unto her or them, by Reason of such Orphanage, the said Sum of 12 d. for every Pound, to go or be to the Use of the Chamber of the said City, according to the ancient Custom before this Time in such Case used. And if the said Contract or Marriage of such Orphan or Orphans be made with any Foreign, not being free of this City, at the Time of any such Contract or Marriage made, that then the said Orphan or Orphans, or every of them, shall forfeit and lose 3 s. for every Pound due, or to be due, unto her or them by Virtue of any Orphanage or Custom had or used within the said City, 1 s. of the said 3 s. of every Pound, to go or be to the Use of the Chamber of the said City, in such Manner and Form as is aforesaid; and the other 2 s. so forfeited of every Pound to go to the Use of such other Orphan or Orphans as then shall remain unmarried, or else for Default of such Orphan or Orphans, to remain to the next of the Kindred of the Orphan so offending.

Also be it further enacted, ordained and established by the Authority aforesaid, for and in discharge of divers Variances, Contentions, and Suits that daily heretofore have, and hereafter may ensue, that if a Freeman's Child, Man or Woman, fortune to be married hereafter, in the Life-Time of his or their Father, by this Consent, and not fully advanced of and to his and her full Part or Portion of his or her said Father's Goods as he shall be worth at the Time of his Decease, according to the ancient Laws and Customs of the said City, that then every such Freeman's Child so married in the Life-Time of his or her Father, shall be to all Intents and Purposes disabled to demand any farther Part or Portion of his or her Father's Goods, after the Decease of his or her Father, but shall be adjudged, reputed, or taken to be fully advanced, according to the Law and Custom of this City, and hath been long, Time out of Mind, except his or her said Father do mention certainly in the last Will or Testament, or by some other Writing signed with his own proper Name or Mark, the Certainty of the Sum or Sums, Goods, or Chattels, and the Value of them, that the Father gave, paid, or departed withal, or otherwise assured, or hereafter shall give, pay, depart withal, withal, or otherwise make Assurance of unto him or her, before, at, or after the Marriage of him or her, or otherwise, in his Life-Time, for and towards their Advancement, in the Name of his or her Part or Portion, and then every such Orphan or Child, which after the Decease of his or her said Father, can bring forth the said Testament or other Writing signed or marked with the Father's Hand or Mark, wherein the Certainty of such Money, Goods, or Chattels as they gave, or shall have received of their said Father, or by the same Father assured by Specialty or otherwise, shall have as much more of the ready Money, Goods, Chattels, and Debts of the said Father, as with that which he or they shall have received towards their Advancement in the Life of the said Father, shall make up a full Child's Part of his Goods and Chattels, as he shall be worth at the Time of his Decease, the same to be demanded, asked, and claimed, or sued for against the Executor or Executors, Administrator or Administrators of the Goods and Chattels of the said Father, by Bill original to be commenced in our Sovereign Lord the King's Court, holden in the utter Chamber of the Guildhall of the said City, before the said Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the same City for the Time being, any Law or Custom heretofore made or used to the contrary notwithstanding; in which Action no Wager of Law or Essoign shall be admitted or allowed.

Provided always, and it is further enacted, That if any Freeman's Son, being of full Age, which shall hereafter be married with the Consent of his Father, or any other Person, being of full Age, which shall hereafter marry any Freeman's Daughter, do at the Time of the Espousals, or at any Time after, confess themselves by Writing fully satisfied of his or their Portions, or do otherwise, or discharge the said Father of such Sons or Daughters, of all their Part or Portion due, or to be due, by the Law and Custom of the City, that then every such Person so confessing, acquitting, or otherwise discharging, shall be reputed and taken as fully advanced of his or their whole Part or Portion, and shall not be able to demand any further or greater Part of the Substance, Goods, and Chattels of his or her Father, this Law or any other Law or Custom heretofore made or used to the contrary notwithstanding.

And further, Forasmuch as it is thought very prejudicial and hurtful to the Fatherless Children and Orphans, when the Mother, or Mother-in-law, being Executor of the last Will and Testament of her late Husband, by whom, and after whose Death, the Orphans are entitled to an Orphanage, according to the laudable Customs and Ordinances of this City, do divers Times marry or contract Matrimony, some with Foreigners and Persons unknown, and some with Freemen, before a just Inventory of the Goods, Chattels, Plate, Jewels, and ready Money of the Testators be by them brought in, by Reason whereof many Times they either for Fear or Affection of their Husbands, or for some other sinister Cause, do bring in very suspicious Inventories, omitting therein either ready Money, Plate, Jewels, or Debts, or some other Thing or Things, whereby some Benefit should redound to the Fatherless Children, to the great Loss and Hinderance of the Orphans, and sometimes Slander to the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of this City, notwithstanding the great Care and Travel that they take for the good ordering and true answering of the said Orphans.

It is therefore by like Authority ordained, established and enacted, That if after the First Day of November next ensuing, any Widow which is or shall be made Executor of the Testament and last Will of her late Husband, being a Freeman, or shall take upon her the Administration of the Goods and Chattels of her late Husband, being a Freeman, do not upon her Oath bring in and exhibit, or cause to be brought in or exhibited, before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of this City for the Time being, at and in a Court of Aldermen, a just and perfect Inventory, to their Knowledge of all the Goods, Chattels, Plate, and Jewels, ready Money and Debts, as were her said Husbands at the Time of his Death, appraised according to the Law or the said City, before she do insure herself in Marriage, or contract Marriage, or else according to the Laws of the Realm, do perfectly solemnize or consummate Marriage with any Person before such Time as aforesaid, that then every Person so offending shall forfeit and lose eight Shillings of every Pound of her Portion of the Goods of her Husband, due to her by the laudable Customs of the said City, the same to go to the Use of such Orphan or Orphans as then shall be intitled to have or demand any Orphanage or Portion after the Death of his or her late Father, the same so demanded, asked, claimed, or sued against such Executor or Administrator, and by Bill original of Debt to be commenced in our Sovereign Lord the King's Court aforesaid, any Law or Custom heretofore had, made, or used to the contrary notwithstanding: In which Action no Wager of Law or Essoign shall be admitted or allowed.

THIS Law or Act is called Judd's Law, and is not repealed; but the Lord Mayor and Aldermen have sometimes, for especial Reasons, thought fit to dispence with the same Act in Favour of Orphans that have sought Relief against the Penalties therein mention'd.

BUT of later Years, namely, in the Reign of King Charles II. the City Stock was so low, that there was not sufficient to pay the Orphans their Portions of Money that had been brought in for their Use: Which made no small Clamour and Noise against the City.

THE Orphans Condition being thus bad by Reason of the Insolvency of the City, they made a Petition to the Court of Common-Council in their own Behalf, and propounded therein some Ways and Means that their Debts might be satisfied. And Feb. 3, 1690, the Common-Council order'd Sir William Turner, Sir William Pritchard, Sir John Moor, Sir Samuel Dashwood, Aldermen; Sir Thomas Vernon, Sir Ralph Box, Arthur Baron, John Morrice, Francis Griffith, John Johnson, John Midgeley, and Thomas Blackmore, Commoners, to consider the Petition of several Orphans, and to receive the Proposals of the said Petitioners, or any other, and to report their Opinions concerning the same to this Honourable Court.

ACCORDINGLY they made this Report, "That they thought it reasonable, as well for the Honour of the City, as for the Satisfaction of this Court, and of the said Orphans, humbly to offer their Opinion, viz. That

" The Revenue of the City-Lands

“ be appropriated and settled, free of all Charges,
“ by Act of Common-Council, towards Payment
“ of 4 l. per Cent. per Annum, for the present Re“ lief of the Orphans.” And they proposed, that this Fund be offered to be confirmed in Pali-ament; and that Application be made to that most Honourable Court for farther Aid, as they in their great Wisdom shall think fit. Whereby a Fund of 24000 l. per Annum may be vested in the Mayor and Citizens of LONDON for Satisfaction of the Debts due to the present Orphans; and for a further Security of all Orphans Money that hereafter shall be paid into the Chamber of LONDON. This Report they gave in May 11, 1691, with the Subscription of their Names. And upon this the Act of Parliament Anno 1693, the 5th and 6th of William and Mary, was grounded, for raising an annual Sum of 8000 l. to be appropriated a perpetual Fund for the Payment of the City Orphans. Whereby 4 l. per Cent. per Annum was allowed for ever, for every Orphan’s principal Money, with the Interest of 5 l. per Cent. to the Year 1683, and of 3 l. per Cent. from thence to 1694. And the Common-Council had Power to assess upon the personal Estates of the Inhabitants of the City, 2000 l. a Year for the raising this perpetual Fund.
And other Ways and Means were appointed for the making up the said Fund, specified in the Act.

AND for the Time to come, no Person is obliged or compelled by Virtue of any Custom within the City, or by Order or Process of the Court of Orphans, to pay into the Chamber any Sum of Money, or personal Estate belonging to an Orphan of any Freemen.
IN the Year 1716, an Act of Common-Council was made for the Assessment of this 2000 l.
yearly. Which Act is as follows:

haldæ Civitatis LONDON. die Martis, any such Orphan or Creditor, That from and

And be it also enacted, directed and appointed, That the Alderman, or Deputy and Common-Council-Men of each respective Ward within this City and Liberties thereof, or the major Part of them present, (being all duly summoned by the Beadle or Beadles, by the Order of the Alderman, or his Deputy or Deputies of each respective Ward, who are hereby required to cause them to be summoned accordingly) shall on or before the 23d Day of June instant, meet together in some convenient Place or Places in each Ward, who are hereby authorized and required forthwith to put this Act in Execution, and set and appoint such an equal and proportionable Rate of Money upon the personal Estates of every Inhabitant within such Ward, as that the said Assessment may produce that Sum of Money which every Ward respectively is rated at, or appointed to pay as aforesaid, on or before the 30th Day of June

June aforesaid. And that the same, when rated or assessed, they shall subscribe their Names, and shall nominate and appoint two or more able Persons (Householders within such respective Ward or Place) to collect, levy, and pay to the Chamberlain of the said City for the Time being, and to deliver to such Persons (who shall be so nominated and appointed) a Duplicate of such Assessment so subscribed; which said Persons so to be nominated and appointed, shall collect and levy the same accordingly.

And the said Assessors shall, on or before the 3d Day of July next, deliver to the Chamberlain of the said City for the Time being, the Names of the several Collectors so by them appointed, together with the several Sums of Money they respectively stand charged with. And for the true Collection and Payment of the Moneys which shall be so collected, to the Chamberlain of LONDON for the Time being, for the Use aforesaid, such Ward or Place wherein they are so employed shall be answerable; which said Chamberlain shall give Acquittances, gratis, to the said Collectors for all Moneys of them received, whose Receipt shall be sufficient Discharge for so much unto every such respective Collector. And the said Collectors are hereby required and enjoined to levy and collect the same Rates and Assessments, according to the Duplicates thereof by them received, and to make Demand of the said Rates and Assessments of the Parties themselves, or at the Place of their Habitation or Abode, and to pay the same to the Chamberlain of the said City, on or before the 3d Day of August next.

And be it further enacted and declared, That if any Person or Persons shall refuse or neglect, for the Space of five Days after such Demand, to pay any Sum or Sums of Money whereat he, she, or they shall be rated or assessed, that then it shall and may be lawful to and for the said Collectors, or any of them, and he and they is and are hereby authorized and required, for Non-Payment thereof, by Warrant under the Hand and Seal of the Lord Mayor of this City for the Time being, or any other of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for this City and Liberties thereof (which said Warrants shall be given, gratis,) to levy the Sum or Sums so rated and assessed, by Distress and Sale of the Goods and Chattels of such Person or Persons so refusing or neglecting to pay; and the Distress so taken to sell and dispose, and thereby to raise the Sum assessed on such Person or Persons, and also to deduct thereout the reasonable Charges of taking and keeping such Distress, returning the Overplus (if any) upon Demand, to the Person whose Goods shall be so distrained; and in Case of Resistance, or Refusal, all Constables of this City, and Liberties thereof, are hereby required to be aiding and assisting to the said Collectors in the Execution of the Premises.

And it is hereby further enacted and declared, That the Deputy and Common-Council-Men of each respective Ward, or the greater Part of them present (all being duly summoned in Manner aforesaid) shall and are hereby authorized and required, on or before the 23d Day of August aforesaid, to call before them the Collectors within such respective Ward, and to examine them, and assure themselves of the full and whole Payment of the particular Sum and Sums of Money charged within and upon such Ward, and of the due Payment thereof into the Hands of the Chamberlain of LONDON: To the End there may be no Failure of the Payment of any Part thereof; and in Case of any Failure of the Premises, the Deputy and Common-Council-Men of such Ward are hereby authorized and required to cause the same to be forthwith re-assessed, levied, and paid, according to the true Intent and Meaning of this Act.

And it is also further enacted and declared, That if any Person or Persons so rated or charged, do find him, her, or themselves aggrieved with such Assessing and Rating, and do within five Days next after Demand made of the Sum or Sums of Money assessed on him, her, or them, complain to the Deputy of such Ward wherein they are assessed: In every such Case, the Deputy with the Common-Council-Men of such Ward, or the major Part of them present (being all duly summoned as aforesaid) shall and may have hereby Power within five Days next after such Complaint, to hear and determine all such Complaints, and either affirm or relieve against such Assessment, as they shall see Cause.

And if any Collector or Collectors as aforesaid, appointed or to be appointed, shall neglect or refuse to serve, or to perform his or their Duty in the speedy and due Execution of this present Act, every such Collector or Collectors shall, for every such Neglect or Refusal, forfeit and lose the Sum of five Pounds to the said Lord Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens of the said City of LONDON.

And if any Collector or Collectors, who shall by Virtue of this Act be appointed for the Receipt of any Sum of Money hereby to be assessed, neglect or refuse to pay any Sum or Sums of Money which shall be by him or them received as aforesaid, and to pay the same as in and by this Act is directed, and shall detain in his or their Hands any Money received by him, them, or any of them, and not pay the same at such Time and Place as by this Act is directed, or shall pay any Part thereof to any Person or Persons, other than to the said Chamberlain, that every such Collector shall forfeit for every such Offence double the Sum of Money by him so wrongfully paid or detained, to the said Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens.

And be it further ordained and enacted, That if the Deputy or Deputies and Common-Council-Men of any of the Wards within this City, shall refuse or neglect to deliver to the Chamberlain of this City for the Time being, by the Space of ten Days next after the said 3d Day of July, the Names of the respective Persons by them appointed to collect the said Rates and Duties respectively, and the several Sums with which they stand respectively charged, according to the Directions of this Act; that then the Chamberlain of the said City for the Time being, shall lay before the Committee of the City's Lands, at their next Meeting, an Account of the Persons so neglecting or refusing; to the Intent that the said Committee shall and may take such Course as they shall think proper and necessary, in order to compel the Persons hereby directed and appointed, to make the said Assessments, and to appoint Collectors of the same, when made, and to execute the Powers and Authorities hereby given them.

And it is hereby further enacted, That all Penalties and Forfeitures in and by this Act limited and appointed, shall and may be recovered by Action of Debt, to be commenced and prosecuted in any of the Courts of Record within this City, in the Name of the Chamberlain of the same City for the Time being: In all which Actions the Chamberlain (in Case he do recover) shall be allowed his ordinary Costs and Charges expended in and about the Prosecution of the same. And if Judgment be given against against the Plaintiff in any such Suit, or such Suit shall be discontinued, then the Defendant shall also recover his Costs.

GIBSON.

THERE were, besides what was to be raised out of the City Rents, and this 2000 l. raised by an Assessment, 600 l. a Year to be reserved for the same Use, out of the Profits arising to the City by the Glass Lights, commonly called the Convex Lights: Moreover, for the same Use, every one bound Apprentice is to pay half a Crown, and every one made Free, 5 s. and 4 s. per Ton upon all Wines imported into the Port of LONDON; and 4 d. upon every Chaldron of Coals imported to LONDON, to the 29th of September 1700, and from thence a further Sum of 6 d. per Chaldron so imported, that is, 10 d. every Chaldron; and for Coals sold by the Ton, for every 2000 Weight 6 d. This last Imposition to continue for 50 Years only.

THE Chamberlain, or other Officer, that shall misapply any of the Money so appointed, to forfeit treble the Sum; to be recovered by any the Orphans or Creditors that will sue for the same in any of the King's Courts of Record.

AND any Person to whom any Money is payable by this Act, may, by Writing under his Hand and Seal, transfer his Right and Interest therein. And being registered in a Book to be kept for that Purpose, such Assign shall be entitled to the Benefit thereof; and such Assign may in like Manner assign again, and so toties quoties.

No Person hereafter to be compelled by Virtue of any City Custom, or by any Order or Process in the Court of Orphans, to pay or deliver into the Chamber of LONDON any Sums of Money, or personal Estate due, or to be due, to any Orphan of any Freeman.

It was, some Years ago, propounded by a good Citizen, in order to get the City free of this Burden, that if the 15 Coal-Meeters, who pay about 1700 l. each for their Places, and the 10 Corn-Meeters, who pay about 1400 l. each for their Places, were admitted into their Places without Money, but for yearly Rent, the former would pay (instead of 80 l. as they do) 350 l. per Ann. each, and the latter about 250 l. per Ann. each; which would bring 7000 l. per Ann. into the Chamber. And this, appropriated by Act of Parliament to the Orphans, would effectually secure the Payment of 4 l. per Cent. Interest, granted them by Act of Parliament, and ease the Citizens of the Tax of 2000 l. per Ann. levied upon them towards the Payment of the Interest aforesaid.

IN the Reign of his late Majesty King Geo. I. A. D. 1725, there was a Clause (Vide Chap. III. of this Book, Page 103.) in the Act for regulating Elections within the City of LONDON, which enables every Freeman, made so after the 1st of June 1725, to dispose of his Personal Estate, by Will, as he thinks fit, unless he has made any other Agreement under his Hand, or dies intestate, then his Personal Estate to be subject to, and to be distributed, and distributable, according to the Custom of the said City, which is as follows:

By the Custom of LONDON a Freeman's Widow may require a third Part of his Personal Estate, after his Debts paid, and Funeral Charges discharged, besides her Widow's Chamber furnished: And his Children may require another third Part thereof, and the Freeman may, by his last Will, give away the other third Part of his Estate, either to his Wife or any of his Children, or any other Person whatsoever; but if he shall have no Children, then his Widow may require a Moiety of his Personal Estate, after Debts paid, together with her Widow's Chamber furnished; and if a Freeman shall make his Will contrary to this Custom, and give away more than a Third of his Estate from his Wife and Children, they may be relieved against such Will by exhibiting their Bill in this Court against the Executor of such Freeman, and so much of his Will as shall be contrary to the Custom, will be declared void, and of no Effect.

IF a Freeman shall in the Time of his last Sickness, give and deliver any Part of his Goods, Chattels, or Moneys, to his Wife or Child, or any other Person, shall keep the same to her or his own Use; such Gift is against the Custom of LONDON; and the Moneys and Goods so given, shall be accounted Part of the Estate that belonged to such Freeman at the Time of his Death, and may be recovered by Bill in this Court.

IF an Unfreeman, or any other Person shall by his Will give a Legacy to an Orphan, the Court of Aldermen may compel the Executor of such Testator to pay the Money bequeathed into the Chamber of LONDON, or give Bond to pay the same, according to the Purport of the Will.

IF a Freeman die without a Will, and leave a Wife and Children, Administration of his Estate will be granted to his Widow; and she will claim a third Part of his Estate by the Custom of LONDON, and one Third must be divided amongst his Children, and the other Part thereof must be divided between his Wife and Children; and usually the Widow is allowed one Third of the Freeman's third Part, and the Children two Thirds thereof.

IF a Freeman shall give Part of his Estate to any of his Children in Life-time in Marriage or otherwise, and afterwards die and make a Will, and give away his Estate to his other Children, and shall declare that the Child he so disposed in Marriage, had received 500 l. or more of his Estate, and was thereby fully advanced; such Declaration shall not bar the Person so married, but he or she may recover an equal Share with the other Children of the personal Estate that belonged to such Freeman at the Time of his Death; but then such Person must bring in the Money received of his Father in his Life-time, and reckon it Part of the Estate left by such Freeman at his Death; and such bringing in the Money is called bringing it into Hotchpott.

IF a Freeman shall settle or make over any Part of his Estate to the Use of his Children, with Design to defraud his Wife of the full third Part, the Widow may, after his Death, set aside such Settlement by a Bill in this Court.

WHEN an Inventory is exhibited in this Court, and the Orphans can prove any Goods omitted or undervalued, or any Debts charged to be owing from the Deceased, which were not real and just Debts, in such Case the Clerk, upon Complaint made, will summon a Jury to enquire whether the Inventory so exhibited, be a true and perfect Inventory, or not; and if the Jury find any Omissions, Under-valuations, or Sur-charges, then the same Clerk will sue the Executor upon the Bond he gave for exhibiting an Inventory, and will thereby compel him to make good to the Estate so much as shall be found by the Jury to be omitted, under-valued, or sur-charged, unless he can by Proof discharge himself thereof before the Court of Aldermen, who, upon Application made by any Executor, will examine into the Accounts of such Executor, and do Right to all Parties, without any Expence to the Executor or the Orphans.

WHEN it shall appear by any Inventory that many Debts are standing out due to the deceased, the Court of Aldermen do constantly compel pel the Executor to give Bond to render a true Account from Time to Time when he shall be thereunto required; the Condition of which Bond is as follows:

The Condition of a BOND to Account.

THE Condition of this Obligation is such, That if the above bounden A. B. do at all and every Time and Times hereafter, within one Month next after Warning to him to be given, or for him to be left in Writing at the now dwelling House of R. B. situate in Cornhill in LONDON, bring and exhibit into the Court of our Sovereign Lord the King, to be holden before the Mayor and Aldermen of the City aforesaid for the Time being, in the Chamber of the Guildhall of the same City, a true and perfect Account in Writing upon his Corporal Oath, of all and singular the separate, doubtful and desperate Debts whatsoever, which were due and belonging to R. R. late Citizen and Grocer of LONDON, deceased, at the Time of his Death, as shall come to his Hands or Custody, or to the Hands or Custody of any other Person or Persons to his Use, or by his Appointment, and upon like Notice to him to be given, or for him to be left in Writing as aforesaid, bring, or cause to be brought, into the Court aforesaid, good and sufficient Sureties to be bound for the true and sure Payment of so much Money as upon every such Account shall appear, or be found due or belonging to the Children and Orphans of the said R. R. or else do and shall pay, or cause to be paid into the Chamber of LONDON, to the Use of the same Orphans, so much Money as upon every such Account shall appear, or be found due or belonging to the same Orphans; that then £c. or else £c.

It is usual once in twelve Months to summon the Executor to give an Account, and if upon the exhibiting thereof it shall appear that any Money is due to the Orphans, the Executor must either pay the same Monies into the Chamber of LONDON, or give good Security to pay the same; which if he omit or refuse, his Bond will be put in Suit against him.

The METHOD for giving an ACCOUNT.

THE Executor must write an Account of his Receipts and Payments since the Inventory exhibited, and give it to Mr. Common Serjeant, who will examine it, and cause it to be ingrossed, and set his Hand thereunto, and to a Duplicate thereof for the Executor; and then the Executor must make Oath before the Court of Aldermen that the Account is true.

Note, That if any Executor cannot give in his Account according to the Time mention'd in his Bond, he must apply himself to the Court of Aldermen for further Time, which is usually granted.

Here followeth the Form of a Bill for the Son of a Freeman unadvanced by his Father in his Life-time, to recover the customary Part of his Father's Estate.

To the Right Honourable, &c.

HUMBLY complaining, sheweth unto your Lordship and Worships, your daily Orator A. B. of LONDON, Gent. Son of J. B. late Citizen and Mercer of LONDON, deceased, That whereas there is now, and for all the Time whereof the Memory of Man is not to the contrary, there hath been an antient and laudable Custom used, continued, and approved within this honourable City of LONDON, and Liberties thereof, and by several Acts of Parliament ratified and confirmed, that if any Citizen and Freeman of this said City of LONDON happen to die, having at the Time of his Death no Wife, but a Child or Children of his Body lawfully begotten, unadvanced in the Life-Time of such Citizen and Freeman with the Goods and Chattels of such Citizen and Freeman so deceasing; and such Citizen and Freeman of the said City of LONDON so deceasing, being

ing at his Death possessed of, or any Ways interested in any Goods, Chattels, and other Personal Estate, and so dying a Freeman of the said City of LONDON, then, and in such Case, all and singular the Goods, Chattels, and Personal Estate whereof such Citizen and Freeman of the said City of LONDON was so possessed of; or interested in at the Time of his Death, after the Deduction and Defalcation made of the just and due Debts that were owing by such Citizens and Freeman so deceasing at the Time of his Death, and of the reasonable and customary Expences of the Funeral of such Citizen and Freeman so deceasing, is and ought to be, and for all the Time aforesaid have been accustomed to be divided into two equal Moieties and half Parts and Portions, and disposed of in Manner following, viz. one Moiety and equal half Part thereof doth belong, and ought to go to the Child of such Citizen and Freeman of the said City, of his Body lawfully begotten, and unadvanced by his or her said Father in his Life-Time, with the Goods or Chattels of such Citizen and Freeman so deceasing; and if such Citizen and Freeman of LONDON so dying, shall have more than one Child of his Body lawfully begotten, at the Time of his Death, unadvanced by their said Father in his Life-time with the Goods and Chattels of such Citizen and Freeman so deceasing, then the said Moiety or equal half Part of the Goods, Chattels, and other personal Estate whereof such Citizen and Freeman shall die possessed of, or be interested in, at the Time of his Death, doth belong, and ought to go and be divided to and amongst such Children of such Citizen and Freeman of the said City, of his Body lawfully begotten, and unadvanced by his, or her, or their said Father in his Life-time, with the Goods or Chattels of such Citizen and Freeman so deceasing, Share and Share alike as his, her, and their Orphanage or Customary Part and Portion of, and in the said Goods, Chattels, and other personal Estate of such Citizen and Freeman so deceasing; and the other Moiety or equal Part of the said Goods, Chattels, and other personal Estate whereof such Citizen and Freeman of the said City of LONDON, shall die possessed of, or be any way interested in at the Time of his Death, doth belong to such Citizen and Freeman so deceasing, to be at his Dispose in and by his last Will, if he shall make any, or to go to the Executor or Executors of such last Will and Testament; or to the Administrator or Administrators of the Goods and Chattels of such Citizen and Freeman so deceasing, as the Case doth require; and by the said Custom of this Honourable City of LONDON, all and every Wills and Testaments; Devise or Devises; or other Acts made or done by any such Citizen of the said City of LONDON, for devising, settling, or disposing of his personal Estate, or any Part thereof, contrary to, or not agreeable with the said Custom of the said City of LONDON, is, and are, and Time out of Mind have been deemed and adjudged by the Usage of the said City, as unto so much thereof as hath been contrary to the said Custom, fraudulent, void, and of none Effect: And your Orator further sheweth, that his said late Father J. B. was in his Life-time, and at the Time of his Death, a Citizen and Freeman of this Honourable City of LONDON (to wit) of the Company of Mercers of LONDON, and was then possessed of, and interested in a personal Estate, consisting in Goods; Chattels, Wares, Leafes, Ready Money, Plate, Household-stuff, Linen, Woollen, Bedding; Brass and Pewter, and of Debts due by Specialties; and of Debts due without Specialties, and of other Things of the Value of Eight Hundred Pounds. And he the said J. B. being so possessed of such Estate, did in his Life-time, viz. in or about the Day of last, make his last Will and Testament in Writing, and thereof did constitute and appoint E. B. his Executor; and shortly afterwards, viz. on the Day of last past, by the said J. B. your Orator's said late Father departed this Life, being at the Time of his Death a Citizen and Freeman of this City, and then possessed of, and interested in the personal Estate aforesaid, having no Wife, and but one only Child, viz. your said Orator, who was altogether unadvanced by his said late Father in his Life-time with the Goods or Chattels of his said late Father: And he the said E. B. shortly after the Death of the said J. B. proved the said last Will and Testament, and took upon him the Execution thereof; and by Virtue thereof the said E. B. hath possessed himself of all and every the said Goods, Chattels, Leafes, Ready Money, Plate, Household-stuff, Linen, Woollen, Bedding, Brass, Pewter, and other the said personal Estate, whereof the said J. B. your Orator's said late Father, died possessed, or that he was interested in at the Time of his Death, or of the greatest (or a very considerable) Part thereof, or the same is come to the Hands; Custody, or Possession of some other Person or Persons, by or with his Privity, Knowledge, or Consent; and the said E. B. or some other Person or Persons on his Behalf, have had and received some of the said Debts and Sums of Money that were due and owing to the said Testator at the Time of his Death, and hath altered the Property of others of the said Debts, by taking new Securities for the same in the Name of himself, or in the Name or Names of some other Person or Persons in Trust, to and for his Use: And the said E. B. hath possessed himself of divers Bonds, Bills obligatory of Debt, Accounts, Books of Accounts, and other Writings and Papers that belonged to the said Testator at the Time of his Death. And your Orator further sheweth, That your Orator's said late deceased Father J. B. in his Life-time, viz. about two Months next before his Death, finding himself drawing towards his End, and honestly intending to pay and discharge all his just Debts before he died, did deliver unto the said E. B. the Sum of 100 l. or thereabouts in trust; that he should therewith pay his the said Testator's said Debts, and to render an Account thereof, and restore the Residue or Overplus thereof (all his said Debts being satisfied) unto the said Testator; and he the said E. B. did accordingly satisfy (or ought to have paid) therewith all the Debts that your Orator's said late deceased Father J. B. did then justly owe, so that the said Testator was not at the Time of his Death indebted to any Person whatsoever, or if he were, yet it was in some very inconsiderable Sum of Money: But he the said E. B. render'd no Account of the said 100 l. or other Sum, or of any Part thereof, unto the said Testator in his Life-time; nor did he repay to the said Testator the Overplus of the same over and besides what was by him disbursed in or towards Payment of the said Debts, as by the said Trust reposed in him as aforesaid, he ought to have done. And your Orator further sheweth, That one Moiety or equal half Part of the said clear personal Estate whereof your Orator's said late deceased Father J. B. was possessed of, and interested in at the Time of his Death, as aforesaid, amounting to the Sum of 400 l. or thereabouts, and the same being due unto your said Orator by the said Custom of this Honourable City, as your Orator is the only Child that his said late Father had at the Time of his Death, and was altogether unadvanced by your Orator's said said late Father, by or with the Goods or Chattels of his late Father, in his said late Father's Life-time; and the said Testator having no Wife at the Time of his Death, your said Orator hath lately in friendly Manner demanded your Orator's said customary Part of his said late Father's personal Estate of him the said E. B. But so it is, may it please your Lordship and Worships, that the said E. B. doth absolutely deny to satisfy the same to your Orator, and will not discover the said Testator's said Estate, but concealing the same, hath not exhibited any Inventory of the Particulars of the same Estate; but if he hath exhibited any Inventory thereof, the same is a very untrue and imperfect Inventory, and many of the Particulars therein mentioned are therein, and in the Appraisement thereof greatly undervalued; and divers Particulars of the said Testator's said Estate are wholly omitted out of such Inventory; and the same Inventory is surcharged with divers Debts supposed to be due by the said Testator at the Time of his Death to several Persons, whereas in Truth the same were, in the Life-time of the said Testator, paid and satisfied by the said Testator himself, or by the said E. B. for and on the said Testator's Behalf, and by his Order, and with the proper Moneys of the said Testator as aforesaid; and the said E. B. hath omitted out of the said Inventory several Debts that were due and owing to the said Testator at the Time of his Death; and the said E. B. hath not made any Account of the said 100 l. or other Sums so delivered to him by the said Testator, or Order, in his Life-time, in Trust for Discharge of the said Testator Debts; nor hath he brought the Overplus (or any Part) thereof to the Estate of the said Testator's: All which Doings of the said E. B. tend to your Orator's great Wrong, and to the defrauding him of his said customary Part of his said late Father's personal Estate, and are contrary to Equity and good Conscience. In tender Consideration of all which Premises, and forasmuch as your said Orator hath no Remedy or Relief touching the Premises, at or by the strict Rules of the Common Law of this Realm, for that your Orator's Witnesses, by whom he should prove the Particulars of the said Estate, and other the Premises to be such as they are hereby afore declared, are in Parts beyond the Seas, and in Places far remote from this Honourable City, so as your Orator knoweth not where readily to find them; but your Orator is only relievable in the Premises in this Court of Equity, where Matters of this Nature are most properly to be examined; and where your Orator doth well hope that the said E. B. will, upon his Oath, discover the Truth of the Premises (being thereunto required) to the Intent therefore that the said E. B. may set forth a true, perfect, and exact Inventory and Account of all and every the Goods and Chattels, Leases, ready Money, Plate, Household-Stuff, Debts due by Specialties and otherwise, and other the said personal Estate whereof the said E. B. died possessed, or was any Ways interested in at the Time of his Death, and the true and particular Values of the same, and how much the personal Estate doth amount unto; and that he may set forth all and every the Particulars of the same Estate, that within two Months before the Death of the said Testator, or at any Time since hath come to the Hands, Custody, or Possession of him the said E. B. or of any other Person or Persons, by or with his Knowledge, Privity, or Consent, and of whom and where the same are, and the particular Values of them also, and all and every the Debts, Sum and Sums of Money that he the said E. B. or his Order, hath had or received, that were owing or belonging to the said Testator, at his Death, or to his said Estate since his Death; and may also set forth, whether the said Testator, or Order, did not in his Life-time deliver unto him the said E. B. the Sum of 100 l. or some other Sum of Money, and how long before his Death, and to what Use or Purpose; whether it was not in Trust that he the said E. B. should therewith pay and discharge such Sums of Money or Debts, or some of them, that he the said Testator did then owe, and how and to whom he the said E. B. did pay or dispose of the same, or any Part thereof in the said Testator's Life-time, and how much thereof did remain at the Death of the said Testator undisposed of; and whether there remained any Debt or Debts due by the said Testator at the Time of his Death unsatisfied, and may declare the Particulars of the same Debts, and the Names, Surnames, and Places of Abode of all and every the Persons to whom the same were respectively due; and may also declare how much the one Moiety, or one half Part of the said Testator's clear personal Estate whereof he died possessed, or was interested any Ways in at the Time of his Death, doth amount unto; and may set forth a Particular of all and every the Bonds, Bills, Leases, Books of Accounts, and other Accounts, Papers, and Writings of and belonging to and concerning the said Testator and his Estate, that hath come to his Hands, Custody, or Knowledge, and the respective Contents of the same; and may answer all and singular other the Premises, and your Orator be therein relieved according to Equity; may it please your Lordship and Worships of your accustomed Goodness to cause the said E. B. to be warned, &c. to answer the Premises upon his Corporal Oath; and that he may be enjoined to perform and abide such Order and Decree in and touching the Premises, as to your Lordship and Worships, upon hearing the Cause, shall seem meet.

And your Orator shall pray, &c.

The COURT of ALDERMEN.

THIS is a Court of Record: All Matters touching Lights, Water-Courses, and Party-Walls, may be tried and determined in this Court. In this Court also the Assize of Bread is always appointed. And here all Bonds and Leases that pass under the City Seal must be sealed. The Place where this Court is held, is the inner Chamber of Guildhall; the Days are Tuesdays and Thursdays, except Holidays, and the three first Weeks in August, and in the Time of the Sessions of Jail Delivery.

THE yearly Election of 11 Overseers and Rulers of all the Wherry-men, Watermen, and Lightermen, that exercise Rowing between Gravesend and Windsor, is in the Mayor and this Court of Aldermen, by Virtue of an Act of Parliament, 11 and 12 W. III. and likewise by an Act, 2 and 3 Pb. and M. this Court has Power to limit, set, and assess the Price that Watermen shall take of their Passengers, as their Fare and Reward; the said Assessments being first brought to be viewed by some of the Privy-Council, and signed and sealed with the Hands of any two of them. And accordingly, Sept. 7. in the Year 1671, Sir Richard Ford being Mayor, the Fares of the Watermen were appointed, which stand to this Day; the List whereof is set down in Book I. Chap. VI.

THIS Court also may punish any of the City Officers, misbehaving themselves, upon Complaint made to the said Court, and Proof of the Fact, by suspending them from the Profits of their Places, during the Pleasure of the Court. These Officers are divers, most of whose Places are bestowed by the Lord Mayor and this Court of Aldermen; for the List of them see Book I. Chap. XVI.

The COURT of COMMON-COUNCIL.

The Court of Common-Council.

THE Court of Common-Council is another Court of the City, of great Use and Authority, and so much the more Honourable, as it is observed by some, to have a Resemblance to the High Court of Parliament, as consisting of two Ranks of Men, like the Upper and Lower House, viz. the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, resembling the House of Peers, and the Common-Council-Men answering the Commoners; and these are ordinarily such as are of the best Abilities, both for Discretion and Wealth, and elected by the Inhabitants of each of the 26 Wards, as their respective Representatives, and the Matters here agreed and concluded upon, are styled Acts; and in this Courts are made Laws for the Advance of Trade, and for the good Government of the City, according to the Emergencies thereof, which are obligatory to all the Inhabitants, as consistent with the Laws of the Land. The Commons do give their Assent by holding up their Hands.

It is held in the Chamber of Guildhall, by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council of the City, at such Times as the Lord Mayor shall appoint and direct; and it is in the said Mayor's Power both to call and dismiss this Court at his Pleasure.

How antient this Common-Council was, is uncertain; but in the 2d of Richard I. (which was about the Year when the City began first to be governed by a Mayor) on the 11th of October, there was a solemn Meeting in St. Paul's Church-yard, it is likely in that Place where the Folk-mote used to assemble. At this Meeting came John Earl of Moreton, the King's Brother, the Archbishop of Roan, and all the Bishops, Earls, and Barons, with the Citizens of LONDON; where, among other Things done, the said Earl, the Archbishop, (who was Chancellor of England) and other the King's Justices, granted to the Citizens of LONDON, to have and enjoy Communiam suam, i. e. their Commonalty; which, it seems, had some Time before been restrained or interrupted; and the same Year the said Earl Moreton, the Archbishop, and almost all the Bishops, Earls and Barons of the Realm, took an Oath, that they would firmly and steadfastly keep the same Commonalty, as long as it should please their Lord the King, as Dr. Brady, in his historical Treatise of Cities and Burghs, sets down from Hoveden.

SEVERAL Committees are annually appointed and elected by this Court, for the better and more speedy Dispatch of the City's Affairs, who make Report to this Court of their Doings and Proceedings, as Occasion requires, viz.

1. A Committee of six Aldermen and 12 Commoners for letting and demising the City's Lands and Tenements, who usually meet every Wednesday in the Afternoon at Guildhall for that Purpose.

2. A Committee of four Aldermen and eight Commoners to lett and dispose of the Lands and Tenements given by Sir Thomas Gresham, who usually meet at Mercer's-Hall at such Time as the Lord Mayor for the Time being directs and appoints; it being the Custom to elect the Lord Mayor one of this Committee.

3. This Court does also annually elect Commissioners for the Sewers and Pavements.

4. This Court does also annually elect a Governor, Deputy-Governor, and Assistants, for Management of the City's Lands in Ulster in Ireland, pursuant to the King's Charter, which is as follows, viz.

WE will also, and by these Presents for us, our Heirs and Successors, do grant, constitute, and ordain, That the aforesaid Society of the Governor and Assistants of LONDON, of the new Plantation in Ulster, within the Realm of Ireland, for ever hereafter shall be yearly elected and appointed by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the said City of LONDON, at the first Common-Council to be holden in the same City of LONDON, next after the Feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, at which Time the Deputy of the Governor, and 12 of the same Persons which have been Assistants for the Year precedent, shall be removed from the Office, and one other Deputy, and 12 other Assistants, shall be of new named, supplied, and appointed into the Places of the same Deputy and Assistants, so as aforesaid to be removed, for the Help of the Governor and Assistants not removed, for one Year next following; and that at the End of that Year then next following, such former Assistants which continued in the same Office in that Year then proceeding, shall be then likewise removed, and others shall be likewise of new named, supplied, elected, and appointed into their Places, and so by an interchangeable Course, so that 12 of the same Assistants shall be and continue in their Places, during the Term of two Years.

And further, We will, ordain, and constitute for us, our Heirs and Successors, That at a Common-Council in the aforesaid City of LONDON, next after the Feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, next after the Date of these Presents, the Nomination and Election of the aforesaid Governor, Deputy, and Assistants be, shall be, and shall be made in Form aforesaid, and so from thenceforth yearly, from Time to Time, for ever.

THERE are these Properties belonging to this Court: A Stranger born may be made free of this City by Order of this Court, and not otherwise.

THE Places of Common-Sergeant, Common-Clerk, or Town-Clerk, Judges of the Sheriffs Courts, Common-Crier, Coroner, Bailiff of the Borough of Southwark, and Garbler, are in the Gift of this Court.

THE Clerk of the Court of Requests, commonly called the Court of Conscience; was once elected by this Court, viz. after the Death of John White; this Court did elect and choose Major Gunstone Clerk in his Stead; but Mr. White had been elected by the Court of Aldermen; and always before and since the Election of Major Gunstone, the Court of Aldermen have elected the respective Clerks of that Court. And it hath been declared by Council learned in the Law, that the Right of electing a Clerk of the Court of Requests is not in this Court.

THE Commoners in this Court are 234 Persons, but in Representation many thousands.

THIS Court of Common-Council, in the 6th of Henry VII. April the 15th, conferred a Power upon the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, that at the Election of Chamberlain, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen should present two Men to the Commonalty, and the Commonalty to choose one of them to be Chamberlain. In the same Act of Common-Council, this Court conferred a Power upon the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, that at the Election of Bridge-Master, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen should present four Men to the Commonalty, and the Commonalty to to choose two of them to be Bridge-Masters: But June 21, 1643, this Court of Common-Council repealed the former Act of Common-Council of Hen. VII. and took away that Power from the Mayor and Aldermen, which before was by the Law conferred upon them, and so settled the Choice of Chamberlain and Bridge-Masters in statu quo prius.

IN the Year 1644, Sir Thomas Atkins Lord Mayor, there happened a Controversy between the Commoners of this City, and the Mayor and Aldermen, claiming their long Liberties and Privileges in the Choice of the City Officers, which they pretended were encroached upon by former Mayors and Aldermen. This occasioned John Bellamy, one of the Common-Council, and, as it seems, well seen in the Laws, especially of the City, to make a Motion in a Common-Council, Jan. 16, 1644, to the Mayor and Aldermen, to this Purport: "That one special Means that he had oft observed to obstruct the good Proceedings of that Court, might be removed; which was, that the Mayor caused the Sword to be taken up, and then went away; and so dissolving the Court without the Consent, yea, against the Desire of the major Part." The Remedy he proposed for the Redress of this Grievance was, "That by the Power of the Council there might a Law be established, that the Court might not at any Time be dissolved or adjourned, without the Consent of the major Part, both of Aldermen and Commons in Common-Council assembled." Upon this Speech, and their aforesaid pretended Claim, there was a Committee appointed to state the Question in Debate, between the Aldermen and Commoners, Members of this Court of Common-Council; but after three Days Debate, they found little Success in their Business. And the aforesaid Bellamy, being one of the Committee, delivered a long Speech, Feb. 24, to give an Account to the Court how, in his Judgment, he conceived the Right and Truth therein did stand; which was afterwards by him printed, and called, "A Plea for the Commonalty of LONDON; or, A Vindication of their Rights, (which have been long Time with-holden from them) in the Choice of sundry City-Officers. As also a Justification of the Power of the Court of Common-Council, in making of Acts or By-Laws, for the Good and Profit of the Citizens, notwithstanding the negative Votes of the Mayor and Aldermen, fully proved by several Charters granted to the City, &c." Therein he shewed, how the Charters of antient Kings to the City, all ran "To the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the City of LONDON; or, To the Mayor and Commonalty of the City of LONDON:" He reminded them of the Charter of Edw. III. in the 15th of his Reign; where the Mayor and Aldermen, with the Assent of the Commonalty, have Power, as to explain, so to amend the old, or to make new Laws, for the common Benefit of the Citizens. And before him, of that of King John in the first of his Reign; and of King Edward II. in the 12th of his Reign; where the sole Power, both to elect and to amove the Sheriffs, the Chamberlain, the Common Clerk, and the Common Serjeant, is wholly left to the Pleasure of the Commonalty, without any Reference to the Mayor and Aldermen. Thus it was clear, he said, that the Commonalty had by the Charters an equal Share with the Mayor and Aldermen, in the Privileges granted to the City. And if there were any Difference, as there was in the Choice of some City Officers, the Advantage was unto the Commons.

THEN he went about to prove it by Practice; shewing, that all the Acts of Common-Council, which were the City's Laws, were made, as in the joint Names, so by the joint Power, of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common-Council. And gave some particular Instances of Things done by the Power of this Court: As, March 4, 1641, the removing of Deputy Alden from being a Member of that Court. Sept. 5, 1642, the putting away of Mr. John Weld from being Town Clerk of this City. Feb. 18, 1642, the expelling of Thomas Wiseman, the City Remembrancer, out of this Office. April 21, 1643, the amoving of divers Aldermens Deputies from their Place of Deputyship. And all by the joint and concurrent Power and Authority of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons, in this Common-Council assembled. That the determinative Power of this Court, is in the Plurality of the Votes of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons conjunctim. And that the Lord Mayor and Aldermen have in this Court no more Power of a negative Voice, than other single Persons. For which he brought this Instance: Febru. 17, 1641, a Petition was brought into this Court, directed only To the Lord Mayor and Aldermen; and because it was not directed To the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons, in Common-Council assembled, this Court refused to take any Cognizance of it. But then Sir Richard Gurney, Mayor, with the major Part of the Aldermen then present, in that Common-Council, would have the Court to admit of that Petition; and the Court refusing, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen would have the Court divided, and number'd by Poll; and so it was done. And there were for the Petition, the Lord Mayor and seven Aldermen, and sixty-one Commoners; and against the Petition, five Aldermen, and eighty-five Commoners. And thus the Members of this Court, both Aldermen and Commoners, being reckoned together by the Poll on both Sides, as Members of this Court, the Question was determined, the Petition rejected, and the Power and Authority of this Common-Council maintained.

BUT whereas it was objected, that the Choice of some City Officers had been Time out of Mind in the Power of the Mayor, or Aldermen, and not in the Commonalty; he answer'd, That it was confessed, that a great while the Choice of these, (as the Sheriff to be chosen by the Lord Mayor's Prerogative, and the Common Clerk and Common Serjeant by the Court of Aldermen) and some other City Officers, have been suffered to run along in these Channels of pretended Prerogative, and unwarrantable Custom; but from the Beginning it was not so. And if this were given away by Consent, as I will not, added he, deny but our Forefathers, in their Times, might be persuaded, upon specious Shews, and peradventure, in their Esteem, upon solid Reasons, to make over a Part of their Power into the Hands of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen; yet, if Reason and just Cause require, the Power of this Council may assume it again into the Hands of the Commonalty. As it did upon the like Cause, June 21, 1643, re-assume the sole Power of chusing the Chamberlain and Bridge-Master.

THIS was the Sum of Bellamy's Speech in the Common-Council. Whereupon the Difference about the City's Privileges were, by Order of the Court of Common-Council, referred to a Committee of Aldermen and Commoners, to consider of some Expedient for reconciling thereof. And the Committee after several Debates, concluded upon a probable Means for the ending of it. And April 24 following, brought in their Report; and upon reading thereof, the whole Court did approve prove it. And hence, perhaps, the Elections stand upon the present Foot.

THE Commonalty oftentimes, and at these Meetings, when they were minded to have certain Inconveniencies redress'd, or good Orders made for the preserving of their Liberties, and the like, did formerly use to petition the Mayor and Aldermen. Some of these Petitions are in the Records of the Chamber; two of them in the Reign of King Edward II. which are as follow:

Petitiones Communitatis.

DIE Mercurii, &c. "On Wednesday before the Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin, in the fifth Year of the Reign of King Edward, Son of King Edward, a Congregation of the honest Men of the City was made, present John de Gisors, Mayor, William Seruat, John de Wengrave, Nigell Drury, &c. Aldermen; wherein they prayed the Articles underwritten.

"First, That no Stranger for the Time to come be admitted to the Freedom of the City, unless by the Consent of the Commonalty, or in a common Congregation, or in a full Hustling, the Commonalty present.

"Also, that no Letters, by which the Commonalty may or ought to be charged, or obliged toward any Thing, be made for the Time to come, nor sealed by the Seal of the Commonalty, before the Commonalty be met together for this Purpose; and they yield unanimous Consent to it.

"Also it was petition'd, that the Common Seal for the Time to come, remain in some common Chest, under six Locks: Of which, three Aldermen have three Keys, and three honest Men of the Commonalty, the three other Keys.

WHENCE we may gather the Value the Citizens set upon their Freedoms, and how they were given underhand, and gotten often by Stealth, without the Consent and Allowance of the whole Commons; and that the Seal was kept in private Hands, and too much at the Command of the Aldermen, or some of them.

THE Year after this they petition'd again, as follows:

A PETITION exhibited to the Mayor and Aldermen by the Commonalty.

ON Friday next, before the Feast of St. Nicholas, in the 6th Year of King Edward, the Son of King Edward, were gathered together at Guildhall, LONDON, John de Gisors, Mayor, and many Aldermen and honest Men of the City of every Trade; who came to treat upon certain Articles and Businesses for the whole Commonalty; and shewed certain Grievances following to the said Mayor and Aldermen. Upon which they propounded certain Articles ordained for the common Profit, requiring, that for the Remainder they be firmly observed.

"First of all, that firm Peace and good Concord be nourished and preserved in a neighbourly Unity through the whole City.

"Also, for that many Fellow-Citizens of the said City, whose Counsel and Assistance is always necessary to maintain the same City, are by Reason of their Juvenile Age, less sufficiently instructed, as to the Laws and Liberties, and ancient Customs of the City; it is agreed, that such Liberties, Usages, and Customs, as concerning those which belong to the Offices of divers Bailiffs, as well within the City as in the Gates of the same; and also the Statutes and Manners, whereby divers Trades, as well those of Merchants or Workmen, ought to be regulated; be, according to Right, enrolled in some certain Register, and be read once or twice every Year, in a common Assembly: And for the Time to come it be not denied to the Citizens, that are minded, to have a Transcript thence, or an Inspection.

"And also, That every Alderman, in the Terms accustomed in this City, hold their Wardmotes, and do more diligently such Things which are incumbent upon their Duties, as they are more firmly tied by the Bond of their Oath, under Pain of Degradation from the Office of Alderman.

"Also, for that the Sheriffs, Aldermen, and Serjeants, by Authority of their Bailiery, do not desist to make Extortions and Forfeitures, not to be suffered, without Consideration or Judgment of the Mayor and Aldermen, upon divers that bring Victuals to the City; and also, where they, the said Bailiffs, ought to do speedy Right to all complaining before them, according to the Laws and Customs of the said City, the said Bailiffs, for Malice and Covetousness, are found so remiss and impotent to do Right and Justice, that scarce any can be dispatched before them in due Manner: So that now no small Murmuring ariseth anew in the People of the City; and a manifold Scandal beginneth thence to hang over us: It is agreed, that the said Mayor and Aldermen more diligently enquire upon these Grievances; and that they provide a seasonable Remedy hereupon, as is fit.

"Also, because in Times past, whereof no Memory is, as also in modern Times, the City is wont to be defended and governed by the Wealth and Counsel, as well of honest Men of Mercantile Trades, as of other Trades wrought by Hand; and it hath antiently been used, that no extraneous Person, be he homebred or a Foreigner, of whose Conversation and State a certain Knowledge might not be had, should be admitted into the Liberty of the City, unless first such Merchants and Tradesmen of the City, exercising the Trade which such to be admitted intended to use, be lawfully called; that by the Citizens themselves so called together, the Mayor and Aldermen being certified of the Condition and Fidelity of such Persons to be admitted, might know, if they were to be admitted or refused.

"The whole Commonalty petitioneth, that the aforesaid Form, whereby the greater Trades of Merchants or Handicrafts-Men were ordered, be for the future observed, lest any for Time to come be admitted to the Liberty of the City, contrary to the aforesaid Provision.

CONCERNING the Election of Aldermen for the Wards, and especially of Common-Council-Men, there have been great Contests, when upon Vacancies, two Parties have been set up to be chosen, and the Persons elected not allowed by one Side, on Pretence of an undue Election, Petitions have been drawn up and preferred to the Common-Council, complaining of the said Election: And upon such Petitions, the Common-Council have appointed a Committee to consider the same. And thereupon, by their Order, Suits in Law have been commenced; the Charges whereof have been out of the City Cash: Which from November 8, 1711, unto the Year 1718, cost the City 2827*l.* 10*s.* as it was brought into the House of Lords in the Year 1719, by the Town Clerk and Chamberlain.

FOR the stopping of this great Expence of the City for Time to come, an Endeavour was made to find out an Expedient, by Application to the King's-Bench, upon such a controverted Election. When, on the 6th of February, 1717, such a Petition of an undue Election was exhibited to the Common-Council by Edward Bridgen, Peter Bolton, and others, complaining, (as it is taken out of an Order of the House of Lords, for the Printing of the Report and Resolution, 17 April, 1719.) that Robert Jeffs and Stephen King were declared duly elected Common-Council-Men for Tower Ward, in Prejudice of the Petitioners Bridgen and Bolton's Right. Which Petition was received by the Common-Council, who the same Day appointed a Committee to examine the Allegations thereof, and to issue such Money as they should appoint for Advice, or other necessary Expences in this Matter. And their Lordships (viz. the Committee of the Lord's House, before whom this Matter now was come) were informed, that this Practice of the Common-Council, of issuing the City Cash, in taking Part with Citizen against Citizen; and in assuming to themselves a Right of judging contested Elections of the City Officers, grew so heavy, that it became necessary to apply for Remedy to the Court of King's-Bench, to put a Stop to so growing an Evil.

AND for this Reason, the said Mr. Jeffs and Mr. King moved the said Court, and thereupon obtained a Prohibition, to restrain the Common-Council from intermeddling with the Examination of that Election; with Directions however to declare in such Manner as to bring the Point to be tried, Whether the Common-Council had, or had not a Right of examining such contested Elections. And accordingly a Declaration was delivered; and therein, and in the Proceedings thereon, the Point was tendered to be put in Issue: But, to avoid such Trial, the Defendants demurred, which coming to be argued, Judgment was given for the said Jeffs and King. And then Writs of Error were brought, returnable in Parliament, and after a considerable Delay, (on Account of a pretended Loss of the Rolls or Records) the general Errors being assigned by the Plaintiffs in Error came to be argued; and no Council appearing for them, the Judgment of the Court of King's-Bench was affirmed with Costs.

THIS, with other Things reported by the said Lords to the House, and Consideration had thereof, and Debate thereupon, the House came to the following Resolution: "Resolved, by the "Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament "assembled, that it is the Opinion of this House "that the Common-Council of LONDON, "having issued great Sums of Money out of "the Chamber of LONDON, in maintain- "ing several Suits of Law between Citizen and "Citizen, relating to controverted Elections, "have abused their Trust, and been guilty of "great Partiality, and of a gross Mismanage- "ment of the City Treasure, and a Violation "of the Freedoms of Elections in the City.

The CHAMBERLAIN'S COURT or OFFICE.

The Chamberlain's Court.

THE Chamberlainship of LONDON was antiently in the King's Power: Thus Chamberlainia LONDON. i. e. the Office of Chamberlain of LONDON, was granted to William Jermer, by King Henry III.

AND when King Henry granted the Citizens the Choice of their Mayor, it was Salva Skam-bergeria nostra.

THIS is an Office of great Honour, Power, and Trust. He receives the Rents, and other Revenues of the City, as the Orphans Money, and keeps his Office in the Chamber of Guild-hall, where he gives Attendance in the Forenoons every Day, to enroll and turn over Apprentices, and to make them Free, having duly served their Times. The Place being of such Importance, he is chosen yearly, and must give good Security to the Court of Aldermen, to pay and make good whatsoever Cash shall be delivered unto him; and once every Year he gives up his Account to Auditors appointed on Purpose to inspect the same.

BESIDES the Orphans and City Cash, he is intrusted also with the City Leases, and all Bonds and Securities taken by the Court of Aldermen, for Orphans Monies.

To this Officer belongs the Letting of the City Lands, which is commonly done by a Committee, after this Manner; when any such Lands or other Proprieties of the City, by Expiration of Leases, or otherwise, are to be disposed of to Tenants, Notice thereof is given in the Gazette; and Mr. Strype mentions the like Notice some Years ago given, of the Profits arising by the Monument on New Fish-street-hill, to be lett.

BEFORE him, the said Chamberlain, all Apprentices are enrolled and made free; insomuch that none can set up Shop or follow a Trade within the City and Liberties, if not a Freeman, and sworn before him; neither can any one turn over an Apprentice, but by his License. To him all Complaints are brought for Differences betwixt Apprentices and their Masters; who reconciles their Differences, and may punish, by Imprisonment, those that disobey his Summons, or any Apprentice that misdemeans himself to his Master or Mistress: But upon the Apprentices acknowledging his Fault, and begging Pardon, with Promise not to offend any more, his Fault is forgiven.

SUCH Apprentices as have justly served their Term of seven Years, and not broken their Indentures by marrying, &c. are made Free.

UPON the Admission of every Person into the Freedom of this City, the Chamberlain causes an Oath to be administered to him, to be true to the King, the Government, and observe and keep the Customs of the City: Which Oath was used to be in Form hereafter mentioned; but by the Act of Parliament, for regulating Elections within the City of LONDON, made in the Year 1725, Part of the Words are to be omitted, as may be seen in the third Chapter of this Book, Page 103.

The OATH of every FREEMAN of the City of LONDON.

YE shall swear, that ye shall be good and true to our Sovereign Lord the King, and to the Heirs of our said Sovereign Lord the King. Obeysant and obedient ye shall be to the Mayor and Ministers of this City. The Franchises and Customs thereof ye shall maintain, and this City keep harmless in that that in you is. Ye shall be contributory to all Manner of Charges within this City, as Summons, Watches, Contributions, Taxes, Tallages, Lot and Scot, and to all other Charges, bearing your Part as a Freeman ought to do. Ye shall colour no foreign Goods under or in your Name, whereby the King or this City might or may lose their Customs or Advantages, ye shall know no Foreigner to buy or sell any Merchandizes with any other Foreigner within this City or Franchise thereof, but ye shall warn the Chamberlain thereof, or some Minister of the Chamber. Ye shall implead or sue no Freeman out of this City, whilst ye may have Right and Law within the same City. Ye shall take no Apprentice, but if he be Freeborn, that is to say, no Bondman's Son, nor the Child of any Alien, and for no less Term than for seven Years, without Fraud or Deceit;

Deceit; and within the first Year ye shall cause him to be enrolled, or else pay such Fine as shall be reasonably imposed upon you for omitting the same; and after his Term's End, within convenient Time (being required) ye shall make him Free of this City, if he have well and truly served you. Ye shall also keep the King's Peace in your own Person. Ye shall know no Gatherings, Conventicles nor Conspiracies made against the King's Peace, but ye shall warn the Mayor thereof, or let it to your Power. All these Points and Articles ye shall well and truly keep according to the Laws and Customs of this City to your Power. So God you help.

If any Master shall refuse to make his Apprentice Free, when the Term of his Indenture is expired, upon Complaint made to the Chamberlain, he will cause such Master to be summoned before him, and if he cannot shew good Cause to the contrary, will make the Apprentice Free. And if an Apprentice shall be unruly or disorderly in his Master's House, or commit any notorious Fault, upon Complaint made thereof, the Chamberlain will send one of his Officers for such Apprentice, and send him to Bridewell, or otherwise punish him according to the Nature of the Offence.

If any Master shall misuse his Apprentice, by unreasonable Beating, not allowing him Necessaries, or by neglecting to instruct him, or the like, upon Complaint thereof made, the Chamberlain will send a Summons for the Master to appear before him; and upon due hearing both Parties, will relieve the Apprentice, if his Allegations be proved to be just, or else leave the Apprentice to take his Remedy against his Master in the Lord Mayor's Court: And if the Master refuse to appear according to his Summons, the Lord Mayor and Recorder, upon Complaint thereof made to them, will grant a Warrant to take him and compel him to appear.

When an Apprentice, by the Consent of his Master, is to be turned over to another Master of the same Trade, it must be done before the Chamberlain. And it is observed, that if an Apprentice be turned over by the Company only, of which the Master is free, it is no Obligation on the second Master to keep such Apprentice; nor is the Apprentice compelled thereby to serve the second Master, but may depart at Pleasure, by suing out his Indentures against the first Master, which may be done without the Privy or Knowledge of the second Master; and therefore it is absolutely necessary, that all Apprentices should be turned over before the Chamberlain. And thereby the first Master is discharged from him, and the second obliged to keep him; and the Apprentice will be obliged to serve the second Master the full Term of his Indentures, altho' the same were made for nine Years or more. It is the Interest of every Master and Apprentice, when any Difference happens between them, to refer the Matter to the Chamberlain; who will freely hear both Parties, and decide the Controversy for 3 s. Charge, viz. 1 s. to the Officer for the Summons, and 2 s. to the Clerk for the Order; whereas if they proceed at Law for Relief, it may probably cost both Parties 6 l. or more, in Charges; and the Conclusion may be less satisfactory than if decided by the Chamberlain.

The FEES due to the City for making Free, and Enrolling APPRENTICES.

AN Apprentice made Free, and not enrolled, the Master pays 13 s. 2 d.

THE Apprentice pays 2 s.

If turned over before the Chamberlain, the Master or Mistress must pay extraordinary 2 s.

AND by Virtue of the late Act for Orphans over and above these usual Fees:

AN Apprentice, when bound, must pay 2 s. 6 d.
And, when admitted a Freeman, 5 s.

If an Apprentice shall omit to take his Freedom within convenient Time after the Expiration of his Indentures, the Chamberlain may impose upon the Apprentice such a Fine, in Reason, as he shall think fit, for this Neglect, without just Cause to the contrary.

EVERY Freeman ought to take particular Care not to make an Apprentice Free of LONDON, by testifying for his true Service, unless such Apprentice shall have really served him. For if he shall privately turn his Apprentice over to a Foreigner, and let the Apprentice serve such a Foreigner, and yet testify to the Chamberlain, that the Apprentice served a Freeman; in such Case, both the Master and the Apprentice may be disfranchised, and fined at the Discretion of the Recorder and the Chamberlain, and may cause the Freeman's Shop to be shut up.

If a Master shall make his Apprentice Free, by testifying that his Apprentice served the full Term of seven Years, when in Truth the Apprentice did not serve so long, both the Master and Apprentice may be disfranchised for testifying an Untruth; for it is contrary to a Freeman's Oath, the Words therein being, Ye shall take none Apprentice for no less Term than for seven Years, without Fraud or Deceit. Ye shall make him Free if he have well and truly served you. And if a Freeman well considers his Oath, he will not do any Act contrary thereunto for Lucre, or to pleasure another.

The following is an ORDER of COMMON-COUNCIL for FREEMEN and APPRENTICES, to be observed upon Pain of DISFRANCHISEMENT.

Commune Concilium tentum die Veneris primo die Junii, Anno Regni Regis Henrici octavi, &c. decimo octavo, in præsentia Johannis Allen Majoris, Gulielmi Butler, Militis, Johannis Milbourne, Militis, Johannis Mundi, Militis, Thomæ Baldri, Militis, Gulielmi Bayly, Militis, Thomæ Semer, Militis, Jacobi Spencer, Militis, Johannis Rudstone, Radulphi Dodmer, Johannis Browne, Nicolai Lambert, Stephani Peacocke, Johannis Harding, Nicolai Jennings, Henrici Dacres, Johannis Canulen, & Christophori Askew, viz.

AT this Common-Council, it is agreed, granted, ordained, and enacted, That if hereafter any Freeman or Freewoman of this City, take any Apprentice, and within the Term of seven Years suffer the same Apprentice to go at his large Liberty and Pleasure; and within, or after the said Term, agree with his said Apprentice for a certain Sum of Money, or otherwise for his said Service, and within or after the End of the said Term, the said Freeman present the said Apprentice to the Chamberlain of the City, and by good Deliberation, and upon his Oath made to the same City, the same Freeman or Freewoman assureth and affirmeth to the said Chamberlain, that the said Apprentice hath fully served his said Term as Apprentice; or if any Freeman or Freewoman of this City, take any Apprentice which at the Time of the said taking hath any Wife: Or if any Freeman or Freewoman man of this City, give any Wages to his or her Apprentice, or suffer the said Apprentices to take any Part of their own Getting or Gains: Or if any Freeman or Freewoman of this City hereafter colour any foreign Goods, or from henceforth buy or sell for any Person or Persons, or with or to any Person or Persons being foreign, or Foreigners, Cloths, Silks, Wine, Oils, or any other Goods or Merchandize whatsoever they be, whether he take any Thing or Things for his or their Wages or Labour, or not: Or if any Person or Persons being free of this City, by any Colour or deceitful Means, from henceforth do buy, sell, or receive of any Apprentice within this City, any Money, Goods, Merchandize, or Wares, without the Assent or Licence of his Master or Mistress; and upon Examination duly proved before the Chamberlain of the said City for the Time being; and the same reported by the Mouth of the said Chamberlain, at a Court to be holden by the Mayor and the Aldermen of the same City in their Council Chamber: That as well the said Master as the said Apprentice, shall for evermore be disfranchised.

God save the King.

INSTRUCTIONS for the APPRENTICES of the CITY of LONDON.

YE shall constantly and devoutly on your Knees, every Day, serve God, Morning and Evening, and make Conscience in the due hearing of the Word preached, and endeavour the right Practice thereof in your Life and Conversation. You shall do diligent and faithful Service to your Master for the Time of your Apprenticeship, and deal truly in what you shall be trusted. You shall often read over the Covenants of your Indenture, and see and endeavour yourself to perform the same, to the utmost of your Power. You shall avoid all evil Company, and all Occasions which may tend to draw you to the same; and make speedy Return when you shall be sent of your Masters and Mistresses Business. You shall be of fair, gentle, and lowly Speech and Behaviour towards all Men, and especially to all your Governors. And according to your Carriage, expect your Reward, for Good or Ill, from God and your Friends.

It is said in the Liber Albus, that none was made Apprentice, or at least admitted into the Freedom of the City, unless he were Liberæ Conditionis, that is, of the Quality of a Gentleman born. And that if after he was made free, it was known he was of servile Condition, he lost his Freedom. As certain Citizens, Thomas le Bedel, and others did, that held Lands of the Bishop of LONDON in Villenagio. And about the Year 1386, or 1387, Nicholas Exton, Mayor, this Order was confirmed, and no Apprentice should be taken, no Freedom given, but to such as were Gentlemen born.

Apprentices.*

THE antient Habit of the Apprentices of LONDON, was a flat round Cap, Hair close cut, narrow falling Bands, coarse Side Coats, close Hose, Cloth Stockings, and other such severe Apparel. When this Garb had been urged by some to the Disparagement of Apprentices, as a Token of Servitude, one, many Years ago, undertaking the Defence of these Apprentices, wrote thus; That this imported the commendable Thrift of the Citizens, and was only the Mark of an Apprentice's Vocation and Calling, [and which antiently, no Question, was the ordinary Habit of a Citizen] which Point of antient Discipline, he said, the grave common Lawyers do still retain in their Profession. For the Professors of that Learning, we see, do at this present retain the Party-colour'd Coats of Serving-men at their Serjeants Feasts. And he wished, that the Remembrance of this antient Livery might be preserved by the grave Citizens, in setting apart a particular Time or Day for the Feast of their Apprenticeship, when they should wear their former Apprentice's Garb; making Profession in this Way, that they gloried in the Ensigns of their honest Apprenticeship.

IN the Time of Queen Mary, and Beginning of Queen Elizabeth, as well as many Years before, all Apprentices wore blue Cloaks in the Summer, and blue Gowns in the Winter. But it was not lawful for any Man, either Servant or other, to wear their Gowns lower than the Calves of their Legs, except they were above threescore Year of Age. But the Length of Cloaks being not limited, they made them down to their Shoes. Their Breeches and Stockings were usually of white Broad Cloth, viz. round Slops, and their Stockings sowed up close thereto, as if they were all but one Piece. They also wore flat Caps both then and many Years after, as well Apprentices as Journeymen and others, both at home and abroad. Whom the Pages of the Court, in Derision, called Flat Caps.

WHEN Apprentices and Journeymen attended upon their Masters and Mistresses in the Night, they went before them carrying a Lantern and Candle in their Hands, and a great long Club on their Necks. And many well-grown sturdy Apprentices used to wear long Daggers in the Day-time on their Backs or Sides.

ANTIENLY it was the general Use and Custom of all Apprentices in LONDON (Merchants only excepted, being commonly Merchants, and of better Rank, as it seems) to carry Water Tankards, to serve their Masters Houses with Water, fetched either from the Thames, or the common Conduits of LONDON.

It was a great Matter in former Times, to give 10*l.* to bind a Youth Apprentice; but in King James the First's Time, they gave 20, 40, 60; and sometimes 100*l.* with an Apprentice: But now these Prices are vastly enhanced to 500 or 600, or 800*l.*

BUT because the Apprentices of LONDON were often Children of Gentlemen, and Persons of good Quality, they did affect to go in costly Apparel, and wear Weapons, and frequent Schools of Dancing, Fencing, and Musick: Therefore, by an Act of Common-Council in May, Anno 1582, these Things were thought fit to be forbidden; and this remarkable Proclamation was issued out by the Lord Mayor for that Intent and Purpose.

BUT to speak here a few Things more concerning those we call Apprentices, which are that Rank of Men that are brought up to be the Stay of the City, that is, to be the Citizens of it. For without serving a certain Number of Years with some Freeman of the City, no Man, be he born in LONDON, or of Parents LONDONERS, is admitted to be a Freeman of LONDON, to follow a Trade there. And that because it is so necessary, that he who shall take upon him to set up a Trade in the City, should first employ some competent Time in the learning thereof, and dwell with some Body that may teach him, as the Word Apprentice does denote. For Polydore Virgil (who was a Stranger, and unacquainted with our Language) mistook, when he derived Apprentice quasi pro Emptitio, as all one with one bought with Money, as the Roman Bond-Slaves were; but it is (as Sir Thomas Smith more truly and more rightly shews) a French Word, and betokens a Learner: For Apprendre, in French, is to Learn. Whence Apprentice signifies a Scholar, or one that learns. And so he to whom he is bound, is called his Master, or his Teacher, not his Lord. Nor is it a Bondage, since there is a mutual Agreement and Covenant between both Parties, put into Writing, signed and sealed by both, and registered for more Assurance, and that only for a Time. The Sum whereof is, That the Master is to teach his Apprentice his Trade, and he to learn and obey his Master. But yet, during the Time, says the said Smith, it is Verus Servitus, i. e. a true Servitude. He means surely hereby, not to equal Apprenticeship to the Roman Bondage of Slaves, but in Respect of certain Points of Subjection and Hardship that resemble it. As, "That whatsoever the Apprentice gets of his own Labour, or of his Master's Occupation or Stock, he gets to him whose Apprentice he is. He must not lie forth of his Master's Doors; he must not occupy any Stock of his own; nor marry without his Master's Licence. And he must do all servile Offices about the House, and be obedient to all his Master's Commandments. And shall suffer such Correction as his Master shall think meet; and should be at his Master's clothing and nourishing.

And thus, as he concludes afterwards (speaking of hired Servants) "The Necessity and Want of Bondmen have made Men to use Freemen as Bondmen, to all servile Services; but yet more liberally and freely, and with a more "Equality and Moderation, than in Time of "Gentility, Slaves and Bondmen were wont to be used.

YET some there have been, that from such Representations of the State of an Apprentice, have falsely concluded it to be a real Bondage, as it is taken in the Civil Law. And this Conceit has prevailed so much, that they have imagined, that as a Consequence from hence, it has deprived a Gentleman born, of his Quality, and corrupted his Blood. So that no Apprentice might take Place as a Gentleman, in whatever gentle Quality he was born, as the Apprenticeship left them under the Blemish of Bondage, and the Penalty of losing their Gentry. On this Account it is, that the Citizens are so despised by the Country Gentry, and it is look'd upon as such a Disparagement for any of them to inter-marry with the Child of a Citizen. Hence also it comes to pass, that many Gentlemen in the Country utterly refuse to send up their younger Children to learn honest Trades to get Wealth, and improve their Fortunes by Merchandize, or other Traffick; chusing rather to keep them always in the Country, to live idly, and to depend sometimes on their elder Brother, or on some small Annuity: Whereby not seldom they take bad Courses for a Subsistence.

WHEREAS in Truth, all this is built upon Mistake: For Apprenticeship is quite a different Thing from Bondage or Slavery: Neither can a Man forfeit his Gentility, by the Laws of the English Heraldry, but by some particular unworthy and dishonourable Acts of his own, (as Treason, Cowardice, &c.) as has been asserted by the late learned Sir Henry St. George, Knt. Garter King at Arms: For we take no Notice what the Civil or Imperial Laws determine in such Cases.

BUT for further and more particular Satisfaction in so weighty a Matter as this is, both for the Honour of the City, whose Magistrates and Members are constituted of such as have been first Apprentices, and for the Encouragement of Gentlemen to send up their Sons to LONDON, to take Business and Employments upon them, and to become useful Members of the Commonwealth, Mr. Strype relates the following Account of what happened some Years ago, for the clearing up this Point. A young Gentleman whose Father had been an Apprentice in LONDON, but of a good Family, was affronted in Company for this very Thing, as if he were no Gentleman born, implying, that his Father's Apprenticeship had corrupted his Blood. The Gentleman, the Father, was stirred at this not a little, and was fully bent to get this Matter fully debated. And again, another Gentleman's Son, Apprentice in LONDON, being much discouraged at this supposed Degradation, wrote to his Father, that by reading certain Books at his spare Hours, and conferring with some who took upon them to have Skill in Heraldry, he was brought to believe, that by being an Apprentice he lost his Birthright, and the Right of his Blood, both by Father and Mother, which was to be a Gentleman: Which Dishonour, added he, I had rather die than to endure. The Gentleman, upon this Letter of his Son's, was very earnest, as was the other, to have the Point cleared, and to receive Satisfaction from such as were skilful in such Matters; nor cared he for Charge for the getting it decided and protested, that if it were as his Son had wrote, he should not stay in LONDON, though it cost him 500 l.

FOR the Satisfaction of both these Gentlemen, a certain learned Herald, (supposed to be Philipot, Somerset) to whom the former had wrote, set himself to study the Point; himself reckoning it very fit to be resolved, because nothing lightly lightly could be a greater Disparagement, than for the Free to become a kind of Bondman, or to be sprung of such as were so; and because such an Opinion was so apt to breed bad Affections among People of the same Nation, whence great Mischiefs often arose, even to Hatred, Quarrel, and Homicide. And lastly, because of that Disdain in some, to seem either Citizens and City-bred, or to owe any Thing of their Worth or Estate to either.

THE Herald shewed, that Apprenticeship was no true Bondage, nor no Bondage at all; for the Indentures that passed between the Master and Apprentice were nothing but Civil Contracts: Namely, that by an indented Instrument for the true and faithful Service of a few Years, the Master should teach his Apprentice his own Trade or Mystery, and how to gain thereby honestly, and raise himself: Which kind of Contracts all the World knows, Bondmen were incapable of doing. It is a mutual Obligation or Convention between both Parties, and the Act of Binding is no more; but that the Master might be determinately for the Time, and sufficiently for the Manner, sure to enjoy his Apprentice; and only such as are free born are capable to make a Contract with Effect.

THAT which constituted a Bondman among the old Romans, was such a Power and Right, vested in the Lord over the very Body of his Bondman or Slave, as descending to him, under some received Title, or other Jus Gentium, and was maintained by him Jure civili Romanorum. By Virtue whereof he became Proprietary in the Person of his Bondman, as in the Body of his Ox, Horse, or any other Beast he had: Which Propriety was undeterminable, but only by Manumission. And that Act meely depended upon the Will of the Lord, without any Indenture or Condition on Behalf of the Slave. Finally, Servus, a Slave among them, nullum Caput habuit; i. e. had no Head in Law, and neither was in Censu, nor in Lustro condita; as much as to say, They were out of the Number of Men, their Names being neither put (as among such as had wherewith to pay) in the Rolls of their Exchequer, or Tables of their Capitol, nor as Bodies wherewith to serve in the general Musters of the Commonwealth; but were reputed Civiliter mortui, dead in Law; Death and Bondage being alike among them; and without any more Reputation of being Members in the Body, than brute Cattle; for Bondmen were reputed nobody: And in Case of Manumission, the Bondman after Manumission continued in such a Relation to his Lord; that in certain Cases, (as that of Ingratitude) he who was once enfranchised, was adjudged back to his Patron, and condemned again to a far more miserable Service than ever: But nothing like all this is in Apprenticeship.

HE shewed further, that by the old Common Law of England, descending from the Civil, there are two Sorts of Bondmen, viz. Villains in Gross, and Villains regardant to a Manor. Now it is certain, our Apprentice, or Scholar in the Mysteries or Trades of the City, is neither one nor other of them.

AND as for Work, Restraint, and Correction, which tho' Things that Bondmen were subject to, yet Scholars and Soldiers are never look'd upon as in a State of Bondage thereby. Restraint and Correction is but for a Year or two, while the Apprentice is commonly at the Age of a Boy, or at the most but a Lad or Stripling; and as for the Work and Labour he is to do, 'tis true, some Things there are sometimes imposed upon him, which a Gentleman would not do, that lived sui Juris. Yet on the other Side, we constantly deny, that he does any of these as servile, or as servilely, but propter finem nobilem; i. e. for a noble End; that is, to learn an honest Mystery, to enable him to the Service of God and his Country, in the Station, Place, and Calling of a Citizen. And all is in Ordine, in order, and in the Way to Mastership, and to the Estate of a Citizen: And the Master in the mean while serves his Apprentice with Instructions, and universal Conformation, and moulding him to an Art; as the Apprentice serves his Master with Obedience, Faith, and Industry: So that an Apprentice's Condition is but like the well being of a Child under his Father, who may restrain, rebuke, and correct him, and lay Work upon him; yet he doth all for his Good.

FOR the Master's Power is not Despoticum Imperium; that is, not such a Power as an absolute Lord hath over his Slave; but as it were Curatura, a Guardianship, and a Trust; and he is in very Truth, a Discipliner or Teacher, endued with Authority of using moderate Correction, as a Father, not as a Tyrant.

WHATSOEVER their Indentures do purport, and howsoever they seem conditional, Servants are in Truth not bound to do, or suffer Things more grievous than young Soldiers in Armies, or Scholars in Schools, or Novices in Noviceships. Each of whom in their Kinds usually do, and suffer Things as base and vile in their own Quality, simply and in themselves considered, as perhaps the very meanest of Five thousand Apprentices in LONDON.

So that Apprenticeship in LONDON is no Dishonour, nor Degradation; but rather an Honour, and a Degree. He is very hardy that shall embase honest Industry with disgraceful Censures, and too unjust, who shall not cherish and encourage it with Praise and Worship, as the antient Policy of England did, and doth, in constituting Corporations, and adorning the Companies with Banners of Arms, and especial Members thereof with Notes of Nobility. And as it is an Honour; so it is a Degree, or Order of good regular Subjects: Out of whose (as it were) Noviceship or Colleges, Citizens are supplied from Time to Time. We call them Colleges, according to the old Roman Phrase, or Fellowships of Men: For so indeed they are, comprehended within several Corporations, or Bodies of Free Persons, intended to be consociated together for Commerce, according to Conscience and Justice, and named Companies. So that Apprentices, according to the Esteem of our Commonwealth, when first they come to be Apprentices, first begin to be somebody, who before were young Men, without any Vocation in the World: And so by other Ascents or Steps, come to be Freemen of LONDON, or Citizens; thence to be of their Companies Liveries, Governors of Companies, as Wardens and Masters; and Governors in the City, as Common-Council-Men, Aldermen's Deputies, Sheriffs, and Aldermen; and lastly, the principal Governors, or Heads of the City, that is, Lord Mayors: And some also have been advanced from being Citizens, to be Counsellors of Estate to the Prince.

So that the very being a Citizen is an Honour; and antiently they were called Barons. Matthew Paris observes, how the Citizens were honoured with that Title in his Time, which was about 1253, and the Reason why: Quos propter Civitatis Dignitatem, & Civium antiquam Libertatem, Barones, consuevimus appellare: i. e. Whom we have accustomed to call Barons, by Reason of the City's Dignity, and the antient Liberty of the Citizens. This Term is found in this City's antient Charters. So in that of Henry I. whose Favours are granted to the Church, the Barons, and the Citizens: (Ecclesia, & Barones & Cives habeant & teneant, bene & in pace, Socas suas cum omnibus Consuetudinibus) including therein (as it seems) the three Ranks that make up the City, viz. the Churchmen, the Barons; that is, the Aldermen, and the rest of the Freemen of the City. But it must be known; that this Term is not peculiar to the Citizens of LONDON, but was common to other Cities and eminent Places; as to York, and Chester, and Warwick; as Dr. Brady observes. The Word is French; for so the Citizens of Orleans and Bourges were termed BARONES.

It is further evident, that Apprenticeship doth not deprive of Gentry; for no Man loseth his Right to bear Arms, or to write Gentleman, unless he be attained in Law for such a Cause, the Conviction whereof doth immediately procure Corruption in Blood: Which in this Case no Man yet hath dreamt of. The Apprentice hath no more lost his Title and Right to Gentry, than he hath done to any Goods, Chattels, Lands, Royalties, or any thing else, which if he had never been any Apprentice, either had, might or ought to have come unto him. The Rights of Blood are more inherent than the Rights of Fortune, according to the Law Rule, Jura Sanguinis nullo jure civili dirimi possunt: i. e. The Law of Bloods cannot be destroyed by any Civil Right. That Gentry is a Right of Blood, may appear by this, that no Man can truly alienate the same, or vest another in it, tho' legally he may in case of Adoption, which is but a humane Invention, in Imitation of Nature; and in the Truth of the Thing, no Alienation at all; but a Fiction, or an Acceptation in Law, as if it were such. Gentry is a Quality of Blood, as Virtue and Learning are of the Mind.

This is the Sum of what that learned Herald argued in Confutation of that Opinion, that Apprenticeship extinguisheth Gentry. And he sent this his Discourse to the Gentleman who desired his Judgment herein. Whence, no question, he received full Satisfaction. And the Herald took the more Pains in confuting this false Conceit, that it was a thing unbeseeming a Gentleman to be an Apprentice to a Citizen or Burgefs; because it had filled England with more Vices, and sacrificed more serviceable Bodies to odious Ends, and more Souls to sinful Lives, than perhaps any one other uncivil Opinion whatsoever. For they who held it better to rob by Land or Sea than to beg or labour, did daily see and feel, that out of Apprentices rose such as set upon them, standing out for Lives as Malefactors; when they, a Shame and Sorrow to their Kindred, underwent a Fortune too unworthy.

ABOUT ten or twelve Years after, this useful Discourse was made publick, and printed under the Title of the City's Advocate, with the Approbation of Sir William Segar, Garter, at the End of the Book, in the following Word, to signify the Judgment of the Heralds, who are the proper Judges in Matters of this Nature, and Garter the Principal of them: "I have viewed
" this Book, and perused the Contents of it,
" and find nothing dissonant to Reason, or contrary to Honour or Arms.

Will. Segar, Garter.

AND something more largely in the Beginning of the Book, the same Garter thus gives his Opinion of the Author and his Work: "That seeing he only lay upon the Defensive and Affirmative against Assailers and Deniers, with due Submission for the judicial Part to the proper Court of Honour, the illustrious High Marshals of England by Commission, he saw no Cause why his learned Work might not receive the Glory of publick Light, and that most renowned City the Benefit of Honours Increase, for the Encouragement of enriching Industry.

THE Author dedicated his Book to the Senate and City, 11 Cal. Novemb. 1628. And in his Dedication he tells them, "That in this one Act of his, [he means the Argument of his Book] he did not only seem to be Patron and Defender of Birthrights, and of the Rights of Fortune, but the Champion also of civil Arts, and of flourishing Industry among them, the Sinew and Life itself of Commonweals. And that tho' the Schools and Camp were most proper for Honour and Arms, yet the antient Wisdom of our Sages did ever leave the Gates of Honour open to City Arts, and to the Mysteries of honest Gain, as fundamental in Commonweals, and susceptible of external Splendor, according to the most laudable Example of rising Rome under her first Dictators and Consuls.

THE Apprentices of LONDON are so considerable a Body, that they have sometimes made themselves formidable by Insurrections and Mutinies in the City, getting some Thousands of them together, and pulling down Houses, breaking open the Gates of Newgate, and other Prisons, and setting the Prisoners free. And this upon Occasion sometimes of Foreigners, who have followed their Trades in the City, to the supposed Damage of the native Freemen, or when some of their Brotherhood have been unjustly, as they have pretended, cast into Prison and punished. But they have been commonly assisted, and often egged on and headed by Apprentices of the Dreggs of the Vulgar, Fellows void of worthy Blood, and worthy Breeding; yea, perhaps not Apprentices at all, but forlorn Companions, masterless Men, and tradeless, and the like; who, loving Mischief, have been the very Authors of all that is vile, discourteous to worthy Strangers, rude towards Natives, and very villainous and seditious.

THE Apprentices in Queen Elizabeth's Reign sometimes made such Mutinies, and particularly in the beginning of September 1586, when they made formidable Insurrection, amounting to little less than Treason, against the French and Dutch: And they had, it seems, premeditated this, and had a Captain to head them; so that it threaten'd as much Mischief as that Evil May Day in the Reign of King Henry VIII. But by the timely Care that was taken by the Magistrates, it was prevented, and some of them taken. And so the Recorder, Mr. Fleetwood, acquainted the Lord Treasurer in a Letter writ the 6th of September, "That that Day, from Two of the " Clock until Six, the Lord Mayor, with some " of the Aldermen his Brethren, and himself, " had examined certain of these Apprentices for " conspiring an Insurrection in this City against " the French and Dutch; but especially against " the French; a Thing as like unto Ill May Day, (as the Recorder added) as could be " devised, in all Manner of Circumstances, Mutatis Mutandis. There wanted nothing but " Execution. That they had taken five, all of " an Age, yet all under twenty-one; four of " them Derbyshire born; the fifth born in Northamptonshire; and that they were searching " and seeking for the principal Captain, and " hoped that they should hear of him that Night;
" for he had been walking all that Day in Whitehall at Westminster; and at his coming home
" they trusted to have him: That they had that " Night set a standing Watch armed, from " Nine until Seven in the Morning; and meant " to continue the same so long as it should be " thought convenient unto his Honour, and the " Residue of the Lords. And that that Night Mr.
" Attorney General (the Recorder) was to set " his Hand and Seal unto a Warrant, to summon

" an

“ an Inquest of Inquiry to appear To-morrow
 “ at Westminster-hall; and that the Citizens, “ when they should hear of it, would like it very “ well; For they all cried out, that Justice “ might be done upon those Traytors. The “ aforesaid Apprentices, who were of the Myf“ tery of Plaisterers, were committed to New- “ gate, upon the Queen’s Highness and her “ Council’s Commandment; where they were “ like to remain, till they were deliver’d by “ special Warrant. And so concluded, beseech-“ ing God to preserve, first her Majesty, and “ then his Lordship, from all these Traytors, and “ such other like People. Written from Guild- “ hall.

ABUSIVE Ballads and Libels were too common in the City in Queen Elizabeth’s Time, therein reflecting too boldly and seditiously upon the Government; particularly in case of a Dearth; often against Strangers that came and settled here, and followed their Trades: Which the Apprentices and others took grievously, without considering their miserable State, being forced to leave their own native Countries, by Reason of Cruelty and Persecution. But of these seditious Practices, the Magistrates of the City took Notice, and committed the Dispersers and Authors, when they found them, and withal informed the Court thereof. Thus in the Year 1595, Sir John Spencer, Mayor, wrote to the Lord Treasurer in the Month of June, “ That that Morning coming from the ordinary Place of the meeting of him and his Brethren, in St. Paul’s Church before Sermon, at the Steps, a Libel (a Copy whereof, literatim, was inclosed) was delivered unto him by one of Sir Richard Martins’s Servants, who told him, that it was that Morning found under the said Sir Richard’s Door: And hereof he thought it his Duty, by his Letters, humbly to advertise his Lordship. In this Libel he, the Lord Mayor, was reproached, and the said Alderman, in whose House it was found, was commended: Concerning which, and what might be gathered thereof, he left to his honourable Consideration.

AND as tho’ this Libel were an Introduction to a Mutiny, (or a Mob, as we call it) “ That while the Mayor was writing this, he understood of such great Disorder of a Multitude of rebellious Apprentices in several Parts of this City, as, he feared, the same would not be suppressed until some of them were punished by Martial Law; and their Masters also fined and punished: Whom he, the Mayor, by several Precepts had commanded to keep their Servants within their Doors: And so he expected to understand further of his Lordship’s Will or Advice; informing his Lordship in the Conclusion, That since his Writing, he had apprehended divers, and sent them to Ward. But that his Sword-bearer was hurt at the Tower, being held by the Lieutenant’s Man himself, and the Sword pulled down:” For commonly these Mutineers met on Tower-hill, or in some Parts near the Tower.

AND the next Year, Sir Stephen Slany, Mayor, in the Month of July, was brought to his Hands a certain Ballad, containing a Complaint of great Want and Scarcity of Corn within the Realm: “ And forasmuch as it contained in it certain vain and presumptuous Matters, bringing in the Queen, speaking with her People Dialoguewise, in very fond and indecent Sort, (as the said Mayor in his Letter, wrote also to the Lord Treasurer, shewed) and prescribing Order for the remedying this Dearth of Corn;

“ which was extracted, as it seemed, out of a Book published by the Lords the last Year; “ but done in that vain and indiscreet Manner, “ as that thereby the Poor might aggravate their Grief, and take Occasion of some Discontentment: Therefore he thought fit to acquaint the said Lord, that he called before him both the Printer and the Party by whom it was put to print; who pretended a Licence for it. But that finding it to be untrue, he committed him to one of the Compters, and took Sureties of the Printer himself for his Appearance.

AND then the Mayor desired the Lord Treasurer’s Direction, whether he thought it fit to inflict any further Punishment upon him.

THE Maker of this scurtilous Ballad, was one Delonie, an idle Fellow, and one noted with the like Spirit, in printing a Book for the Silk Weavers; wherein was found some such like foolish and disorderly Matter. Him the Mayor also was in search for, but could not yet find him, as he signified also to the said Lord, and sent him a Copy of the Ballad. The Magistrates of the City would by no Means allow in those Days any unworthy Reflections or Speeches against the Prince.

A little while after the said Slany, Mayor, sent the Lord Treasurer two Libels more, which were found and brought to him; and now in September two more were likewise found that were dispersed by some seditious Persons in the City, which he likewise sent to him, referring the Matter to farther Consideration.

AND this Fondness of Wit and Spight in abusing Superiors, could hardly be remedied here in LONDON by any Punishment; for before this, when divers Apprentices, and such like other disorderly Persons had suffered Punishment in the Beginning of the same Year 1596, a Libel was taken up in April that Year, within the Warder’s Room before the Tower Gate by the Under-Porter there. And of this the same Mayor informed the Lord Treasurer. It was especially directed against one Man, (as his Lordship might perceive) yet forasmuch as there was Mention made of the late Justice done against those disorderly Persons, Apprentices and others, with an Invective against the Council of the Land; whereby he meant, as the Lord Mayor supposed, the learned Council and Judges of the Realm, he thought meet to make his Lordship acquainted withal. He added, that the Libel (as might be conjectured by the Stile and Manner of Writing, and the Place where it was found) seemed to have been devised by some Apprentice of St. Katharine’s, or thereabouts, or by some other leud and discontented Person, that could be contented to see some Stir and Disturbance within this City and Commonwealth. He sent that Lord both the Original and an Extract, because the Writing was somewhat hard to be picked out. And so craving his Lordship’s Direction, whether he should proceed by Examination to find out the Author, with the Advice and Help of Mr. Lieutenant, or rather suppress it till they heard more; considering the Times, and the End and Purpose of such as scatter infamous Libels and seditious Writings; who desired nothing more than to have them blazed and scattered abroad.

THERE was, some Years since, viz. 1705, a Complaint made in Behalf of the Apprentices of LONDON, for the enhancing of the Fees of their enrolling, turning over, Copies of their Freedom, and other Exactions; the Particulars of which will more evidently appear by the following Paper, drawn up by Mr. Bromley, a good Citizen, printed in their Behalf.

The

The CASE of the APPRENTICES of LONDON, and others, in Reference to the Complaints lately made to the Court of Aldermen of the Exactions in the Chamberlain's Office; humbly offered to the Consideration of the Lord Mayor, Court of Aldermen, and Common-Council.

WHEREAS a Committee of the Court of Aldermen was lately appointed to consider of the Complaints made against some of the Officers in the Chamber of LONDON, for exacting Money from Persons enrolled, turned over, and made free, over and above the legal Fees and Duties, to the Oppression of great Numbers of her Majesty's Subjects, especially the poor Handicrafts, many of whom have not taken up their Freedom, because they could not raise Money to answer the exorbitant Demands of the Officers;

Now, for the better Information of the said Committee, and all others whom it may concern, the Publishing the said legal Fees and Duties has been thought a useful Piece of Service, which take as follows, viz.

Paid by the Master to the Chamberlain or Yeoman of the Chamber for every Apprentice made free, if enrolled, 4 s.

If not enrolled, then by the Master 13 s. 2 d.

Paid by the Apprentice, whether enrolled or not, 1 s. and no more.

Except 5 s. towards the Orphans Fund, lately settled by Act of Parliament.

FEES and DUTIES payable to the Clerk of the Chamber, viz.

For enrolling of an Apprentice, 4 d.

For turning over of an Apprentice, 4 d.

For the Copy of a Freedom of those made free by Service, filing the Indenture, sealing, engrossing fair upon Record, and entering the Name in the Kalendar, 2 s. 6 d.

For the Copy of a Freedom of those made free by Patrimony, if born in the City, for filing the Witnesses Names, sealing, engrossing fair upon Record, and entering the Name in the Kalendar, 4 s.

If born out of the City, then for the same, 5 s.

For the Copy of a Freedom of those made free by Redemption, filing the Order, sealing, engrossing fair upon Record, and entering the Name in the Kalendar, 4 s.

For every Person upon his Admission into the Freedom, paid for Stamps by Virtue of a late Act of Parliament, 2 s.

Note, These are the legal Fees and Duties, and whatever is exacted over and above, is conceived to be Extortion, for which an Indictment or Information will lie.

'Tis said, that the Fees demanded, and taken of late by the Clerk of the Chamber, or his Deputy, for which Complaint hath been made, are as follow, viz.

For enrolling an Apprentice, instead of 4 d.

3 s.

For turning over an Apprentice, instead of 4 d.

3 s.

For the Copy of a Freedom, instead of 2 s. 6 d. &c. from 6 s. 6 d. to 16 s. 6 d. (including 2 s. for the Stamps) besides what is exacted by the Yeoman of the Chamber over and above the legal Fees he is appointed to receive.

WHAT is given to the Under Clerks, Cushion-Bearer, and Poors Box, is an Act of Grace, and not of Debt, and ought always to be so distinguished.

SEE the Statute made the 22d of Henry VIII. Chap. 4.

THE Abuses of Masters and Wardens of Fellowships and Fraternities, being set forth, in exacting exorbitant Fees of Prentices, &c. For Remedy whereof it is enacted, That no Master, Wardens, or Fellowship of Crafts or Mysteries, or any of them, nor any Rulers of Fraternities, take from henceforth of any Apprentice or any other Person or Persons, for the Entry of any Prentice into their said Fellowship, above the Sum of 2 s. 6 d. nor for his Entry when his Years and Term is expired and ended, above 3 s. 4 d. upon Pain of Forfeiture of 40 l. for every Time that they do to the contrary, the one half to the King, the other half to the Party that shall sue by Action of Debt, Information, or otherwise, and that in the Action aforesaid no Protection or Essoign shall be allowed. See the Statute of 28 Henry VIII. Chap. 5. where Provision is made to prevent the Evasion of this Statute.

By this and many other Statutes it appears, how careful our Ancestors have been to encourage Trade and Industry, and to prevent Extortion. And tho' Cities and Towns Corporate are not herein expressly named, they are, no doubt, by an equitable Construction included, and can by no Means make Laws and Ordinances to oppress the Subject, by inhancing the antient Fees of Offices, especially where Trade and Industry are concerned. Extortion is punishable by the Common Law of England, in many Cases where the Statute Law doth not reach it.

Extortion, in its proper Sense, is a great Mischief, by wresting or unlawfully taking by any Officer, by Colour of his Office, any Money or valuable Thing, of or from any Man, either that is not due, or more than is due, or before it is due.

IN the antient Rolls of the Mayors are these several Rules and Judgments concerning the Apprentices of LONDON.

APPRENTICES have been discharged from the Service of their Masters for several Causes, as may be understood from what follows:

ONE was discharged from his Master, because his Master held no Shop, and withdrew himself from the City: Another, because his Master did not teach him: Another, because his Master was in Ludgate, and entrusted him not: Another, because not enrolled within a Year: Another, because his Master was distracted in his Mind: Another, because his Master was so poor that he could not exhibit to him: Another, because his Master diverted himself to other Occupations than his own Mystery: Another, because his Master was a Leper: Another, because the Wife, after the Death of her Husband, taught him not: And lastly, Another, because his Master inordinately chastised him.

A Bill was once put in Parliament for a Statute to annul an Order made by the City, that none should put his Son Apprentice to a Citizen of LONDON, unless he might expend 20 s. a Year.

CONCERNING the Freemen and Freedom and Liberties of the City, these Things are noted out of the City's Records.

THE Lord Mayor might give the Freedom of the City to a certain Number; which was so disliked that the City agreed yearly to give him 40 Marks to make none free, or two Hogsheads of Wine.

THAT

THAT all Freemen remaining out of the City, return within a certain Time to the same.

THAT if a Freeman prosecute another Freeman without the City, he shall lose his Freedom, and make a Fine.

A Brief from the King, to the City, that none within the City, having 40 l. Land by the Year, but he take Knighthood upon him.

AN Act was commenced against one who took Custom of a Freeman of the City; (for the Citizens are free from Toll and Custom throughout England by Charter.)

A Letter was sent to the Men of Jernemute, (i. e. Yarmouth) that they hinder not the Citizens of LONDON of their Liberties; but that they may buy and sell freely, and exercise their Merchandizes. And a Petition was preferred by the Citizens in Parliament against them, about the End of Edward II.

ONE lost his Liberty, because he was admitted to the same without the Consent of 12 Men of every Ward.

ANOTHER lost his Freedom, because he was convicted in Parliament of great Extortions, so commendably did the Citizens cut off from themselves scandalous Members.

THE King once sent a Letter to the City for Foreigners to be admitted to the Freedom of it; but the Answer they made was, that the said Strangers would colour the Merchandizes of other Strangers, if they were admitted into the Liberty.

THERE are three several Ways to be made a Freeman; first, by Birthright, as being the Child of a Freeman; secondly, by Service, as aforesaid; and, thirdly, by Redemption or Purchase, by Order of the Court of Aldermen.

IN former Times, the Chamberlain was commonly concerned with the Sheriffs in the Duties incumbent upon them, and took Place of them, as appears by these Instances that happened in the Pleas of the Crown, before the King's Justices at the Tower, 28 H. III.

ONE Henry de Buck slew one Le Ireis Tynlour, with a certain Knypule (Knife) in the Street of Fletebrige, and fled to the Church of St. Mary of Suthwerk, and acknowledged his Fact, and abjured the Kingdom, in the Presence of Gervase Le Cordwāner, and the Sheriffs.

Anno 18 H. III. John de Colmere, Chamberlain, Rafe de Askely, and John Norman, Sheriffs, on Sunday the Eve of St. Mark, a Clerk called Henry de Bello, a Foreigner, slew Thomas de Aula, in the King's Highway, near the House of John Aubyn. He fled to the Church of St. Brigid, LONDON, by Night; so that the Sheriff and Aldermen of the Ward had him watched for that Night till the Morrow; and then came the Constable of the Tower, the Sheriffs and Aldermen to the aforesaid Church; and he the said Henry acknowledged the Fact before them, and he abjured the Kingdom. It was enquired by the Mayor and Citizens, of the King's Justices, if the Constable of the Tower, the Sheriffs and Aldermen, could receive an Abjuration from any, without the Chamberlain. They said they might, if the Chamberlain were absent upon the King's Business.

FORMERLY the Office of Chamberlain of the City was in the Gift of the King. King Hen. III. in the 7th of his Reign, granted it to William Ferners by Patent; and the same King, in the 53d of his Reign, granted it to Walter Capets, ad Placitum, i. e. during Pleasure.

AND sometimes there have been two Chamberlains together; as there was in the Reign of King Edward I. (as will appear by and by) whose Names were John de Dunstaple, and Simon de Paris, and both Aldermen.

CONCERNING the Chamberlains giving up their Accounts, as also the Bridge-Masters, and other Officers of the City, was this Order made, 27 Edw. I.

Die Mercurii, &c. "Wednesday after the Feast of St. Michael, 27 Edw. I. it was ordained and agreed, by Henry de Galeys, then Mayor of the City of LONDON, John le Blund, Geffery de Norton, Adam de Folham, Adam de Roskesle, John de Canterbury, William de Leyre, Nicholas de Farndon, &c. John de Dunstaple, Martin Box, Aldermen of the City aforesaid, Richard de Refham, and Thomas Sely, then Sheriffs, John de Dunstaple, and Simon de Paris, then Chamberlains of the Chamber of Guybald, LONDON, and by the whole Commonalty of the City aforesaid, before the aforesaid Mayor, Aldermen and Sheriffs, that the Chamberlains of the Chamber of Guybald, the Keepers of the Bridge of LONDON, and all others of the City, who ought to give up their Accounts to the said City, for the Time hereafter give them up twice a Year, to wit, the first Week in Lent, and in the beginning of Autumn.

THE present Chamberlain is JOHN BOSWORTH, Esq;

The SHERIFFS COURTS.

THERE are two Courts of Record, called the Sheriff's Courts, belonging to the two Sheriffs; and to each Court belongs a Prison, called a Compter, viz. the Poultrey Compter, and Wood-street Compter. And each Court has its peculiar Judge, who are Counsellors learned in the Law, and knowing in the Customs of the City.

THESE Courts hold Plea for all Actions of Debt, Trespass, Account, Covenants broken, and on the Case, as also Attachments and Sequestrations; and if the Action be laid under five Pounds, it cannot be removed to a superior Court.

THESE Courts are held four Days every Week in the Guildhall, viz. on Wednesdays and Fridays for Wood-street Compter; and on Thursdays and Saturdays for the Poultrey Compter.

THE Proceedings in these Courts are in the Manner of those of the higher, that is, by Declaration, Pleadings, a Jury, &c. And in case of any erroneous Judgment given, the Party grieved may sue forth of the Court of Chancery, a Writ of Error, returnable in the Court of Hustings, whither the Record being transmitted, the Errors may be there examined and corrected, before the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs.

To these two Courts, viz. the Poultrey and Wood-street, there belong eight Attorneys, who are admitted by the Court of Aldermen, and take the following Oath.

The OATH of the ATTORNEYS of the Sheriff's Courts.

YE shall swear that ye shall well and lawfully do your Office of Attorney, and well and lawfully examine your Client, and their Quarrel without Champarty, and without procuring of any Juries or any Enquest-embraising. And that ye shall change no Quarrel out of his Nature after your Understanding. Also ye shall plead Ne ley, ne suffer to be pleaded or leyd by your Assent, no Forreign Release, Acquittance, Payment, Arbitration, plain Accompt whatsoever it be to put the Court out of his Jurisdiction, nor none other Matter, but it be such as ye may find right-ful ful and true by the Information of your Client, whose Information and Saying upon your Oath and Conscience ye shall think to be true. And ye shall not enform ne enforce any Man to sue falsely against any Person by false and forged Action. Ready ye shall be at all Times to come and attend at the Warning of the said Mayor, and of the Sheriffs of the said City, unless ye be letted about the Business of this City, or for some other reasonable Cause. The Franchises, Laws and Ordinances of this City you shall keep, and do to be kept to your Power; and that well and lawfully ye shall do all Things that to the Office of Attorney pertaineth to do. As God help you.

THESE Attorneys may demand in each Cause three Fees, one for the Appearance, one at joining Issue, and another upon Summons for Trial. But if the Cause shall be summoned more than once, then to have a Fee upon every Summons.

THE Jurymen are Freemen of the City, and serve in their Wards according to the several Months; each Ward taking their Turn.

To each Court belongs a Secondary, a Clerk of the Papers, a Prothonotary, and four Clerks Sitters.

THE Secondaries allow, and return all Writs brought to remove Causes out of these Courts.

THE Clerks of the Papers file and copy Declarations upon Actions in these Courts.

THE Prothonotaries draw and engross all such Declarations.

The Clerks Sitters enter Actions and Attachments, and take Bails and Verdicts.

To each Compter belong sixteen Serjeants at Mace, and to each their Yeoman, besides Under Officers, and a Prison-Keeper. And if a Freeman is committed to Prison in either of these Compters, he may remove himself to Ludgate.

THE two eldest Clerks in the Sheriffs Court for the Time being, are Attorneys of the Pye-Powder Court held in Cloth-Fair, during the three first Days of Bartholomew-Fair, for the examining and trying Suits brought for petty Matters and Offences committed in the Fair, contrary to the Proclamation following:

THE Lord Mayor and Aldermen do annually cause a Proclamation to be made for the better regulating this Affair, to this Tenour:

The PROCLAMATION made on St. BARTHOLOMEW'S EVE in the Afternoon at the great Gate going into Cloth-Fair.

And finally, That what Persons soever find themselves grieved, injured, or wronged by any manner of Person in this Fair, that they come with their Complaints before the Stewards in this Fair assigned to hear and determine Pleas, and they will minister to all Parties Justice, according to the Laws of this Land, and the Customs of this City.

The COURT of REQUESTS, commonly called the COURT of CONSCIENCE.

THIS Court has been established by Act of Common-Council, for many Years past, and so continued for the Relief and Benefit of poor Debtors in LONDON and the Liberties, and likewise for poor Freemen, that have small Debts owing to them. First, on the 1st of February, in the 9th Year of King Henry VIII. an Act of Common-Council was made, that the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the same City for the Time being, should monthly assign and appoint two Aldermen, and four discreet Commoners, to be Commissioners to sit in the same Court twice a Week, viz. Wednesday and Saturday; there to hear and determine all Matters brought before them between Party and Party, (being Citizens and Freemen of LONDON) in all Cases, where the due Debt or Damage did not exceed 40s.

THIS Act was to continue but for two Years then next ensuing: But being found charitable and profitable for the Relief of such poor Debtors as were not able to make present Payment of their Debts; and to restrain malicious Persons from proceeding in their willful Suits; and also to be a great Ease and Help to such poor Persons as had small Debts owing to them, and were not able to prosecute Suits in Law for the same elsewhere; the same Act has since then been continued by divers other Acts of Common-Council. And hereby (besides the said two Aldermen monthly assigned) the Number of Commissioners were increased from four to twelve. And so by that Authority, the same Court continued till the End of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, &c.

AND then divers People, being Citizens and Freemen of LONDON, (contrary to their Oaths formerly taken) repining at the Authority of the same Court, and not regarding the Expence of any Charges, how great soever, so they might have their Desires upon their poor Debtors, and being often animated thereunto by divers divers Attorneys and Solicitors (for their own particular Gain) did daily commence Suits, for such petty Debts and Causes against poor Men (Citizens and Freemen of LONDON) in the High Courts at Westminster, or elsewhere, out of the said Court of Requests, to avoid the Jurisdiction of the same Court, and to bar the said Commissioners from staying such Suits, and examining the said Causes, and thereby caused the said poor Men, many Times, to pay six Times as much Charges as their principal Debts or Damage did amount to, to the undoing of such poor Men, their Wives and Children, and also to the filling of the Prisons with the Poor so sued; where otherwise they might have got their Debts in the said Court of Requests, for very small Charge, and little Trouble.

FOR Remedy whereof, and for strengthening and establishing the said Court, an Act of Parliament was then made, Anno primo Jacobi Regis, That every Citizen and Freeman of LONDON, that had, or should have any Debts owing to him, not amounting to forty Shillings, by any Debtors (Citizens and Freemen of LONDON) inhabiting in LONDON, or the Liberties thereof, should or might cause such Debtors to be warned to appear before the Commissioners of the said Court; and that the said Commissioners, or the greater Number of them, should from Time to Time set down such Orders between such Parties, Plaintiff and Defendant, Creditor and Debtor, touching such Debts not exceeding forty Shillings, as they should find to stand with Equity and good Conscience.

BUT since the making of that Act, divers Persons (intending to subvert the good and charitable Intent of the same) have taken hold of some doubtful and ambiguous Words therein, and have wrested the same for their own Lucre and Gain, to the avoiding the Jurisdiction of the same Court, contrary to the godly Meaning of the said Act.

FOR Remedy whereof, and to the Intent that some more full and ample Provision might be made for the further establishing and strengthening of the said Court, and for the better Relief of such poor Debtors, another Act of Parliament was made in the third Year of the Reign of King James, intituled, An Act for the Recovering of Small Debts, and for the relieving of poor Debtors in LONDON. The Tenour of which Act is as follows:

WHEREAS by Virtue of divers Acts of Common-Council made within the City of LONDON, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the same City, for the Relief of poor Debtors dwelling within the said City, have accustomed monthly to assign two Aldermen and twelve discreet Commoners to be Commissioners, and sit in the Court of Requests, commonly called the Court of Conscience, in the Guildhall of the same City, there to hear and determine all Matters of Debt not amounting to the Sum of xl s. to be brought before them: And whereas at the Sessions of Parliament holden at Westminster, the nineteenth Day of March, in the first Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord the King's Majesty that now is, for the further Relief of such poor Debtors, and more perfect Establishing of the said Court, there was made and provided an Act, intituled, An Act for Recovery of small Debts, and relieving of poor Debtors in LONDON: And whereas since the making of the said Act, divers Persons intending to subvert the good and charitable Intent of the same, and taking hold of some doubtful and ambiguous Words therein, do wrest the same for their own Lucre and Gain, to the avoiding the Jurisdiction of the said Court, contrary to the godly Meaning of the said Act.

For the Remedy whereof, and to the Intent that some more full and ample Provision may be made for the Relief of such poor Debtor, be it enacted by Authority of this present Parliament, That every Citizen and Freeman of the City of LONDON, and every other Person and Persons inhabiting, or that shall inhabit within the said City, or the Liberties thereof, being a Tradesman, Victualler, or a Labouring Man, which now have, or hereafter shall have any Debt or Debts owing unto him or them, not amounting to forty Shillings, by any Citizen, or by any other Person or Persons being a Victualler, Tradesman, or Labouring Man, inhabiting, or that shall inhabit within the said City, or the Liberties thereof, shall or may cause such Debtor or Debtors to be warned or summoned by the Beadle or Officer of the said Court of Requests for the Time being, by Writing to be left at the Dwelling-House of such Debtor or Debtors, or by any other reasonable Warning or Notice to be given to the said Debtor or Debtors to appear before the Commissioners of the said Court of Requests, holden in the Guildhall of the said City: And that the said Commissioners, or any three of them or more, shall have Power and Authority, by Virtue of this Act, from Time to Time, to set down such Order or Orders between such Party or Parties Plaintiffs, and his or their such Debtor or Debtors Defendants, touching such Debts not amounting to the Value of forty Shillings, in Question before them, as they shall find to stand with Equity and good Conscience: All such their Order or Orders to be registered in a Book, as they have been accustomed, and as well the Party Plaintiff, as the Debtor or Defendant, to observe, perform and keep the same in all Points: And that for the more due Proceeding herein, it shall be lawful for the same Commissioners, or any three or more of them, to minister an Oath to the Plaintiff or Defendant, and also to such Witnesses as shall be produced on each Party, if the same Commissioners, or any three of them or more shall so think it meet.

And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That if in any Action of Debt, or Action upon the Case upon any Assumpsit for the Recovery of any Debt, to be sued or prosecuted against any the Person or Persons aforesaid, in any of the King's Courts at Westminster, or elsewhere out of the said Courts of Requests, it shall appear to the Judge or Judges of the Court where such Action shall be sued or prosecuted, that the Debt to be recovered by the Plaintiff in such Action doth not amount to the Sum of forty Shillings, and the Defendant in such Action shall duly prove either by sufficient Testimony, or by his own Oath, to be allowed by any the Judge or Judges of the said Court where such Action shall depend, that at the Time of the commencing of such Action, such Defendant was inhabiting and resident in the City of LONDON, or the Liberties thereof, as above, that in such Case the said Judge or Judges shall not allow to the said Plaintiff any Costs of Suit, but shall award that the same Plaintiff shall pay so much ordinary Costs to the Party Defendant, as such Defendant shall justly prove before the said Judge or Judges, it hath truly cost him in Defence of the said Suit.

And be it further enacted, That if any such Plaintiff or Creditor, Defendant or Debtor, after Warning given to him or them, in Manner and Form before in this Act mentioned, by the said Officer of the said Court of Requests, shall without some just or reasonable Cause of Excuse, refuse to appear in the said Court before the said Commissioners, or shall not perform such Order as the said Commissioners, or any three or more of them, shall set down, or concerning such Debts as aforesaid, that then it shall be lawful for the said Court, or any other of the Sergeants at Mace of the said City, by Order of the said Commissioners or any three or more of them, to commit such Party or Parties to Prison, into one of the Compters of the said City, there to remain until he or they shall perform the Order of the said Commissioners in that Behalf.

Provided always, That this Act, or any Thing therein contained, shall not extend to any Debt for any Rent upon any Lease of Lands or Tenements, or any other real Contracts, nor to any other Debt that shall arise by Reason of any Cause concerning a Testament or Matrimony, or any Thing concerning or properly belonging to the Ecclesiastical Court, albeit the same shall be under forty Shillings; any Thing before contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

THE Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen do monthly assign such Aldermen and Commons to sit as Commissioners in the said Court as they think fit: And the same Persons, or any three of them, make a Court, and do sit in Guildhall every Wednesday and Saturday in the Forenoon, to hear and determine such Causes as come before them.

A Cause may be brought and determined in this Court for 10 d. Charge, viz. 6 d. for the Plaintiff and the Summons, and 4 d. for the Order: But if the Defendant do not appear the second Court Day after Summons, an Attachment will be awarded against him, which will compel him to appear, and encrease the Charge.

If any Citizen shall be arrested for a Debt under 40 s. this Court will grant a Summons for the Plaintiff in the Action; and if he appear not the first Court Day after the Summons left at his House, will grant an Attachment against him, and force him to take his Debt, and pay the Defendant his Costs. And if any Attorney in LONDON shall presume to go on in any such Suit after Notice to the contrary, or shall refuse to obey the Order of this Court, upon Complaint thereof made to the Court of Aldermen, they will suspend such Person.

IN the Majority of Sir William Craven, an Attorney in the Sheriffs Court was sent for by the Commissioners sitting in this Court; and he refusing to come before them, they made Complaint to the Court of Aldermen, who thereupon made an Order as follows:

C R A V E N, Mayor.

Jovis 24 die Januarii Anno Domini 1610, Annoque Regis Jacobi Angl' &c. octavo.

THIS Day Sir John Jolls, Knight and Alderman of this City, did declare unto this Court, that he and three discreet Commoners of this City (amongst others) assigned by this Court to be Commissioners for this instant Month of January for the Court of Requests, commonly called the Court of Conscience, according to an Act of Parliament made in the third Year of the Reign of the King's Majesty that now is: And that they sitting in the said Court of Conscience in the Guildhall of this City Yesterday, being Wednesday, the three and twentieth of this instant January, to hear and determine Matters for the recovering of small Debts, and relieving of poor Debtors in this City, according as by the said Act of Parliament they are authorized, and only out of a conscionable Care to be certainly informed of the true State of a Case brought before them, and which was depending in the Sheriffs Court, where they were informed that Thomas Hutton, one of the Attorneys in the Sheriffs Court, was retained for the Plaintiff in the said Court: And the said Hutton being in the Guildhall in the View of the said Sir John Jolls, and other the Commissioners, the said Commissioners commanded the Beadle of the said Court to go to the said Hutton, and require him presently to come to the said Sir John Jolls, and other Commissioners. And albeit the Beadle went two several Times to him, yet the said Hutton peremptorily and contemptuously made answer, That he neither could nor would come to them. The which being here examined in full and open Court, and the said Hutton called to answer the same, was in Part confessed by the said Hutton, and also proved by the Oath of the Clerk and Beadle of the said Court of Requests. And to aggravate the said Offence and Contempt, the said Hutton here in open Court, did affirm, That he knew not what Authority that Court had to send for him. The which Indignities and Contempts offered to Commissioners chosen by this Court, and established by Act of Parliament, and to an Alderman of the City of LONDON, by a subordinate Officer of this City, this Court do generally hold the same intolerable, and the said Hutton worthy of severe and condign Punishment: And therefore do order and decree, that the said Thomas Hutton shall be presently and absolutely dismissed, and this Court doth absolutely dismiss him of and from his said Place and Office of one of the Attorneys of the said Sheriffs Court aforesaid. And Mr. Dale, one of the Judges of the said Court, was sent for, and being here present, was required to take Notice thereof, and to publish the same in the Sheriffs Court, and to take present Order that the said Thomas Hutton be not admitted hereafter to practise any more in the said Court.

The Court of CONSERVACY of the River THAMES.

THERE is a peculiar Court for the taking Care of this most important River of Thames, both for the Water and Fish of it: The Right of which is in the City. This Court is held before the Lord Mayor, at such Times as he shall appoint and direct, within the Counties near adjacent to LONDON and Westminster, viz. Middlesex and Essex, on the North Side of the River, Kent and Surrey on the South.

THE Water-Bailiff is my Lord Mayor's Deputy, and ought to give Notice to his Lordship of all Offences committed by any Persons, contrary to the Orders made for Preservation of the Brood and Fry of Fish in the said River.

THERE have been several Orders made and devised for that Purpose; some of which Orders are as follow, viz.

ORDER S

ORDERS devised and agreed upon by the Right Honourable Sir Robert Ducie; Knt. and Baronet; Lord Mayor of the City of LONDON, and Conservator of the River of Thames, and Waters of Medway; for the Preservation of the Brood and Fry of FISH within the West Part of the said River; as follows:

FIRST, That no Man; upon Penalty and Forfeiture of his Net and Ten Pounds, with Imprisonment at the Discretion of the Lord Mayor, shall presume to shute any Draw-net or Coulter-net, at any Time of the Year; before Sun-rising, nor after Sun-setting; for that in the Night-time unlawful Nets may be used; and other Abuses offered, to the great Hurt and Annoyance of the said River of Thames; and to shute in their several Rooms well known.

2. Item, That no Fisherman or other shall still, lie, or bend over any Net during the Time of the Flood, whereby both Salmons and other Kinds of Fish may be hinder'd and kept back from swimming upwards, to the Benefit and Profit of such Fishermen as dwell in the West Part of the said River; upon the like Pain and Penalty.

3. Item, That no Fisherman or other shall shute any Draw-net, Cod-net, or other Net or Engine, whereby any Salmon-fish shall be taken after Holyrood Day is past, being the fourteenth Day of September, because at that Time they are out of Season, and remain here upon the River only to spawn and breed; upon the like Payment.

4. Item, That no Fisherman or other shall fish with any Net, or lay or hale any Wheel, or use any other Net or Engine whatsoever, from Sun-setting on Saturday at Night, until Sun-rising upon Monday Morning, no, not during all the Time of Lent, as being a Thing not only very hurtful to the said River, but also a great Abuse and profaning of the Lord's Sabbath; upon the like Payment.

5. Item, That no Fisherman or other shall at any Time hereafter ship their Draw-nets (called Shipping a Stern) into their Boats, before such Time as they have laid forth all their whole Net, as they do when they land towards a low Water, nor that they ship some Part of their said Net, and land the rest; but that from henceforth they shall fulfil and observe that antient Order of landing their Nets (as they have heretofore usually done) at low Water, upon the like Payment.

6. Item, That no Fisherman or other Person whatsoever shall use any Spear, called an Eel-Spear, at any Time of the Year, for that they are likewise very great Destroyers of Barbels and other Kinds of Fish; nor shall work with any Bley-net, Rugge-net, or Smelt-net; upon the said Water Westward, farther than Isleworth Church, from the tenth Day of March yearly, until Holyrood Day be past; being the fourteenth Day of September; upon the like Payment.

7. Item, That no Fisherman or other shall at any Time of the Year use or exercise any Flue; Trammel, Double-walled-net, or Hooped-net whatsoever, for that they are not only the utter Destruction of all breeding Barbels, but also a great Spoil and Hurt to other Sorts of the young Brood and Fry of Fish, being with those Kind of Nets infinitely destroyed, to the general Ruin of the River aforesaid; upon the like Payment.

8. Item, That no Fisherman or other shall lay any Weels, called Kills, in any Place of the River, from the tenth of March till the tenth of May yearly; for that all Roches do then shed their Spawn; nor that no Man whatsoever cut any Bull-rushes, or other Flags or Sedges growing upon the River from Richmond unto the Mark-stone above Stanes-bridge; for that they are a great Succour and Safe-guard unto the Fish; upon the like Payment.

9. Item, That no Fisherman or other shall use within the said River of Thames, any Weel called a Lomb or a Mill-pot, or any other Engine, with the Head thereof against the Stream, upon Pain of Forfeiture of Ten Pounds; and Imprisonment at the Discretion of the Lord Mayor: Nor that no Man whatsoever shall occupy upon the said River of Thames, any Nets called Purse-nets, otherwise Easting-nets; upon the like Payment.

10. Item, That no Fisherman or others shall be suffered to rug for Flounders either by Ebb or by Flood, at any Time of the Year, between London-bridge and Strangate on the South Side, and Westminster-bridge on the North Side, but only two Casts at Low Water, and two Casts at full Sea or High Water, for the Safeguard of the Fry and Brood of Fish; and no Flounder shall be taken under the Assize of six Inches: Nor that no Fisherman or other shall fleet with any Bley-net upon the Benches from Whitehall to the Temple-stairs upon High Waters, from Whitfontide to Bartholomewtide; upon like Payment.

11. Item, That no Fisherman or other Person whatsoever shall cast, bring, or cause to be brought, any Carrion, Soil, Gravel, Rubbish, Sods of Earth, or any other Filth or Annoyance, whereby Banks and Shelves are raised, and the common Passage hinder'd, to the great Danger of Fates, Boats, and Barges; passing to and fro upon the said River: Nor that no Fisherman or other shall drive or cause to be driven any Piles, Stumps or Stakes, within the said River of Thames, upon which the like Mischief and Dangers may arise, until such Time as they be lawfully licensed so to do; upon the like Pain and Penalty as aforesaid.

12. Item, That no Fisherman or other shall presume to take up any Rack or Drifth upon the Water of Thames, without Notice given thereof to the Water-Bailiff, or his Substitute, within convenient Time, he satisfying him for his Pains as shall be reasonable and thought fitting; nor shall conceal and keep secret the said Rack or Drifth from the said Water-Bailiff, to the End that such Order and Care may be taken therein as hath been accustomed, according to the Laws and Ordinances ordained for the Preservation of the said River; upon like Payment and Penalty.

13. Item, That no Fisherman or other shall fish with any kind of Net, or use any Angle-rod with more then two Hooks upon a Line, or saw or scratch for Barbel within the Limits of London-bridge, or shall use any other Engine nearer unto the Bridge than St. Botolph's Wharf and the Bridge-house Wharf on the East Side, nor nearer on the West Side than St. Mary Overies-Stairs and the Old-Swan; upon the Pain of Imprisonment at the Discretion of the Lord Mayor, and six Shillings and eight Pence to the Chamber of LONDON.

14. Item, That no Peterman shall at any Time hereafter fish or work with any Manner of Net upon the said Water Westward farther then Richmond-Crane; unto which Place, or near thereabouts, the Water ebbeth and floweth, for that the fishing upon that Place hath caused a great Destruction of Fish; upon Pain of Forfeiture of twenty Shillings for every Time they shall so offend, and farther Punishment according to the Quality of his Offence.

15. Item, It is ordered that no Peterman shall hereafter at any Time of the Year take the Tides above Richmond, nor go in Company together, it being found very prejudicial and hurtful both to the River and Fishermen, and nothing available for the furnishing of any Markets, nor shall go to fish more than five together in one Company between Richmond and London-bridge, upon Pain of forfeiting for every Time ten Shillings, and Imprisonment during Pleasure.

16. Item, That no Peterman, or any other, take any Flounders, or any other short Fish, which they have usually called Kettle-Fish, not being six Inches of Assize, being found to be to the great Destruction of the Fish, upon the like Penalty and Pain.

17. Item, That whereas many Inconveniencies have heretofore risen to the River of Thames by divers Fishermen keeping of Boys, who had neither Sufficiency to take the Charge of Fishing, nor bound Apprentice to the same: Therefore from henceforth it shall not be lawful for any Fisherman to keep two Boys in one Boat, unless the one of them be at Man's Estate, or thought sufficient by the Water-Bailiff to take the Charge, or else that one of them be an Owner; nor that no Fisherman from henceforth do take any Apprentice to the said Trade of Fishing, unless he first enter his Name into the Register-Book of the Water-Bailiff of this City, kept for that Purpose, nor under the Term of seven Years; and that, after the Expiration of his said Term, he likewise come again before the said Water-Bailiff, to be by him admitted a lawful Fisherman, (as of antient Time hath been accustomed,) upon like Payment.

18. Lastly, That every Fisherman upon the River of Thames, from London-bridge unto Stanes-bridge, shall once every Year (viz. upon St. Paul's Day, being the five and twentieth Day of January) appear before the Water-Bailiff of this City, at the Chapel of the Guildhall, by Ten of the Clock in the Forenoon of the same Day, there to enter their several Names into his Register-Book kept for that Purpose: And farther, to hear the Orders and Institutions ordained for the Preservation of the said River to be openly and publickly read, to the Intent that they and every of them may the better perform the same, upon Pain of six Shillings eight Pence for every Default so made. And if any Man whatsoever, Fisherman or other, shall contemptuously or stubbornly resist the Water-Bailiff, being Sub-Conservator under the Lord Mayor, in the due Performance and Execution of his said Office, he shall make such Fine, or be imprisoned at the Discretion of the Lord Mayor for the Time being, as unto his Lordship shall seem most fitting.

Eel-spear.

24. Item, That no Fisherman or other Person whatsoever, shall use upon the River of Thames, at any Time of the Year, any Spear called an Eel-spear, or any other Kind of Spear whatsoever, for that they are great Destroyers of young Brood and other Kind of Fish in great Abundance, and therefore altogether unlawful; no Man to use them upon Pain of Imprisonment, and further Fine at the Discretion of the Lord Mayor.

Fore-falling.

25. Item, You shall further inquire, and true Presentment make, of all such Persons as do use to go down the River to buy up either Fish, Victuals, or other Commodities before the same cometh to Billingsgate and other Keys, being known and appointed Places of Sale, vent and discharge thereof; if you know any such, you shall present who they be, and how often they have so done.

Fish out of Season.

26. Item, That no Fisherman or other Person whatsoever, shall work with any Manner of Net or Engine whatsoever, to take or kill any Dace or Roch from the tenth of March till the tenth of May yearly, for that they do then shed their Spawn: Nor that they take or kill any of the said Dace, Roch, or other kind of Fish out of their due Kind or Season, nor except they contain in Length according to the true Scantling and Affize, and not otherwise.

Soil and Rubbish.

27. Item, You shall further inquire, and true Presentment make, whether any Butcher, Brewer, Inn-keeper, or any other Person or Persons, as well within the City of LONDON, as in any other County, Town, or Village, (as far as the Liberty of the Lord Mayor extendeth) have cast or put into the said River, any Paunches, Grains, Horse-dung, or any other Rubbish, Soil, or Filth whatsoever, to the very great Annoyance and Hurt of the said River, on Pain of Imprisonment, and further Fine at the Discretion of the Lord Mayor of LONDON: If you know any such you shall present them.

Royal Fish.

30. Lastly, Because the Number of Fishermen do daily increase, and not only Fishermen, but also a great Number of Cable-hangers and Tradesmen, such as were never bound Apprentice to the Craft and Science of Fishing, to the great Hurt of the River, and Hinderance of Fishermen, the said River being not able to relieve and succour the Multiplicity of them being so great: It is now ordained, That every Fisherman dwelling near unto the said River, that doth take and receive into his or their Custody any Apprentice to the said Trade of Fishing, shall within one Month next after repair to the Water-Bailiff of LON- DON, to have his Indenture written and engrossed, to the End that after he may present him to the Chamberlain of LONDON to be enrolled, according to antient Custom; and not to receive any Apprentice under the Term of Seven Years: And at the End and Expiration of the said Term, the Master of the said Apprentice do again present him to the said Water-Bailiff, to be by him admitted and allowed a Fisherman. And finally, You shall inquire and true Presentment make, by the Oaths that you and every of you have taken, whether any Fisherman or other Person whatsoever they be, have with any Manner of Net or Engine offended or misused himself in fishing within the said River, or whether they have any Manner of Ways made Destruction of the Brood and Fry of any Kind of Fish therein contained, contrary to the good and antient Laws, Ordinances, and Constitutions of the said River of Thames. And to make a true, perfect and faithful Presentment of all Kind of Encroachment, Hurts, Offences and Annoyances, touching as well Fishermen, as any other Person or Persons within the said Jurisdiction, being any Manner of ways hurtful or offensive to the same.

At a Court of Aldermen the tenth of July 1673, an Order was made as follows, viz.

THIS Court considering the great Decay of the Fishing Trade in the River of Thames, and conceiving, That drawing the Shores (of late so frequently practised) is the chief Ground thereof, as tending to the great Prejudice and utter Destruction of the Brood and Fry of all Sorts of Fish, did thereupon this Day strictly order and enjoin, That no Person do hereafter presume to draw the Shores in the River of Thames upon any Pretence whatsoever at any Time or Season of the Year, either with lawful or unlawful Nets, save only for Salmon in Rooms appointed and set out for that Purpose by this Court: And that none do fish for Salmon in such Rooms, but only such as shall be impowered thereunto under the Seal of the Mayoralty of this City: And also that none fish with a Net under six Inches in the Mesh, upon Pain that ever Offender shall forfeit for every such Offence his Nets, and pay as a Fine the Sum of twenty Pounds, and suffer Imprisonment during the Pleasure of this Court. And to the end more diligent and strict Search may for the future be made upon the said River than hitherto hath been, or possibly can be by one single Person, for such as fish with unlawful Nets, at unlawful Times, and in an unlawful Manner; The Water-Bailiff for the Time being is by this Court ordered and impowered, from Time to Time to authorize two or more honest Fishermen, in such Town and Places as he shall think convenient, as well below as above the Bridge, to be assistant to him in the Execution of his Duty. And when they shall think fit, to go out and search for any such Offenders, and to take away their Nets, and to give their Names to Mr. Water-Bailiff, that he may take effectual Care, that they be severely proceeded against according to Law.

WAGSTAFFE.

In some convenient Places within the four Counties adjoining to the Thames, (as among others, Gravesend in Kent, and Stratford Langton in Essex) the Lord Mayor sits judicially eight Times early; and hath a Power of summoning four Juries out of the Inhabitants of those Counties; to whom an Oath is administer'd, to make Inquisition after Offences committed upon the River. And these go up the River as far as Stanes-bridge, and down the River as far as the Points of the River next the Sea, in a Barge prepared pared for them, to examine and make Enquiries according to certain Articles to direct them therein, to the Number of thirty. Which may be seen in the Book called the City's Law. And according to the Verdict of these Juries, the Court proceeds to Punishment of all Transgressions of Fishermen, or others, that create any Damage or Hurt to the Thames, or the Fry.

BUT sometimes these Sessions of the Conservacy have been omitted for a long Time. The Lord Mayors in the Reign of King James I. had not held this Court in divers Years, till the Year 1616, when Sir John Jolls, Lord Mayor, and divers Aldermen, and other Officers and Gentlemen, went in their Barges in great State, taking Water at Billingsgate, and so to Gravesend; where they sat upon the Conservacy.

THE Right of the Thames to belong to the City, and of the Lord Mayor to be Conservator of it, is indubitable from sundry antient Charters, Acts of Parliament, Prescriptions, Inquisitions, and the like; as was learnedly shewn by Jones, Common Serjeant, at a Court of Conservacy, Anno 1616, of which see more particularly Book I. Chap. VI. treating wholly of the River Thames. To all which may be added, a Part of King James I.'s Charter to the City: Where it is inserted, "That the Mayor and Commonalty, " and Citizens, Time out of Memory of Man, " have exercised the Office of Bailiff and Conservator of the Water of Thames, to be exercised and occupied by the Mayor for the Time " being, or by his sufficient Deputies.

Lastly, As an Appendix to this Court of Conservacy, wherein such Care is taken for the Fish, let these By-Laws and Ordinances of the Company of Fishermen, made 1689, be added.

At a Court of Assistants of the Company of FREE FISHERMEN of the River of Thames, &c. held the 25th of October, 1689, the following By-Laws and Ordinances were order'd to be printed and published, to the End that all Persons concerned therein, might take Care to avoid incurring the several Penalties for Breach of the same; and to be observed in the Western Parts of the River Thames; that is to say, from LONDON Mark-stone Westwards of Stanes-bridge to London-bridge.

IMPRIMIS, To the End unlawful Nets and Engines, and other Abuses offered to the Prejudice and Destruction of the Fishery, may be discovered, it is ordained, That no Person using the Mystery or Craft of a Fisherman, do shute, set, or draw any Draw-net, at any Time of the Year, before Sun-rising, or after Sun-setting, within the Bounds or Limits aforesaid, upon Penalty of ten Pounds for every such Offence.

2. Item, That no Person using the Art, Mystery or Craft of a Fisherman, shall, within the said Bounds or Limits, still lie or bend over any Net, during the Time of Flood, whereby both Salmon, and other Kind of Fish, may be hinder'd or kept back from swimming upwards, to the Benefit and Profit of such Fishermen as dwell in the West Part of the said River, upon Penalty of ten Pounds for every such Offence.

3. Item, That no such Person shall shute, or place, within the said Bounds or Limits, any Draw-net, Cod-net, or other Net or Engine, whereby any Salmon shall be taken after Holy-Rood-Day is past, being the 14th Day of September, and before St. Paul's Day, being the 25th of January; because at that Time they are out of Season, and remain here upon the Rivers only to spawn and breed, upon the Penalty of ten Pounds for every such Offence.

4. Item, That no such Person, using the Art, Mystery or Craft of a Fisherman, shall, within the said Bounds or Limits, fish with any Net, or lay or hale any Weel, or use any other Net or Engine whatsoever, from Sun-setting on Saturday Night, until Sun-rising on Monday Morning, at any Time of the Year, it being a Profanation of the Lord's Day, upon the Penalty of twenty Shillings for every such Offence.

5. Item, That no Person using the Art, Mystery or Craft of a Fisherman, shall, within the said Bounds or Limits, at any Time hereafter, ship their Draw-nets, called shipping a-stern, into their Boats, before such Time as they have laid forth all their whole Net, as they do when they land towards a Low-Water; nor shall they ship some Part of their said Net, and land the rest, upon the like Forfeiture and Payment of ten Pounds for every such Offence.

6. Item, That no Person using the Art, Mystery or Craft of a Fisherman, shall, within the said Bounds or Limits, use any Spear, called an Eel-Spear, at any Time. For that they are very great Destroyers of Barbel, and other kinds of Fish; nor shall work any Bley-net, or Rugge-net, upon the said Water Westwards, from the 10th Day of March, until the 10th Day of May yearly, from Brentford upwards; nor any Smelt-net, until Holy-Rood Day be past, upon the Forfeiture of twenty Shillings for every such Offence.

7. Item, That no Person using the Art, Mystery or Craft of a Fisherman, shall, within the said Bounds or Limits, at any Time of the Year, use or exercise any Flue, Trammel, or double walled Net, or hooped Net whatsoever, not being three Inches and a quarter broad, at the least, in the Meish. For that they are not only the utter Destruction of all breeding Barbels, but also a great Spoil and Hurt to other Sorts of the young Brood; Spawn and Fry of Fish, being with those kind of Nets greatly destroyed, upon the Forfeiture of forty Shillings for every such Offence.

8. Item, That no Person using the Art, Mystery or Craft of a Fisherman, shall, within the said Bounds or Limits, lay, set or place any Weels called Kills, in any Place of the River of Thames, from the 10th of March until the 10th of May yearly. For that all Roches do then shed their Spawn; upon the like Forfeiture and Payment of twenty Shillings for every such Offence.

9. Item, That no Person using the Art, Mystery or Craft of a Fisherman, shall use within the said River of Thames any Weel, called a Lomb, or Millpot, or any other Engine, with the Head thereof against the Stream, upon Pain of Forfeiture of twenty Shillings; nor shall use, exercise, or occupy upon the said River of Thames, any Net called a Purse-net, otherwise a Casting-net, upon the like Forfeiture and Payment of forty Shillings for every such Offence.

10. Item, That no Person using the Art, Mystery or Craft of a Fisherman, shall, within the said Bounds or Limits, be suffered to rud for Flounders, either Ebb or by Flood, at any Time of the Year, unless their Rud-nets be full two Inches and three Quarters broad in the Meish, for the Safeguard of the Fry, Spawn and Brood of Fish; and that no Flounders shall be taken or killed by any such Person, under the Affize of six Inches in the Length, from white to white, (being the Substance of the Body, excluding the Tails:) and that no such Person shall, within the said Bounds or Limits, fleet with any Bley-net, not being two Inches broad in the Meish, wet and dry, from the 24th of September till the 10th of March in every Year, upon the like Forfeiture and Payment of Forty Shillings for every such Offence.

11. Item,

11. Item, That no Person using the Art, Mystery, or Craft of a Fisherman, shall within the said Bounds, fish with any Kind of Net, or use any Angle-Rod with more than two Hooks upon a Line, or saw or scratch for Barbel; nor shall use any other Engine nearer unto London-bridge than St. Botolph's Wharf, and the Bridge-house Wharf on the East Side, or nearer unto the West Side than St. Mary Overy's Stairs, and the Old Swan, upon Forfeiture of six Shillings and eight Pence for every such Offence to the Company; and also six Shillings and eight Pence to the Chamber of LONDON, for every such Offence, as hath been antiently accustomed with in the said City.

12. Item, That no Petermen shall at any Time hereafter, fish or work with any Manner of Smelt-nets, upon the said River of Thames Westward, farther than Richmond Crane, (unto which Place, or near thereabouts, the Water ebbeth and floweth.) For that the fishing beyond that Place hath caused a great Destruction of Fish, upon Pain of forfeiting twenty Shillings for every Time he or they shall so offend.

13. Item, That no Peterman shall hereafter, at any Time of the Year, take the Tides, nor Pouse upon the whole River of Thames, it having been found very prejudicial both to the River and Fishermen, and nothing available towards the furnishing of any Markets, upon Forfeiture of forty Shillings, by every Person that shall commit such Offence.

14. Item, That no Peterman, or Person using the Art, Mystery or Craft of a Fisherman, shall take any Sort of Fish, which are usually called Kettle-Fish, not being six Inches of Assize, upon Forfeiture of ten Shillings for every such Offence.

15. Item, That whereas many Inconveniences have heretofore arisen to the River of Thames, by divers Fishermen keeping of Boys, who were not sufficient to take the Charge of Fishing; therefore, from henceforth it shall not be lawful for any Fisherman to keep two Persons in one Boat, unless one of them be of Man's Estate, or be thought sufficient to take the Charge of Fishing, or that one of them be an Owner, upon Forfeiture of twenty Shillings for every Week he or they shall offend herein, &c.

At a Court of Assistants of the Company of FREE FISHERMEN of the River of Thames, &c. held the 25th Day of October, 1689, the following By-Laws and Ordinances were ordered to be printed and published, to the End that all Persons concerned therein, might take Care to avoid incurring the several Penalties for Breach of the same; and to be observed by all the Fishermen and Druggermen below London-bridge, that is to say, from London-bridge to Yeandal, alias Yeanlet, and the Waters of Medway, in the Counties of Kent, Essex, Middlesex and Surrey, so far up the River Medway, till they meet with the Liberties of the City of Rochester, and all other Places, from the North Foreland in Kent, to Harwich in Essex, and all other Waters within the Precinct aforesaid.

2. Item, That no such Person shall within the said Bounds or Limits use or imploy any Trawle-net, that shall not be three Inches at the Head, and two Inches and a half at the Cod; and that all such Nets of such Persons that are already made, shall be taken off at threescore, and knit down to two Inches and a half; upon Pain of forfeiting the Sum of ten Pounds; and no such Persons shall henceforth begin to fish or work upon any Trawle before the fourteenth Day of September yearly, upon the Forfeiture of thirty Shillings for every such Offence.

BESIDES these principal Courts of LONDON, there are other Courts of less Note kept within the City, and belonging to it, as the Wardmote Court, the Halmote Court, the Court of the Coroner, the Court of the Escheator, &c.

The WARDMOTE Court.

A Wardmote is much the same as a Folksmote was among the Saxons, or a Plebiscitum among the Romans, and is defined to be an Assembly of the whole People (i. e. Free Citizens) of one Ward duly summoned by the Lord Mayor, the Alderman of the Ward, as Head of the Assembly, or his Deputy, being present, in order to correct Defects and Disorders, remove Annoyances, and promote the Common Interest and Commodity of the said Ward.

THE Wardmote Courts are like the Leet Courts in the Country; for as those were derived out of the Country Court, so these were derived out of the Lord Mayor's Court, which is a Court of Record, and erected for the better Government of the City; and the Alderman of every Ward had an antient Right to hold Leets there.

THE Lord Mayor doth annually issue out his Precept to the Aldermen of every Ward, to hold his Wardmote for the Election of Common-Council-Men, and other Officers; the Tenor of which Precept is to the Effect following:

By the M A Y O R.

To the ALDERMEN of the WARD.

WARDMOTE INQUEST for a Year.

WE Charge and Command you, that upon St. Thomas's Day the Apostle next coming, you do hold your Wardmote, and that you have afore us at our General Court of Aldermen to be holden in the Guildhall, the Monday next after the Feast of the Epiphany next coming, all the Defaults that shall be presented afore you by Inquest in the said Wardmote, and the said Inquest shall have full Power and Authority by one whole Year, to enquire and present all such Defaults as shall be found within your said Ward, as oftentimes as shall be thought to you expedient and needful, which we will, shall be once every Month at least.

INQUEST Dying.

AND if it happen any of your said Inquest to die, or depart out of your said Ward within the said Year, that then in Place of him or them so dying, or departing out of your said Ward, you cause to be chosen one able Person to enquire and present with the other in Manner and Form aforesaid.

NON-APPEARANCE.

AND that at the said General Court, you give afore us the Names and Surnames of all them of your said Ward, that come not to your said Wardmote, if they be duly warned, so that due Redress and Punishment of them may be had, as the Case shall require, according to the Law.

WATCH, LIGHT, VIZARD.

AND that ye do provide, that at all Times convenient, covenable Watch be kept; and that Lanterns with Light by Nightertail in old Manner accustomed, be hanged forth; and that no Man go by Nightertail without Light, nor with Vizard, on the Peril that belongeth thereto.

COMMON-COUNCIL.

AND also, that you do cause to be chosen Men, of the most sufficient, honest, and discreet Men of your said Ward, to be for your said Ward of the Common-Council of this City for the Year ensuing, according to the Custom in that Behalf yearly used. And also that you do cause the said Men so to be chosen to be of the Common-Council, to be sworn before you and in your Presence, according to the Oath for them used, and of old Time accustomed, the Tenor of which Oath hereafter ensueth:

The OATH.

“YE shall swear, that ye shall be true to our Sovereign Lord the King that now is, and to his Heirs and Successors, Kings of England, and readily ye shall come when ye be summoned to the Common-Council of this City, but if ye be reasonably excused; and good and true “ true Counſel ye ſhall give in all Things, touching the Commonwealth of this City, after your Wit and Cunning : And that for Favour of any Perſon ye ſhall maintain no ſingular Profit againſt the common Profit of this City : And after that you be come to the Common-Council, ye ſhall not from thence depart, until the Common-Council be ended, without reaſonable Cauſe, or elſe by the Lord Mayor’s Licence ; and alſo any ſecret Things that be ſpoken or ſaid in the Common-Council, which ought to be kept ſecret, in no wiſe you ſhall diſcloſe. Aſ God you help.

AND after this Oath, the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance of later Times were wont to be adminiſtered, by Virtue of an Act of Parliament in King Charles the IIId’s Time, For the regulating of Corporations.

CONSTABLES, SCAVENGERS, BEADLE, RAKER.

AND that alſo in the ſaid Wardmote you cauſe to be choſen certain other honeſt Perſons to be Conſtables and Scavengers, and a common Beadle, and a Raker to make clean the Streets and Lanes of all your ſaid Ward, according to the Cuſtom yearly uſed in that Behalf ; which Conſtables have, and ſhall have full Power and Authority to Diſtrain for the Salary and Quarterage of the ſaid Beadle and Raker, as oftentimes as it ſhall be behind unpaid.

ROLL of NAMES.

ALſo, that you keep a Roll of the Names, Surnames, Dwelling-places, Professions and Trades of all Perſons dwelling within your Ward, and within what Conſtable’s Precinct they dwell ; wherein the Place is to be ſpecially noted by the Street, Lane, Alley, or Sign.

CONSTABLE, ROLL.

ALſo, that you cauſe every Conſtable from Time to Time to certify unto you the Name, Surname, Dwelling-place, Profession and Trade of every Perſon, who ſhall newly come to dwell within his Precinct, whereby you may make and keep your Roll perfect ; and that you cauſe every Conſtable for his Precinct to that Purpoſe, to make and keep a perfect Roll in like Manner.

INNHOLDER, LODGER, SOJOURNER.

ALſo, that you give ſpecial Charge that every Innholder, and other Perſon within your Ward, who ſhall receive any Perſon to lodge or ſojourn in his Houſe above two Days, ſhall before the third Day after his coming thither, give Knowledge to the Conſtable of the Precinct where he ſhall be ſo received, of the Name, Surname, Dwelling-place, Profession, and Trade of Life, or Place of Service of ſuch Perſon, and for what Cauſe he ſhall come to reſide there ; and that the ſaid Conſtable give preſent Notice thereof to you ; and that the ſaid Innholder lodge no ſuſpected Perſon, or Men or Women of evil Name.

IT was upon great Reaſon that this was made one of the Articles of Inqueſt, becauſe of ſo many Miſdemeanors and Exorbitances committed uſually in the publick Houſes in LONDON, in former Times, as well as later, by ſuch as uſed them.

As far back as the Reign of King Edward II. above 400 Years ago, many Robberies and Murders were committed by looſe People that took Harbour in ſuch Houſes, and were concealed or maintained there, which occaſioned that King to write to the Mayor and Sheriffs of LONDON, “ For the redreſſing and remedying of many Robberies, Murders, and other Transgreſſions, done, maintained, and wickedly ſuſtained by Receivers of Gueſts and publick Bauds, in divers Inns and other Places in the City and Suburbs. And the King very much wondered that they, who were obliged more ſtrictly to the as well honeſt as ſecure Cuſtody of the ſaid City and Suburbs, ſhould permit ſuch Evils and Wickedneſſes to be done, maintained and ſuſtained, to the King’s Diſgrace, and the City’s Scandal, and not without their own Negligence and Defect hitherto.

SEARCH, NEW-COMERS.

ALſo, that you cauſe every Conſtable within his Precinct, once every Month at the fartheſt, and oftner, if Need require, to make diligent Search and Inquiry, what Perſons are newly come into his Precinct to dwell, ſojourn, or lodge ; and that you give ſpecial Charge, that no Innholder or other Perſons ſhall reſiſt or deny any Conſtable, in making ſuch Search or Inquiry, but ſhall do his beſt Endeavour to aid and aſſiſt him therein.

FRANK PLEDGE.

AND for that of late there is more Reſort to the City of Perſons evil affected in Religion and otherwiſe than in former Times have been : You ſhall diligently inquire, if any Man be received to dwell or abide within your Ward, that is not put under Frank Pledge, as he ought to be by the Cuſtom of the City ; and whether any Perſon hath continued in the ſaid Ward by the Space of one Year, being above the Age of 12 Years, and not ſworn to be faithful and loyal to the King’s Maſteſty, in ſuch Sort as by the Law and Cuſtom of the City he ought to be.

BEADLE.

To all theſe Purpoſes the Beadle of every Ward ſhall employ his Diligence, and give his beſt Furtherance.

STOCKS, &c.

ALſo you are to take Order, that there be provided and ſet up a Pair of Stocks, and a Whipping-Post, in ſome convenient Place in every Pariſh within your Ward, for the Punishment of Vagrants, and other Offenders.

FIRE.

ALſo, that ye have ſpecial Regard, that from Time to Time there be convenient Provision for Hooks, Ladders, and Buckets, in meet Places within the ſeveral Pariſhes of your Ward, for avoiding the Peril of Fire.

STREETS.

ALſo, that the Streets and Lanes of this City be from Time to Time kept clean before every Church, Houſe, Shop, Warehouse, Door, dead Wall, and in all other common Paſſages and Streets of the ſaid Ward.

COMMONS, DINNERS, BANQUETINGS.

ITEM, Where the Wardmote Inquests within the several Wards of this City, for the Maintenance of Honesty, Virtue, and good Living, and for the Abolishment, Exiling, and Suppressing all Kind of Vice, evil Rule, and Iniquity, according to the antient laudable Laws and Customs of the said City, are yearly severally charged and sworn, upon the Day of St. Thomas the Apostle, before the Aldermen of the said Wards, chiefly and principally to the End and Intent, that they with all Diligence should truly and duly inquire and present all such Enormities, Nuisances, Misorder, and Offences as are, or at any Time within the Space of one whole Year then next ensuing, shall be severally used, committed or done within the said Wards, and have a Day yearly to make their said Presentments until the Monday next after the Feast of the Epiphany: The said Inquests heretofore little or nothing at all regarding (as it is very manifest, and not unknown, the more is the Pity) their said Oaths, or yet the great Commodities, Utility, Quietness, Honour, and Worship, that might or should grow and ensue to the said City and Inhabitants of the same, thro' their good, industrious, and indifferent Proceedings, for the Advancement of Virtue and Repressing of Vice, have drawn it in a Manner into a very ordinary Course, and common Custom, to consume and spend a great Part of their said Time, that they have yearly given unto them, when they receive their said Charge, partly in setting up among themselves a certain Commons, and making and keeping many costly and sumptuous Dinners, Suppers, and Banquets; inviting and calling to the same at sundry Times, in a Manner, all the Inhabitants of the said several Wards, to the no little Charges of the same Inhabitants, and partly in passing and occupying much Part of the said Time in playing at Dice, Tables, Cards, and such other unlawful Games, both to the great Costs, Charges, and Expences of the said Inquests (whereof the greatest Part most commonly are but poor Men) and also to the very lewd, pernicious and evil Example of all such as have any Success or Recourse unto the same Inquests: And whereas also the said Inquests have of late usurped to dispence with such Persons as they, by their Search, and otherwise, have founden to offend and transgress the Laws, in using and occupying of unlawful Weights and Measures, taking of the said Offenders certain Fines, (which as it is said) the said Inquests have commonly used to employ toward the Maintenance of their said Feasting and Banqueting, directly against the due Order of our Sovereign Lord the King's Laws, and the publick Wealth of all his Highness's Subjects within the said City, and much to the Reproach and Dishonour of the same City:

For Remedy and Reformation thereof, be it ordained, enacted and established by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons in this present Common-Council assembled, and by Authority of the same, That all and every the Wardmote Inquests of the said City, from henceforth to be yearly charged and sworn within the several Wards at the Time afore rehearsed, shall at all Times and Places meet, and for the due Execution of their Charge, meet and assemble themselves together; and that they, and every of them, after their said Meetings, Inquisition, and treating of their said necessary Matters, shall go home to their own several Houses, to Breakfast, Dinner, and Supper, during all the said accustomed Time of their Charge and Session above said; and that none of the said Inquests shall from henceforward set up any Manner of Commons, or keep or maintain any Manner of Dinners, Suppers or Banquets among themselves, or use at their Assemblies and Sessions, any of the Games above-mentioned, or any other whatsoever unlawful Games or Plays at any Time, before the giving up of the said Presentments at the Time above remembered, or shall take or receive any Manner of Fine or Fines, for the Concealment and Discharging of any of the Offences afore recited; but truly present the same Offences, and every of them, according to their Oaths, upon Pain of Imprisonment, by the Discretion of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the said City for the Time being.

FIRE and CANDLES, &c. RECREATION.

PROVIDED alway, and be it enacted by the Authority afore said, that it shall be lawful for all and every the said Inquests, to take and receive, towards the Charges of their Fire and Candles, and other Necessaries during the Time of their said Session, all and every such Matter of Money, as any honest Person or Persons of their free Will, and benevolent Mind, will give or offer unto them; and when they have made their said Presentments, to go and assemble themselves together for their Recreation and Solace where they shall think it good, and there not only to bestow and spend the twenty Shillings which every Alderman within his Ward, according to a certain Order lately taken, shall yearly give unto them, at the Time of the Delivery of the said Presentments, towards their said Charges in this Behalf, but also the Residue of the said Money received and gathered, as it is afore said, of the Benevolence of their said loving Friends, if any such Residue shall fortune to remain, any Clause or Article in this present Act contained to the contrary notwithstanding: Not failing hereof, as ye tender the Commonweal of this City, and Advancement of good Justice, and as ye will answer for the contrary at your uttermost Peril.

The leading Process is a Capias against the Body, or an Attachment against the Goods. So that a Man's Goods may be arrested in his own House upon the first Process, if he be not taken. Which is according to the Practice of all antient Liberties or Franchises.

It shall not be omitted, that the Lord Coke in his Institutes hath a Discourse of the Courts in LONDON, and their Jurisdictions. The Courts he sets down to be these. 1. The Court of Hustings. 2, 3. The two Courts of the Sheriffs. 4. The Court of Equity before the Lord Mayor, commonly called, The Court of Conscience. 5. The Court of Mayor and Aldermen. 6. The Court of Orphans. 7. The Court of Common-Council. 8. The Court of Wardmote. 9. The Court of Halmote. 10. The Court of Chamberlain for Apprentices. 11. What are the Jurisdictions, Rights, and Powers of these Courts, and what else he observes of them, are best seen in the Institutes themselves.

THERE is still one Court (and that a Court of eminent Note) held in the City, that remains to be declared: namely,

The Court of the King's Commission of the Peace of Oyer and Terminer, and Jail-Delivery for Newgate.

The King's Commission Court of Oyer and Terminer.

THIS Court is called, The King's Commission on the Peace of Oyer and Terminer, and Jail-

Delivery of Newgate for the City of LONDON and County of Middlesex: Which Court is held at Justice-Hall in the Old-Bailey, commonly call'd the Sessions-House, and generally eight Times or oftner every Year.

THE Judges are the Lord Mayor, the Recorder, and other of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace of the City of LONDON, the two Sheriffs of LONDON; and oftentimes the Judges (being always in these Commissions) come and sit to give their Assistance.

THE Jurors for all Matters committed in LONDON, are Citizens of LONDON, chose out of such Wards as are appointed for Juries according to the Months of the Year. And the Jurors for Crimes and Misdemeanors committed in Middlesex, are Freeholders of the said County, chosen out of the respective Hundreds in the said County.

IN this Court are heard and determin'd all such Crimes and Misdemeanors as extend to Loss of Life, Corporal Punishment, Fine, Amercement, &c. of which these following are the chief, viz. High Treason, Petty Treason, Murther, Felony, Burglary, Forgery, &c. Now to declare what these Crimes are, and to shew the Punishments to be inflicted upon any Person or Persons guilty of any of them, by the Laws of this Realm.

HIGH TREASON.

NOTWITHSTANDING that some High Treasons are much more odious and heinous than others; yet the Punishment (according to our Law) is the same for all Sorts (Coining of Money excepted): And that Law is,

THAT the Traitor is to be taken from the Prison, and laid upon a Sledge, or Hurdle; and drawn to the Gallows, or Place of Execution, and there hanged by the Neck until he be half dead, and then cut down, his Intrails to be cut out of his Body, and by the Executioner; then his Head to be cut off; and his Body to be divided into Quarters; and afterwards his Head and Quarters are to be set up in some open Places directed; which usually are on the City-Gates, on London-bridge, or upon Westminster-hall; and to render the Crime more terrible to the Spectators, the Hangman, when he takes out the Heart, shews it the People, and says, Here is the Heart of a Traitor.

BESIDES this Death, he doth forfeit all his Lands and Goods to the King, his Wife to lose her Dower, his Children their Inheritance, and all their Part or Pretences to his Estate; and if he be a Person of any Degree or Honour, his Children are deprived of the said hereditary Honour. But Noblemen are not so severely served as to have their Quarters and Heads set up; but, by the King's Grace, they are generally beheaded only. The like Favour is oft shewed to Gentlemen of Fashion who are not Noble.

FOR Coining of Money, the Punishment antiently was, and still is, Drawing, Hanging, and for the most Part, Quartering.

PETTY TREASON.

PETTY Treason is, when a Servant kills his Master or Mistress, a Wife her Husband, a Clergyman his Prelate, to whom he oweth Obedience. The Punishment for this Crime is to be drawn on a Sledge, as before, to the Place of Execution, and there to be hanged by the Neck until dead. The Punishment for a Woman convicted either for High Treason or Petty Treason, is to be drawn to the Place of Execution, and there to be bound to a Stake, with Faggots and comcombustible Stuff set about her, and set on Fire, and so burnt.

FELONIES.

FELONIES are of divers Kinds: For any Offence that is a Degree next to Petty Treason, is accounted Felony; as Theft, Burglary, Sodomy, Rape, Willful Burning of Houses, Forgery, &c. For which, until the Reign of King Henry I. there were several Sorts of Punishments; but it was then ordained, that the Punishment for all Felonies should be Hanging by the Neck until dead, as at present.

MURDER, MANSLAUGHTER.

THIS is a high Crime, but yet the Death is but hanging, as aforesaid. But this Crime hath often too much Favour, by the frequent bringing in the Criminals guilty only of Manslaughter; as, that he killed the other in his own Defence, or upon a sudden Quarrel, and in Heat of Blood, without Malice prepense, or the like. And for this Crime of Manslaughter, Burning in the Hand is the Punishment. But Duelling, if proved a Duel, is Death; and yet by Intercession with the Prince, this Crime sometimes gets a Pardon: But if so, an Appeal may be brought, and the Criminal tried again, and then hanged: And this is sometimes done.

Note, That if a Peer of the Realm commit High Treason, Petty Treason, or Felony, altho' his Sentence for Death be the same with that of a common Person; yet the Prince doth usually extend his Favour to such so far, as to cause them to be beheaded with an Axe.

Note also, That if a Criminal indicted of Petty Treason or Felony, refuse to plead to his Indictment, or to put himself upon a legal Trial; then, for such a Refusal, he is order'd to be sent to undergo that painful Death, called, Paine forte & dure, which with us is called Pressing, which is thus executed: The Criminal is sent back to the Prison whence he came, and there laid in some low dark Room, upon the bare Ground on his Back, all naked, except his Privy Parts, his Arms and Legs drawn with Cords fastened to the several Parts of the Room, and then there is laid on his Body, Iron, Stone, or Lead, so much as he can bear; the next Day he shall have three Morfels of Barley Bread, without Drink; and the third Day shall have to drink some of the Kennel-Water with Bread. And this Method is in Strictness to be observed until he is dead.

THIS grievous Kind of Death, some stout and resolute Men have sometimes undergone, but rarely. And if in case the Criminal can undergo such a Death, then he saves his Estate for his Wife, Children, or Relations; nor is he attainted.

But if it be in case of High Treason, then his not pleading signifies nothing, and he forfeits Estate and Honour.

AFTER Beheading or Hanging, the Criminal's Friends usually inter the dead Body decently, and where they please: But if the Crime be very heinous, as for Robbing and Murthering, then by Order, the Criminal is hanged in the Place near where the Fact was done; and afterwards his Body is hanged in Chains in some publick Road, or near the Place where the Crime was committed, until it rot. And in some Cases his Right Hand is first cut off, and then hanged. In all such Felonies where the Benefit of the Clergy is allowed (as it is in many) there the Criminal is to be marked with a hot Iron on the thick or brawny Part of the Inside of the Left Hand, with a T for Theft; and if for Manslaughter, with M. But wandering Rogues and Vagabonds are burned with an R. And some Years ago the Parliament did make an Act for Shoplifters, and notorious Persons, whose Crimes did not deserve Death, to be burnt in the Cheek near the Eye; but this is not used now.

PETTY LARCENY.

THIS is Small Theft, and of Things of a low Value, not exceeding 12d. The Punishment was antiently, sometimes the Loss of an Ear, sometimes by Cudgelling, or the like; but since Edward III. by Whipping, the Criminal being tied by the Hands to the Tail of a Cart, and stripped naked to the Waist, whether a Man or Woman; so following the Cart by or near the Place where the Felony was committed, and is lashed with a Whip of four, or five, or six Cords knitted, by one that follows the Cart for that Purpose.

PERJURY.

THIS is bearing of false Witness upon Oath before a Court of Judicature, or before Magistrates impower'd to take an Oath, as Masters in Chancery, Justices of the Peace, and the like. The Punishment is the Pillory, with the Head put into it, but sometimes only standing upon the Pillory for an Hour's Space in publick Places; as, the Royal Exchange, Temple-bar, the Maypole in the Strand, against Westminster-hall, or near the Place where the Party injured resides, or desires he should stand. By the Law, the Criminals sometimes have their Necks put into the Pillory, and their Ears being nailed to it, to be cut off; sometimes burnt with a P for Perjury. And the Trees growing upon his Ground, if he had any, were rooted up, and his Goods confiscated.

CHEATING, LIBELLING, FALSE WEIGHTS and MEASURES, Offences in BAKERS, BREWERS, &c.

THESE Offences are commonly punished by standing on the Pillory, and sometimes to have one or both Ears nailed to the Pillory, and cut off; or for Blasphemy or the like, to be whipped to and from the Pillory, and whilst they are in the Pillory, to have their Tongues bored thro' with a hot Iron.

THE Prison for these Criminals, and such like Malefactors, is Newgate.

THE Executions of Malefactors, however they are done monthly (a Month seldom failing thro'out the Year, but several ignominiously end their Lives at Tyburn) do not restrain wicked Men and Women from committing their Thefts, Burglaries, Murthers, and Felonies. One Cause whereof are the Reprieves the Condemned do so frequently obtain: Which both encourage Sinners to go on in their evil Courses, and hinder the Confessions of their Accessories, and the sincere Repentances which otherwise they would make. As the late Ordinary of Newgate observed in one of his Execution Papers, concerning one Richard Lewis, a Butcher, condemned for Robbery: That one Thing that made him backward to prepare for Death was, that a certain Person offered to use his Interest to get him a Reprieve; and for that received two Guineas and a Half Guinea, and one Crown Piece, besides a Guinea spent upon his Friends in Wine, and such like Treat: And a Note also given him to pay him ten Guineas more when the Thing was effected. And yet the Person, desirous of more Ready Money, did to that Purpose write to Lewis some Letters. And this was the Transcript of one of them:

“ I have been at the Secretary's Office twice,
“ to know the Issue of what I have been about,
“ but could get nothing more than what was told “ me

" me before ; That what I had left, should be
 " look'd into, and if Things appear as I have un" dertaken to make them appear, I should have " a Reprieve — It cost me more than what I " have had from you ; and I expect more to" wards what Expences I may be at. And when " you have supplied me, I shall go and know
 " what must be depended on.

J. E.

THESE Commissions of Oyer and Terminer afforded great Ease and Commodity to the City ; whereas in former Times the Kings of England appointed not the Mayor, Recorder, &c. to be Judges of Misdemeanors against the King within the City, at monthly Sessions, but Judges Itine-rants at the Tower, to sit on the Pleas of the Crown now and then, at uncertain Times, when the King was minded to squeeze or humble the City. And when they came, they proceeded with such Rigour in these Inquisitions against the City, that the Citizens were often fined severely, and sometimes imprisoned, and sometimes the City's Charter was seized into the King's Hands ; which proved so burthensome to the City, that they at last got these Itineraries superseded by Act of Parliament, and the present Practice of holding the Commissions in the Old
Bailey by themselves, established in the Room.

It may not be amiss to shew something of the Manner and Practice of these Pleas of the Crown antiently by the said Judges Itinerants, to shew how Matters stood with the City in former Days.

THERE is a Tract in the Custody of the Town-Clerk of LONDON, with this Title, " The " Manner and Order how the Barons and the " rest of the Commonalty of the City ought to " behave and carry themselves towards the King " and his Justices at the Time, wherein it should
 " please the King to hold the Pleas of the " Crown at the Tower, concerning Attachments,
 " Accidents of Murder, &c. " Some Collections out of which are as follow, translated from the Latin.

Magnates, &c. i. e. The great Men and the discreeter Sort of the City, were wont to meet in a certain convenient Place, to pacify Angers, Rancors and Discords, which had before arisen in the City : That so by renewing Peace and Amity among them, they might be in Will and Act as one Man and one People, save themselves harmless, and their Customs and Liberties.

If by some Chance any made Disturbance in the City, and disquieted the Citizens, he was to be reckoned among his Fellow Citizens a publick Enemy, and as well he as his Heirs were to be deprived of the City for ever : And that because by Reason of such a turbulent Citizen, the King might take into his Hands the City and Liberties, to the Grievance and Detriment of the whole City.

THE King sometimes sent his Letters to summon the Attachments of his Crown : But if it happened that the Day of the Summons prescribed, was dated to a less Term than to that of forty Days, then discreet and solemn Men were sent to shew the King and his Council that he would give them another Day, because, according to their old Liberties and Customs, they ought not to be summoned to such Attachments to a less Term than forty Days at least.

WHEN they received Commandment (the Liberties of the City being safe) to shew and plead the said Attachments, Accidents of Death, &c.
 then all the Aldermen made all the Rolls thro' each Ward, wherein were contained Pledges and Attachments belonging to the Crown, to instruct and warn the Neighbours to meet at the Day appointed at Barking Church, and thence to go to the Tower of LONDON, that they might answer discreetly and providently to the King and his Justices, of those Things that would be objected to them.

ON the Day of making these Pleas of the Crown, the Custom was, that early in the Morning, all the Laity of the City came together to Barking Church, and thence, all being decently and well clad, entered into the Tower ; and while these Pleas lasted, no Sheds, Shops, Cellar, Solar, (or Chamber) wherein saleable Things were either sold or made, were opened.

THE same Day, from the Common-Council of the City, were sent forth out of Barking Church, six or more of the more solemn, worshipful, and discreet Barons of the City, who should go into the Tower to our Lord the King, and his Council and Justices, on the Behalf the City, to salute and welcome them ; praying them, that if it pleased the King, they might appear before them in the said Tower without Danger, and to keep to the Mayor and the rest of the Citizens, their Liberties and Customs safe ; because the King and all his Predecessors, Kings of England, and their Justices, always preserved to all the Citizens, their Liberties and Customs safe and indemnified.

THE same Men also shewed to the King, his Council and Justices, that they forbid on the Behalf of the King, that none presume to keep the Gates and Doors but some of their Fellow Citizens, and such as should be deputed by them for this Purpose ; nor any Marshal or Crier appear among their Fellow Citizens, unless of themselves, and by the Will of the Citizens ;
 because, according to the Liberty of the City, they ought to have no Porter, Door-keeper, Marshal, or Crier, nor were accustomed to have, unless of themselves, and such as pleased them.
 That all the Gates and Doors stand open to the Barons and to all the Citizens, because the Pleas of the Crown were held, and that they might have free Ingress and Egress.

THEN three discreet and moderate Men were chosen, one whereof represented in order to the King, his Council and Justices, the Chances and Mischances belonging to the Crown hapning in the City from the Time wherein the old Pleas were last pleaded to this Time : The other two stood by the said Presenter, one on his Right and the other on his Left ; that if he happened to be tired in representing, the other might go on in making the Presentments : And if perhaps he that presented mistook, he might in Silence be rectified by the two standing by ; so that none else might by any Means presume to disturb or correct the Presenter.

No Tumult, Muttering, Chiding, or Talking together, was to be heard among the People, as long as these Things were presenting ; but all to keep themselves in Peace, as they tendered the Honour and Liberty of the City ; and that the Presenter be heard by all, and understood in Peace.

WHATSOEVER Matters were objected against the Barons and City, they answered nothing on the sudden, although they were well instructed and certified to answer ; but consulting and discouring together, they answer by the Common-Council, saving the Liberties of the City ; and to frame the Answers, 24. or more were chosen out of the Common-Council, who presently went to the Common-Council of the City, for the Safety and Defence of the whole City.

AFTER the King's Justices had shewn and delivered to the Mayor and Barons, Chapters (or Articles) of the Crown, they presently required a competent Day to provide themselves and consult together, that they might give an Answer

Answer safely to the said Chapters at the Day granted by the Justices, and in the mean Time discreetly to enrol those Chapters and their Answers.

OUT of the Number of the 24, or more beforementioned, four or more were provided and joined with the Mayor, chiefly to make Answers to the Objections and the Chapters; and the Mayor's Clerk, together with the Common-Clerk of the City, and the Sheriffs Clerks sat before them to note, memoriter, all the Matters objected, lest for want of noting, they might be forgotten; and one was Protonotator, from whose Note all the rest took each his Copy of Writing, as well the King's Objections, as the Commonalty's Answers.

THE Sheriffs had their Servants present, and the Aldermen the Beadles of their Wards, decently and handsomely habited and shod, ready at hand to perform the Commands of the Mayor and Barons of the City, and putting off their Caps and their Cloaks, to walk respectfully in their Coats and upper Coats, carrying streight white Rods in their Hands; of these, four were assigned to keep the Doors and Gates, and two Criers, and others, were Marshals, to perform what should be enjoined them.

ACCORDING to the antient Customs and Liberties of the City, there were three Purgations in the Pleas of the Crown, whereby such as were called in and accused, might acquit themselves: The first was De Morte, of Death or Murder: The second De Maimemia, of Maiming: The third Purgation was De Insultis, Baculis, Tostis, Vulnerationibus, &c. of Assaults, Battery with Staves, Burnings, Woundings, and such like Injuries done in the Time of the Lord's Nativity, or in Easter and Whitsun Weeks.

As for him that would purge himself by the first, called The Great Law, the Appealed and Accused made six Oaths in his own Person, that he was innocent of Felony and breaking the King's Peace, and of the whole Crime laid upon him, and so let God help him and those holy Things; after that six Men were to swear, that the other swore a sound and safe Oath, according to their Consciences and Understandings; and God help them, &c. and this Order was to be continued to the Number of 36 Men compleat; so that first the Accused swore, and then after him the six, until the Number above-noted were full.

FOR choosing of the 36 Men, the Accused chose 18 Men on the East Side of Walbrook, and 18 on the West Side, and they not of his Kin, or any Way related to him by Marriage, or otherwise.

HE that was accused of Maiming, took three Oaths in his own Person, that he was free and innocent of Felony, or breaking the King's Peace; and then six Men swore, that he made a just and true Oath, according to their Consciences and Understandings; and this Order was continued to the Number of 18.

HE that was accused of Assault, Battery, Burning, Wounding, Blows, Blood-shedding, and other Injuries done at the Holy Times beforementioned, made an Oath in his own Person, as before; after him six Men swore as before, who were chosen out of the Neighbourhood where he dwelt.

To obtain the Favour and Benevolence of the King and his Justices in these Pleas of the Crown, the Ancestors of the Barons and Citizens bestowed abundance of Gifts and Presents upon them and their Clerks. It was impossible for the Barons and all the Citizens otherwise to pass in those Pleas elsewhere, than through the King's Hand and of his Justices; therefore they thought it no Disgrace or Shame to do as those did, who manfully and strenuously governed and defended the City and its Liberties in the Times before them; and they thought it beneficial for them to do the same that they did, lest by the Objections of them (viz. the King's Justices and their Clerks) the Citizens should be brought into Law and Trouble.

IN case it were demanded of the Mayor and Barons of the City, who were the Presenters and Finders of Persons slain, of Murders, or other Mischances, they were to answer from the Common-Council, after this Manner: That although the Use of the Kingdom were such out of the City, any one is esteemed in LONDON the Presenter or Finder of such Prescripts, according to the antient Custom and Liberty of the City. For in so populous a City, such Emergencies can by no means be concealed: Because, before it hath been intimated to the Bailiffs, Things are divulged through the Compass of the City. And therefore no such is had, or is wont to be had, in the City, unless only a common Report of the People of the City.

IN the fifth Year of King Henry III. were these Pleas of the Crown held at the Tower before Hubert de Burgo and his Fellows, Justices: When many nice and captious Questions were put to the Citizens to answer. The first of all these Questions was, How Archbishops, Bishops, Earls, and Barons, and others that have Rents in LONDON, of certain Tenements, and cannot have their Rents, how they shall recover them, &c. All these Questions, with their Answers, were enrolled in the Tower, in the 15th of the same King, before the same Hubert, when there was another Itinerary. Again, the Pleas of the City of LONDON were again held the 28th of the same King Henry, Son of King John, at the Tower, before William de Eboraco, Provost of Beverley, Jeremy of Caxton, and Henry of Bath. Which held from Easter-Day for fifteen Days together. There had been no Pleas of LONDON pleaded for eighteen Years past. It was then granted to the Barons of LONDON, that as soon as they ought to begin to plead, they have, without the Gate of the Tower of LONDON, their own Door-keeper; and the Porter of the Lord the King to be within Doors; and that they have likewise their own Door-keeper without the Hall-door, when they are to plead, to bring in the Barons and others of the City, who were to plead, and of whom they have Knowledge; and that the Door-keeper of the Lord the King be within; and that they have their own Serjeants with their Rods.

IT is worth seeing what was done at this sitting of the abovesaid Justices Itinerants at the Tower. First, they deliver'd to the Mayor, &c. Chapters concerning what they were to answer concerning the Pleas of the Crown. And here were terrible Retrospections, and Matters long before past and gone, now called to Account. For the old Pleas of the Crown, which had been at another Time before the King's Justices, and not determined, which were many, were all called over again; as well as the new Pleas of the Crown, which afterwards arose in Time of Peace. Pleas were also had of those which were in the King's Mercy, (that is, subject to Forfeitures) and which were not; of Dues to King John, the Father of the Lord the King, due both before the War and after, (and that was a long Time before) and who were the Debtors; and if dead, who their Heirs. Again, Pleas of those who within the Liberty of the City, had maliciously thrown down some Mens Houses, or burnt them, against the King's Peace: Who they were, and whose Houses they were: And if they made Peace together without the King's Licence. Pleas of Valets and Boys, who are and ought to be in Custody of the King: Whether they were married, or to be married: And if married, To whom: Of the Services of the Lord the King, what they are, and who holds them: Of Churches; what they are, and ought to be, of the King's Donation: Of the Escheats of the Jews; as well of the Tenements of the Jews as Christians; and who holds them: Of Purprestures made upon the King, either on Land or Water, &c. and a great many more Enquiries concerning their Pleas.

CONCERNING these, if it might be proved, that it was not so used in the Times of former Kings, all the Barons were in the King's Mercy; Mercy, that is, at his Mercy to fine them as he pleased: And so the Chapters were delivered them.

THE third Day, according to the Custom, the Barons came and answered. And Simon Fitzmary (one of the Aldermen) came and offered to the Lord the King an hundred Marks; so that the Pleas of the City might be held and pleaded as they were pleaded in the Time of King Richard and King John: And they were admitted. And he [Simon Fitzmary] putteth all his Goods in Pledge of the said hundred Marks.

THEN came the Mayor; and he and the Aldermen answered concerning the old Pleas of the Crown before mentioned.

THE Kings of England would sometimes send their Justices to sit upon these Pleas of the Crown, in some Displeasure conceived against the City, or some of its Members. And the Justices would be very captious in watching for Advantages to mulct or imprison them, or take away the Charter.

AND the Citizens, in insisting upon their Liberties, would sometimes speak so plain, that it drew them into Danger, and their Liberties too. As it happen'd at the said Pleas of the Crown 28 Hen. III. when one John de Coudres [some public Officer, as it seems, of the City] had said before the King's Justices, That the Liberties of the City, and the Life and Limbs of the Citizens, [which relates to the Pleas of the Crown] ought to be equally regarded. The Justices concluded, that the King must be spoke with upon this. And he was arrested by the King's Commandment at the Tower of LONDON. After, at the Petition of the Citizens, the King deliver'd the said John to them by Bail, under Danger of all their Liberties that they had, to have him before the King at his Pleasure; thence to answer to our Lord the King: And so he was set at Liberty.

Other LAWS, CUSTOMS and PRIVILEGES.

ALTHOUGH under the Consideration of the several Courts, divers Laws and Customs of the City, and Privileges and Immunities of its Magistrates and Members have been remember'd; yet are there some other Laws and Practices of the City, founded upon antient Usage, and Acts of the City itself, and some upon Acts of Parliament, as may be observed by the Matter hereafter related.

First, To mention a Privilege or two of the Chief Magistrates of LONDON, besides what hath been shewn already. The Lord Mayor, for the Time being, may cause any Person inhabiting within LONDON, or the Liberties, to be summoned to appear before him, upon the Complaint of any Citizen; and for Non-appearance, may grant his Warrant to bring such Person before him: And then (which is more than other Justices of the Peace can do) he hath Power to hear and determine the Differences arising between them.

If any Apprentice or other Person shall be carried from the City on Ship-board, or there detained against his Will, the Mayor may send his Warrant by his Water-Bailiff, and compel the Captain or Commander of the Vessel to release such Person.

THE Mayor has Power to grant a Warrant, by Way of Certificate, to all Christian People throughout England, in Behalf of any Citizen of LONDON, that he may freely use Commerce, buy and sell any Manner of Goods, wheresoever he shall come, without all Manner of Toll, or Let or Hinderance.

THE Kings of England from antient Times, granted to the Mayor of LONDON yearly certain Warrants for Bucks; and so Queen Elizabeth granted: Which they had, in Respect of their Privileges, granted to the City to hunt in all Forests, Parks and Chaces within the County of Middlesex; and accordingly, Sir John Langley, Mayor, July 4, 1577, wrote a Letter to the Lord Treasurer, in his own Name, and the Name of his Brethren, that he would move her Majesty herein, as she and her Progenitors antiently had been accustomed to grant yearly; and the Common-Hunt was the Bearer of this Letter, and appointed to attend upon him for the same.

AND such an high Authority does he bear within the City, that in former Times the Mayor of LONDON thought it not his Duty to stand before the highest Officer of the King, within the City's Jurisdiction; and in Matter of Precedency, or taking Place, he would not give Way to any Nobleman; as appears by these two remarkable Instances: The Lord Treasurer, Anno 1285, or thereabouts, had summoned Sir Gregory de Rokesley, Mayor, with the Aldermen and Citizens, to the Tower, to make Inquisition how the King's Peace had been kept in the City: But the Mayor refused to go in the Quality of Mayor; therefore at Barking Church he laid aside his Mayoralty, and committed his Office to one Ashy, and so went to the Tower as an Alderman, or Commoner, upon the said Summons; for which he was imprisoned, and many other Citizens at that Time: And the King (Edw. I.) upon this, took away the City's Privilege to choose their Mayor, and set over them a Custos of his own making.

AND at the Serjeants Feast in Ely-Place, An. 1464, Matthew Philip, Mayor, and the Aldermen and many Citizens, being invited to the Feast by the Serjeants, the Lord Grey of Ruthen, Lord Treasurer, was seated above him; whereat the Mayor, Aldermen, and the rest of the Commoners left the Place, would not stay, but departed home, and the Lord Mayor invited the Aldermen that Day to dine with him, and all the Citizens were wonderfully displeased.

AN Alderman, a Knight, may take Place of a Commoner Knight. In the Beginning of King James the First's Reign, a Contest happened in the City for Precedency. The Commoners, being Knights, would take Place of other Knights, though they were Aldermen, if the Commoners were knighted before them. The Aldermen that were Knights, though knighted after them, nay, though they were not Knights at all, stood for Precedency as Aldermen, before all Commoners Knights. One of the Chief Knights Commoners at this Time was Sir Baptist Hicks, a Mercer in Cheapside, who had been often burlesing, he and his Wife, about this Ceremony; the Aldermen Knights, and their Wives, striving for Precedency; and Sir Baptist and his Lady sometimes, for Peace sake, granting it. Sir Baptist kept his Shop after he was knighted, which was looked upon as some Disparagement to him; it not being usual, as it seems, in those Times, after

Knighthood,

Knighthood, to keep their Trade going, and this the Aldermen gave a Fling at, in their Petition to the King; for at last the Business came to this Upshot, that they preferred a Petition to the King, for his Determination of this Matter, which was in the Year 1607, which Petition was to this Tenor:

To the KING's Most Excellent MAJESTY,

The humble PETITION of the Mayor, Knights, and Aldermen of your Honourable City and Chamber of LONDON,

SHEWING,

“THAT whereas it hath pleased your most Excellent Majesty, of your Princely Favour, both at your Majesty's Coronation, and since, to dignify your Suppliants with the Degree of Knighthood, as also certain Commoners, yet keeping Shops, and continuing their Trades within this City: And forasmuch as some of those Knights Commoners do pretend a Priority before some of your Suppliants later knighted, and stand with them in Contention for Place and Superiority in Precedency at public Meetings, even in their own Wards and Jurisdiction, contrary to the most seemly and beautiful Order of the said City.
“Your Suppliants most humbly beseech, that your Majesty will be pleased to recommend the judicial Hearing and Determination of this Difference to the Right Honourable the Lords in Commission for the Office of Earl Marshal of England; to the End, that the antient Magistracy, which is derived and held from your Majesty's supreme Authority, together with their antient Customs and Privileges, being rightly understood, their Lordships may take such Order therein, as your Highness be no further troubled herewith, nor the settled Order of the City's quiet Government hereafter prejudiced nor disturbed.

THIS was accordingly referred to the Court Marshal; for under the Petition it was thus writ:

At the Court at Newmarket, 12 Mar. 1607.

“HIS Majesty having a gracious Respect to the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of his Highness's City of LONDON, is pleased to refer the Consideration of this Petition to the Lords Commissioners for the Office of Earl Marshal of England, to the End that such Order may be set down in the Differences mentioned in this Petition touching Precedency, as shall be convenient for the Preservation of the Credit of such as, under his Highness, have Authority in the Government of this City.

Signed, Daniel Dun.

WHEN the Case was heard before the Court Marshal, the City assigned these Reasons for their Knights Aldermen to take Precedency of any Knights Batchelors else; nay, and for Aldermen, though not of the Degree of Knights, to do the same.

THE City of LONDON, they argued, was a Corporation privileged from much of the ordinary Course held throughout the Kingdom; and endued with many Liberties and Immunities, first granted thro' special Favour of the Kings of this Realm; and afterwards confirmed by divers Acts of Parliament, as aiming at the Benefit and Honour of the State: Which the Industry and Loyalty of the Inhabitants has so well answered, that the Place has thereby gained the Names of the King's Chamber.

THAT the Government of this City depended chiefly upon the Mayor, as the King's Lieutenant; and secondly, upon the Aldermen, as subordinate Magistrates, to govern the several Divisions or Wards of the same; whereof by like Authority, granted from Sovereign Majesties, they were made Keepers; and to these Aldermen was left the Rule of the Inhabitants, residing in the same, which were known by the Name of the Commons of the City.

THAT the Body of the Commons was divided into Guilds or Companies, which were antiently ranked in Degrees of Priority or Precedency, according to the Worthiness of their Trades or Mysteries; and the Brethren of every Guild had their Places in the Company, either according to their Seniority, or as they held Offices in the same; moreover, every Citizen knew his Place, not only in his Company, but also ceteris paribus, in Respect of such as were of other Companies, which was not the least Part of the Policy of this City.

THAT the Question now was, Whether a Commoner dignified with Knighthood, without any other Advantage of Honour, by Employment or otherwise, and using Trade and keeping Shop in the City, should take Place of an Alderman Knight within the same City, contrary to this beautified Order, of antient Time settled and confirmed, with such Charters and Grants from his Majesty; or whether any other Batchelor Knight shall take Place of any Alderman within this City?

THAT in the Negative may be thus argued. Honour is given to assist Government, not to derogate from it, or to diminish it; but if a Commoner Knight have Precedency of an Alderman in the Place of his Authority, it doth in some Manner shadow and eclipse his Authority and Government. He that has Power upon just Occasion to command, hath Precedency of him that is subject to that Command, in the same Place where he commands; but an Alderman has Power, upon just Occasion, to convent the Commoner within his Ward, notwithstanding his Knighthood; ergo, he has Precedency before him in that Place.

A less Good in the State is not admitted to prejudice a greater Good; but if a private Knight shall take Place of an Alderman, and consequently prejudice Magistracy, and diminish the Honour of the City, a less Good does hinder a greater Good; ergo,

THAT in the Court of Pleas of Law holden in Guildhall, pro Domino Rege, the Aldermen are Judges; and in that Regard, they wear their Scarlet Robes; but Judges have Precedence of others within their Circuit; ergo,

Neither hath it in former Times been questioned, Whether an Alderman shall take Place of a Commoner Knight? for it appeared by antient Journals, or Repertories of the City, (wherein every Man is registered according to his Place of Precedence) that an Alderman Knighted took his Place according to his Seniority among the Aldermen, and not as he was a Knight; ergo a fortiori, a Commoner Knight is not to take Place of an Alderman within the City; for the Record stands thus:

“Commune Concilium tent. undecimo die Julij, Anno Regni Regis Edwardi Sexti, Dei gratia, Angliæ, &c. tertio, coram Henrico Am-“cotes,

 “ han. Lamberd, Will. Gerrard, Stephen. Kir“ ton, ac Will. Lock, Milite, Aldermannis, “ Vicecom. ac majore parte Communiariorum
 “ de Communi Concilio Civitat. predict. existent.

AND for their Place without the City, the Record of primo Hen. VIII. Jennings Mayor, concerning the Funeral of Henry VII. is extant, in this Manner :

“ AND upon the next Day then following, the “ Mayor and Aldermen, with all such Persons as “ have been afore appointed to ride in Black,
 “ shall go by Water in Barges to Westminster, “ there to be present at Mass and Offering. The “ Mayor, with his Mace in his Hand, offered “ next after the Lord Chamberlain. The Al“ dermen Barons, and representing Barons Estate, “ which have been Mayors, offered next to the “ Knights of the Garter, and before all the “ Knights of the Body. Next after those Knights,
 “ all the Aldermen that have not been Mayors.

THIS was the Aldermens Plea: But those on the other Side, in the Behalf of Sir Baptift, urged, that this Difference about Precedency had been started by the Pride of the Citizens, and their Wives. For, before, whatsoever was pretended, a Knight took Place by Antienty of Dubbing. And so the Heralds directed. And Sir Baptift Hickes, in a Letter to his Brother Sir Michael Hickes of the Court, written upon this Occasion, tells him, That after he was Knighted, he presently went to the chieftest of the Heralds, to be informed by him, what his Place of Precedency was, in case he should meet with some Aldermen, later Knighted than himself in LONDON; and then he had it under that Herald’s Hands, that he was to take Place of them according to the Antienty of Knighthood. He writes likewise in the same Letter, That before that Time never any Alderman made Question to take Place of a Knight: And that he well remember’d, that [in Queen Elizabeth’s Reign] Sir Rowland Hayward, who was (as he said) a stout Alderman, would never take Place of a Batchelor Knight, Knighted before him. And that Sir Thomas Pulifon, Sir Richard Martin, and before them, Sir Thomas Gresham, Batchelor Knights, took, and take Place according to the Antienty of their Knighthood. And that there were many Knights that took Place of Aldermen Knights, and who had and did give them Place in LONDON, by Reason of the Antienty of Knighthood. And that therefore the contrary was an infringing of the Dignity of Knighthood.

THE Earl of Dunbar seemed also to be of the same Judgment, and promised Sir Baptift, that he would speak himself to the Earl of Northampton, one of the chieftest Commissioners for Earl Marshal, that his Right should receive no Blemish nor Disgrace. For this Knight, with Sir Herrick, another Commoner, maintained this chargeable Suit against the whole Court of Aldermen; till at last, after divers Years, they let the Business fall; and the Lords Commissioners of the Earl Marshal’s Court, the Court of Aldermen still persisting in the Suit, made this Decree, that the Knights Aldermen, should have Precedence in the City. And these are the very Words of the Order, as it was transcribed out of the Herald’s Books, and humanly communicated by Sir Henry St. George, Kt. Garter.

At a MARSHAL’S COURT holden at Whitehall, on Wednesday Morning the 19th of February, 1611.

WHEREAS upon the humble Petition of the Mayor, Knights and Aldermen of the City of LONDON, exhibited to the King’s most Excellent Majesty, complaining, That divers Citizens and Commoners of the said City, being Knighted, did challenge Precedency of Place before the Aldermen, at publick Meetings within the City; it pleased his Majesty, for the upholding of the antient and seemly Orders of the said City, to refer the Consideration of that Difference unto the said Lords Commissioners; to the End, such Order might be set down, as might stand with the Preservation of the Credit and Reputation of such as, under his Highness, had Authority in the Government of the said City: And whereas the said Lords Commissioners, having prefixed and appointed two several Days to both Parties, for the hearing and ending of the said Difference, at both which Days the said Knights Commoners made Default; their Lordships did thereupon appoint the 19th Day of November then following, and now last past, to both the said Parties peremptorily, to attend with their Council at Whitehall, to receive such absolute and final Determination in the Cause, as to Justice should appertain: And that either of the said Parties failing, or making Default, should be adjudged to have thereby concluded themselves, for questioning the said Difference any more thereafter: Forasmuch as the said Knights Commoners did then also make Default, and alledging, That they would no longer stand in Opposition to the Premises; their Lordships have thereupon order’d, that the said Aldermen should have and take Place and Superiority, in Precedency within the City, before the said Knights Commoners, which now are Freemen or Citizens of the said City, and such other Citizens or Commoners, as hereafter shall be made Batchelor Knights; until We, the said Lords Commissioners, upon full Hearing of the Cause, and the Proofs and Allegations on both Parts, shall see good Cause to order and adjudge the contrary.

THE Knights Batchelors of the City may also take Notice of this Rule for their Precedencies: That their Seniority of Knighthood doth not always give them a Right to Precedency. For sometimes a junior Knight, upon some signal Honour done him, shall take Place of a Senior. For which an Order at a Court Marshal, March 19, 1609, may be taken Notice of, viz.

“ SOME Question arose between Sir Thomas Smith, lately employed by his Majesty, Ambassador to the Emperor of Russia, and certain Knights Batchelors of the City of LONDON, more antient than he, according to the Grounds of Honour, as well as the Precedents of former Times; by Virtue of that Power and Authority which we have from his Majesty, by Strength of his Commission, to decide Doubts and Questions of like Nature: We do resolve and judge, that the Precedency is due to him, in Respect of the Honour which he hath had to stand covered in the Presence of a King: And do further decree, that the same Right be yielded “ yielded hereafter unto others, that upon like “ Reason shall pretend the like Privilege.

THE Aldermen have a Negative Voice in the Common-Council; as was found by several Aldermen, and others, of the Common-Council, appointed in the Year 1683; Pritchard Mayor, to inspect Acts and other Proceedings, enter'd in the Journal of that Court: Who reported, among other things, “ That they had seen several Entries in the Journal of this Court, that the Lord Mayor and Aldermen; upon Matters propounded, had taken Time to advise and consider thereof; and to others have declared their Dissent. And even in those worst of Times, as March 4, 1641; upon two Petitions brought into the Common-Council by a Committee, to be presented to the Parliament,

“ they were read, but not voted, because the Lord Mayors Locumtenens, and the major Part of the Aldermen thought fit to advise upon the same. And Jan. 24, 1644; it was declared by the Mayor and Aldermen, that they had a Negative Voice in Common-Council, by the antient Custom and Charters of the City. And that they had also seen the Opinion of divers learned Counsels, heretofore given to the Court of Aldermen, under their Hands, that they have a Negative Voice in making Laws and Orders, and admitting of Officers in Common-Council; as the Lord Chief Justice Pemberton; Sir William Dolben, Serjeant Maynard, Sir William Jones, Sir George Jeffreys; and Sir Francis Winnington. And the said Committee humbly propounded, to take away all Disputes in this Matter for Time to come; and that the same might have the Approbation and Concurrence of this Honourable Court.” And accordingly it was by the Court, together with other Things; approved and agreed to.

IT would be endless to set down all the Laws, Customs and Privileges of the City. Those that have already been mention'd are not a few, and of the chief and most publick Note. For the rest, and for larger Discourse of these already specified, Recourse is to be had to the Law-Books of LONDON; as, Reports of special Cases touching the Customs and Liberties of the City; by Sir Henry Calthorp, Recorder of LONDON. Lex Londinensis; or, The City's Law. WHEREAS by the antient laudable Laws, Liberties and Franchises of this noble City of LONDON, no Person or Persons should be willingly suffered to exercise, use or occupy any manual Occupation or Handicraft, within the said City or Liberties thereof, unless he or they were Free of the same City, or Apprentice or Apprentices with some that be Free of the same City; the which said antient Laws, Franchises and Liberties notwithstanding, divers Artificers and Handicraft Men, being Freemen of this City, not regarding or esteeming the same Laws, Liberties, Customs and Franchises, nor the Oath that they have taken to the said City at such Time as they were made Free, for the Maintenance and Advancement of the same City, have now of late not only willingly suffered, hired and set at Work, within the said City and Liberties thereof, divers Foreigners from the Liberties of the same City, in divers and sundry Handicrafts and manual Occupations; but also have refused to take and set at work in the said manual Occupations or Handicrafts, the honest poor Citizens and Freemen of the same City, to the great Hindrance, Loss and Prejudice of the said poor Citizens, and to the utter Undoing of a great Number of the said poor Handicraft Men, being Citizens and Freemen of the said City, and also of their poor Wives and Children for ever, unless some speedy Remedy be herein provided.

For Reformation whereof, be it enacted, ordained and established by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Commons in this present Common-Council assembled, and by the Authority of the same, That no Person or Persons, now being Free of this City of LONDON, or that hereafter shall be Free of the same, shall after the Feast of St. Michael the Archangel, now next coming, by any Colour, Way, or Means, set at Work in any manual Occupation or Handicraft, within the said City, the Liberties or Suburbs thereof, any Manner of Foreigners from the Liberties of the said City, upon Pain of Forfeiture of five Pounds of current Money of England, for every Time that any such Person or Persons shall offend, or commit, or do, any Thing contrary to the Purport, true Meaning, and Effect of this present Act.

All and singular which Penalties and Forfeitures, above and by this present Act limited and appointed, shall be divided into three equal Parts, whereof the one to be to the Use of the Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of the said City for the Time being, and one other Part thereof to be to the Use of the first Presenters of the same Offences, and the third Part thereof to be to the Use of the Company or Fellowship that every

And be it also enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That it shall be lawful for the said Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the said City for the Time being, upon every Confession or Proof of any such Offence aforesaid, before them made or sufficiently tried, to commit every such Offender or Offenders to Ward, there to remain without Bail or Mainprize, until he or they have fully satisfied and paid the said Forfeiture or Forfeitures and Penalties to the Use aforesaid.

An ACT against those who walk up and down Streets hawking with Wares, and such as have Stalls at Peoples Doors, or Tables and Stools in the open Streets with Wares thereon.

G A R R A R D Mayor.

Commune Concil' tent' in Camera Guildhal' Civit' LONDON. sexto die Julij, 1602, Anno Regni Dominae nostrae Elizabethae Reginae, nunc quadragesimo quarto.

WHEREAS by the Privileges and Franchises of the City of LONDON, confirmed by Parliament, every Warehouse, Shop, and other Place within the City of LONDON, and Liberties of the same, having open Shew in to any of the Streets or Lanes of this City, hath Time out of Mind been reputed, and known to be, and so ought, and hath been accustomed to be, and in very Deed is an open and publick Market-Place for Shew and Sale of Wares and Merchandizes within the said City and the Liberties of the same: And whereas in antient Time the open Streets and Lanes of the said City, have been only used and accustomed, and so ought to be used and accustomed for open Passage, as the common Highway only, and not for Hucksters, Pedlers and Haglers to stand and sit to sell their Wares in, and to pass from Street to Street, and Place to Place, hawking and offering their Wares to sell, other than certain Places of the said City, which have been of antient Time accustomed to be specially used for Country People to stand and sit to sell Victuals in, and that only on certain Days in the Week, and certain Hours of the Day: And whereas now of late there be two Sorts of People, which are greatly encreased, and do greatly hinder the ordinary and honest Tradesmen, being Shop-keepers, in their several Trades within this City, and the Liberties of the same, and impoverish others, and utterly undo many of them: The one of which two Sorts be Foreigners, and others, which walk up and down the Streets hawking with Wares, and offering the same to be sold openly to all Sorts of People, as they stand, sit or pass; and likewise come to Men or Womens Doors, and into their Houses or Rooms, and offer their said Wares to sell: And the other of the two Sorts be for the most Part Women, and some others also sitting or standing at Mens Doors or Stalls, with their Wares lying or hanging for Shew and Sale there, and some of them standing or sitting with their Wares upon Tables or Stools in the open Streets, Lanes or High-ways of the said City, ordained and appointed for Passage, and not for Sale of Wares: By Reason whereof, very many Housholders, who have been in great Trade, and raised great Profit by retailing in their Shops, are very much hinder'd, and some forced to set Haglers and Hawkers a-work to carry abroad their Wares up and down the Streets, to the End to take some Money to help to relieve themselves and their Families. Which Inconveniencies (if due Remedy be not in Time provided) are like to grow, in very short Time, to do very much Hurt, not only in abating her Majesty's Profit in her Subsidies, and other Services; but also in weakening the Citizens in such Sort, as they shall not be able to yield their Aid in bearing Scot and Lot, and other Charges ordinary and extraordinary, for Maintenance of the good Estate of the said City, and very many of them, only by means of the said Inconveniencies, made utterly unable to maintain their Houholds and Families. For Remedy therefore of the said Inconveniencies, be it enacted, ordained and established by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor of the City of LONDON, and his Right Worshipful Brethren the Aldermen of the same City, and the Commons in this present Common-Council assembled, and by the Authority of the same, That forasmuch as all Stalls and Perprestures whatsoever, which any Person whatsoever holdeth without the principal Wall, Plat or Foundation of his House, do by the Charter of the Queen's Majesty's Progenitors, by her Highness confirmed, in Right belong to the Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of the City of LONDON; it shall be lawful to the Aldermen and Commoners of the said City, Committees appointed, or from Time to Time to be appointed by the Common-Council, for Letting of the Lands and Tenements appertaining to the said Mayor, Commonalty and Citizens, or for any two or more of the the said Aldermen, and three or more of the said Commoners, by writing under the Common Seal of the said City, to authorize any Person or Persons whatsoever, whom they shall think meet, in the Name of the Mayor, Commonalty, and Citizens of the said City, to enter into all, and every such Stalls and Perprestures, to the Use of the said Mayor, Commonalty and Citizens, or the same to deface, break down, take away, or dispose, as the said Aldermen and Commoners shall think meet and appoint, and especially the Stalls and Perprestures of such Person or Persons as shall offend in any Thing contrary to the true Intent of this Act, or any Branch or Article herein mentioned.

And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That no Person or Persons whatsoever, inhabiting, or which hereafter shall inhabit within the City of LONDON, or the Liberties of the same, shall at any Time hereafter, by any Colour, Ways or Means whatsoever, let, or willingly suffer to be used, any Stall, Incroachment, or Perpresture, situate or being near, before his, her or their House, Shop, or other Place whatsoever, in any open Street or Lane of this City whatsoever, for or by any Person or Persons whatsoever, which shall there sell, utter, or put to Sale, any Linnen Cloth, or any Ware made of Linnen Cloth, or any Starch or other Wares or Merchandizes whatsoever; nor shall willingly suffer any Person or Persons whatsoever, to sell, shew, offer or put to Sale any Linnen Cloth, Starch, Wares or Merchandizes whatsoever, upon any Stool, Seat, or other Thing, before his, her or their House or Stall, upon Pain to forfeit the Sum of twenty Shillings, of lawful Money of England, for every Time wherein he, she, or they shall offend, contrary to the true Meaning hereof.

And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That no Person or Persons whatsoever shall at any Time hereafter, by any Colour, Ways or Means whatsoever, directly or indirectly, sell, or put to Sale, by Way of Hawking, or as a Hawker, any Linnen Cloth, or any other Ware made of Linnen Cloth, Starch, or any other Wares or Merchandizes whatsoever, in any open Street or Lane within the said City or the Liberties thereof, (Victuals in the Market-Place and Market-Time only excepted) otherwise than upon the Stall of his, her or their own Shop or Dwelling-House, or in his, her or their Shop, Warehouse or Dwelling-House, upon Pain to forfeit for every Time wherein he, she or they shall so offend all the Linnen Cloth, or other Ware whatsoever, to be sold, uttered, or put to Sale, contrary to the true Meaning hereof, and to forfeit also the Sum of twenty Shillings of lawful Money of England.

And be it further enacted, ordained, and established, by the Authority aforesaid, That the one Moiety or Half-part of all the Penalties and Forfeitures to be forfeited by Virtue of this Act, shall be to the Chamberlain of the City of LONDON, for the Time being, to the Use of the Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens of the same City; and the other Moiety to him or them that will sue for the same, by Action of Debt, Bill, or Information, to be affirmed, exhibited, or commenced and prosecuted in the Queen's Majesty's Court, to be holden before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the said City, in the Chamber of the Guildhall of the same City, wherein no Wager of Law shall be admitted for the Defendant; and it shall and may be lawful to all and every Person and Persons whatsoever, thereunto authorized by the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen of the City aforesaid, for the Time being, who shall see or know any Linnen Cloth, or Wares made of Linnen Cloth, Starch, or other Wares or Merchandizes whatsoever, which shall be bought, sold, uttered, or offered to be put to Sale, contrary to the true Meaning of this present Act, (and thereby shall be forfeited by Virtue of this Act) to seize the same, and to carry and convey the same to the Guildhall of the said City, or to some Place near unto the same, there to remain in safe Custody until the same shall be disposed of according to the true Meaning of this present Act.

*An ABSTRACT of an Act of Common-Council made the 15th of April, Anno quarto Jac. I.
Sir Leonard Holliday Lord Mayor.*

No Foreigner to keep open Shop in the City, or sell by Retail.

WHEREAS by the antient Charters, Customs, Franchises and Liberties of the City of LONDON, confirmed by sundry Acts of Parliament, no Person not being Free of the City of LONDON, may or ought to sell, or put to Sale, any Wares or Merchandizes within the City or Liberties of the same, by Retail, or keep any open or inward Shop, or other inward Place or Room, for Shew, Sale, or putting to Sale of any Wares or Merchandizes, or for Use of any Art, Occupation, Mystery or Handicraft within the same: And whereas also, Edward, some Time King of England, of famous Memory, the Third of that Name, by his Charter made and granted to the said City in the fifteenth Year of his Reign, confirmed also by Parliament, amongst other Things granted, That if any Customs in the said City, before that Time obtained and used, were in any Part hard or defective, or any Things in the same City newly arising, where Remedy before that Time was not obtained, should need Amendment, the Mayor and Aldermen of the said City, and their Successors, with the Assent of the Commonalty of the same City, might put and ordain thereunto fit Remedies, as often as it should seem expedient to them, &c. so that such Ordinance should be profitable to the King, for the Profit of the Citizens, and other People repairing to the said City, and agreeable to Reason: Now forasmuch as divers and sundry Strangers and Foreigners from the Liberties of the said City (nothing regarding the said antient Charters, Franchises, Customs, or Liberties of the said City, but wholly intending their private Profit) have of late Years devised and practised, by all sinister and subtle Means, how to defraud the said Charters, Liberties, Customs, good Orders and Ordinances; and to that End, do inwardly, in privy and secret Places, usually and ordinarily shew, sell, and put to Sale their Wares and Merchandizes, and use Arts, Trades, Occupations, Mysteries and Handicrafts within the said City and Liberties of the same, to the great Detriment and Hurt of the Citizens, who pay Lot and Scot, bear Offices, and undergo other Charges, which Strangers, and others not Free, are not chargeable withal, nor will perform; for Reformation of which Disorders, and for avoiding of such Prejudice and Damage as thereby groweth to to the Freemen of the said City, and is now more of late, than was any Time heretofore suffered; and to provide for the common Profit and Good of the Freemen and Citizens of this City.

It is therefore, by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, and Commons in this Common-Council assembled, ordained, and established, That no Person whatsoever (not being Free of the City of LONDON) shall at any Time after the Feast of St. Michael now next ensuing, by any Colour, Way or Means whatsoever, either directly or indirectly, by himself or any other, shew, sell, or put to Sale, any Wares or Merchandizes whatsoever by Retail, within the City of LONDON, or the Liberties or Suburbs of the same, upon Pain to forfeit to the Chamberlain of LONDON for the Time being, to the Use of the Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens of the said City, the Sum of Five Pounds, of lawful Money of England, for every Time wherein such Person shall shew, sell, or put to Sale any Wares or Merchandizes by Retail, within the said City, Liberties or Suburbs thereof, contrary to the true Intent and Meaning hereof.

And it is further Ordained and Established, That no Person whatsoever, (not being free of the City of LONDON) shall at any Time after the Feast of St. Michael now next ensuing, by any Colour, Way or Means whatsoever, directly or indirectly, by himself or any other, keep any Shop or other Place whatsoever, inward or outward, for Shew or putting to Sale of any Wares or Merchandizes whatsoever, by Way of Retail, or use any Art, Trade, Occupation, Mystery or Handicraft whatsoever, within the said City, or the Liberties or Suburbs of the same, upon Pain to forfeit the Sum of Five Pounds of lawful Money of England, for every Time wherein such Person shall keep any Shop, or other Place whatsoever, inward or outward, for Shew, Sale, or putting to Sale, any Wares or Merchandizes whatsoever, by way of Retail; or use any Art, Trade, Occupation, Mystery or Handicraft whatsoever, within the said City, Liberties or Suburbs of the same, contrary to the true Intent and Meaning thereof: All which Pains, Penalties, Forfeitures, and Sums of Money to be forfeited by Virtue of this Act and Ordinance, shall be recovered by Action of Debt, Bill, Plaint, to be commenced and prosecuted in the Name of the Chamberlain of the City of LONDON for the Time being, in the King's Majesty's Court, to be holden in the Chamber of the Guildhall of the City of LONDON, before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the same City; wherein no Essoign or Wager of Law shall be admitted or allowed for the Defendant: And that the Chamberlain of the said City for the Time being, shall in all Suits to be prosecuted by Virtue of this Act or Ordinance, against any Offender, recover the ordinary Costs of Suit to be expended in and about the Prosecution thereof. And further, That one full and equal third Part of all Forfeitures to be recovered by Virtue hereof, (the Costs of Suit for the Recovery of the same, being deducted and allowed) shall be, after the Recovery and Receipt thereof, paid and delivered to the Treasury of Christ's Hospital, to be employed towards the Relief of the poor Children to be brought up and maintained in the said Hospital. And another equal third Part to him or them which shall give first Information of the Offences, for which such Forfeitures shall grow, and prosecute Suit in the Name of the Chamberlain of the said City, for Recovery of the same; (any Thing in this Act to the contrary notwithstanding.)

Provided always, That this Act or Ordinance, or any Thing therein contained, shall not extend to any Person or Persons, for bringing or causing to be brought any Victuals to be sold within this City, or the Liberties thereof, but that they, and every of them, may sell Victuals within the said City, and the Liberties thereof, as they might lawfully have done before the making thereof; any Thing herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Note, This Act hath been allowed in the King's Courts at Westminster, for a good and reasonable By-Law; and is recited at large, in the eighth Part of Coke's Reports, upon a Case solemnly argued thereon in Hilary Term, 7 Jac. I. called, The City of LONDON's Case.

GIBSON.

AN Act of Common-Council was made Anno 1694, against those they called Hawkers, Pedlers, Petty Chapmen, &c. providing against their carrying about their Wares in the Streets and Lanes of the City and Liberties, or in Taverns, Inns, Ale-houses, Coffee-houses, &c. upon Pain of Forfeiture of Forty Shillings: And those that should buy any such Wares, to be fined Forty Shillings.

AND the Year ensuing, viz. 1695, because these Pedlers, &c. did presume to bring into the Markets of the City (which were intended only for the selling of Food and Provision) Mercery Wares, Lace and Liren, and such like Commodities, that ought to be sold only by Freemen in their Shops and Ware-houses; therefore an Act was made for the Restraint of such, a Penalty of three Pounds to be laid upon every such Offence. These two Acts follow, together with an Abstract of an Act of Parliament in the 1st and 2d of Philip and Mary, against this Abuse, so long ago practised, with another Act of Common-Council to that Purpose, made in the Beginning of the Reign of King James I. But the said Abstract being set down before, is here omitted.

This Day the following Act pass'd into an Act of this Court.

A BILL for the Prevention of Pedlers, Petty Chapmen, and other unlawful Traders, wandering abroad within the City of LONDON and the Liberties thereof.

WHEREAS by the Laws and Statutes of this Realm, amongst other Things it is Enacted, Ordained and Declared, That all Pedlers and Petty Chapmen wandering abroad, shall be taken, adjudged and deemed Rogues and Sturdy Beggars, and shall be taken, apprehended and stripp'd naked from the Middle upward, and be openly whipp'd until his or her Body be bloody, and shall be further dealt with, as in, and by the said Laws and Statutes is directed and appointed:

And whereas also great Numbers of Vagrant and Idle Persons, both Men and Women, either unsettled and having no Habitations, or wandering or roving from the Places of their Abode and Habitations, do daily resort to this City and the Liberties thereof, as Pedlers and Petty Chapmen, wandering up and down, Selling, or offering to Sale, divers Sorts and Kinds of Small Wares, and other Goods and Merchandizes, contrary to, and in Contempt of the said good and wholesome Laws and Statutes, and also contrary to the Welfare and Good Government of this City, and to the manifest Loss, Damage and Detriment of the honest and industrious Shop-keepers, Tradesmen and Inhabitants thereof:

For the Prevention whereof for the Time to come, and for the better and more effectual repressing the Mischiefs aforesaid, Be it Enacted and Ordained, and it is hereby Enacted and Ordained by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, the Right Worshipful the Aldermen his Brethren, and the Commons in Common-Council assembled, That the said Statutes shall from henceforth be strictly and duly put in Execution against all such Offenders within this City and the Liberties thereof; and to that End and Purpose, that all Constables and other inferior Officers within this City and Liberties thereof, shall seize, take and apprehend all such vagrant and wandering Persons, going and wandering about within this City and the Liberties thereof, or any of the Streets, Lanes, Alleys, Passages or Places within the same, selling or exposing to Sale any Manner of Wares or Commodities whatsoever; and carry such Offender or Offenders before some, or one of their Majesties Justices of the Peace for the Time being, within this City and Liberties thereof, to be proceeded against, as by the said Statutes are directed and appointed. And that in case any Constable or other inferior Officer shall shall willfully neglect or refuse to do, and perform his Duty therein, that then, and in such Case the Penalty of Twenty Shillings for every such Offence shall be levied upon him for offending. And further, that the Sum of Five Pounds shall be required, levied and received, of, and upon every Person and Persons who shall let or hinder the due Execution of the said Laws and Statutes, as by the said Laws and Statutes is also Enacted and Ordained.

And whereas also by the antient and laudable Customs of this City, no Wares, Goods or Merchandizes whatsoever ought to be Bought or Sold, or exposed to Sale within this City and the Liberties thereof (save only in publick Markets, or in open Shops or Warehouses, kept and used for that Purpose, and Fairs) during the Time of such Markets and Fairs only: Yet nevertheless divers and sundry lewd, idle and disorderly Persons, lodging or living within the said City and the Liberties thereof, or near Neighbourhoods or Places thereunto adjoining, do frequently Sell and expose to Sale divers Goods, Wares and Merchandizes, as Hawkers and Petty Chapmen, going and wandering in the Streets, Lanes, Alleys and other Places thereof, from House to House, and from Door to Door, contrary to the said Good, Laudable and Profitable Customs of this City, by Reason whereof the Citizens, Shop-keepers and Inhabitants of the said City are not only greatly hinder'd and prejudiced in their Trades and Occupations, but also many of their Majesties good Subjects, inhabiting and residing within the said City and the Liberties thereof, and others resorting thereunto, are frequently cheated, defrauded and abused in buying bad and deceitful Wares and Commodities of them:

For Prevention whereof for the Time to come, and for the better and more effectual putting in Execution the said Antient and Laudable Customs of this City against such Offenders as aforesaid; Be it further Enacted and Ordained, and it is hereby Enacted and Ordained by the said Lord Mayor, the said Aldermen his Brethren, and the said Commons in Common-Council assembled, that from and after the first Day of August now next ensuing, no Person or Persons whatsoever, shall Sell or expose to Sale any Goods, Wares or Merchandizes, in any Street, Lane, publick Passage, Tavern, Inn, Ale-house, Coffee-house, or other publick Place within this City or the Liberties thereof, unless it be in open Markets appointed, used and accustomed for the Vending thereof, or in common and publick Fairs, during the Time of such Markets and Fairs, upon Pain to pay and forfeit the Sum of forty Shillings for every Offence by him, her or them committed contrary thereunto.

And that no Person or Persons within this City or the Liberties thereof, shall buy any such Wares, Goods or Commodities, so exposed by such Person or Persons to Sale, contrary to the true Meaning and Intent hereof, upon Pain to pay and forfeit for every Offence by him, her or them committed contrary hereunto, the like Sum of forty Shillings.

And for the better Prevention of the said Mischiefs for the future, It is hereby further Enacted and Ordained, That no Keeper or Keepers of any Tavern, Inn, Ale-house, Coffee-house, or other publick or private House whatsoever within this City or the Liberties thereof, shall permit or suffer any such Hawker or wandering Pedler or Petty Chapman in his, her or their House or Houses, Shop or Shops, or other Place or Places belonging to him, her or them, to Sell or expose to Sale any Small Wares, or other Goods or Merchandizes, contrary to the true Intent and Meaning of this present Law. And that in case any such Keeper of any Tavern, Inn, Ale-house, Coffee-house, or other publick or private House within this City or the Liberties thereof, shall offend therein, That then, and in every such Case, every such Person and Persons so offending, shall for every such Offence lose, forfeit and pay the Sum of forty Shillings of lawful English Money.

And it is hereby further Enacted and Ordained, That for the better putting in Execution the Laws and Statutes of this Realm, a good and sufficient Pair of Stocks, at, or before the said first Day of August shall be made, provided and set up (if not already done) in some convenient and publick Place in every respective Ward within this City, and shall be from Time to Time kept in good and sufficient Repair at the Costs and Charges of the several and respective Wards of this City.

And it is hereby further Enacted and Ordained by the Authority aforesaid, That all, and every the Forfeitures, Penalties, Sum and Sums of Money so forfeited, and to be paid by Force and Virtue of this present Act as aforesaid, shall, and may be sued for, and recovered by Action or Actions of Debt, to be brought and presented in the Name of the Chamberlain of this City, for the Time being, in any of their Majesties Courts of Record within this City, where Actions of Debt may be brought, and that the Sum or Sums so recovered (the Costs of such Suit being first deducted) shall be disposed of as follows, viz. one Moiety to the Use of the Mayor and Commonalty, and Citizens of this City, and the other Moiety to him or them that shall or will first discover and sue for the same, according to the antient Custom of this City in that Behalf.

Provided always nevertheless, that this present Act, or any Thing therein contained, shall not extend to, or be construed, or taken to hinder or prevent any Maker or Makers of any Stuffs, Silks, Wares or Goods whatsoever, from carrying or causing to be carried abroad any such Goods by him or them so made, to sell or expose to Sale to any the Inhabitants, Freemen of this City or Liberties thereof, exercising the Trade of Selling and Uttering by Retail or Wholesale such respective Goods and Wares, who shall or may buy the same to sell again, any Thing in this present Act contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

And whereas also divers good Acts have been heretofore made, and are still in Force, to prevent the irregular and disorderly selling or exposing to Sale, out of the lawful Markets, Fish, Fruits, Roots, Herbs, and Plants under several Penalties: Therefore it is hereby declared and provided, That no new or further Penalty imposed by this present Act shall extend to any Person or Persons inhabiting in this City or the Liberties thereof, for Selling or Exposing to Sale any of the said Goods, or to prohibit any Person or Persons from buying the same, nor to any Person or Persons whatsoever, who shall at any Time hereafter Sell or expose to Sale any unbound Books, Almanacks, or Gazettes, licensed Pamphlets, or Papers whatsoever.

Provided also, that no Person shall be sued or prosecuted for any Penalty imposed by this Act, unless such Suit or Prosecution shall be commenced within the Space of one Month next after such Offence committed, any Thing in this Act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Salathiel Lovell, Mil', Ser-vien' ad Legem ac Recordat' dictæ Civitat', Ricardo Levit, Mil', Willielmo Hedges, Mil', & Thoma Smart, Armig', Alderman', nec-non major' parte Communiar' dictæ Civitat' in eodem Com' Concil' tunc & ibidem Af-femblat'.

An ACT of Common-Council for the Prevention of Hawkers, Pedlers, Petty Chapmen, and others therein mentioned, for exposing to Sale, vending or selling several Wares and Merchandizes in the publick Markets within the City of LONDON, and the Liberties thereof.

WHEREAS by the Laws, Customs, and antient Usages of the City of LONDON, confirmed by Parliament, every Shop and Warehouse within the said City, and Liberties of the same, having open Shew into any Streets and Lanes thereof, have, Time out of Mind, been known and accustomed to be, and in very Deed is an open and publick Market-Place for Persons Free of the said City, for every Day of the Week, except Sundays, for Shew and Sale of Wares and Merchandizes within the said City and Liberties thereof.

And whereas all other publick Markets within this City, and the Liberties of the same, that is to say, Leadenhall-Market, the Green-yard or Herb-Market, Stocks-Market, Honey-lane-Market, Newgate-Market, and all other such like Markets, were and are appointed and ordained by the Laws and Constitutions of this City, to be held and used upon particular and certain Days only in the Week, and on certain Hours of such Days, as open Markets for all Foreigners and Freemen and Women to use and resort unto for Sale of Flesh, Fish, Butter, Cheese, Eggs, Fruit, Herbs, Roots, and such like Victuals and Food, for the Support and Sustainance of the Citizens and other Inhabitants of the said City and Liberties of the same; and were not appointed for any other Use or Purpose whatsoever, save for the Sale of Raw Hides, Tann'd Leather, Tallow and Wool, as appears by the Laws and Orders of the Court of Aldermen and Common-Council, for regulating the same:

But nevertheless, for Want of due Encouragement in the Execution thereof, several Hawkers, Pedlers, and Petty Chapmen and others, contrary to the said Constitution and proper Use and Invention of the said Markets, do now come to the said Markets, and there sell and expose to Sale, Mercery Wares, Lace and Linnen, Grocery Wares, Confectionary Wares, Drapery Wares, Millenary Wares, Glasses and Earthen Wares, Ironmongers Wares, Braziers Wares, Turners Wares, Hosiers Wares, Cutlers Wares, Tin Wares, Toys and other Wares and Merchandizes, and such like Commodities, which by the Usage and Customs of this City ought only to be sold in the Shops and Warehouses of the Freemen of this City, and Liberties of the same; by Reason whereof the publick Markets and Market-Places appointed only for the Sale of Victuals, Food, Herbs, Roots, Raw Hides, Tann'd Leather, Tallow and Wool, as before-mentioned, are become incumbered and made inconvenient for the exposing the same to Sale, and the Prices of Victuals much enhanced thereby, and the Trades used to be exercised in the Shops and Warehouses in the said City and Liberties thereof are much hindred and decayed, to the great Prejudice and Damage of the Citizens of the City:

Now for the effectual preventing and suppressing the said Mischiefs for the Time to come; be it enacted and ordained by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Common-Council assembled.

And be it hereby enacted by the said Court, and by the Authority of the same, That from and after the 25th Day of December, now next ensuing, no Person or Persons whatsoever, whether Free or not Free of this City, shall sell or expose to Sale in the said publick Markets, called Leadenhall-Market, the Green-yard, or Herb-Market, Stocks-Market, Honey-lane-Market, Newgate-Market, or in any or either of them, or in any other such like Market or Market Grounds thereunto belonging, within this City and Liberties of the same, any Mercery Wares, Lace and Linnen, Grocery or Confectionary Wares, Ironmongers Wares, Braziers Wares, Hosiers Wares, Cutlers Wares, Tin Wares, Drapery Wares, Millenary Wares, Glasses or Earthen Wares, Toys, or any such like Commodities or Merchandizes, which are sold in the open Shops or Warehouses of the Freemen of this City and Liberties thereof, upon Pain to forfeit and pay for every such Offence (by him, her or them committed or done to the contrary) the Sum of three Pounds of lawful Money of England, to be sued for and recovered, with reasonable Costs of Suit, by Action or Actions of Debt, to be brought and prosecuted within fourteen Days after such Offence or Offences shall be committed, in the Name of the Chamberlain of this City for the Time being, in the open Court holden before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the said City.

Which said Sum or Sums of Money so forfeited and recovered from Time to Time, (the necessary Charges for the Recovery thereof being first deducted) shall be to the Uses, and disposed of as followeth: That is to say, one Moiety thereof to be paid and delivered to the Treasurer of St. Thomas's Hospital, to be employed towards the Relief of the Poor, Sick and Maimed, provided for and maintained in the said Hospital: And the other Moiety to him or them that shall and doth prosecute and sue for the same (in Manner as aforesaid) from Time to Time: Any Law, Custom or Usage to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

GOODFELLOW.

LONDON, April 15, in the 4th Year of Jac. 1.

IT was then enacted by the Common-Council of LONDON, That no Person or Persons whatsoever, not being Free of that City, should at any Time after the Feast of St. Michael, then next ensuing, by any Colour or Ways whatsoever, directly or indirectly (by themselves, or by any other) shew, sell or put to Sale by Retail, any Wares or Merchandizes whatsoever, (Victuals only excepted) within the City of LONDON, or the Liberties or Suburbs thereof, upon Pain to forfeit and pay, for every such Offence, the Sum of five Pounds.

Note, This Act is recited at large in the 8th Part of Coke's Reports, upon a Case solemnly argued thereon in Hilary Term, 7 Jac. 1. called The City of LONDON's Case, being between the Chamberlain and one Waggoner.

To what is gone before may properly be joined a Collection of particular Orders, made as Matters occurred through the greatest Part of Queen Elizabeth's Reign.

Anno 1563, the Infection of the Plague beginning to threaten the City, July the 5th, Commandment came from the Queen to the Mayor, and the Mayor sent for the Master and Wardens of

of the Company of Clerks, and commanded them, That they should enquire within their respective Parishes, Whether any died of the Plague, and to make a Certificate thereof; and that the Curates and Church-Wardens shall give them Warning of any House when the Plague shall happen in it: And they shall command, that they shall not come to the Church for the Space of one Month next following, after that the Plague hath been in the House; and so to have a Cross on the Door of every House, of Blue, and a Writing under it, signifying that the Infection is there, and to avoid it.

Four Days after, a Commandment was issued out, That every Man, in every Street and Lane, should make Bonfires three Times in the Week, in order to the ceasing of the Plague, if it so pleased God; and so to continue these Fires every where, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

THERE came forth another Proclamation in the Beginning of August, from the Lord Mayor, against Dogs running about the Streets; and Notice given that a Man was hired to kill Dogs, as many as he could find in the Streets; and that he had a Fee to look every Day and Night for them.

Anno 1569, for the preventing of all idle Persons and begging People, whether Men, Women, or Children, or other masterless Vagrants, an effectual Order was made in April the said Year, to take them all up, and to dispose of them in some of the four Hospitals of LONDON, by the 16 Beadles belonging to the same, who had their several Standings and Walks in every Ward. Those that were Vagabonds and sturdy Beggars, were carried to Bridewell; those that were aged, impotent, sick, fore, lame, or blind, to St. Bartholomew's and St. Thomas's Hospitals; all the Children under the Age of 16, to Christ's Hospital; and this Order was made at a Meeting of the Governors of all the Hospitals; the true Copy of which is as follows:

And they shall conduct them from their Lodginge to their Worke, whearesoever it shall happen to be, and very diligentlie attend that they loyter not; and at Night also conduct them to their appoynted Lodginge.

Item, That all the Children taken by them, (being under th' Age of xvj Yeares) be brought to Christs Hospital.

Furthermore, it is agreed by the saide Courte, That yf anie of the saide xvj Beadles neglect anie Parte of their Dutie which to them is appointed, either by theise foresaid Orders prescribed, or other for them appoynted, or hereafter to be appoynted, or at anie Tyme they take any Manner of Bribes, or the poore Peoples Monie from them; the Governours of that House where they serve, (by an Ordre taken before the Lorde Maior and Courte of Aldermen) shall not onlie deprive the saide Person of his Office, State and Lyverie, and place another at their Discretion, but further punish the saide Offender accordinge to his Deserts in that Behalfe. And here ends these Orders.

THE Recorder (tho' not this Year, but divers Years after) gave this Advice for the finding out Felons in LONDON. "I take this Course, "as I think, to be the best and surest Way to "find out Felons, Thieves, and such like, viz. "That my Lords direct their special Letters of "Commandment to my Lord Mayor, that he "give Order to every Alderman, and to their "several Deputies, to cause several Constables "and Beadles of each Ward, each Man within "his Precinct, to take every Night an Account "of every Guest that lodgeth in their House, "and to enter the same into a Book, and to "present the same unto their Alderman; and so "the Aldermen over to my Lord Mayor. The "which Thing is even as easy to be done as it "was at Calais, being English. For the Charge "and Precinct of every Constable in Calais, was "as big as the Precinct of any Constable in "LONDON. And this being duly executed, "it would be an Example to the whole Realm "to do the like. And by this Means (which is "but the due Execution of the antient Laws of "this Realm) should be avoided great Whoredoms, Murthers, Thefts, unlawful Assemblies, "Conspiracies, Confederacies, and such like; "and, in the End, save Numbers from Tyburn.

BUT notwithstanding the former Order, and the Charges committed to the Beadles of the Hospitals to clear the City of Vagabonds and Beggars, it had not its full Effect. For in the Year 1570, or thereabouts, the City swarmed again with Beggars; many whereof were valiant and sturdy Rogues, and Masterless Men and Vagrants, and maimed Soldiers. For the preventing the Mischief occasion'd by some of these, and the great Annoyance they gave the City, the City took a more regular Course; and appointed a Committee to treat with some fit Persons to be Marshals of the City, who should take some good Course with these wandering People, for the clearing of the Streets of them, and appointing them to their several Places and Punishments, if they deserved it. And these were to be armed and well assisted with Servants for the safer Execution of their Office. These Committees chose two able Persons, viz. William Sympfon and John Read, to take upon them this Office, to be the City Marshals, for the Consideration of six Shillings and eight Pence a Day, for them and their Horses, and six Persons a-piece to attend on each Day, at 12 d. a-piece, which is twelve Shillings the Day for either of them. The Appointment of those Men to be left unto the Marshals themselves, to make the better Choice of fit Men for their Purpose. They required moreover, that one Month's Pay, amounting to 35 l. 9 s. 4 d. at twenty-eight Days to the Month, for them (and their Attendance, might be paid them aforehand, the better to furnish them in their Preparation and Want. And to help forward this Work, tending to so notable a Purpose, with all Speed to be expedited, the Committees thought convenient that this Month's Pay might, by Way of Loan, be supplied among the Aldermen. And in that mean Time, and upon the well proceeding therein, the Commons might be moved to the Establishment of a settled Supply for the Continuance thereof in some convenient Manner; and that then after there might be a Weekly Payment of their Salary by Mr. Chamberlain, and the Aldermens Disbursements satisfied, when that Contribution should be established. It was also thought convenient that twelve fair Partizans suitably and conveniently armed, should be presently provided by the Chamberlain for this Service, at the Charge of the City; and Coats or Mandilions for the Attendants upon the Marshals.

It was also thought by the Committees, that the Name of MARSHAL, for the disorderly Persons in the City of LONDON, would be most proper, and might be best used without Offence. And this seems to have been the Beginning of the Office of the CITY MARSHAL.

ABOUT the Year 1570, or within some few Years of it, the Plague was in the City: Then great Care was taken for preventing the spreading of the Infection, and for hindering of idle Persons going about, that might carry it along with them. THE Queen in the Year 1572, being ready to go her Progress, took Care of the City, and gave the Lord Mayor special Charge to look after his Government; and joined with him, to devise by all good Means, for the quiet Order to be continued, both in the City and Places adjoining, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of LONDON and others; and wrote to him this Letter following in the Month of July.

To the LORD MAYOR of LONDON.

The Queen's Order to the Mayor in the Time of her Progress.

RIGHT Trusty and Well-beloved, We greet you well. Altho' we doubt not, but that by the Authority you have as Lord Mayor of our City of LONDON, with the Assistance and Advices of your Brethren of the same, you may and will see our said City well governed, and our good and faithful Subjects ordered and continue in Quietness, as other your Predecessors, and your Self have commonly done: Yet, for the special Care We have for our said City, and Weal of our good Subjects, thinking it convenient for your own Ease, to have you assisted by other Persons of great Trust, Wisdom and Experience, during this Time of our Progress and Absence in remote Parts from thence; and especially that no Disorder should arise in the Suburbs, or other Places adjoining to the City, out of your Jurisdiction: We have for that Purpose made Choice of the most Reverend Father in God the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of LONDON, L. Wentworth, Sir Anthony Cook, Sir Tho. Wroth, Sir Owyn Hopton, Sir Tho. Gresham, Dr. Wylson, and Tho. Wilbrham: And have appointed that they, or some convenient Number of them, shall join with you, to devise, by all good Means, from Time to Time, as Occasions may give Cause, for quiet Order to be continued in our said City, and among our Subjects, and to prevent and stay Disorders, both there and in other Parts near to the same, being out of your Jurisdiction. For which Purpose, and for the better Understanding of our Desire and Intention, We have caused our Privy Council to confer with some of the aforementioned Persons, as you shall understand by them. Willing and requiring you (when you shall meet together, or some of them with you) for the better doing thereof, to agree upon some certain Place and Time, once every Week or oftener, as the Cases may require, and there to meet for the due Execution of our good Meaning and Pleasure.

Writs of Habeas Corpus abused.

ABOUT this Time a great Abuse prevailed in LONDON, which was, that the worst Sort of People, and other Evil-Doers in this City, became emboldened in their Wickedness by this Means; that when any of them was committed to Prison by the Mayor, Sheriffs, or Aldermen, for any Disobedience, Contempt, lewd Living, or other Misdemeanors, they forthwith obtained Writs of Habeas Corpus, whereby they discharged themselves out of Prison; so as the Magistrates could not do Execution of Justice upon them, to the great Encouragement of Malefactors, and Contempt of Authority; therefore in the Year 1572, and in the Month of November, Sir Lionel Ducket, Mayor, by a Letter, moved the Lord Treasurer, to be a Means to the Queen's Justices, that the same Writs might not be so common, unless it were in Cases depending in Suit betwixt Party and Party in the Courts of this City; whereby Justice should be better and more speedily executed, to the Terror of the Lewd, and the Comfort of the Queen's good and honest Subject, and to the Quietness and good Order of the City.

GREAT House-keeping and Feasting, as it was antiently used in LONDON, so the Custom continued down all along Queen Elizabeth's Reign, especially among the Companies, and at the Chief Magistrates Tables: There was excessive spending of Venison, as well as other Victuals in the Halls. Nay, and a great Consumption of Venison there was frequently at Taverns and Cooks Shops, insomuch that the Court was much offended with it; whereupon Anno 1573, that the City might not continue to give the Queen and Nobility Offence, the Lord Mayor, Sir Lionel Ducket, and Aldermen had, by Act of Common-Council, forbidden such Feasts hereafter to be made, and restrained the same only to necessary Meetings, in which also no Venison was permitted; and because they found great Expence of Venison to have been in Taverns and Cooks Houses, and withal very many and great Enormities, by Reason of Drunkenness, seditious Rumours, unthrifty Assemblies, Incontinence, and other Evil to grow of inordinate resorting to Taverns and Tippling Houses, especially for the meaner Sort, they restrained drinking and eating in such Houses; and the Mayor sending this Act to the Lord Treasurer, prayed him, that he would likewise take the same Order in St. Martin's and Westminster, and other exempt and adjoining Places, without which their Proceedings would lack a great Part of the Fruit that was hoped to ensue thereby.

Venison forbidden by Act of Common-Council.

GRANTING Places in Reversion was contrary to some of the antient Laws of the City; for the preventing whereof divers Laws had been made by the Mayor and Aldermen; and in the Year 1574, finding yet the Inconvenience thereof, the Mayor and Aldermen renewed that Order, and took special Care for putting it in due Execution, that the Offices of the City should not be any more granted in Reversion; which was a special Ordinance among them, and which had been made for great Causes touching the State of the City, and chiefly to satisfy the Commons of the City, who shewed great Dislike of this Practice.

By the Care of Fleetwood, the Recorder, and the other Magistrates, in the Year 1575, there were few or no Rogues and Thieves in the Jail; for the Lord Keeper Bacon, in the Month of August, sitting in the Star-Chamber, and according to the Order, calling for the Book of Misbehaviour of masterless Rogues, Fencers, and such like, there was none to present for LONDON, though for Surrey there were five or six Strumpets that had lately been punished at the Affizes at Croyden and Westminster, the Dutchy, (that is, the Places about St. Clement's and the Savoy) St. Giles's, High-Holbourn, St. John's-street and Islington (great Harbours of such misdemeaned Persons) were never so well and quiet; for Rogues nor masterless Men dared now once to appear in those Parts; into such good Order had the Care of the Magistrate at this Time brought the City and Suburbs.

In this Year 1575, in the Month of August, at the Star-Chamber before-mentioned, the Lord Bacon set down in Writing, certain Orders for reforming sundry Matters: One was for suppressing of over great Number of Alehouses. Soon after, the Lord Mayor, Sir Rowland Haywood, and the Recorder for the Liberties of Southwark, Justice Southcote, and the Recorder for Lambeth Town, Lambeth Marsh, the Clink, the Bank, Paris-garden, the Over-ground, Newington, Bermondsey-street, and Kent-street, setting altogether, they put down 200 Alehouses, and yet left a sufficient Number, yea, and more they they feared than the Lord Keeper would like of at his next coming. Then after Dinner, the Dean of Westminster, and the Recorder, went to Westminster: And there in the Court, they had before them all the Officers of the Dutchy, and of Westminster, and put down near 100 Ale-houses there; and the like Reformation was done at St. Giles's, High-Holbourn, St. John-street and Islington: Mr. Lieutenant and Mr. Fisher dealt for the East Parts of the City.

It is remarkable, all this good Order for Reformation was taken, when the Court was absent, as it was now, being fled at a Distance, by Reason of the Plague this Year (1575,) in LONDON: Then did Fleetwood, the Recorder, use these Words in a Letter to the Lord Treasurer, then with the Court at Buxton: "The only Cause that this Reformation taketh so good Effect here about LONDON, is, That when by Order we have either justly executed the Law, or performed the Councils Commandment, we are wont to have either a great Man's Letter, a Lady's Ring, or some other Token from such other inferior Persons as will devise one Untruth or other, to accuse us of, if we perform not their unlawful Requests. The Court is far off; here we are not troubled with Letters, neither for the Reprieve of this Prisoner, nor for sparing that Fray-maker. These Secretaries, Chamber-Keepers and Solicitors in the Court, procure many Letters from their Lords and Ladies upon untrue Suggestions; the which Letters do great Hurt." Thus the honest Recorder.

Two Years after, viz. August 1577, there was a great Sessions, 18 executed at Tyburn, and one Barlow, Priest; all notable Cut-purses and Horse-stealers, and the chiefeſt Thieves in the Land. The Recorder informing the Lord Treasurer, according to Custom, of the Transactions of the Session, adds, That there was Plain-dealing, and neither Favour nor Partiality; and that it was the quietest Sessions that ever he was at; and no more Justices but the Lord Mayor, Sir Will. Damsel, and himself; and, the Court being removed from LONDON to Windsor, for fear of the Plague, there was not any reprieved; hinting by the by, that to be the Reason of the Peaceableness of the Session, and the good Justice done so impartially.

In the Year 1578, and in the Month of July, (the Queen, as it seems, now going her Progress) the Lords of the Council sent their Letters for the good ordering of the City, to the Bishop of LONDON, the Lord Wentworth, the Lord Mayor, Mr. Lieutenant of the Tower and Recorder Fleetwood. There used to be joined to these in former Letters from the Court to the same Instant, Sir Thomas Gresham, Sir William Damsel, the Dean of Westminster, Mr. Justice Southcote, and others, but by Omission left out in these Letters. Being met, the Recorder shewed unto the Assistants certain Points that the Lord Treasurer in Time past gave them for keeping good Order, viz. Plays, unlawful Games, Fence-Schools Vagabonds and such like, to be suppressed; to have a vigilant Eye to the Plague, and to the Watches, and to lay Privy Searches. The Benefit of which appeared, that at the last Privy Search Mr. Fisher, and the Recorder, took above 60 Rogues, being all of the Country. They sent them away at their Peril, and some were well whipped.

The encreasing of the City by Building and Inmates, was looked upon as very dangerous to the City, and of very ill Consequence; wherefore the Queen, at the City's Desire, set forth this following Proclamation:

By the QUEENE.

THE Queene's Majestie; perceiving the State of the Citie of LONDON (being anciently termed her Chambre) and the Suburbs and Confines thereof, to increase dayly by Accessse of People to inhabite in the same, in such ample Sort, as thereby many Inconueniences are seene already, but many greater of Necessitie like to followe, being such as her Majestie cannot neglect to remedie, hauing the principall Care vnder Almighty God to foresee aforehand, to haue her People in such a Citie and Confines; not onely well gouerned by ordinarie Justice, to serue God and obey her Majestie, which by Reason of such Multitudes lately increased, can hardly be done without deuise of mo newe Jurisdictions and Officers for that Purpose, but to be also prouided of Sustentation of Victuall, Foode, and other like Necessaries for Man's Life vpon reasonable Prices, without which no Citie can long continue: And finally, to the Preservation of her People in Health, which may seeme impossible to continue, though presently by God's Goodnes the same is perceiued to be in better Estate vniuersally, then hath bene in Man's Memorie: Yet where there are such great Multitudes of People brought to inhabite in small Roomes, whereof a great Part are seene very poore, yea, such as must liue of Begging, or worse Means, and they heaped vp together, and in a Sort smothered with many Families of Children and Seruantes in one House or small Tenement, it must needes followe (if any Plague or popular Sicknes shoulde by God's Permission, enter amongst those Multitudes) that the same would not onely spread itself and inuade the whole Citie and Confines, as great Mortalitie shoulde ensue to the same, where her Majesties personall Presence is many Times required, besides the great Confluence of People from all Partes of the Realme, by Reason of the ordinarie Termes for Justice there holden, but would be also disperſed through all other Partes of the Realme, to the manifest Danger of the whole Body thereof, out of the which neither her Majesties owne Person can be (but by God's speciall Ordinance) exempted, nor any other whatsoever they be. For Remedie whereof, as Time may nowe serue, untill by some further good Order to be had Parliament or otherwise, the same may be remedied: Her Majestie by good and deliberate Aduise of her Counsell, and being also thereto moued by the considerate Opinions of the Lord Maior, Aldermen, and other the graue wise men in and about the Citie, doth charge, and straightly command all Maner of Persons of what Qualitie soeuer they be, to desist and forbear from any newe Buildings of any House or Tenement, within three Miles from any of the Gates of the sayde Citie of LONDON, to serue for Habitation or Lodging for any Person, where no former House hath bene known to haue bene, in the Memorie of such as are now liuing, And also to forbear from letting or setting, or suffering any more Families then one onely to be placed or to inhabite from hencefoorth in any House that heretofore hath bene inhabited.

And to the Intent this her Majesties Royal Commandment and necessary Prouision may take Place and be duely obserued, for so uniuersall a Benefice to the whole Body of the Realme, for whose Respects all particular Persons are bound by Gods Lawe and Mans, to forbear from their particular and extraordinary Lucre: Her Majestie straightly chargeth the Lorde Maior of the Citie of LONDON, and all other Officers having Authoritie in the same, and also all Justices of Peace,

Proclamation against new Buildings and Inmates.

Peace, Lordes, and Bailifes of Liberties, not being within the Jurisdiction of the said Lorde Maier of LONDON, to foresee that no Person do begin to prepare any Foundation for any new House, Tenement, or Building, to serue, to receiue, or hold any Inhabitants to dwell or lodge, or to use any Victualling therein, where no former Habitation hath been in the Memorie of such as now doe live, but that they be prohibited and restrained so to do; and both the Persons that shall so attempt to the contrary, and all Manner of Workmen that shall (after Warning giuen) continue in any such Worke tending to such newe Buildings, to be committed to close Prison, and to remaine without Bale, untill they find good Sureties with Boudes for reasonable Summes of Money (to be forfaitable and recovered at her Majestie's Suite, for the Use of the Hospitals in and about the said Citie,) that they shall not at any Time attempt the like. And further, the said Officers shall seaze all Manner of Stuffe so (after Warning giuen) brought to the Place where such newe Buildings shal be intended, and the same Cause to be conuerted and employed in any publicke Vse for the Citie or Parishes where the same shal be attempted. And for the auoiding of the Multitudes of Families heaped up in one Dwelling-House, or for the conuerting of any one House into Multitude of such Tenements for dwelling or victualling Places, the saide Lorde Maier and all other Officers in their seuerall Liberties within the Limites of three Miles, as aboue-mentioned, shall commit any Person giuing Cause of Offence from the Day of Publication of this present Proclamation, to close Prison, as is afore limited; and also for the Offences in this Part of Increase of many Indwellers, or as they be commonly termed, Inmates, or Vnderfitters, which haue bene suffered within these seuen Yeeres, contrary to the good auncient Lawes or Customes of the Citie, or of the Borowghes and Parishes within the foresaid Limite of three Miles afore-mentioned, the Lord Maier and other the Officers aboue-mentioned, shall speedily cause to be redressed in their ordinarie Courtes and Lawe Days, betwixt this and the Feast of All-Saints next comming. Within which Times such Underfitters, or Inmates, may prouide themselves other Places abroad in the Realme, where many Houses rest vnhabited, to the Decay of diuers auncient good Borowghes and Townes. And because her Majestie intendeth to haue this Ordinance duely executed, her Pleasure is, that the said Lord Maier of LONDON, and other the Officers hauing Jurisdiction within the said Space of three Miles aboue-mentioned, shall after the Proclamation hereof, as speedily as they may, meete in some conuenient Places neere to the said Citie, and there (after Conference had) accord among themselves, how to proceede to the Execution hereof. And if Cause shall so require, to impart to her Majesties Priuie-Counsell any Let or Impediment that may arise, to the Intent that Remedy be giuen to any such Impediment, according to her Majesties Pleasure heretofore expressed.

Giuen at Nonesuch the seuenth Day of July, 1580, in the two and twentieth Yeere of her Majesties Reigne.

GOD saue the QUEENE.

Imprinted at LONDON, by Christopher Barker, Printer to the Queenes most excellent Majestie.

The Lord Treasurer's DIRECTIONS to the new Lord Mayor.

IN the same Year 1580, Sir John Branch entering Lord Mayor, when he came to the Court of Exchequer to take his Oath, the Lord Treasurer declared himself, for the Nearness of his Place about the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, to understand her Pleasure; and delivered unto him several Advertisements of certain Matters, to be had in Remembrance, and diligently look'd into:

First, For Execution of the Queen's late Proclamation, namely, against the Increase of new Buildings, and Multiplication of Families within the City of LONDON, and three Miles Compass of the same. Which Proclamation his Lordship said to have proceeded from Information given from the Mayor himself: Who had advertised the Council, that the Multitude in and about the City did so overgrow, that there was some Fear and Peril of ruling them. And further, he alledged three Considerations as Grounds of that Proclamation, viz. the over-peopling for Governance, especially of the worst and basest Sort; the Excess of Prizes of Victuals and Fewel; and the Danger of Plague and Infection. From which her Majesty's Person could not be insured to be free.

Secondly, For Provisions of Hospitals, and other good Means to be thought of, in Time of Health against Time of Sicknes.

Thirdly, The Conservation of the River of Thames: Wherein his Lordship first made Mention of the City's Jurisdiction from London-bridge to Stanes; and therein did remember, that Hatches, Stops, and Wayres, wherewith her Majesty was grieved, and found Fault in the Passage of her own Barge; beside the Multitude of Fry of Fish destroyed thereby, and made Meat for Swine. He also made Mention of the Commodity of the River for bringing of Fewel, Victual and Carriages that Way to the City; and concluded, That Order had been given for Redress thereof; but he heard not of the executing it. It was answer'd, That it was done. And then he further said, That her Majesty did find Fault with a great Enormity about the Bridge, by certain Things which she called Trinkers. Which her Pleasure was, that the Lord Mayor should cause to be redressed.

Fourthly, His Lordship did remember certain lewd Persons, Fugitives come from beyond the Seas, and especially from Rome; Mislikers of the Religion, State and Government; and Practisers of Sedition; Persons dangerous to the Realm, and of whom the City of LONDON, being the greatest and wealthiest Place of the Realm, had chief Cause to beware; and where the greatest Number of them lurked. And therefore he willed, that such should be diligently fought.

THESE Admonitions of so grave and wise a Counsellor, and delivered as the expresse Pleasure of the Queen, had this Success; that at the very first Court of this Mayor, which was held November 3, 1580, it was order'd, That the Lord Mayor and Aldermen should both in their own Persons, and with their earnest Travail, and by their inferior Officers, see and cause the said Admonitions to be most carefully and vigilantly look'd unto, and the said Disorders reformed, to the uttermost of their Power. And that therefore the Orders following should be forthwith put in Execution:

First, For the Matter of new Building and Multiplication of Families, Precepts shall be directed to the seuerall Aldermen of the Wards of this City, to call their seuerall Inquests of Wardmote, upon their Oaths to enquire and present all Offences against the said Proclamation; both in Erecting of new Buildings, and in Letting out, or Converting of former Houses to greater Number ber of Habitations than heretofore have been : And also of the pestering of the City and Places adjoining with Inmates, and with Increase of Alleys, and with Strangers ; such as either come not hither for their Conscience in true Religion, or be of such Places as they may safely return : And also to enquire, so near as they can by credible Information, all Offences against the said Proclamation in Places pretended exempt, and within three Miles without the Walls of the said City.

To the Intent, that for such Things as are in the Jurisdiction of this City, speedy Remedy be given : And for the rest, Petition be made to the most Honourable Council. And that Precepts be sent to the Wardens of the several Companies of the Carpenters and Bricklayers, that none of their Companies do work in any such New Buildings, or Severance of former Houses, on Pain of Imprisonment, during the Council's Pleasure, or Disfranchisement for ever.

Secondly, For the Matter of Plague and Infection, the Ministers of this Court shall be commanded to seek out the Orders heretofore sent by the Lords of the most Honourable Council, and also those that have been consider'd by the Common-Council of this City, and allowed by the said Lords in this Behalf. And certain grave Persons, both Aldermen and Commoners, shall be appointed in Commission oftsoons to consider thereof, and of all Places convenient ; and for further Orders, both in clean keeping of Streets, Lanes and Houses, and otherwise requisite in that Behalf : And thereof inform this Court, That Order may be taken accordingly with the good Liking of the most Honourable Lords.

Thirdly, For the Matter of Conservation of the River Thames. And first for Weyers and Stops about the Bridge, it is order'd that the Water-Bailiff shall be called, and commanded to deliver in Writing a true, distinct and particular Report of the State of the River, and how her Majesty's late Commandment hath been executed according to the Laws of this Realm, and Right of the City. And for the Matter of Trinkers, he shall likewise enquire by all lawful Means ; and certify to this Court of the Quality of those Trinkers, their Number, their Places and Manner of Fishing ; what Harm they do, and how and in what Sort they may and ought to be reformed. And for all other Matters pertaining to this City to redress touching the River, and the Navigableness and Fishing thereof, he shall truly inform. That for such Things as lie within the Power of this City to amend, Remedy be given speedily. And for the rest, Suit be made to her Majesty and her Council, and Reformation sought by Order of her Majesty's Laws.

AND this Service, for the more speedy doing thereof, it is order'd that Anthony Hall be requir'd to be Assistant to the said Water-Bailiff with his Travail and Diligence : And that at such Times yearly as the Water-Bailiff goeth up with Citizens for view of the Thames the said Anthony Hall shall always be one of the said Citizens.

Fourthly and lastly, for the Matter of Popish and Seditious Rumour-spreaders, it is order'd, That special Precepts be directed to all the Aldermen by all Means to make diligent Enquiry and Search for such Persons, and especially for such as come to this City by Water : And that there be special Persons, known well affected in Religion, appointed to examine such Suspects as shall be for those Causes brought unto them, and thereupon her Majesty's Council be speedily advertised.
